HITLER EVOKES WORLD CRISIS

PERSONALTY IS CALLED A VAIN REVENUE HOPE

It Won't Produce, Experience Shows.

This is the second of a series of articles discussing the sources of municipal revenue at the present time.

By REUBEN D. CAHN.

What about personal property taxes? To what extent may local governments depend upon this form of taxation to take the place of the falling revenues from real estate?

It is the practice of those who desire to maintain the scale of municipal expenditures at or near boom-time levels, and who are not on the one hand deluded by the glamour of easy money at Washington nor on the other by the prospects of getting the owners of real estate to carry the burden, to propose the shifting of the load to the backs of the personal property owners.

The Realty Point of View.

Members of real estate organizations have devoted considerable energy to denunciations of the personal property owners for failure to pay a larger part of what city government costs. The merit in the controversy is of course on the side of the real estate owners. For the basis of the tax scheme under which we live is, as the constitution of Illinois says, "every person and corporation shall pay a tax in proportion to the value of his, her, or its property."

But though the measure of the tax which he, she, and it is required to pay for the support of local government is the value of any kind of property owned, it has not been possible anywhere in this country to make the application of the general property tax uniform upon all kinds of wealth.

Those kinds of property which are not visible to the naked eye of the tax assessor do not appear on the tax books and so the general property tax has proved to be not general at all, but a tax upon real estate.

A Lesson from Experience.

The truth of this will appear at once from an examination of the experience in this state.

The 63 years since the adoption of Illinois' present constitution was a period marked by a tremendous development of new forms of personal property. During that time production of goods came to be carried on on a large scale, the corporation arose as the dominant form of organization, and tremendous amounts of stocks and bonds were issued. The value of manufactures in Illinois rose from 206 million dollars per year in 1870 to over six billion dollars in 1929.

Since the value of property is taken as the measure for assessing taxes, it might be assumed that the burden of taxation borne by owners of personal property would increase as time ran on, while the burden borne by real estate owners would decline.

Increased Burden on Realty.

The facts are to the exact contrary. In 1870 real estate was 67 per cent of the assessed value of property in Illinois and in 1931 it was 69 per cent of the assessed value of property in Illinois.

The general property tax was chiefly a tax upon real estate when property consisted almost exclusively of real estate, and the general property tax is still a tax upon real estate, the great developments of these new forms of intangible property in the meantime notwithstanding.

The experience in Illinois has not been exceptional. The general property tax everywhere it has been tried has proved ineffective as regards personal property.

Tax Ferrets in Ohio.

To be sure, there have been attempts to make the property tax general, and so relieve the owners of real estate. In the state of Ohio at one time tax ferrets were employed who were paid a commission on the taxes realized upon property they found undeclared by the owners. This did result in digging up a few isolated cases and creating considerable bad feeling in some of the smaller communities. But it brought no substantial additions to the aggregate of wealth on the tax rolls.

The present assessor of Cook county has made a vigorous attempt to get personal property on the tax rolls. And his efforts have been favorably commented upon. Yet real estate is still 70 per cent of the total assessments in this county. The relief to real estate has been microscopic.

The solution at another time was be-

Jury Convicts Ernest J. Stevens

FORMER HOTEL LEADER GUILTY OF EMBEZZLING

Faces 1 to 10 Year Term in Prison.

Ernest J. Stevens, 49 years old, former president of the Stevens Hotel company and a former vice president of the Illinois Life Insurance company, was found guilty of embezzlement by a jury in Judge Michael Feinberg's court last night. He faces a sentence of one to ten years in the penitentiary, this sentence being mandatory under the law.

The jurors not only found Stevens guilty but fixed the amount of his embezzlement—$1,308,463. They found that Stevens was guilty of the crime alleged in affixing his signature of approval to two loans — $608,463 and $700,000—which were made by the Illinois Life Insurance company to the Stevens hotel in 1931, at a time when, the state charged, the hotel was insolvent.

Verdict Surprises Stevens.

Stevens, a member of an old Chicago family that controlled both the hotel and the insurance company before they were placed in receivership, appeared astonished by the verdict of guilty. The jury's decision also came as a surprise to many lawyers and other observers who had predicted an acquittal. When the verdict was read Stevens heard it in silence, although it was apparent that the task of repressing his emotion was a difficult one.

The defendant, a stocky man who had smiled throughout the three weeks' trial, daily expressing his confidence of an acquittal, gazed stonily at the jurors, as if not comprehending what they had done.

His lawyer, Franklin J. Stransky, attempted to comfort Stevens, patting his shoulder and remarking: "You never can tell what a jury will do."

Lawyer Promises Appeal.

"What do we do next?" Stevens asked.

"There'll be a motion for a new trial and if we lose we'll appeal," Attorney Stransky replied. "Don't worry, for everything will come out all right."

Stevens was then joined by his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Stevens Jr., and by another son, John, 14 years old, all of whom had refrained from any show of emotion. After the formal motion for a new trial had been entered they all hurriedly left the courtroom. Stevens was released on his original bond of $25,000.

The defendant's wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Stevens, who had attended every session of the trial, was not in court when the verdict was read, having gone to attend an amateur play in which another son, William, 16 years old, took part.

Hearing on New Trial Nov. 4.

Judge Feinberg set the arguments on the motion for a new trial for Nov. 4, declaring that he did not wish to postpone the hearing too long lest some of the facts in the case be forgotten. If a new trial is refused Stevens will then be sentenced.

The jury deliberated five hours and five minutes, having received the case at 2:15 p. m. and arriving at the verdict at 7:20 p. m. It was necessary

EX-HUSBAND DAY TOO SOON, SO WIFE GETS A WARRANT

John S. Plummer, 46 years old, 6319 Kenwood avenue, middle western branch manager for a large printing organization, was arrested by Morgan Park police last night because, police said, he was apparently a few hours premature in his actions.

Last May Plummer and his wife, Ruby, of 10033 South Irving avenue, were divorced and a property settlement arranged. Under the terms of the settlement, police understand, Mrs. Plummer was to occupy the house in Irving avenue until Oct. 15—today—at which time it would revert to Plummer.

It was in this connection, police said, that he became premature. He appeared at the home yesterday to claim it. His ex-wife protested, police were told, that the home was still hers until morning under the court order. Plummer's answer, it is charged, was to throw Mrs. Plummer out of the house and her clothes after her. She caused his arrest on a disorderly conduct charge. Plummer gave bond. He will appear in South Chicago court tomorrow.

SHERIFF DEFIES MOB; PREVENTS NEGRO LYNCHING

Thibodaux, La., Oct. 14.—[U. P.]—Armed with a rifle, Sheriff Thomas Stark defied a mob of 75 men and prevented a threatened lynching of a Negro prisoner here.

The Negro, charged with murdering an ice dealer, was brought here from Houma to prevent threatened violence there.

When a crowd began to gather about the jail here, the sheriff took his rifle and went to meet them. He opened the jail yard gate and dared the crowd to enter.

"You will have to kill me to get in here," he told them. Two deputies stood behind the sheriff. Members of the mob hesitated and soon dispersed.

Senator McAdoo in Rome to Spend Week with Envoy

ROME, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Senator William Gibbs McAdoo of California arrived here today to spend a week with United States Ambassador Long.

Rich Student Held Prisoner By Kidnapers

William Walton Hall, 31 years old, a law student and the treasurer and part owner of the Sea Dog inn, 335 East Illinois street, a gay river rendezvous for yachting folk and others, was reported to be in the hands of kidnapers last night. A $5,000 ransom has been demanded.

Young Hall, part heir to a $200,000 estate, disappeared Friday night after attending class at the Kent College of Law, 10 North Franklin street, where he is a sophomore. He was not heard from until last evening, when his wife, Julia, received a special delivery letter at their home at 613 Thomas avenue, Forest Park, telling her he had been abducted. She is the daughter of O. F. Hitchner, Freeport, Ill., owner of lumber enterprises in three states.

Work of State Line Gang.

Four letters, one of which threatened Hall with death, are in the hands of federal agents and police, and offer the best clews in the case. Two of them were postmarked at Freeport, indicating the job was the work of state line gangs which have been implicated in a series of kidnapings and robberies both in Illinois and Wisconsin.

The first letter was received by Hall from Freeport two weeks ago. It was partly written and partly printed and it demanded $5,000. It stated in substance: "If you haven't got the money, have your mother get it. She has it." Hall ignored the missive. The following week he received a second note, this one printed, warning him that if he did not comply with the demands of the first he would be killed. Except for mentioning the matter to his wife and to his business partner, H. L. DeLisle, president of the Sea Dog inn, he did nothing.

Attends Law Class.

Friday evening he drove from Forest Park to the loop to attend a law class. A relative rode with him and last saw him at Franklin and Randolph streets. Hall attended the class, leaving at 7:20. That was the last time he was seen by friends or relatives. His failure to return during the night alarmed his wife, but she did not report his absence.

At 6:05 o'clock last night Hall's wife received a special delivery letter, telling her to go to a downtown hotel and ask for a letter addressed to "Mrs. C. H. Magnuson." This note, printed in pencil, merely advised Mrs. Hall to await further instructions. It bore no postmark, apparently having been left at the hotel desk by some one.

Son of Store Owner.

Young Hall moved to Forest Park from Freeport about two years ago. He was the son of the late William Hall, part owner of the William Walton Nephews department store in Freeport. The store was founded nearly 75 years ago by William Walton and bequeathed by him to three nephews, William Hall being one of them. After Hall's death his widow, young Hall's mother, married George Harrison, a Galesburg business man.

Hall lived quietly in Forest Park with his wife and two children, William Jr., 8 years old, and Nancy, 7. He entered law school, and with some of his inheritance invested in the Sea Dog inn. The inn, located at Ogden slip, along the Chicago river, is operated by the Marine Service corporation.

GERMANY QUITS LEAGUE AND ITS DISARM PARLEY

Defies "Allies" in Struggle for Equality.

The text of Chancellor Hitler's speech last night to the German people is printed on page 4.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—Germany's spectacular exit from the league of nations and the world disarmament conference—announced earlier today—was received with thunderous acclaim throughout the reich tonight.

Every city, town and hamlet exhibited tremendous patriotic exuberance. The enthusiasm, which followed Chancellor Hitler's flaming appeal to the nation to indorse his policy of isolation, rivaled that of the exciting days of Germany's entry into the world war. It was clearly evident that the nation stands behind the Nazi dictator even "unto death."

Hitler Demands Equality.

Hitler, always a spellbinder, delivered his dramatic speech to the nation at 7 o'clock tonight. It was full of thunder. The Nazis characterized the chancellor's address as his "masterpiece." Though Hitler bluntly told the world that Germany refused to be a nation "of second class rights" and demanded "equality and honor," he softened the blow by extending his hand to France in a plea for everlasting peace.

But the other capitals of the world talked of war, according to dispatches received by correspondents from their home offices. Hitler's severance of ties with the nations of the old world and the new had precipitated the most serious crisis since the world war.

The day's events moved swiftly. First of all the government announced its withdrawal from the league and the arms conference. President Paul von Hindenburg—aged warrior and now merely a figurehead in the affairs of the nation—at once decreed the dissolution of the reichstag, which had ceased to function on Hitler's order months ago.

New Election Nov. 12.

Von Hindenburg proclaimed a new general parliamentary election for Nov. 12. At the same time a national plebiscite will be held in order to obtain the nation's approval of the government's decision.

Hitler, in a proclamation to the people, said:

"The government asks the nation: 'Does the nation agree with this policy of its government? Is the nation ready solemnly to indorse it as its own opinion and its own will?'"

Judging from the shouts of "Heil Hitler!" which are resounding throughout the streets of Berlin tonight, the answer will be a vehement "Yes."

To Centralize Power.

The government's intention to centralize power in Berlin and Hitler was revealed when a separate government decree dissolved the state parliaments and announced that there would be no new elections for state legislators.

Then, in order to be certain that the new reichstag will vote unanimously for any measure presented by the diminutive dic-

HIGH SPOTS IN SPEECHES THAT STIRRED NATIONS

GERMANY.—"The German people and the German government have not demanded weapons at all, but equality. . . . If the world decides that all weapons, including the last machine gun, are to be destroyed, we are ready immediately to join such a convention. . . . If, however, the world concedes certain weapons to every nation, we are not ready to permit ourselves in principle to be excluded therefrom as a nation of minor rank."

From Chancellor Hitler's speech.

UNITED STATES.—"The United States has taken a position that a disarmament convention could not properly be made an instrument of rearmament and that qualitative equality in armaments should primarily be sought through reduction in the armaments of the heavily armed powers and not through acts on the part of others to attempt to build up."

GREAT BRITAIN.—"We earnestly desire to establish by international agreement the attainment of equality of status [of arms]. . . . By accepting the principle of no immediate rearmament and coöperating with the rest of us in framing a convention which is best calculated to restore the sense of confidence, which has recently been so rudely shaken, the necessary conditions of success can be established."

From the speech of Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, in proposing eight year disarmament scheme.

FRANCE. — "What will Germany gain? Nothing. For lacking a general disarmament convention, the Versailles treaty subsists in all its rigor, and the powers which signed it will not permit it to be violated. The check of the disarmament conference by Germany's fault threatens to start anew the race to arm. More than ever the world is going to live dangerously."

ITALY.—Leaders close to Premier Mussolini indicated he hoped to invoke the four power pact to solve the disarmament problem.

See Another War Brewing in Berlin's Act

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—As the clouds of war drew blacker over Europe today, the United States, through Secretary of State Hull, laid the blame for the smashing of peace efforts squarely upon Germany.

The shadow of Hitler, fallen across the disarmament conference at Geneva, has halted the meeting. If the German dictator's position is supported by his people, according to the American view in Washington today, the peace of Europe becomes an impossibility.

Secretary Hull, interrupting a long conference with Under Secretary William Phillips and Pierpont Moffat, assistant in charge of Western European affairs, revealed to newspaper men this afternoon the gravity with which the American government views Germany's withdrawal from the disarmament conference and from the league of nations.

Disappointment for U. S.

The secretary would not be quoted directly, but he declared that the action of Germany's government slows down, impedes, and halts the disarmament movement. He announced that the United States government was very seriously disappointed, and that it very seriously regrets the development.

The United States, through Norman Davis, its representative at the Geneva conference, had formally taken a stand with Great Britain and France under which the three powers stood in accord against the demand of Germany for the right to rearm.

No plans for further action at Geneva, either for abandoning the disarmament conference entirely, or for searching for a means of inducing Hitler to reconsider, could be discussed tator, it was decreed that none but Nazi candidates will be on the ballots.

The government's decision to resign from the league and the disarmament parley was announced by the chancellor in terse language. His statement, which was read to newspaper men by Dr. Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda and public enlightenment, indicated that Hitler's régime was incensed because the other nations were unwilling to concede to the reich the equality promised on Dec. 11, 1932.

(Germany was promised virtual equality of armaments last December in an exciting session at Geneva and after the German delegates had threatened to walk out.)

Hitler's Statement of Withdrawal.

Hitler's statement to the press said:

"As the German reich's government sees in this attitude a discrimination of the German people which is both unjust and dishonorable, it considers itself unable under such circumstances to participate further as a second class nation deprived of justice in the negotiations which could only lead to new dictates.

"In giving a renewed expression to the unshakable will of peace, Germany declares in view of these humiliating and dishonoring demands that, to her deepest regret, she must leave the disarmament conference. She will, therefore, also announce her resignation from the league of nations."

The nation, thereupon, was informed that its chancellor would broadcast his policy over the government controlled radio system at 7 p. m.

Storm Troops March.

As the first words of the chancellor rang out, the streets of Berlin resounded with the tramp-tramp-tramp of Nazi storm troops. Enthusiastic citizens joined the parades. They became almost hysterical with emotion as Hitler said:

"My German people, when our people surrendered their weapons in 1918 they were trusting in their promise embodied in President Wilson's 'fourteen points'. But vital developments soon developed."

He continued for 40 minutes, reviewing the story of the last 15 years. Carefully, he discussed the era of unrest, the period of starvation, the epoch of occupation, and finally the Nazi revolution and the "third reich's" just demands for a place of "equality and honor" besides her sister nations.

"With fanatic loyalty the Germans fulfilled the disarmament obligations of the Versailles treaty," the chancellor continued. "We believed this would lead to world disarmament as promised in the treaty. The world failed to follow Germany's example in disarmament and, therefore, she insists on the right of equal security as was guaranteed."

Extends Hand to France.

In extending his hand to France, Hitler said:

"It would be of overwhelming importance for humanity if France and Germany once and for all banned violence in their relations," he said. "Germany is ready to agree to this."

The chancellor thanked Premier Daladier of France for his "conciliatory attitude as shown by recent utterances for which millions of Germans are grateful to him."

"Germany was filled with hope when it heard assurances from the French chief that his government has no desire to humiliate the Germans. We were deeply stirred by Daladier's reference to the tragic truth that our two great nations have so often sacrificed the flower of their manhood on the battlefield."

Silent on Intentions.

Hitler refrained from stating whether Germany would go ahead with her plans for equipping her army according to the demands she submitted to the disarmament conference and which she claims she has a right to possess under the Versailles treaty.

The chancellor declared that if Germany had not stamped out communism its unemployed would have swept Europe like wildfire.

He asserted that anti-German propaganda is spread by communists and their friends who are exploiting the romantic appeal of political refugees to their own purposes.

Hitler then stressed his anti-war attitude, stating:

"What is the use or sense of war if it leads only to a series of catastrophes both for the victors and the vanquished?"

Nation Taken by Surprise.

Germany's resignation from the league and the disarmament conference took Germany as much by surprise as it did the rest of the world. Not a word of the cabinet's plans had leaked out.

Following the official announcement Chancellor Hitler issued his appeal for backing by the nation.

Then came a declaration of the entire government to the German people in which it was emphasized Germany was most anxious to overcome the war psychosis.

Seeks Nonaggression Pacts.

This, the government declaration said, should be on a basis of German equality and "through the conclusion of continental nonaggression pacts to safeguard Europe's peace for a long term, serve her economic welfare, and participate in general cultural reconstruction."

The appeal emphasized that Germany in the future will not sign treaties which cannot be fulfilled, but "is ready to vouchsafe these justified demands of the German nation by negotiation and through treaties."

Dr. Goebbels pointed out that Germany's resignation from the league, as specified in the league covenant, can only become effective two years hence.

"Until then," he said, "much can happen."

VATICAN PAPER WARNS RULERS TO WORK FOR PEACE

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The Vatican City newspaper, Osservatore Romano, today printed news of Germany's withdrawal over an editorial on disarmament which apparently had been written before the advices arrived.

"It is necessary," said the editorial, "that the chiefs of the states give the world, which wants peace and which absolutely wants it, proof of their capacity to place before reasons of state the reasons of human solidarity, which no longer wishes cannon, submarines, or the insane trappings of war.

"If the men in the conference betray this universal sentiment of their peoples, on them will fall one of the gravest responsibilities which the governments can assume before our civilization."

KILLED BY TRAIN.

George Randall, 65 years old, colored, 459 East 31st street, died yesterday at Micheal Reese hospital after being struck by an Illinois Central suburban train at 27th street.

BRITAIN IS CALM; ADOPTS POLICY OF 'WAIT AND SEE'

London Refuses to Rush Into Hasty Action.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 14.—Blank astonishment greeted the news here that Germany is quitting the league of nations and the disarmament conference. Coming on top of Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon's statement before the disarmament conference steering committee at Geneva this morning proposing an eight year arms plan, Chancellor Hitler's action was a double shock.

No official action is expected to be taken by Britain for several days. Prime Minister MacDonald is keeping fully informed on the situation. He is spending the week-end at Chequers, where he is maintaining close touch with London and Geneva.

Britain to "Wait and See."

The news of Germany's bolt was too much of a jolt to result in anything like hasty action. The immediate British reaction is to wait and see. Whatever cards remain to be played are being held close to the chest.

No plans were made tonight to call a special cabinet session. That the situation is the gravest that disarmament has ever faced is freely admitted, and that there is now scant chance to obtain a disarmament convention is not denied. But the issues involved are too complex to produce anything like a coldly formulated statement of British policy.

"I am very sorry to hear it, but I cannot say I am surprised," Lloyd George declared. "In my opinion they have muddled things up very badly. By 'they' I mean the league of nations. We are certainly not free from responsibility ourselves. The situation is a very serious one."

Snowden Calls It "Momentous."

Viscount Snowden, former Labor and national cabinet member, said:

"It is a most momentous thing. It is such a tremendous thing one hardly knows what to say. The first thing that strikes me is that there is nothing so far as we know to explain Hitler's taking this drastic step."

What was interpreted as an attempt inspired by the British government to put the soft pedal on anti-German feeling was put out tonight by Vernon Bartlett, official broadcaster of the British Broadcasting company.

Bartlett is a former official of the league of nations and it is understood he is in close touch with the government. The British Broadcasting corporation, moreover, is controlled by the British government, and it is extremely unlikely Bartlett could have made the broadcast he did tonight without the knowledge and consent of the government.

Pleads for "Fair Play."

Bartlett broadcast a plea for sympathy and fair play for Germany. He declared flatly that Germany had been badly treated by her former enemies and that Great Britain in similar circumstances would have acted in the same way as Hitler did. Bartlett appealed to the British people to pocket their pride and seek a just arrangement with Germany.

Bartlett said that even before Hitler came to power there had been a feeling in England that the allies had not been successful in carrying out their promises to reduce armaments, and that even though Hitler by his treatment of the Jews had forfeited a lot of British sympathy "we ought not to overlook the fact that if Hitler has been unjust toward Jews that is no excuse for us to be unjust toward him."

Bartlett said Germany had been told that she would have a permament seat in the league council, but that after she joined the league she found the French, with British support, were trying to get a permanent seat for Poland and other countries. This gave Germany an opportunity to say that the league was only another instrument to keep her in a position of inferiority.

Times Calls It "Blunder."

The Sunday Times declares that by their decision yesterday the rulers of Germany made one of the major blunders of history.

"Everything now is in a melting pot—Europe's future, the league of nations, and the collective principle in international affairs—and it has been thrown there by the deliberate choice of men who had not the patience nor the will to await the result of common effort," the Times says.

"Yesterday there were some who sympathized with the German claim to some approach to equality in the status of armaments. Today there is not one. The dictators of the reich have displayed too clearly the spirit that lay behind their demands. All civilized opinion will be against her. Her decision of defiance to the world is a blow to constructive effort everywhere, but nothing compared to the blow at the good name of the German nation."

FRANCE URGES SPAIN TO JOIN MILITARY PACT

[Copyright: 1033: By the New York Times.]

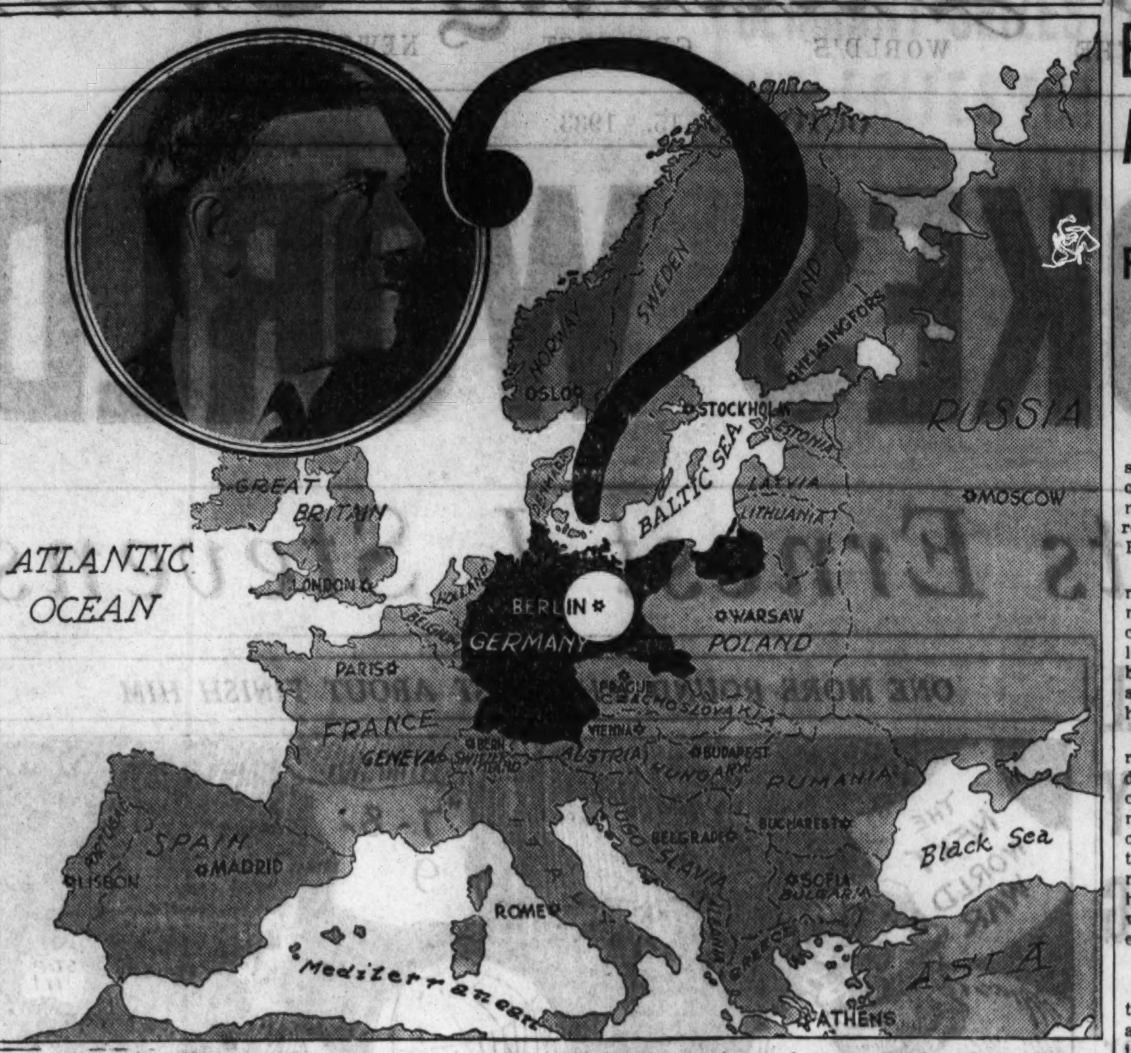
MADRID, Oct. 14.—France has approached the Spanish government with a view to military coöperation in case of need, it is learned from authoritative sources here today.

While the French would like an out and out military treaty, it is understood that failing this they have asked for an unwritten agreement to permit France to fling colonial troops through Spain in case of necessity.

It is believed no treaty has yet been effected, but it is by no means as certain that an agreement about the movement of French troops has not been reached. France—afraid of having to bring across the Mediterranean to Marseilles her huge African contingents built up to counteract Germany's superior man power—is pressing Spain strongly on this point.

Remarks attributed to former Premier Azana that he does not think Spain could keep out of another European war are believed due to these negotiations.

PEACE OR WAR? IS EUROPE AT THE CROSSROADS?



Chancellor Hitler of Germany, whose picture is shown in the inset above, yesterday threw Europe into the gravest crisis it has seen since the world war by withdrawing from the league of nations and from the Geneva disarmament conference. The map indicates how Germany is practically surrounded by potential enemies—Belgium, France, Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland—should Hitler's action plunge the continent into a new armed conflict. Already, dispatches from Vienna said, Austria, which was Germany's ally in the last great war, is preparing to resist the Nazis in any new conflict. Austria is erecting barbed wire obstacles on all roads and trails leading from Germany.

GERMANY'S TRUE FACE UNMASKED, IS CRY OF FRANCE

Paris Is Unexcited; Awaits U. S. Action.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 14.—Frank expressions of relief at what was termed the unmasking of Chancellor Hitler's Nazi government and vindication of France's policy in the eyes of the world today followed the startling news that Germany has walked out of the league of nations and the disarmament conference.

Coupled with grave warnings that the most serious consequences might follow the German move—admittedly a complete surprise to French official circles—were declarations that Germany has now voluntarily isolated herself. She has shown her hand and deliberately chosen between international coöperation for disarmament and her own rearmament in defiance of the peace treaties, according to the French viewpoint.

French Await U. S. Reaction.

French government circles predict confidently that Germany's decision to go her own way will clarify the international situation by revealing Germany's bad faith. What Paris will do if Germany does rearm is not clear, although it is apparent that the French look forward to the rallying of British and American support before they will do anything.

The French government is awaiting the reaction which Germany's act will have in Great Britain and the United States, and until the attitude of these nations is known no steps will be taken here to meet Berlin's defiant gesture.

No special meeting of the French cabinet has yet been called to discuss the situation.

"Tant mieux"—so much the better—was the burden of the remarkably calm editorials in the Paris press. Although the news was printed in large type with large headlines there was no hysterics in the local comment. As one prominent French official put it, "The French always get very excited over trifles, but when they are faced with some really serious development they are remarkably calm."

Temps Reflects Attitude.

The semi-official Temps may be taken to reflect the first reaction in authoritative quarters. In a leading editorial it says:

"The event is grave, but must be considered with calm, for questions of capital importance will now be put before Europe. The situation is crystal clear—Germany breaks with the conference and the league because she wishes to rearm, because she wishes, at any price, to avoid a control which will make it evident that she has already been rearming for several months in violation of stipulations of the Versailles treaty.

"While all nations of good faith were busying themselves with preparing for a reduction in their national forces in accordance with article 8 of the covenant, Germany has firmly resolved to reconstitute her military power and was seeking to put on others the responsibility for the break.

"Caught by Own Snare."

"It was only because she was caught by her own snare and obliged to declare herself, to make a definite step in one direction or another, that she resolved to show her hand, throw off her mask and reveal her true aspect. It is the logical end of the National Socialist revolution. Hitler found himself obliged either to repudiate the exigence by means of which he has led the German people astray and thus risk losing his prestige and popularity, or resolve to provoke himself the moral and political isolation of the reich.

"What will Germany gain by it? Nothing. For lacking a general disarmament convention, the Versailles treaty subsists in all its rigor, and the powers which signed it will not permit it to be violated."

PLANS MOVIE BASED ON NAZI WAR ON JEWS DESPITE OPPOSITION

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Despite strong opposition from prominent movie makers, Al Rosen, artists manager and independent producer, said today he is determined to proceed with his plans to film a story based on the Nazi campaign against the Jews in Germany.

The story, which thinly veils its central character as "Rudolph Hitler," is titled "The Mad Dog of Europe."

"They tell me I am dealing with a controversial subject," said Rosen, "but I don't call it that. There have been plays and pictures before based on the crime of oppression and social bigotry, so why not again?"

The major producers believe, said a spokesman for the Will H. Hays office, that a film based on the Hitler activities, although it may be made sincerely and without prejudice, might jeopardize their business and holdings in Germany.

YANKS FINED AS THEY LEAVE GERMAN LINER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—American tourists who had disembarked from the liner President Harding at Hamburg this morning were immediately held up by police and fined for crossing an empty street, unaware that a distant traffic signal was against them. The incident occurred opposite the municipal propaganda bureau which is seeking to attract tourists to Hamburg. Hamburg police are carrying out "traffic education week." In the first three days they exacted close on to $4,000 in fines, mostly from pedestrians.

AUSTRIA STANDS BY AND SHIVERS AT GERMAN BOLT

Feel Dollfuss Rule May Benefit by Act.

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Oct. 14.—Germany's decision to brave the world tonight increased the uneasiness in Austria, admittedly the weakest patch in the European treaty quilt since Chancellor Hitler came to power.

No member of the Dollfuss government had anything to say when the news burst on Vienna that, in the capital to which they were so closely linked in 1914, a grave decision had been taken. The midget dictator himself was out of town at Graz where he is to make a speech tomorrow.

But in the streets extras, which are rare in Vienna and free, were shouted during the afternoon and brought crowds around the bulletin boards. So mixed are the feelings in the Austria of Dollfuss that came so near being the Austria of Hitler that few comments were uttered. Apprehension, however, was in the air, for Vienna well realizes its fate will be decided elsewhere than here.

Call Austria Bystander.

Official comments were guarded but they were all in the form of assurances that Austria is only a bystander in this affair. Dollfuss's speech in Geneva on the value of international coöperation was recalled. Among the leading supporters of the dictatorship that is trying to decide what kind of a dictatorship it will be, predictions are made that barring a European catastrophe the Dollfuss régime will benefit because the powers are bound to redouble their efforts to keep Austria out of the hands of Hitler's Germany.

Heavy military precautions along the Bavarian frontier were immediately redoubled. New barbed wire barricades were erected. Maj. Emil Fey, energetic vice chancellor, stated that no matter what happens to Germany, Austria is "secure against all eventualities."

At the congress of the Austrian Socialist party, attended by leaders of Socialist parties elsewhere in Europe that have survived, resolutions were passed calling upon the great powers to declare Austria a neutral state like Switzerland and Belgium before the war.

When a comrade arose and read the news from Berlin a hush fell on the congress. Leon Blum, French Socialist leader, got to his feet, bowed goodbye and went to take the first train for Paris.

Warn Against Fascism.

French and British Socialists ostentatiously invoked their own governments, in which neither participates, and warned Dollfuss not to go too far with the Fascist plans, whatever they are.

"The British Labor party will use its influence with the British government to hinder dangerous dictatorial developments in Austria," said the chairman of the executive committee of the British party.

Blum had been met at the station by the French legation staff, which was most unusual, so when he called upon Austria to preserve her democratic and republican institutions he was understood to be speaking for more than French socialism. He said the only way to resist the "barbarians to the north" is to keep Austria democratic and he warned that implantation of Fascism here would provide a dangerous connecting link between German and Italian Fascism.

HITLER—JAIL TO CHANCELLOR

In a ten year course which began with the 1923 Munich "beer hall putsch," which landed him in jail for a year, through the elections of last March, Adolf Hitler has risen from a man with an idea to leadership of the now extremely nationalistic state.

Hitler, who recently proudly owned his early labor as an Austrian house painter, served in the German army in the war and afterward exceeded even the native Germans in patriotism and hatred of the Versailles treaty and the "war guilt lie." He blamed socialists for submission to post war limitations and blamed Jews for owning property far out of proportion to their percentage of the population.

With a faculty for moving citizens by slogans and compelling oratory, Hitler fanned the resentment of small shopowners against department and chain store owners, rallied the unemployed with promises of work for all, and turned youths against the government for selling their birthright. He caught the German love of military organization and satisfied it with his storm troopers. Later Hitler benefited when the steel master Fritz Thyssen and other great industrial interests threw him their financial support.

National Socialism, the political embodiment of Hitler's ideals, became a national force in the election of Sept. 14, 1930 when the party polled 6,400,000 votes and elected 107 Nazi members to the Reichstag. This total grew until in the election of March, 1932, the Nazis polled 18,000,000 votes from an electorate of little more than twice that number.

The Hitler following dropped off a bit when he ran against the old Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg for president in April, 1932, the latter getting 19 million votes against Hitler's 13 million. In the July Reichstag elections the Nazis made no gain, and when in August Hitler was tendered the post of vice chancellor in the Von Papen cabinet, he refused it, demanding "all or nothing."

The Nazis dropped back another two million votes in the November elections [to 11,700,000]. Hitler offered to form a cabinet acceptable to the reichstag and this time Von Hindenburg refused. Gen. Kurt von Sleicher's government failed and on Jan. 30, 1933, Hitler at last received an invitation to form a cabinet, with Franz von Papen designated as vice chancellor and reich commissioner of Prussia.

Outlaws Communists.

Hitler at once outlawed the communist party and called for new elections. With the spectacular burning of the reichstag Feb. 27, the Nazis cried loudly that reds and traitors must be expelled. In balloting filled with accusations of Nazi terrorism, the party polled 17,250,000 votes and elected 288 deputies.

These composed 44 per cent of the parliamentary body, and in combination with the Nationalists' 8 per cent, Hitler had control of the Reichstag and dissolved it. Then followed quickly the proscription of the Socialist parties, the centrists, and finally the ousting of his Nationalist allies. For the Nov. 12 election only Nazi candidates are being put forward.

Coincidentally with the wiping out of democratic forms and procedures and the appointment of Nazi commissars for states and the reich, Hitler and his aides launched their long awaited campaigns of declassing Jews, restricting chain and department stores and reëmployment by made work. The régime adopted rule by edict and decree, internment of dissenters in concentration camps, and finally, suppression of the press.

Germany's withdrawal from the league of nations and the disarmament conference yesterday precipitated the most serious crisis since the world war. Above are leaders of six nations who are seeking a solution of the problems created by Germany's action.

LEAGUE STUNNED BY HITLER'S ACT; LIFE AT STAKE

"Big 4" Hold Emergency Meeting Today.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Oct. 14.—The Germans have done it.

They have bolted the league of nations and the disarmament conference and have broadly hinted that from now on they consider the Versailles treaty a scrap of paper.

The French consider the hint an accomplished fact, because they believe Germany is already secretly rearming in violation of the military clauses of the treaty. Their answer is that the Versailles treaty stands.

Crushing Blow to League.

This is the situation at the end of the wildest day Geneva has seen since the league was founded. Even the crushing blow to its prestige following on the Japanese fiasco and the failure after nearly two years' effort to sign a disarmament convention is overshadowed in the minds of all here by the new European drama which burst today with the bombshell suddenness of that pistol shot at Sarajevo nineteen years ago which led to the world war.

This time the United States is in it from the beginning. Norman H. Davis, President Roosevelt's ambassador at large, has consented—he was virtually obliged to—to sit in on a four power meeting to be presided over by Arthur Henderson, president of the disarmament conference, tomorrow. The pretext for the meeting is to decide what to do about disarmament, and perhaps the fate of the league of nations. Besides Davis, representatives of Great Britain, France, and Italy will sit in on the meeting.

Britain Proposes 8 Year Plan.

Geneva received the news of Germany's withdrawal shortly after Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, had made a speech before the steering committee of the conference in which he proposed an eight year disarmament plan.

The Simon plan was divided into two stages.

During the first, of perhaps four years' duration, European armies would be standardized on their present relative basis and Germany, limited by the Versailles treaty, would not rearm.

During the second period armaments would be reduced, certain offensive weapons would be abolished, and at the end of the eight years the armies would be on a basis of common types of weapons and relatively equal strength, including the German army.

Simon Does Some Plain Speaking.

Sir John in his speech did some plain speaking. Saying that the time had gone by for "glossing over difficulties by vague optimistic phrases," he declared:

"The present unsettled state of Europe is a fact and statesmen in drawing up their plans have to face facts. I say quite definitely that the whole scheme [his eight year plan] would not be satisfactory to my government and we would not lend our support to it unless the degree of disarmament by the heavily armed powers is both fully defined in the convention and really adequate.

"I must state with complete frankness that the scheme involves the principle that the powers now under restriction of the peace treaties should not begin their armaments forthwith, but should express their willingness to conform to a timetable such as I have indicated.

Defines "No Rearmament."

"The government of the United Kingdom takes the view that agreement could not be reached on the basis of a convention which would provide for any immediate rearmament. In speaking of 'no rearmament' I do not mean to dispute the reasonableness, as the reichswehr is transformed into a more numerous short service army, of a proportional increase in its armament.

"We earnestly desire to establish by international agreement the attainment of equality of status and we point out that it is attained in a most complete and effective way by providing for disarmament through the adoption and loyal fulfillment of such a program as I have indicated.

"By accepting the principle of no immediate rearmament and coöperating with the rest of us in framing a convention which is best calculated to restore the sense of confidence which has recently been so rudely shaken, the necessary conditions of success can be established."

Davis Backs Up Britain.

Davis, in a speech following Sir John's statement, fully backed up the position taken by Great Britain. He said that "a disarmament convention could not properly be made an instrument for rearmament."

"It is not difficult for me to state my position in this frank and unequivocal manner," Davis said. "The report which has been laid before you, both in its broad outlines and in many of the points of detail, is in agreement with the position of the American government set forth in the communication which President Roosevelt addressed to the heads of governments represented at this conference last May and with the statement which I made in the general commission a few days later.

"In these statements my government took the position that a disarmament convention could not properly be made an instrument for rearmament and that qualitative equality in armaments should primarily be sought through the reduction in the armaments of the heavily armed powers and not through acts on the part of others to attempt to build up. Under present conditions steps are necessary in the attainment of that equality. It cannot be achieved at one stroke."

There is little doubt that the general commission of the disarmament conference will hold its scheduled meeting Monday and that an attempt will be made to frame a sort of skeleton convention setting forth the principles on which all the powers with the exception of the absent Germans are agreed.

Actually the conference will be converted into a sort of consultative conclave, such as has been envisaged to supplement the Kellogg pact, and the world statesmen gathered here will keep an eye on the conflagration which is threatening to break out and decide what steps, if any, will be taken to check it.

For once the world will get an answer to the often asked question of how history would have been written if the league of nations and the disarmament conference had existed in 1914.

Await Decision by France.

Tonight there was no more question of fortifying peace by conventions for the limitation and reduction of armaments. There was no question of fortifying peace at all. The question was whether the world is going to see another war.

Everything hinges on the course France will take and the attitude of her allies. Haggard delegates are milling about the lobby and the corridors of the league secretariat holding impromptu councils of war in the corners and burning up the telephone wires between Geneva and London, Paris and Rome seeking guidance.

The French are secretly delighted and think Hitler's action was the only logical thing he could do under the circumstances. They argue that if he had signed a disarmament convention the very first moment that international supervision of armaments began to function, Germany would be found out of order.

Recall Secret Dossier.

That means that France has positive knowledge of extensive, secret German armaments in violation of the Versailles treaty. The famous secret dossier on German armaments gathered by the French intelligence service over a period of years has been both weeded out and augmented by new information in the last few months and France is now ready to spill it.

The great question is whether France and her allies will turn to the league and rely on the normal machinery of the Geneva institution, despite the disappointments it has given in the past, or whether they will consider Germany as having denounced the Versailles treaty and occupy the Rhineland without juridical authorization.

Failing such direct intervention, which is considered here possible but very unlikely, France has two courses. Under articles 2 and 13 of the treaty of Versailles she can apply to the league council to make an investigation. The council by a simple majority can vote to send an investigation commission into Germany and the Germans, under the treaty, are bound to offer every facility to the commission.

May Go to World Court.

The second alternative is to hail Germany before the bar of the world court on a charge of having violated a solemn treaty. Both steps lead to the same eventual action.

If the investigation commission appointed by the council finds that Germany has violated the Versailles treaty or if Germany refuses to allow The Hague tribunal to arbitrate or fails to abide by its decision, the league council under articles 11 or 13 of the covenant will then have to decide what sanctions shall be taken against Germany for violations of the treaty.

Although Germany has announced its intention of withdrawing from the league, its membership technically does not expire for two years and hence the council has jurisdiction. This leads eventually to the application of article 16 of the league covenant, which calls for collective military or economic sanctions and which the powers feared to invoke against Japan in the case of the Manchurian dispute.

Four Power Pact Periled.

Every one is waiting for something to turn up. No one quite knows what can turn up. Mussolini is one thing, but nothing but silence is heard from Rome.

It is thought here that Mussolini, who has schemed tirelessly to get the disarmament conference away from Geneva, will now seize the opportunity to bring Germany and France together in a four or five power conference of his own. There seems little chance of this succeeding now, however, as it is predicted in French circles here that the chamber of deputies will now refuse to ratify the Mussolini four power pact.

Joseph Paul-Boncour, French foreign minister, is waiting for word from Paris and Paris is looking toward London before deciding what action to take, although it is considered certain that France will take some action no matter what London says. The situation is complicated by the somewhat shaky political position of Paul-Boncour and much depends on the character of Edouard Daladier, taciturn and cagy French premier, who, many insist, is another Raymond Poincare.

German Delegates Leave.

There was a dramatic moment tonight when the entire German delegation showed up at the Cornavin station and slipped out of the international citadel for Berlin.

There was a good sized police guard around the station to prevent possible demonstrations, but owing to the lateness of the hour practically none but journalists were there to see the Germans off.

League circles were shaken much more deeply by the departure of Germany than by that of Japan. Japan, though a great power, had always seemed too far away to be intimately associated with Geneva, but this was not the case with Germany. The memorable battles fought to secure Germany's admission to the league, the great triumph of international justice which that event was supposed to mark, the high hopes of the new era opened by the collaboration of Briand and Stresemann and the magic attached to these two names drove home the loss of the German brother with poignancy.

Berlin Scores Versailles.

The official communication of Germany's withdrawal from the disarmament conference was received in the form of a telegram from the German foreign minister, Baron Konstantin von Neurath, to Arthur Henderson, president of the conference.

The wording of this message was highly important, owing to the indirect reference to the treaty of Versailles and the implied threat that Germany may consider herself liberated from this "diktat."

In the message Von Neurath attributed the failure of the disarmament conference to the failure of the powers to carry out their "contractual obligations." This is a reference to the vague promise written into the league covenant and the treaty of Versailles that France, England, and the other allies would give up their own arms as soon as Germany was restored to equal standing with other nations.

Text of Notification.

The text of Von Neurath's telegram follows:

"On behalf of the German government I have the honor to make to you the following communication:

"In the light of the course which recent discussions of the powers concerned have taken in the matter of disarmament, it is now clear that the disarmament conference will not fill what is its sole object, namely, general disarmament.

"It is also clear that this failure of the conference is due solely to unwillingness on the part of the highly armed states to carry out their contractual obligations to disarm.

"This renders impossible the satisfactory fulfillment of Germany's recognized claim to equality of rights, and the condition on which the German government agreed at the beginning of this year to take part in the work of the conference thus no longer exists. The German government, accordingly, will be compelled to leave the disarmament conference."

Henderson replied immediately in a three line message simply acknowledging Von Neurath's telegram.

Up to a late hour this evening the league had not yet received official notification of Germany's withdrawal from that body, but it is expected to arrive at almost any moment.

HITLER GRATEFUL TO FRENCH PREMIER FOR 'SENSE OF JUSTICE'

Chancellor Hitler of Germany said yesterday he sincerely thanked Premier Daladier of France for his "noble sense of justice as evidenced in his last speech, for which untold millions of Germans are grateful to him."

What Daladier said, in a speech delivered Oct. 8 at Vichy, France, was: "No one contests the right of Germany to existence as a great nation; no one dreams of humiliating Germany.

"But why on the other side of the Rhine is youth trained in combat? Why repeated demonstrations by regimented masses? Why refusal of the first step in disarmament? Why demand the right to construct costly war material which must be destroyed soon after being placed in service if a disarmament agreement is signed?"

JAPAN IS SORRY FOR GERMANY, BUT WILL CONTINUE ON COURSE

TOKIO, Oct. 15 (Sunday).—(AP)—Japan's recent bitter experience in withdrawal from the league of nations, and the accompanying world censure, tinged today's official comment on league developments with a note of sympathy for Germany, especially in military circles.

The dominant note, however, was upon Japan's detachment primarily from the European crisis.

General Sadao Araki, minister of war, said:

"Germany's withdrawal from the league is further evidence of the league's unworthiness of existence. I am unable to predict further developments. A grave situation undoubtedly has arisen in France and Germany.

"However, the Japanese nation need not be concerned. We mapped our own course and will pursue it alone and independently."

Mamoru Shigemitsu, vice minister of foreign affairs, said: "Germany's withdrawal from the arms conference was quite natural. It proves any nation will resist international pressure.

"Although many Japanese welcome Germany's action, this is a shortsighted view because not merely European peace but world peace is likely to suffer."

A. F. L. BOYCOTT CALLED TRIVIAL BY NAZI HEADS

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Nazi labor organizations were silent today about the German goods boycott appeal of the American Federation of Labor. In political circles the federation's action was regarded as "trivial," one spokesman refusing to believe that the appeal would find support with the American public.

Russia Ignores Action.

MOSCOW, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The soviet press today failed to comment on the boycott resolution of the American Federation of Labor and did not publish news of the action.

The only reference to the convention was a brief item in today's Izvestia, which said "the congress of the yellow American Federation of Labor closed with passing of resolutions supporting the NRA program and opposing inflation."

There was no official comment, but satisfaction was professed because the federation had failed to single out soviet Russia for violent attacks as in previous years.

Labor Starts Boycott.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor took practical steps today to carry to the "trade union family," now totaling more than 20,000,000, the appeal of the organization to boycott German goods and services.

The council began immediate plans to disseminate information throughout this country and Canada regarding the action of the convention, which yesterday started the actual boycott.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, viewed today's happenings in Europe as supporting the convention's judgment of the Hitler régime in Germany.

"We found fresh justification for our action of yesterday in today's announcement of Germany's withdrawal from the league of nations and disarmament conference," Mr. Green said at the adjournment of the council's session.

BELGIUM IS GLAD IT DECIDED TO BUILD DEFENSES

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Belgian political circles declared today that Germany's action in withdrawing from the disarmament conference and the league of nations had justified last Wednesday's unanimous cabinet decision to complete the frontier defenses.

An Anglo-French entente presenting a firm front, these circles added, would be the most satisfactory answer to the German withdrawal.

The Belgian reaction appeared to have been summed up in the expression: "Now we know where we all stand."

TRAIN CUTS OFF BOY'S ARM.

Rudolph Becker, 18 years old, 2006 Dayton avenue, St. Paul, Minn., slipped while attempting to board a moving freight train in the Illinois Central yards at 18th and Clark streets last evening. His left arm was cut off by the train wheels.

GERMANY SEIZES HITLERITES FOR ATTACK ON YANK

Nazis Promise to Protect American Citizens.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—The German government announced today that the persons responsible for the maltreatment of Roland Velz of Meriden Conn., had been arrested. It is understood they will face a special court on Monday.

Velz complained to the American authorities that on Oct. 10 he had been struck twice in the face by storm troopers at Dusseldorf because he did not salute a Nazi procession. George S. Messersmith, United States consul general in Berlin, complained to the German government.

Earlier today the German foreign office assured the American ambassador, William E. Dodd of Chicago, of Germany's intention to conform to the American demand for protection of American citizens.

Dodd Gets an Apology.

The foreign office also apologized to Ambassador Dodd because he was forced to wait six hours yesterday before he was admitted to see Foreign Minister Baron Konstantin von Neurath in connection with assaults on Americans by Nazis.

March 3—Henry H. Sattler, attacked by 15 storm troopers in Berlin.

March 4—Nathaniel S. Woolf, approached by six brown shirts who entered his Berlin apartment, drew revolvers, and struck him in the face. Later they conducted him to a Nazi hangout and from there to Grunewald woods, where they ordered him to leave Germany immediately.

Woman Is Stripped.

March 7—Mrs. Max Schussler, molested in her Berlin home by storm troopers, who showed revolvers and compelled her husband to sign documents while she stood naked before them.

March 8—Louis Berman, attacked on a Berlin street by four brown shirts, who threatened him with pistols and stole $285 and some personal papers.

March 10—Herman I. Roseman, attacked in front of a department store and struck in the face.

March 11—Julian Fuhs, attacked in his wife's restaurant in Berlin by a civilian and several storm troopers, who knocked him down.

Attacked Second Time.

March 29—Julian Fuhs again attacked by same civilian and storm troopers in a restaurant; knocked down, kicked, threatened with revolvers. The consulate was informed a storm trooper had been fired from the organization, while Fuhs' assailant, Oskar Joost, was fined 50 marks.

April 1—Bernard S. Lustig taken to a storm trooper's hangout in Berlin, detained, and subjected to indignities.

April 1—Louis S. Chase, molested and struck by storm troopers in Berlin while in company of his sister; later taken to a Nazi hangout.

April 19—Herbert Baer, arrested without cause at Karlsruhe, detained in custody without being informed as to the reason or permitted to communicate with the consulate; finally released May 10 on representations of the Stuttgart consulate.

Doctor Beaten Up.

July 1—Walter Orloff, arrested at the University of Greifswald for alleged communist activities on mere denunciation and confession extorted through maltreatment.

July 11—Samuel Danzig, university student at Halle, attacked by a storm trooper while leaving a restaurant.

July 11—Thorsten Johnson, arrested at Stettin in a seamen's drinking place for an alleged derogatory remark concerning Chancellor Hitler. Although the prosecuting attorney assured the consulate the case was not serious, he was sentenced to jail and finally released Sept. 8 on representations to the Berlin consulate.

Aug. 15—Harold B. Dahlquist, attacked in Berlin, struck in the face by a storm trooper.

Aug. 15—Dr. Daniel Mulvihill, struck on the head by a storm trooper in Berlin.

Aug. 16—Samuel Bossard, assaulted by five Hitler youths; knocked down.

Aug. 16—Phillip Zuckerman, attacked in Leipzig by a group of storm troopers, knocked down, stamped upon.

Sept. 1—H. V. Kaltenborn Jr., hit in the face in Berlin.

Oct. 10—Roland Velz, struck in the face twice by storm troopers at Dusseldorf.

ROB DRIVER OF $75.

John A. Smith, 30 years old, 2901 New England avenue, a driver for the James O. Stoll company, magazine distributors, 247 East Grand avenue, was robbed of $75 and $32 in checks by three armed men yesterday at 940 Townsend street.

GERMAN WITHDRAWAL LEAVES ONLY 3 BIG POWERS IN LEAGUE

Geneva, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Germany's bolt from the league of nations, to which it was elected only after long deliberations by the other powers, leaves the league officially supported by only three of the great powers—Great Britain, France and Italy.

Japan, like Germany, announced its resignation, effective two years hence, but Japan, with Germany presumably following suit, does not participate in the activities of the league henceforth.

Soviet Russia and the United States never joined the league, but league leaders said today they were proud, in the present crisis of the record of American collaboration. The American moral influence in the league is recognized as tremendous. Her voice constantly is sought in indirect channels when important matters come up for discussion.

Argentina's return to the league was considered as offsetting, to some extent, the loss incurred by the German resignation. It was regarded as giving a great emphasis to the idea that the league was not solely a European institution, but of worldwide scope.

Nazis to Expel Three Foreign Lawyers for Criticizing Trial

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Four foreign attorneys, including Leo Gallagher, an American, were excluded today from the reichstag fire trial and all but Gallagher face expulsion from Germany. Gallagher was given assurances he will not be ejected. His hotel room was locked by police, but later the key was returned to him.

Presiding Judge Wilhelm Buenger ordered police to take the attorneys from the courtroom because they wrote a letter upholding the attitude of one of the five defendants, the Bulgarian, Georgi Dimitroff, who frequently has challenged the court procedure.

Gallagher alone was released after being detained three hours by reichstag police. He said he was courteously treated.

American to "Explain."

The American will write a letter, he declared, asking to be readmitted to the hearings and explaining a circumstance which he believed infuriated the police—that he and the others did not leave the room immediately when their names were read because of ignorance of the fact that the exclusion order was immediately valid.

Gallagher, who is from San Francisco, stuck to his colleagues loyally, protesting that there was no justification for his release while the others were still held. His efforts were to no avail.

He also pointed out that the attorneys were arrested without criminal grounds, but no explanation was offered by police.

Prepare to Expel Others.

Meanwhile the others were removed from the reichstag building to police headquarters, with their baggage, preparatory to extradition.

Reporters were not allowed to speak to them, but one, M. Willard of France, managed to make the newspaper men hear these words: "I protested vigorously——"

The other lawyers are Bulgarians, M. Grigoroff and M. Detcheff. Three of the defendants are Bulgarians.

George S. Messersmith, American consul general was notified when it was reported that the attorneys had been taken to the police presidency "for questioning." He hurried there, but was told Gallagher was held at the reichstag building, where the trial was in session.

Ask About Gallagher's Status.

Gallagher had been released when Messersmith arrived at the parliament house. The consul general and Raymond H. Geist, American consul, went back to the police presidency to ask about Gallagher's status.

Dimitroff, a hot tempered former communist leader, often has remarked in open court about the testimony of another of the accused, Marinus van der Lubbe, a young Dutchman, and has been sent from the courtroom for alleged impudence. The foreign attorneys subsequently wrote a letter defending Dimitroff and charging that he was not getting a fair trial.

Judge Buenger asserted that "such a letter, written by men to whom the court has courteously extended the privilege of attending the sessions, is incompatible with the dignity of the court."

Hays Ponders Own Course.

The attorneys' missive was addressed to Paul Teichert, a defense lawyer, and said Dimitroff's remarks about officials was understandable in view of the treatment accorded him. A copy was given Buenger.

After the announcement was made that the lawyers' attendance cards had been withdrawn they remained in their seats. Police asked them to leave.

Arthur Garfield Hays, another American lawyer, who refused to sign the communication, declared that he was "in a quandary at present whether as an act of solidarity with my colleagues I should give up my admission card or whether I can be of greater assistance by remaining."

GERMANY QUITS OWING LEAGUE $644,000 DUES

GENEVA, Oct. 14.—[U. P.]—Germany quit the league of nations owing a little bill of 2,300,000 Swiss francs—her dues in the international club of nations for the years 1932 and 1933.

The money, amounting to $644,000 in American cash, at the present rate of exchange, is being held in a "blocked account," in escrow, so to speak, in Berlin.

Germany had promised to pay her dues, provided the league would turn the money to some good use in Germany.

THREAT OF WAR IS SEEN IN NEW ACTION OF HITLER

The unofficial view here is that no direct steps will be taken until after the German election called by Hitler for Nov. 12. Then the German people will hold a plebiscite to manifest their approval or disapproval of the Hitler disarmament policy.

But speculation was rife as to the effect of a complete collapse of the disarmament conference. For that it must collapse, if Germany adheres to the Hitler determination to rearm, is conceded. The speculation in Washington revolves around the probability of a new war in Europe, and the stand the United States would take with respect to it.

Discuss War Possibilities.

Washington officials fear the probability of Germany moving immediately to rearm. That, it is feared, would lead France to attempt a punitive expedition into Germany, perhaps into the Ruhr, or the Rhineland, which would be France's right under the Versailles treaty.

War would be the inevitable consequence, Washington fears, even though the nations of Europe still are buried under the economic plagues of the last war, and have not yet healed the physical and moral casualties inflicted.

Officials within the state department have privately discussed the possibilities of such a war, and the general view is that the United States would not participate in it in any sense, would not join with troops, would not take part in economic reprisals, such as boycotts or denials of offers of financial support.

It is deemed certain that American public opinion will effectively prevent any effort to involve the nation in another war to "save the world for democracy."

Roosevelt "Soft Pedals."

There have been suggestions that the United States might enter into a disarmament pact which would commit this country to an economic boycott against any nation which violated the terms of the pact, or became an aggressor against a signatory nation. But President Roosevelt has refrained even from voicing such a proposal publicly. He has contented himself with delivering appeals for the powers to join in laying down their aggressive weapons.

Last May, when rumors went about the world that Chancellor Hitler was to issue a militaristic defiance bristling with Germany's determination to arm, President Roosevelt cabled to all the rulers of the world a message inviting them to join in pushing the disarmament conference to success. The President's cable, sent on the very day before Hitler was to make his pronouncement, gave warning that one strong nation might block the pact, but that "in such event, the civilized world . . . will know where the responsibility for failure lies."

Mr. Roosevelt believes that the mild character of the speech made by Hitler on the following day was in part due to the Roosevelt cable.

Antagonism to Hitler Grows.

The President has kept in close touch with the last few days' developments at Geneva, but he was not prepared for the dramatic action of Hitler in thumbing his nose to the rest of the world.

In several ways lately, the American government and people have shown open antagonism towards Germany. The exclusion of the Jews by Hitler has brought organized efforts by American Jewry, supported by civic groups and leaders of all creeds, to boycott German goods. Only yesterday, the American Federation of Labor, viewing with apprehension the growth of dictatorships in the world and declaiming against the lot of the laboring man in Germany, stood for a similar boycott.

GERMAN BONDS SELL DOWN ON NEWS OF BOLT

New York, Oct. 14.—[Special.]—All German bonds were weak on the stock exchange today on receipt of the news that the reich had withdrawn from the league of nations and that the reichstag had been dissolved and an election called for Nov. 12.

Although this news was not flashed on the financial news tickers until the market had been under way more than half an hour, the German issues opened weak on selling from abroad.

The forty issues active today on the stock exchange closed the two hour trading period with net losses ranging from fractions to 3¾ points, the losses at one time during the period being as high as 4¾ points. Only two issues of the group, two lightly traded corporation loans, did not decline.

By far the heaviest trading was done in the German government loans. The Young plan 5½s, due 1965, lose 3¾ points and the Dawes plan 7s, 1¾ points.

RUMANIAN CHIEF REACHES TURKEY TO SIGN TREATY

ANKARA, Turkey, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Balkan political activity seethed here today with the arrival of Nicholas Titulescu, Rumanian foreign minister, to sign the Turco-Rumanian pact of friendship and nonaggression.

This pact, said the official Turkish daily newspaper Millett, together with the recent Turco-Greek entente, the recent five year prolongation of the Turco-Bulgar amity pact, and the forthcoming Turco-Yugoslav amity pact, is in effect "the destruction of the terrible state of enmity which marked the pre-war Balkans."

Hitler's Demand for Arms Equality for Germany and Denial of War Aims—Full Text of Speech

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The complete text of the address of Chancellor Hitler of Germany today on the disarmament question follows:

In November, 1918, in trustful faith in the assurances laid down in President Wilson's fourteen points, the German people lowered their arms in the unholy struggle that had reached an end for which, perchance individual statesmen, but certainly not the peoples, could be made responsible.

The German people fought so heroically only because it was sacredly convinced of having been unjustly attacked and thereby being in the right in the fight. Other nations hardly had an inkling of the magnitude of the sacrifices which it had then, practically relying solely on itself, to bring to a stop. If in those months the world had in a fair manner outstretched a hand to a prostrate opponent much suffering and endless disappointments would have been spared humanity.

Says Germans Fulfilled Dictates.

The German people suffered the worst possible disappointment. Never before has the vanquished so honestly endeavored to assist in healing the wounds of its opponents as had the German people during the long years, fulfilling dictates loaded upon them. If all of these sacrifices could not lead to real pacification of peoples this was due solely to the nature of the treaty, which, in its attempt to render eternal the concepts of the victor over the vanquished, also had to eternalize the hatred of the enemy.

The peoples could rightly have expected that from this greatest war in the world's history a lesson would be drawn. No matter how small especially as it concerns European nations, the chances of possible gain stand in proportion to the magnitude of the sacrifices.

When, therefore, in this treaty Germany was compelled to destroy her armaments to make possible a general world disarmament, uncounted millions believed that therein lay merely evidence that redeeming realization was making headway.

Germans Destroyed Weapons.

The German people destroyed their weapons. Relying upon the good faith of their former enemies, they, themselves, fulfilled the obligation of the treaties with really fanatical fidelity. Unmeasurable quantities of naval, aerial and land war material were dismantled, destroyed, or scrapped. According to the wish of the dictating powers, a small professional army inadequately armed replaced the former army of millions. Political leadership of the nation, however, at this time lay in the hands of people who were spiritually rooted in a world of the victor states.

The German people could rightly expect that for this reason alone, that the rest of the world would redeem its promise in the same manner as the German people, who in the sweat of their labor amid thousandfold distress, and unspeakable privations, were engaged in redeeming their treaty obligations.

No war can become the permanent condition of mankind. No peace can be the perpetuation of war.

Assails Versailles Treaty.

Sometimes victors and vanquished must find the way back into the community of mutual understanding and confidence. For a decade and half the German people have hoped and waited for the time that the end of war would at last become the end of hatred and enmity. The purpose of the Versailles treaty, however, did not seem to be the one to give mankind the final peace, but rather to keep it in a state of perpetual hatred. The consequences were unavoidable.

When right definitely yields to might, a lasting uncertainty will derange and arrest all normal functions of national life.

In concluding this treaty, it was completely forgotten that the reconstruction of the world cannot be vouchsafed by the slave labor of the violated nation, but solely through trustful coöperative effort the elimination of war psychosis is the foremost precondition. Also, that the problematical question of responsibility for war cannot be cleared up historically by having the victor compel the vanquished, as the introduction to the peace treaty, to sign his confession of guilt, but that then the final guilt for war is easiest deductible from the content of such a dictate.

Resent War Guilt Stigma.

The German people is deepliest convinced of its guiltlessness for the war. Other participants in this tragic misfortune may, as far as we are concerned, have the same conviction.

How much more necessary is it to emphasize everywhere that such convinced guiltlessness of all does not turn into a forever lasting enmity and that memories of this world-wide catastrophe shall not be preserved artificially for that purpose—that unnatural perpetuation of the idea of the victory that the vanquished shall not create an everlasting state of inequality, that after such a prolonged malady of mankind, filling one side with understandable haughtiness, the other with bitter wrath. It is not accidental certain consequences ensue. The catastrophal decay of economic life was followed by a no less menacing general political decay.

What sense, if any, did the world war have if its consequences, not only for the vanquished but also for the victors, manifest themselves only in an endless chain of economic catastrophes? The welfare of nations is not any greater, and their political happiness and their human contentment, have not really become deeper. Armies of unemployed have developed into a new class of society. And precisely, as the nations economic foundations have been shaken, so now, also are their social foundations beginning to weaken.

Army of Fanatics.

Germany had suffered most from these consequences of the peace treaties and the general instability arising therefrom. The number of unemployed mounted to one-third of the number normally employed in the nation's productive life.

That means, however, that in Germany some twenty million human beings counting in the members of families, out of sixty-five millions were without the possibility of existence and found a hopeless future staring them in the face. It was merely a question of time when this army, economically disinherited, had become an army of fanatics who politically and socially were estranged to the world. One of the oldest lands of culture in present day civilized humanity stood with over six million communists at the brink of a catastrophe which only conceited ignorance could overlook.

If red insurrection had swept over Germany like a firebrand, certainly western Europe's lands of culture would have realized that it is not immaterial whether on the Rhine and on the North sea the outposts of the spiritually and revolutionary and expansive asiatic world empire stood watch, or the peaceful German peasants and workers, in honest feeling of comradeship with other nations of our European culture, who desire to earn their bread by honest labor. When the national socialist movement tore Germany back from the brink of this threatening catastrophe, it not only saved the German people but also rendered a historical service to the rest of Europe.

Pursued One Aim.

And this National Socialist revolution only pursued one aim: To restore order within our own people, supply labor with bread for our hungry masses, proclaim the ideals of honor, loyalty, and decency as the elements of morality which cannot harm us and other nations, but be of general benefit. If the National Socialist movement was not representtive of that ideal conception, it could not have succeeded in saving our people from the ultimate catastrophe. The movement has remained true to the ideals, not only at the time of its struggle into power, but also when it had secured power.

Whatever of depravity, dishonorable disposition, knavery and corruption had accumulated in our people since the unholy treaty of Versailles was attacked and fought by us, this movement has pledged itself to the task of restoring to its rightful place, without regard to person, fidelity, faith and decency.

For eight years we have been fighting a heroic fight against the communist threat to our people, putrefaction of our culture, disintegration of our art, and poisoning of our public morals. To the denial of God and defamation of religion we have put an end. We owe Providence humble thanks for not withholding success from our fight against the distress of unemployment and for saving the German peasant. In the course of executing the program for whose successful conclusion we estimated four years ago, two and a quarter million out of six million unemployed have, in scarcely eight months, again been led into useful production.

The best witness for this tremendous achievement is the German nation itself. It shall prove to the world that it is guided by a régime which knows no other aim, but with peaceful labor and civilized culture, to assist in the reconstruction of a world which today could hardly be called happy. This world, however, which we do no harm and only wish it would leave us work peaceably, has been persecuting us for months with a flood of lies and slander.

While in Germany a revolution occurred—not like the French and Russian with their catacomb butcheries, and the murdered hostages; not like the communards of Paris, or the red revolutionaries of Bavaria and Hungary, who destroyed culturally valuable buildings and art works with petroleum, but contrarily smashed not a single show window, looted no store, damaged no house—unscrupulous agitators spread a flood of atrocity tales only comparable to the lies fabricated by the same elements at the beginning of the war.

Tens of thousands of Americans, Englishmen, and Frenchmen during these months visited Germany and could with their own eyes, make observations that there was no land on earth, with more law and more order than present day Germany, that in no land in the world was a person's property more highly respected than in Germany, but perhaps also, to be sure, in no land in the world is a sharper combat on against those who, as criminal elements, believe they may freely let their low instincts vent themselves at the expense of their fellow humans. It is these and their communistic accomplices who today are attempting to set honest and decent nations at loggerheads.

Expects Tribute from World.

The German nation has no reason to envy the rest of the world for this gain. We are convinced that a few years will suffice thoroughly to open the eyes of honor loving citizens of other nations concerning the real value of those worthy elements, who, traveling under the effective flag of political fugitives, cleared out of the scenes of their more or less extensive economic consciencelessness.

But what would this world say about Germany if we permitted a mock trial to be held in favor of a creature who attempted to set fire to the British parliament, a mock trial whose only meaning could be that of placing British justice and its judges on a lower level than such a scoundrel. As a German and National Socialist I would have no interest in exerting myself in Germany on behalf of a foreigner who in England tries to undermine the state and the laws effective there or even attacks with fire the architectural symbol of the British constitution.

And even if this subject, which disgrace we hope God may spare us from, were a German, we would not back him, but rather would deeply regret that such a misfortune had to strike us, and we would harbor but one wish, namely, that British justice might mercilessly liberate humanity from such a menace. As collateral, however, we also possess honor enough to be filled with indignation at the spectacle which, instigated by obscure elements, is intended but to shame and dishonor Germany's highest court.

Resents Attacks on Rule.

We are extremely sad at the thought that by such methods nations are set at loggerhead and estranged, of whom we know that in their hearts they stand infinitely above these elements-nations whom we desire to respect and with whom we are anxious to live together in honest friendship.

These noxious lowclass fellows succeeded in starting the world pscychosis whose inner morbid hysterical conflictingness may be branded as classic. The same elements, which on one hand lament "oppression" and "tyrannization" of the poor German people by Nazi potentates, declare on the other hand, with brazen unconcern, that the Germans' pacific professions are valueless, because they only are uttered by a few Nazi ministers or the chancellor, whereas in the nation a wild war spirit is raging. Thus the German people are represented at one time as piteously unhappy and oppressed, at another time as brutally aggressive—as the case may call for.

Thanks French Premier.

I regard it as a sign of a nobler sense of justice that the French premier, Daladier, in his last speech, found words to indicate the spirit of conciliatory understanding for which untold millions of Germans are grateful at heart.

National Socialist Germany has no other wish but to direct the competition of European peoples again to those fields of endeavor upon which they have given to all humanity through the noblest mutual rivalry those magnificent boons to civilization, culture and art which today enrich and beautify the picture of the world.

Similarly we take cognizance, with hopeful emotion, of the assurance that the French government, under its present chief, does not intend to wound the feelings of, or humiliate the German people. We are touched by the reference to the unfortunately, but too sad truth, that these two great peoples so often in history have sacrificed the blood of their best youths and men on the battlefields.

I speak in the name of the entire German people when I solemnly declare that we all are imbued with the sincere wish to wipe out an enmity that, as regards its sacrifices, is all out of proportion to any possible gain. The German people are convinced that its martial honor in thousands of battles and skirmishes has remained clean and blemishless, exactly as we also see in the French soldier our old glory-bedecked opponent.

Urges Ban on Armed Force.

We and the entire German people would all be happy at the thought of sparing to the children and to the children's children of our people what we ourselves, as honorable men in bitter long years have had witness and what we, ourselves, have endured, in the way of misery and pain. The history of the last 150 years, through all their vicissitudes, ought to have taught both peoples one thing, namely, that the essential changes of lasting duration are no longer possible, no matter how much blood is sacrificed.

As a National Socialist, I, together with all my followers, decline on the very basis of our nationalistic principles to conquer the people of a strange nation who will not love us anyway by sacrificing blood and lives of those who are dear and precious to us. It would be a tremendous event for the entire humanity if the two peoples could once and for all ban force from their common life.

The German people are ready for this. While we frankly claim the rights granted to us by the treaty itself, I will say just as frankly that, beyond this, there are no more territorial conflicts as far as Germany is concerned. After the return of the Saar to the reich only a madman could believe in the possibility of war between the two states, wherefore, as we see it, no moral or reasonably justifiable ground exists. Nobody can wish that millions of young lives be annihilated for the sake of a boundary correction of doubtful extent and of doubtful value.

War on Communism.

When, however, the French Premier Daladier asks why the German youths are marching and falling in line, I reply, it is not to demonstrate against France, but to evince that political determination, and give visible evidence therof, that was necessary for throwing down communism and that will be necessary to hold it down. There is in Germany but one arms bearer, and that is the army. Vice versa, there exists for National Socialist organizations but one enemy, and that is communism.

The world, however, must accept the fact that the German people, for their internal organization and to preserve our people from this danger, will choose those forms which alone can guarantee success. If the rest of the world digs itself in behind indestructible fortresses, builds tremendous aerial squadrons, constructs giant tanks and moulds enormous cannons it cannot talk of being threatened because German National Socialists, totally unarmed, are marching in columns of four and thereby are giving visible expression of effective protection to the German community of citizens.

Demand for Equality.

If, furthermore, the French premier raises the question, why, forsooth, Germany demands weapons which must later be destroyed anyway he is in error. The German people and the German government have not demanded weapons at all, but equality.

If the world decides that all weapons, including the last machine gun, are to be destroyed, we are ready immediately to join such a convention. If the world decides that certain categories of weapons are to be destroyed we are ready to renounce them from the beginning. If, however, the world concedes certain weapons to every nation we are not ready to permit ourselves, in principle, to be excluded from them as a nation of minor rank. If in accordance with our convictions, we defend this viewpoint honorably we are more decent partners for other nations than if we were ready, in contravention of this conviction, to accept humiliating dishonorable conditions.

When we wish to make treaties with the English, French or Poles, we want from the start to make them only with men who think and act 100 per centum English, French or Polish, for we do not want pacts with negotiators but with nations.

Turns to League.

And when we turn upon unscrupulous agitators we do so because it is not the agitators, but unhappily the nations which have paid with blood for the sins of this worldwide poisoning. Previous German governments trustfully joined the league of nations, hoping to find therein a forum for the equable adjustment of the interests of the peoples, and, before all, sincere reconciliation with former adversaries. The prerequisite for this, however, was the final recognition in the equality status of the German people.

Participation in the disarmament conference followed under the same assumption. Declassification to the rank of nonequal membership in such an institution or conference is unbearable humiliation for an honor-loving government.

The German people has fulfilled its disarmament obligations to more than the full measure. The turn would seem to have come for armed nations to do no less than in meeting their analogous obligations. The German government is not participating in this conference in order to barter for single cannons or machine guns for the German people, but as a factor with equal rights to help in the general pacification of the world. Germany's security constitutes no inferior right to the security of the other nations.

Claims Same Interpretation.

If the British statesman, Stanley Baldwin, regards it as self-evident that England understands disarmament to mean nothing but disarmament of the more highly armed nations concomitantly with England's increasing armaments to a common level, then it would be unfair reproaches upon Germany, when finally, as a member with equal rights in this conference, it claims the same interpretation for itself.

In this demand by Germany there cannot possibly be any threat to the rest of the powers, for the defensive armament of other peoples is constructed to ward off the heaviest weapons of attack, while Germany demands no weapons or attack, but only those defensive arms which in the future are not to be forbidden but permitted to all nations. Here, too, Germany is ready at once to content itself numerically with the minimum that is all out of proportion to the gigantic armaments of attack and defense of our former enemies.

The deliberate relegation to the inferior class of our people, in that every nation of the world is conceded to the self-evident right which is denied us, we feel, is the perpetuation of discrimination unbearable to us. In my peace speech of last May I said that under such conditions we would regretfully no longer be able to belong to the league or to participate in international conferences.

"Not Responsible for War."

Men who today lead Germany have nothing in common with the mercenary traitors of November, 1918. We all, like every decent Englishman and decent Frenchman, have done our duty towards our country at the risk of our lives.

We are not responsible for the war nor are we responsible for what occurred therein, but we feel responsible only for what every man of honor was called upon to do in that time of distress, and what we, too, did.

We cling with exactly the same boundless love to our people as we, out of this love, wish for understanding with other nations and try, whenever we can, to achieve it. It, however, is impossible for us, as representatives of an honorable nation and of an honest conscience, to participate in institutions under conditions that would be bearable only for the dishonorable. As far as we are concerned there may once have been men who may have believed they could participate in international conferences, even though thus weighed down. It is futile to seek to establish if they themselves were the best part of our nation, but it is sure that the best part of the nation never backed them.

Calls Rule One of Honor.

The world can only be interested in dealing with honorable men, not those of doubtful integrity. It can conclude treaties with the former, not the latter. The world must on its side take into account the feelings and the sense of honor of such a régime, just as we do. This is all the more essential as only in such an atmosphere can measures be devised leading to the genuine pacification of peoples. For the spirit of such conference can only be that of sincere understanding, otherwise all endeavors are doomed to failure from the start.

Having gathered from the declarations of the official representatives of the string of great powers that they are not thinking of genuine equality for Germany at the moment, it is thus not possible at present for Germany so placed in a dishonorable position, to intrude itself upon other nations.

Threats of force, if carried out, could only be breaches of law. The German government is most deeply convinced that her appeal to the whole German nation will prove to the world that the government's love of peace, as well as its conception of honor, are also those of the whole nation.

Seeks Backing of Nation.

To give this claim documentary form, I decided to beg the reich president to dissolve the reichstag and give the German people opportunity for making a historic affirmation by means of new elections, coupled with a plebiscite not only for the purpose of approving the government's basic principles, but also for testifying to their unreserved unity with them.

May the world, from such an affirmation, gain conviction that the German people, in this battle for equality and honor, declare itself completely at one with the government, but also that both are animated at heart by no other desire than to help end the human epoch of tragic aberrations, regrettable quarrels and fights between those who, as denizens of the culturally most important continent, have to fulfill the common mission before all mankind.

May this tremendous manifestation of our people for peace with honor succeed, creating in the interrelationships of European states such conditions as are requisite for termination, not only of centuries' old discord and strife, but also for rebuilding a better community: The recognition of a higher common duty springing from common equal rights.

ITALY RELIES ON 4 POWER PACT AS DISARM HOPE

Germany's Action Big Surprise.

ROME, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The withdrawal of Germany from the disarmament conference and the league of nations took Italian political observers by surprise and gave rise to the belief that the four power European peace pact of Premier Mussolini must be brought to bear now on the disarmament problem.

Diplomatic circles viewed the German action from a variety of angles.

Some chose to consider the move as a threat in order to obtain more armament concessions from France. In support of this belief, they pointed to the fact that it was Germany's withdrawal from the conference last autumn which produced the so-called "no force agreement" of Dec. 11, 1932.

See End of League.

Other diplomats regarded the German decision as meaning an end of the league of nations.

Others considered it a blow to Il Duce's position as a mediator with Germany.

In support of their view that the four power pact must be invoked on the disarmament question, at least as far as it refers to Europe, the Italian observers pointed to the article of the agreement sepcifying that Italy, Great Britain, France and Germany, the signatories, agree to examine the armament question among themselves should the Geneva conference fail or bring about only partial results.

News Unexpected.

Surprise at Germany's action was expressed today in an extra edition of the newspaper Giornale D'Italia, considered very close to the government.

In a short paragraph beside Hitler's Berlin speech the newspaper said:

Denmark Sees More Power for Hitler in Withdrawal

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Germany's withdrawal created new anxiety in Denmark, already nervous over Nazi propaganda at Slesvig, in the south of Jutland. Socialist Premier T. Stauning deplored the German decision and said a national election under present conditions would endorse the decision of the Hitler government.

HENRY J. ALLEN'S RUSSIAN SERIES UNDER ATTACK

New York, Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Charles A. Pearce, member of the editorial staff of Harcourt, Brace & Co., called attention today to a series of marked similarities between passages in a series of articles on Russia now being written by former Gov. Henry J. Allen of Kansas and parts of a book entitled "Red Virtue," by Ella Winter, wife of Lincoln Steffens.

Mr. Allen's series is being sold to newspapers throughout the country by a syndicate. The Allen series began to appear locally in the New York Evening Post on Oct. 2. Miss Winter's book was published by Harcourt, Brace & Co., last April.

Senator Allen's Experiences.

Senator Allen's series has been appearing in the New York Evening Post under an italicized standing introduction reading as follows:

"Back from soviet Russia bringing uncensored news of the amazing conditions he found, ex-Senator Henry J. Allen writes vividly of Russia as it really is, uncolored by officials' acts or suggestions."

The passages in question occur in Mr. Allen's eighth and ninth articles, published here last Tuesday and Wednesday, describing soviet courts and the administration of justice.

Follow Similar Method.

More than half a dozen passages, each of 100 words or more, are almost identical with passages in a chapter of Miss Winter's book entitled "Crime and No Punishment." Some of the passages are comments, others are sections of dialogue and others are episodes to enliven the common account.

Mr. Pearce said Harcourt, Brace & Co. had been assured by Miss Winter that "every word" of her chapter on soviet jurisprudence was "original." The McClure syndicate, which merely proof-read Mr. Allen's articles and distributed them, referred all questions to him. He is now in mid-ocean aboard the Vulcania, due to arrive in New York next week. The former governor of Kansas was publicity director of former President Hoover's publicity in the last campaign.

Miss Winter is now in California. She is expected to visit New York soon, however, and her publishers said their future action would be decided after a conference with her.

Both Houses Dilapidated.

Both Miss Winter and Mr. Allen described the courthouse where they witnessed the trial as "a dilapidated" house, both described the "backless benches" on which they sat, and both commented on the fact that the court's docket was "scrawled" in illegible longhand on the backs of old bills or "untidy" sheets torn from old exercise books.

Miss Winter noted that on the day she was in the courtroom "the girl secretary" asked the judge for a match and lighted a cigaret. She said the judge lighted a cigaret also. She noticed that a cat jumped from a windowsill to a boy's lap. Mr. Allen did not observe the cat but he said in his eighth article:

"A young woman, evidently a stenographer who sat at one end of the table to take the testimony, asked the judge for a match and lighted a cigaret. The judge also lighted one, then opened a folder and started to read aloud the documents in the first case."

Checking on Portraits.

Miss Winter described the pictures of Karl Marx and Kalinin as well as a red banner on the walls of the courtroom. Mr. Allen, perhaps more observant, noticed the portraits of Marx, and Kalinin, and also of Lenin. He, too, mentioned the red banner. Miss Winter described the judges in the courtroom she attended as a worker in an airplane factory and a tram conductor. Mr. Allen's judges were "a worker in a shoe factory" and an "automobile mechanic."

There were other similarities as pointed out by Mr. Pearce.

Also Happened to Dreiser.

This is the second time that the subject of Russia has yielded remarkable literary duplications. In December, 1928, Dorothy Thompson [Mrs. Sinclair Lewis] demanded an explanation from Theodore Dreiser when it appeared that her book "The New Russia" and his, entitled "Dreiser Looks at Russia," had a number of passages in common.

BRIDE TRAILS HUSBAND; FINDS ANOTHER WIFE

Three weeks ago John Lieber, 44 years old, told his wife that he had found a job as a traveling salesman. Therefore, he added, he would be able to visit their home at 817 East 80th street only once a week, on Saturdays.

Mrs. Lieber, to whom he was wed in 1917, accepted the situation with good grace.

As a matter of fact, Lieber was not working at being a drummer. He had taken on the responsibilities of a plural husband. Under the name of John Lee he took another bride and set up housekeeping at 2056 West 70th street. And, in order to keep his Saturday night date with Mrs. Lieber, he had to invent the lie that he was attending a lodge meeting.

While Mrs. Lieber believed what John said, Mrs. Lee didn't. She followed him yesterday to his original home, called the police, and had him arrested as a bigamist. She would never, she said, believe anything more that he said. But Mrs. Lieber, although surprised that he had been a deceiver, announced she would try to help him out of his trouble.

She Uses Potato Masher to Rout Grocery Robber

Fort Wayne, Ind., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Catherine Barhite today used a potato masher to rout a man who robbed her grocery store. The man, who was arrested soon after he left the store, gave his name as Ray Lepper, 28, of Heyworth, Ill. Mrs. Barhite said he came into the store and ate two sandwiches and then robbed the cash register of $1.50. She belabored him with the potato masher and he fled, only to be captured by a motorcycle policeman.

BASIS OF AUTHORS' DISPUTE

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—The controversy over the syndicated articles of ex-Gov. Henry J, Allen of Kansas, and Miss Ella Winter, whose book on Rusisa was published by Harcourt, Brace & Co., rests on a series of extracts, which the publishers say are strikingly similar. Some excerpts on which the charges rest follow:

By Miss Ella Winter.	By H. J. Allen.
Justice in the soviet union today is openly and avowedly class justice. The soviet law court does not pretend to the liberal principle [fiction] of "impartial justice"; it does not attempt to be above class divisions. The worker is usually favored; he has had less education, less preparation to behave as a materially well off, well fed, well housed and educated person should behave. The soviet government prides itself on being the defender of the rights of a class, the class that was underprivileged before. This discrimination will continue until the final goal of communism, the class society, is achieved. Then, say the philosophers of communism, it will be possible for impartial justice to become a fact.	Justice in the soviet union is openly avowedly class justice. Question and answer fired rapidly. Name——. Age——. Social origin——. Work——. Children——? "Is he your registered or unregistered husband?" "Unregistered." The husband pleads as excuse for his nonpayment of alimony that he is out of work. "Why are you out of work?" The husband, a boy of perhaps twenty, stands inarticulate, embarrassed, silent. "What is your work?" "I have no work." "Why not?" "I am ill." "What is your disease?" "I have neurasthenia." "What right had you to have a baby if you are a neurasthenic?" comes sharply from the chair. "Don't you know the state wants healthy children." The wife breaks in excitedly: "He says he won't work on purpose so that he won't have to pay for the child. He says if he finds work he will conceal it."	Questions and answers were fired rapidly: "Is he your registered or unregistered husband?" "Unregistered." The husband pleads as an excuse for his nonpayment of alimony that he is out of work. "Why are you out of work?" "I am sick." "What is your disease?" "I have rheumatism." "What right have you to have a baby if you are a rheumatic? Don't you know the state demands healthy children?" The wife then broke in with some excitement to charge that the young man was only shamming in order to avoid paying for the child's support. She said he had told her that if he found work he would conceal it so as to avoid payment of alimony.

LOOP THRONGED AS STATE STREET WEEK IS ENDED

Trade Boom Reported by Merchants.

State street's world famous merchandising center will start its second century tomorrow with renewed vigor. The public response to its week long 100th anniversary celebration last week was convincing evidence that "the first hundred years are the hardest."

Throughout the week shoppers crowded the sidewalks as during the days preceding Christmas. Merchants reported substantial increases in business.

Crowds Throng Loop.

Added to the shopping crowds yesterday were the thousands who visited the loop before attending A Century of Progress. A major football game in Soldiers' field also contributed to the congestion, and repair work on the Michigan avenue bridge added its bit.

"The early afternoon," said Capt. David Flynn, head of the police traffic division, "strained the capacity of our streets and sidewalks in the loop. But during the World's Fair this summer we have become accustomed to throngs. The public accepted the congestion without complaint.

Many Avoid Boulevard.

"Before and after the football game the fans filled Michigan avenue with their automobiles. To escape these jams on the boulevard many drove into the loop and encountered other blockades. Many cars were also avoiding the boulevard and driving through the loop to avoid the delays due to repair work on the Michigan avenue bridge.

"State street's birthday celebration drew thousands of shoppers to the loop. The traffic was heavier than in the boom years. There was some congestion, but who's going to complain about congestion when it's bringing the city business?"

PRESIDENT ENJOYS OPEN AUTO RIDE IN WESTERN MARYLAND

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—(AP)—With his desk cleared of all major work for the week-end President Roosevelt bundled into a heavy topcoat today and drove in an open car over the roads of western Maryland for a few hours of recreation.

Accompanied by two White House secretaries, Miss Marguerite LeHand and Miss Paula Tully, and a secret service car, the President motored a little beyond Braddock Heights on a mountain top near Frederick.

A little traveled side road which appeared at places to be no more than a cow path was taken outside of Braddock Heights until the car could go no further and then the party turned back.

Mrs. Roosevelt had an engagement to attend a polo match and could not accompany her husband.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt with several friends plan a short trip down the Potomac river tomorrow afternoon on the yacht Sequoia.

BALBO FLIGHT LEADERS GIVEN NEW COMMANDS

ROME, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Commanding posts in various military and civil airports were given today to Gen. Aldo Pellegrini, Col. Stefano Cagna, Lieut. Col. Ulisse Longo and other chief pilots in Gen. Italo Balbo's Atlantic flight to Chicago.

Long furloughs granted them after their return from the Atlantic flight have terminated and they are to return to duty.

Gen. Pellegrini becomes chief of civil aviation; Col. Cagna, chief of the bombardment school; and Col. Longo is assigned to the headquarters staff.

Other unit chiefs were assigned to commands in various parts of Italy.

NEW LAW HALTS HISTORIC PARADE OF 'LAME DUCKS'

Makes Inaugural Date January 20.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—(AP)—The twentieth amendment will be officially written into the constitution tomorrow, automatically forbidding any future short session of congress of the type that so frequently in the past has wound up in a blaze of filibustering oratory.

The new amendment changes from March 4 to Jan. 20 the date on which Presidents are inaugurated. It thus permits a retiring president seventeen days with a new congress, which hereafter will meet Jan. 3, even when that date comes on Sunday. The new congress in presidential years formally elects the new President by its poll of the electoral votes of the states.

First Passed by 48 States.

The twentieth amendment has the distinction of being the only change in the constitution to receive unanimous ratification by the forty-eight states, the new article also established a record for the speed by which it was approved by them. However, when there were about a third as many states in 1804, the twelfth amendment was approved in the speediest time of all—about eight and a half months.

Although three-fourths of the states—all that is necessary—ratified the twentieth amendment within less than a year after it was submitted to them on March 2, 1932, it could not become effective until the 15th of October after ratification.

Virginia was the first state to approve it—on March 4, 1932—and Missouri was the thirty-sixth, on Jan. 23, 1933, nosing out Massachusetts and Nevada in a race for the place. The remaining twelve approved it last winter.

Norris Makes Long Fight.

Senator Norris, Independent Republican from Nebraska, author of the resolution, held out for two indeterminate sessions of congress. Republican leaders in control of the house remained steadfast for a limitation on the second session. Not until the Democrats gained control of the house in December, 1931, was this resolution favorably considered.

The senate, which previously had five times adopted the resolution for submission of the amendment in February, 1932, for the sixth time sent it to the house, which finally agreed to it on March 2.

The new law will cut two months off President Roosevelt's term and about $9,000 off his pay. No adjournment date is provided for congress. In the past the long term of congress generally was terminated in June or July.

Chicago Dental Society to Hear Senator La Follette

United States Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin will address the Chicago Dental society Tuesday evening at the first meeting of the fall season. The meeting will be held in the Stevens hotel. Senator La Follette will discuss the status of dentistry in the changing social and economic order. Another speaker will be Dr. Peter T. Swanish of Loyola university. Members of the Chicago Medical society have been invited to attend the dinner preceding the meeting.

SOVIET AGENT BUYS POULTRY FOR RUSSIA AT CHICAGO'S SHOW

Leading breeds of American poultry are to be introduced into the hinterlands of Russia as a result of a sale made at the Chicago Coliseum poultry show yesterday.

The sale was made by Ralph Sturtevant of Galena, Mo., to an agent of the soviet government, who purchased some cocks and hens of the Buff Wyandotte variety to be shipped to Russia as foundation stock for farmers' flocks. Sturtevant declined to divulge details of the sale. He is a veteran poultryman and the only exhibitor at this year's World's Fair show who also competed in the Columbian Exposition poultry show in 1893.

Another sale reported at the show yesterday was that of 37 bronze turkeys to the University of Hawaii, which has recently established an experimental station for poultry culture. The turkeys were owned by M. M. Reiman of Planada, Cal., who won the World's Fair futurity for bronze turkeys that was started in 1930.

Kansas State Agricultural college students last night won the annual intercollegiate poultry judging contest at the show. The winners were given permanent possession of the trophy awarded by the Institute of American Poultry Industries as a result of the third victory for the Kansans since 1928.

The poultry show will close at 11 o'clock tonight.

FIGHTER BLAMES VINCENT ASTOR FOR BAR BY U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Oct. 14.—Enzo Fiermonte, young Italian pugilist, today bitterly blamed Vincent Astor, President Roosevelt's yachting host, for exercising the influence which has barred him from the United States and Bermuda and prevented him from rejoining his fiancée, Mrs. Madeline Force Astor Dick, widow of John Jacob Astor, here.

Mrs. Dick, Vincent's step-mother, is recovering from a fractured shoulder in a hospital here and has made frantic but futile efforts to have local immigration authorities admit the fighter. Her secretary appealed to the attorney general's office and she made a $500 gift to the local hospital, apparently in the hope that the Bermuda government would relent.

"It's useless," Fiermonte exclaimed today as the liner Queen of Bermuda prepared to hoist anchor for New York. "See those men over there—they're guarding me. I'm allowed the freedom of the ship but that's all. There isn't a thing against me except that I am loved and in truth love an adult American woman who is perfectly capable of deciding her own life.

"As soon as Mrs. Dick is well enough, she contemplates a trip to France. We'll get a chateau and it will not matter then what anybody does or says!"

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Stolen, 70; recovered, 55; stripped, 11 [from police records for twenty-four hours ending at midnight Friday].

ARRESTS FUSCO, FORMER CAPONE AID, AS VAGRANT

Joe Fusco, 31 years old, who used to be the head of Al Capone's beer making and distributing enterprises, was arrested yesterday at Root street and Union avenue by Police Sergt. John Howe. He will be charged with vagrancy under the new criminal reputation law.

Fusco's home is at 7342 Prairie avenue, just a block from the Capone residence at 7244 Prairie avenue. He can, if he wishes, boast that he helped the big gangster who is now in the Atlanta penitentiary get his start on his successful career in crime. They were good friends when both were merely beer wagon drivers for gang chiefs whom Capone later bossed.

The federal government in 1931 indicted both Capone and Fusco on charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws, but the case was never tried. Capone's conviction was on a charge of evading income tax payments. The last time Fusco was arrested he said that he was in the business of distributing legal 3.2 per cent beer.

League Assembly Head Regrets German Action

OSLO, Norway, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Profound regret was voiced by Dr. Johan L. Mowinckel, president of the league of nations assembly, when he received news today of Germany's withdrawal. The league is more necessary now than ever and small nations should be united through it to bring peace and conciliation, Mowinckel, who is the premier of Norway, said.

TWO HELD HERE FOR HARBORING GUNNER KELLY

U. S. Learns He Fled City After Police Murder.

Federal agents yesterday arrested two men charged with harboring George [Machine Gun] Kelly and his wife in Chicago and assisting them in their flight from Chicago. Kelly and his wife are serving life terms in Leavenworth penitentiary under federal sentences imposed last Thursday in Oklahoma City for the Urschel kidnaping.

Kelly was wanted in Chicago for the robbery of federal reserve branch messengers in the loop and the subsequent slaying of Policeman Miles Cunningham during the early morning hours of Sept. 22.

Identified by Witness.

Witnesses to the slaying of the policeman have already identified pictures of Kelly, asserting that he was one of the killer band. A corroborating circumstance was added when the federal agents disclosed yesterday that he had not left Chicago until late the afternoon of Sept. 22, more than fifteen hours after the killing.

Those arrested in connection with the case are Joseph Bergl, Cicero garage owner, and Charles Caplan, west side hoodlum. Charged with obstructing justice, they were arraigned before United States Commissioner Walker and held in bonds of $15,000. The government alleged that the Kellys left Chicago in an automobile owned by Caplan and lent to them directly by Bergl.

Both men denied the charge and their attorneys—Joseph Roach and William Parillo—sought an immediate hearing and, failing that, low bonds. Assistant United States Attorney Warren Canaday asked bonds of $25,000 each, but because the charge is punishable by only two years in prison Commissioner Walker set the bail at $15,000.

Set for Hearing Friday.

Canaday said that several of the government's witnesses must be subpœnaed from Texas and the case was set for a hearing next Friday. Neither Bergl nor Caplan could make the bonds and they were taken to the county jail.

Agents from the office of M. H. Purvis, local chief of the division of investigation, department of justice, said that Kelly, his wife, Kathryn, and Geraldine Arnold, 12 year old girl who accompanied them in their flight about the country, had stayed five days "in the Astor apartments near Evanston." They lived there alone and unguarded, the agents said, going out to purchase their food and other necessities quietly but openly.

Charge Dealings Since February.

Replying to Parillo's assertion that his client, Caplan, had sold his car and did not know that Kelly was to use it, Prosecutor Canaday declared that the government will show that "as long ago as last February" both Caplan and Bergl "had dealings with Kelly." The bureau of investigation said that Caplan knew his car was to be used by Kelly in escaping to Memphis, where he was eventually arrested.

The car used by the bandits who held up the bank messenger and killed Policeman Cunningham had been ordered armored and equipped with squad car lights, siren, and short wave radio by Bergl.

Kelly has been suspected of complicity in the robbery and murder because of his connection with Bergl and the finding of a much thumbed map of Missouri in the abandoned car. He and his wife trekked through Missouri after the kidnaping.

Bergl and the late Gus Winkler, hoodlum and partner of the equally late Edgar Lebensberger in the 225 gambling and night club, were partners in the Cicero garage.

Rules Tuesday on Cutting Bail.

Joe Sans, Lebensberger's business manager, who is charged with disposing of bonds stolen in the $250,000 mail robbery last November, must wait until Tuesday to learn whether he has a chance to be released on bail. His bond is now $50,000 and his attorney, Capt. William F. Waugh, wishes it cut. Waugh indicated that Sans would make a $20,000 bond, but Assistant United State's Attorney Edward A. Fisher insisted before Federal Judge Wilkerson that Sans remains one of the two principal defendants in the plot. With Lebensberger dead, Sans and John J. [Boss] McLaughlin remain as leaders in the plot to dispose of the stolen securities, he said.

"An attempt either to kidnap or murder Sans was made Friday as he was being taken to the county jail," said Fisher. "The government fears it may never see him again if he is released."

TRAIN GUNS ON KELLY, ALONE IN U. S. PRISON CELL

Extra Guards on Duty Near Kidnaper.

Leavenworth, Kas., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—When George (Machine Gun) Kelly was brought to the main federal penitentiary at midnight last night in a special barred car in charge of eight officers, to serve a life term for the Urschel kidnaping, he was not taken from the car until it was switched into the eastern entrance to the prison and the heavy outer gates closed.

Kelly arrived as the midnight guard shift was taking place and there were eighty prison officials lined up for him to pass through. Some of them knew him when he served a term before for bootlegging.

In "Bad Man's" Cell.

Since Kelly's recent capture he has repeatedly boasted he would escape. He has been closely guarded day and night.

Kelly was taken direct to a corner cell on the main floor tier in C cellhouse and placed in uncommunicative segregation. This cell house was used until recently for quartering Negro convicts and has been turned into a segregated department for bad actors and dangerous characters. Killers and bandits are now held in it. Kelly was placed in a cell with the three cells next to him unoccupied, so that he cannot talk to any one.

Tear Gas Is Ready.

In addition to the constant watch there is a new tear gas arrangement where Kelly and others in the cell house can be smothered down. Three weeks ago convicts in this segregated cell house made a demonstration when they could not hear a radio, and they were quieted in short order by tear gas.

There are 100 men in this new segregated arrangement who are to be transferred to the Alcatraz Island prison in San Francisco bay. There are to be 20 transferred from the annex prison, where Terry Druggan was recently taken out of to Atlanta. Albert Bates and Harvey Bailey, convicted at Oklahoma City in the Urschel kidnaping case, are in the annex, and they are to be transferred to Alcatraz.

Seizes Urschel Kidnap Suspect.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Mose Barnett, 33, who a detective lieutenant said was connected with the abduction of Charles F. Urschel, wealthy Oklahoma oil operator, was arrested today as he watched a football game here. Turned over to department of justice agents, Barnett was taken to an outlying town for questioning.

Barnett was arrested by Detective Lieut. W. L. Robertson, who, with his wife, occupied seats directly behind the suspect at the University of Southern California-St. Mary's game.

Police informants here said Barnett had handled some of the $200,000 ransom money paid over for Urschel's release.

'NOT AT PRESENT,' MRS. MASSIE REPLIES TO QUERY ON DIVORCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Mrs. Thalia Fortescue Massie, central figure in the sensational rape and murder cast in Hawaii two years ago, was reported today to be preparing to seek a Reno divorce from her husband, Lieut. Thomas Massie, U. S. N.

An inquiry tonight as to the authenticity of rumors of a breach between the young couple, whose tragic experience in the island shocked the entire United States, brought from a member of Mrs. Massie's immediate family the reply that no divorce was contemplated "at present."

It was indicated, however, that Mrs. Massie is seeking a permanent separation from her husband and that a divorce will be sought later. For some months she has been living here at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Charles Bell, while her husband is on duty on the Pacific coast.

Mr. Levin had been Judge Sabath's clerk for eight years and for the last two years has been employed by the Continental Casualty company.

DENIES U. S. WRIT SAVING KING FROM CHAIR TONIGHT

A last minute effort to save Ross King, slayer of Policeman Harry Redlich, from the electric chair, failed yesterday afternoon when Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward denied a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. King is scheduled to be excuted at midnight.

Attorney W. G. Anderson, colored, who was retained yesterday morning by King's wife, after other attorneys had reported to her that nothing more could be done for her husband, charged in his petition that the police killer's constitutional rights had been violated because the State Supreme court had refused to grant a review in his case.

Attack Speediness of Trial.

Two other points raised in the petition were that King was rushed to a speedy trial and did not have an opportunity to prepare a proper defense, and that the criminal court building of Cook county is not located in the proper location and therefore all criminal trials are a nullity.

Judge Woodward ordered that a hearing on the writ be held immediately after the petition was filed. Attorney Anderson argued for nearly two hours on the merits of his petition. Assistant State's Attorney James V. Cunningham replied that the federal court had no power to review the orders of the State court. After the arguments of Judge Woodward denied the writ on the ground that he had no power to review the action of the state Supreme court.

Attorney William Scott Stewart, who had been retained after the death sentence was imposed to make a plea to Gov. Horner for executive clemency, had refused yesterday to make any other moves to save King. He said that an insanity petition was not justified under the finding of an alienist. The same position was taken by Public Defender Joseph Power, who originally defended King.

Prisoner Loses Bravado.

Meantime King, who was considered by the authorities as one of the toughest prisoners ever in the jail, was being closely guarded by Warden David Moneypenny. The police killer lost much of his bravado, jail authorities said, following the execution Thursday midnight of Morris Cohen, another police killer. Cohen had also been denied a review of his case by the Supreme court.

King tried to appear calm when reporters interviewed him yesterday. He said he felt "swell" and that he was spending his time playing cards.

"I expected it with all this 'heat' on in the Criminal court," he said.

King, whose alias is Kenneth Smith, has a long criminal record. He was on parole at the time he murdered the policeman. He and John Bongiorno, now under sentence of 199 years in prison, held up and advertising office at 9 South Kedzie avenue. Bongiorno was captured by Policeman Redlich and King returned to rescue his pal.

James [Iggy] Varecha, youthful murderer, robber, and rapist, who was granted a new trial by the Supreme court after he was sentenced to death on a plea of guilty by Judge John Prystalski, will have a sanity trial by a jury in Judge Benjamin Epstein's Criminal court on Nov. 8. The judge made this ruling yesterday when he refused to allow a petition filed by Attorney W. W. Smith asking that Varecha be sent to the new "security hospital" without further trial.

Attorney Smith said he wanted Varecha locked up for the remainder of his life, but that he does not want him executed because he is not mentally responsible for his crimes. Varecha escaped from the Dixon, Ill., home for feeble minded just before he started on his crime rampage which ended with the murder of Frank Jordan.

Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty said that if a jury finds Varecha sane he will then ask for the new trial on the murder indictment and will demand the death penalty for the killer.

HOUSE MAID ENDS LIFE.

Mrs. Floreita Derauck, 38 years old, a maid, committed suicide in the home of Cyrus G. Hill, consulting engineer, at 28 Scott street, by firing a shot into her chest and slashing her wrists and ankles with a razor blade.

Courtney Seeks Evidence of Bribery in Malone Case

The first interest of Cook county authorities in the activities of William H. Malone, former chairman of the state tax commission under two Illinois governors and now under indictment by a special federal grand jury for income tax frauds, was evinced yesterday when State's Attorney Countney conferred for two hours with United States District Attorney Green in the federal building.

When the state's attorney departed he said:

"I came to talk with Mr. Green about the Malone indictment, particularly about those items which referred to 'other income.' My office is interested in pursuing reports that bribery had taken place. I obtained a transcript of the evidence given before the federal grand jury during the investigation of Malone's accounts."

Malone Reported in Germany.

Malone is believed to be at a spa in Kudowa, in Prussian Silesia, about 250 miles southeast of Berlin, Germany. It was reported yesterday that Malone has a part interest in the resort, which he acquired in a business transaction.

Malone was offered an interest as payment of loans extended to Polka brothers, owners of a string of suburban theaters. The brothers became indebted to Malone when he aided them in financing the theater chain.

The brothers were unable to meet their notes and turned over the part interest in the spa six months ago. Malone went to Germany, it is believed, to protect his investment. Two weeks ago one of the brothers, Paul Polka, left for Germany to meet Malone.

District Attorney Green made a formal request on the state department in Washington for cancellation of Malone's passport to force his return to stand trial here. It is considered likely Malone may choose to stay in Germany beyond the reach of federad authorities, as he is not extradictable for the offense charged in the indictment.

Discuss Bringing Capone Back.

State's Attorney Courtney also said that he had consulted with the United States district attorney about the attempt to bring Al Capone to Chicago for the tiral of the racket conspiracy case. The trial of 24 defendants—among them Capone, who now is in Atlanta penitentiary—is scheduled to begin on Oct. 28 in the court of Criminal Judge Philip J. Finnegan.

Federal authorities recently refused to allow Capone to be brought back to Chicago for the trial. The state's attorney said that he had hopes that Capone still might be returned. He added that the matter was in the hands of the United States attorney general's office in Washington.

Federal prosecutors pointed out that it is illegal for federal evidence which has not been presented in open court to be turned over to state authorities. They said, however, that it was permissible for federal investigators to provide state prosecutors with information concerning the sources of their information. The transcript of evidence given before the federal grand jury, it was added, became part of the court records and thus available to the state's attorney when it was presented to Federal Judge John P. Barnes in connection with contempt proceedings brought against several attorneys during the investigation.

Suspect Fee Splitting.

The state's attorney's office, they said, probably is interested in the attempts of the government to show that attorneys who had received large fees from clients for work before the tax commission had split those fees with Malone or other members of the state tax commission.

It was stated that the years of 1929 and 1930, during which under the federal indictment counts Malone defrauded the government of income taxes, were at the end of the ten year period during which he had held his state office.

United States District Attorney Green said that ways and means of obtaining closer coöperation between the state and federal law enforcement bodies in Chicago had been discussed at the conference. He said that the state's attorney had promised to aid federal officers in apprehending the gangsters involved in the $200,000 mail robbery of last Dec. 6.

JAIL ATTENDANT HELD UP; GUN CASE IS LOOTED

Auburn, Ind., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Three flashily dressed men invaded the Auburn city police station at 11:40 o'clock tonight, held up the only man on duty and robbed the gun case.

Approaching Sergt. Fred Kreuger with drawn weapons as he sat alone in the station, the men locked him in a cell, broke the glass covering the gun case and escaped with a .45 caliber revolver, a .44 caliber revolver, a .401 rifle, a German Luger revolver, a Thompson machine gun, an army rifle, and several smaller arms.

Kreuger said he did not recognize any of them as escaped convicts from the Indiana state prison.

TOMORROW TO BE TAG DAY FOR 50 CHILD CHARITIES

Many of Institutions Now Without Funds.

Hundreds of youngsters served by fifty children's charities will have the care and comfort necessary to their well being this coming winter, if Chicago is generous tomorrow.

It will be the 26th annual tag day of the Chicago Children's Benefit league. Tags will be exchanged for the coins that will find their way into containers in the hands of women volunteers who will be stationed on all the busy street corners of the city. A proclamation by Mayor Kelly was issued Friday urging public support of the tag day.

Embraces All Creeds and Races.

The Children's Benefit league's membership, embracing all creeds and nationalities, is endorsed in its entirety by the Chicago Association of Commerce. Officials of the league hope for especially generous contributions this tag day because many of the member organizations are completely without funds. The number of children placed in institutions is increasing daily, many institutions have exceeded their capacity, and it is only through the public's generosity on the annual tag day, it was pointed out, that these charitable groups can continue their work.

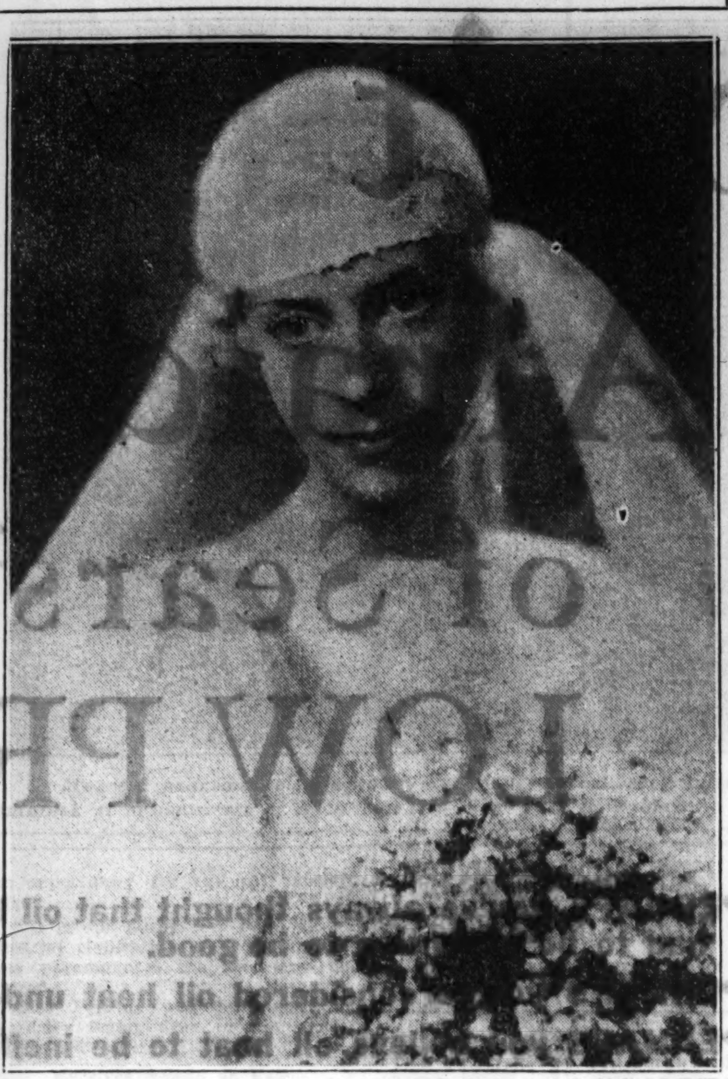
These Institutions to Benefit.

These institutions are named as follows:

Ashland Avenue St. Elizabeth's Day nursery.
Augustana nursery.
Bethesda Day nursery.
Bethlehem creche.
Bohemian orphanage.
Catholic Social center.
Central Baptist Children's home.
Chase House Day nursery.
Chicago Foundling's home.
Children's Receiving Home of the Lutheran Woman's league.
Danish Lutheran Children's home.
De Paul Settlement and Day nursery.
Emerson House kindergarten and day nursery.
Englewood hospital, children's ward.
Ephpheta School for Deaf.
Erie Chapel institute.
Evanston Day nursery.
Garibaldi Institute auxiliary.
Howell Neighborhood house.
Illinois Children's Home and Aid society—aid department.
Illinois Technical School for Colored Girls.
La Rabida Jackson Park sanitarium.
Lutheran Home Finding society.
Madonna Center kindergarten.
Margaret Etter creche.
Matheon Day nursery.
Mercy hospital, children's ward.
Methodist Deaconess orphanage.
National Park seminary.
Norwegian Lutheran Children's Home society.
Olivet institute.
Outing Association for Crippled Children.
Paulist Settlement and Day nursery.
Provident hospital, children's ward.
Resurection nursery.
Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial nursery.
St. Anne's Day nursery.
St. Elizabeth's Day nursery.
St. Elizabeth's hospital, children's ward.
St. Francis Guild of St. Mary's Home for Children.
St. Joseph's Home for the Friendless.
St. Juliana's Day nursery.
St. Margaret's home.
St. Mary of Nazareth hospital, children's ward.
St. Mary's Settlemen and Day nursery.
South Chicago Day nursery.
Wesley Memorial hospital, children's ward.
West End Catholic Woman's club, day nursery.
Woman's Board, Presbyterian hospital.
Women and Children's hospital, children's ward.

All receipts for tag day, as has been the custom many years, will be divided among the organizations according to the amount collected by the workers of the respective institutions.

ELIZABETH HOYT MARRIED



The former Miss Elizabeth Landon Hoyt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Hoyt II., who became the bride of Douglas A. MacMillan last night in Winnetka.

[Du Bois Photo.]

ELIZABETH HOYT BECOMES BRIDE OF D. A. M'MILLAN

Weds in Church Great-Grandfather Gave.

BY JUDITH CASS.

Miss Elizabeth Landon Hoyt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Hoyt II., became the bride of Douglas A. MacMillan last night in the quaint little Episcopal church in Winnetka which was given by her great-grandfather, William M. Hoyt, as a memorial to his daughter who died in the Iroquois theater fire. The church was decorated with white roses and chrysanthemums for the ceremony, which was performed by the rector, the Rev. E. Ashley Gerhard.

The bride wore a lovely but simply made gown of white velvet with long sleeves, a high neckline, and a rope of silver around the waist. She carried a prayer book and wore a beautiful veil of old rose point lace that had belonged to her great-grandmother, the senior Mrs. William M. Hoyt.

Miss Helen English, the maid of honor, wore Burgundy velvet and carried cream colored dahlias and red coxcomb. Little Peggy Hoyt, the bride's cousin, who was the flower girl, wore light blue taffeta, made in Kate Greenaway style, with a hat of forget-me-nots and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of forget-me-nots and pink roses.

George Howerton of Cleveland was Mr. MacMillan's best man, and ushering were Robert E. English, Charles C. Bunker, Gordon F. Smith, Dr. James P. Turner, and William Barlow Cunnyngham, an uncle of the bride.

Mr. MacMillan and his bride left for a wedding trip and upon their return will live in Winnetka. Some of the relatives who attended the ceremony and the small reception that followed at the home of the bride's parents on Cherry street in Winnetka were Mr. and Mrs. N. Landon Hoyt, Mr. and Mrs. N. Landon Hoyt Jr., Mrs. Phelps Hoyt and her brother, Lou Allen; Mr. and Mrs. Pears L. Bradstreet, Mr. and Mrs. Markham B. Ord, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Eastman, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Cunnyngham, Mrs. Dexter Cummings, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Robert English.

GRAPE GROWER'S WIFE SOUGHT AS GOLD HOARDER

San Francisco, Oct. 14.—(AP)—A fugitive warrant for the arrest of Mrs. Effie L. Martin of Fresno, charged by the federal government with hoarding $85,000 in gold coin and certificates, was issued by Commissioner Ernest E. Williams here today.

The warrant followed the filing of a complaint by United States Commissioner Samuel F. Hollins at Fresno at the request of a special agent for the United States department of justice.

Mrs. Martin is the wife of a Fresno county vineyardist and the mother of John D. Martin Jr., Oakland attorney associated in law practice with Paul St. Sure, son of Federal District Judge A. F. St. Sure of San Francisco.

The complaint charges Mrs. Martin has in a San Francisco deposit box $60,000 in gold and $25,000 in certificates without a treasury department license to hold such an amount.

Husband Gets Injunction to Keep Baby Son Here

Judge Joseph Sabath in the Superior court yesterday issued an injunction restraining Mrs. Ema Lou Letford of the Orrington hotel, Evanston, from taking her two weeks' old son to California. The injunction was issued on the petition of her husband, William K. Letford, a member of Buddy Rogers' orchestra, who alleged that his wife and mother-in-law had quarreled with him and wanted to take the chield to Los Angeles.

GIRL, 9, TELLS CORONER'S JURY OF GANG KILLING

Charlene Heyworth, 9 years old, 1757 Hancock street, the only eye witness of the killing of Sam Incandella, young hoodlum who was shot to death under a viaduct at Bloomingsdale road and Ballou street on Sept. 16, told a coroner's jury what she had seen yesterday.

The girl said that Incandella had been led under the viaduct by another man who walked with his arm about the young hoodlum's shoulder. As the two men passed a small automobile parked at the curb a man in the car poked a revolver through a window and fired five shots into Incandella's back and head, Charlene said. The man who walked with Incandella stepped aside while the dying Incandella fell to the sidewalk. Then the victim's companion calmly climbed into the automobile and was driven away. The girl said she did not see the faces of the killer and the man who walked with Incandella.

It was learned that when the slaying occurred Incandella was on the way to a lawyer's office to get counsel for his younger brother who had been arrested for robbery. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of "murder by persons unknown."

FARM LEADER CALLS ON WALLACE TO QUIT; ASSAILS HIS PROGRAM

Shenandoah, Ia., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Labeling the agricultural act "diabolical" and asserting that Henry Wallace should be forced to resign as secretary of agriculture, Milo Reno, president of the National Farmers' Holiday association, addressed 5,000 farmers attending a district meeting of the holiday association and the Farmers' union today.

A silent "protest parade" against farm prices was staged by 355 farmers from 14 southwestern Iowa counties. One group carried a banner "Who bought out Wallace?" and another "Our only surplus is county agents."

SCIENCE MUSEUM TO GET MODEL OF DISTILLERY

A model Danish distillery and rectifying column will be formally presented at 1:30 p. m., Tuesday, to the Museum of Science and Industry in Jackson park as the gift of the United Danish Distillers of Copenhagen.

The presentation will be made by Dr. Max Henius of the Wahl Henius institute of Chicago, through whose efforts the exhibit is being obtained. O. T. Kreusser, director of the museum, will accept. The distillery and rectifying column are considered splendid specimens of the model makers' skill. The copper still model required two years to build and cost $20,000.

The museum also announced that all the scientific and engineering exhibits at the World's Fair belonging to the Danish government will be installed in the museum at the close of the Exposition.

HARRY BARNETT ELECTED HEAD OF BOYS' REPUBLIC

Harry Barnett, 17 years old, of 1229 South Lawndale avenue, was elected mayor of the Boys' Brotherhood Republic last night. The election was held in the republic's headquarters, 1530 South Hamlin avenue, under supervision of J. Robbins, superintendent.

All told, 754 votes were cast, Barnett beating his opponent, Albert Kraft, 18, of 1520 South Spaulding avenue, by 102 votes. His platform was "100 per cent self-government without supervision" and more spending money for school children.

Other officials elected last night were Albert Marks, clerk; Ben Cowall, judge; Nathaniel Rich, business manager; Sol Smith, prosecuting attorney, and Michael Liss city treasurer. Aldermanic winners will be announced today.

JURORS CONVICT ERNEST STEVENS OF EMBEZZLING

Hotel Man Faces Prison Term of 1 to 10 Years.

to wait another hour before the verdict was read, however, for one of the prosecutors, Assistant State's Attorney Earle Hurley, took a relative to a train and was delayed in reaching the courtroom.

In fixing the amount of the embezzlement at $1,308,463 the jurors did not strictly follow the amounts named in the two counts of the indictment. The first count charged the embezzlement of $1,000,000 in cash. The second count charged, in addition to embezzlement of the $1,000,000 in cash, the embezzlement of $600,000 in Liberty bonds. Both of these amounts covered loans which the state alleged had been made by the Illinois Life Insurance company to the Stevens hotel.

Verdict Based on Two Loans.

The jury based its verdict of guilty on the two individual loans of $700,000 and $608,463. These loans were made on unsecured notes of the hotel company.

The defense had founded its confidence of an acquittal on the belief that the jury would regard the "intercompany loans" as a case of judgment, which could not constitute a crime although it turned out to be bad judgment and did not avert the receivership of the $22,000,000 hotel.

Stevens appeared encouraged by Judge Feinberg's instructions to the jury, the salient feature of which was that good faith in making the loans must be regarded as a complete defense.

But the jury apparently believed that the pouring of insurance company funds into the hotel transcended judgment and constituted a crime.

Directed Verdict Fight Recalled.

The surprise caused by this finding was enhanced by the fact that the state apparently came near losing the case, in the opinion of observers, on a defense motion for a directed verdict of acquittal. This motion was made by Attorney Stransky last Tuesday.

He based his motion on the fact that under Illinois law there could be no guilt unless the defendant actually had possession of the money involved. The indictment did not state that the defendant was a member of the finance committee of the insurance company, which authorized the loans.

In reply to the motion Assistant State's Attorney John O'Hora argued that proof of Stevens' control of the money had been shown and that it was not necessary to set forth his membership on the finance committee in the indictment.

This argument was sustained by Judge Feinburg, but the judge, in his instructions to the jurors yesterday, told them that to find Stevens guilty they must first find that he actually had possession or control of the Illinois Life funds.

Notify James Stevens' Wife.

Defense counsel told the defendant's step-mother, Mrs. Alice Stevens, of the verdict at her residence, 1260 Lake Shore drive. The mission of notifying her husband, James W. Stevens, father of Ernest Stevens and former chairman of the board of both the insurance company and the hotel company, was to be left to Mrs. Stevens.

But it was not believed that James W. Stevens, who is 80 years old, would understand, for he has been ill both mentally and physically for months and still believes, it was said, that he is chairman of the family enterprises.

James W. Stevens and another son, Raymond W., former president of the insurance company, were indicted with Ernest J. Stevens last February, but the father was not able to be placed on trial and Raymond committed suicide shortly after he was indicted.

Prosecution's Final Plea.

The state based its final plea for conviction of Stevens upon what Assistant State's Attorney O'Hora termed "financial racketeering."

Prosecutor O'Hora began his address to the jury after Defense Attorney Stransky had talked for two and one-half hours, depicting the Stevens family as one of the first in Chicago and ascribing the city's present importance to faith in its future shown by such builders as the Stevenses.

It was the depression, said Attorney Stransky, that brought about the crash of the insurance company.

But Prosecutor O'Hora declared that "financial racketeering" on the part of men in high finance brought about the depression.

"Mr. Stransky tells you," said the prosecutor, "that Ernest Stevens is on trial here because of the cry of the mob, that we are trying to crucify him. He tells you that because the people sustained losses in the depression we must blame some individuals and throw them to the lions. But history will record that this depression was brought about by men who, in their greed, committed criminal acts—men who became financial racketeers.

Assails Stevens' Contention.

"Stevens tells you that as vice president of the insurance company he had no authority over the making of loans. But the evidence shows that when things were going badly Bert Stookey, a director and member of the insurance company finance committee, refused to authorize any more loans, and then Stevens came out in the open and signed his name to authorizations of loans.

"If you do not convict this financial racketeer you will be placing your stamp of approval upon transactions such as this whereby the Stevens family mulcted the insurance company's policy holders right and left and cared not at all so long as their personal greed was satisfied.

"There is no doubt that the Stevens family knew the Stevens hotel was hopelessly insolvent before they loaned the money, yet they continued to pour it out, and knowingly loaning money to an insolvent corporation is embezzlement.

"They cared little for the policy holders in the insurance company who were providing the necessary funds. It was all Stevens, Stevens, Stevens!"

Defense Dwells on Depression.

Defense Attorney Stransky in his closing argument dwelt upon the tragedies of the depression, when, he said, great men were broken under the strain and could not go on in the face of adversity.

"You men of the jury all know that this depression rocked the world," Attorney Stransky declared. "Men in high financial circles lost everything they had. They jumped out of windows, blew off their heads, drowned themselves and turned on the gas.

"These were examples of the terrible force of the depression. The accusation against Ernest Stevens was merely the cry of the mob, which has been heard for centuries. When things go wrong we want to crucify somebody."

Stransky asserted that there had been no evidence to show that Ernest Stevens exercised any authority over the making of loans as vice president of the insurance company. Stevens was president and managing director of the hotel, and spent all his time there, the lawyer said.

"But we are not passing the buck," he continued. "Ernest J. Stevens accepts the full responsibility for everything done by James W. and Raymond W., although under the law he is not required to do so. He would go to the penitentiary and rot rather than cast any aspersion upon his father.

"We are not passing the buck because there was no crime committed. Nobody stole anything. They are trying to make an embezzlement case out of the loaning of money between two corporations.

"If making loans that turn out to be bad is a crime amounting to embezzlement, then the RFC is guilty of embezzlement every day."

Illinois Life Co. Reinsured.

The case against the Stevenses developed after the placing of the insurance company in receivership disclosed the history of the loans to the hotel. The Illinois Life company, whose 80,000 policyholders carried a total of $140,000,000 in insurance, has since been reinsured by an Iowa concern with the approval of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who had jurisdiction in the receivership.

Both the Stevens hotel and the Hotel La Salle, which was also controlled by the Stevens family, are still in receivership. Ernest Stevens has been managing director of the hotel under the receivership. Before his indictment he had served as co-receiver.

Last night after the verdict was returned Stevens' secretary, Miss Irene Nord, said that he would remain on the job as managing director of the hotel in spite of his conviction. She said it was her understanding that he would spend the night at his home at 1314 East 58th street and would return to his office in the hotel this morning.

Fine Wines Arrive to Be Ready for Dry Repeal

Scene at a United States bonded warehouse on near west side yesterday when the first shipment of fine wines to be received here since prohibition was unloaded. The wine, port and sherry, is part of a consignment of 25,000 gallons destined for Chicago, only 2,500 gallons of which arrived yesterday. It was imported from Jerez de la Frontera, Spain, by Philip Blum & Co. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Shipped from Spain

A shipment of 2,500 gallons of port and sherry wines to be sold after the 18th amendment is repealed, was unloaded yesterday at the United States custom warehouse. The wines, the first of such shipments since prohibition, were imported by Philip Blum & Co., 35 East Wacker drive, from Jerez de la Frontera, Spain. The company has ordered a total of 25,000 gallons of wine.

FORBID DUMPING OF BOOTLEG RUM BY U. S. AGENTS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—There will be no more dumping of bootleg liquor into the gutters and sewers of the country.

Prohibition agents have been ordered by the department of justice to cease destroying liquor they seize in raids so that it may be used to augment the small stocks of legitimate liquor after repeal.

Bootleg liquor which is seized will be tested for purity, and, if found satisfactory, stored for aging and future use, according to the order. How the liquor will be dispensed, whether the government will go into the liquor business, and whether the bootlegger will get a cut on the sales was not disclosed.

Domestic stocks of legitimately manufactured liquors amount to about 20 million gallons, but of this total only about five million gallons is old enough to be bottled in bond. This stock can be blended into from 20 to 50 million gallons of whisky, but, if this is not enough, the best of the bootleg supply will be ready, officials explained.

Begs for Dime and Starts Gun Battle When Refused

A ragged youth exchanged shots with a storekeeper and a policeman on the south side this morning and got away. No one was hurt. The youth, ostensibly a beggar, entered Robert Scholl's delicatessen at 532 East 63d street and asked for a dime. Scholl refused. The man fired at him. Scholl drew a gun and fired back. The youth fled. A few minutes later he saw Policeman Mark Stokes at 64th street and Rhodes avenue. Apparently fearing Stokes was after him he fired at Stokes, although the policeman had not even noticed him. Stokes sent a few bullets after the ragged youth, but the latter escaped.

REPEAL ASSURED, U. S. READY TO APPLY ITS OLD TAX ON LIQUOR

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[Special.] — Bringing the time of repeal down to a matter of minutes instead of days, the department of justice officially has decided that the long dry era will end in that second when the chairman of the thirty-sixth state convention pounds down his gavel and announces the 21st amendment has been ratified.

It will not be necessary to wait formal proclamation of the last state's action by the secretary of state, the department has concluded, as the constitution says nothing about such formalities.

The exact moment of the 18th amendment's death was carefully investigated by the department, it was said, and the decision, as yet unannounced formally, is based on a previous opinion of the Supreme court.

When the 18th amendment was ratified, a certain dealer sold liquor between the time the final state acted and the time the secretary of state formally proclaimed that action. He was arrested and the case came finally to the highest court, which held the man had violated the new constitutional amendment. Reversing the circumstances, the department is relying on this Supreme court opinion as the basis for its decision.

The problem of obtaining revenue immediately from the sale of liquor is cared for, the department pointed out, by the existence of the revenue law which now imposes a tax of $1.10 a gallon on liquor.

YOUTH RESISTS ARREST; IS SHOT BY POLICEMAN

Edward Armatys, 19 years old, 2118 West 19th street, was shot in the left knee yesterday when he resisted arrest by Policeman John Wall of the Marquette station at 18th street and Hoyne avenue.

Armatys was one of three youths charged with breaking into a house at 2151 west 18th street and raping two young women on Sept. 15. The other youths, Chester Sivek, 2011 West 18th street, and Joseph Bodizak, 2038 West 18th street, are under arrest. After his wound had been dressed at the Bridewell hospital Armatys was locked up at the Marquette station.

RESULTS OF NRA SURVEYED HERE BY MISS PERKINS

Sweatshops, Child Labor Gone, Secretary Says.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, the only "Mme Secretary" who ever sat in a President's cabinet, yesterday looked upon the work of the NRA, in the sight and hearing of 1,200 women crowding the grand ballroom of the Palmer house, and orally found it good. Her vast optimism for the ultimate benefits of the system was balanced with "the interposition of common sense," in her own phraseology, which manifestly had both a soothing and a stimulating effect upon her hearers.

At the conclusion of her forty-five minute survey of what has been accomplished by governmental machinery under the act, applause was unstinted from the members of the Illinois League of Women Voters, under whose auspices the feminine cabinet member made her appearance in Chicago, and the incidental guests.

Mayor Kelly Is Guest.

The latter included Mayor Kelly, George W. Rossetter, president of the Association of Commerce; Lucius Teter, D. F. Kelly, Charles M. Moderwell, Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes, and Miss Sophonisba P. Breckenridge, who introduced the speaker. Mrs. Quincy Wright presided.

"Lest we be too congratulatory on the achievement of having by one great swoop eliminated child labor nationally under the codes, let us remind ourselves," Miss Perkins said early in her address, "that there is still a good deal of it in existence. Let us remember that though we have in many instances shortened hours of labor and raised wages, there remains a tremenodus amount yet to be done.

Sees Wise Use of Leisure.

"We have come by the grace of God into what has been referred to as a period of surplus," she stated. "We have entered into one of those periods when the best flowers of human nature should be allowed to develop for the good of the race, out of that leisure which clergymen and educators are speculating about, as to what will come of it. My own inquiries have convinced me that what people are doing with their extra hours is just what I would like to do—they are taking music lessons, and reading in the public libraries, or just riding around the country if they have an automobile.

"All these things are constructive and educational and indicate that there isn't as much need of concern about how individuals will use their extra hours as has already been expressed. Haven't we come to the point where we can treat ourselves to a little real civilization? Can't we look forward to having a rich cultural life in which the character we so admire in our ancestors can be woven into the life of our American people?"

Child Labor and Sweatshop Gone.

Child labor and the sweatshop, two of the greatest evils in modern industrial life, have been virtually eliminated under the NRA, Miss Perkins assured her audience. She quoted statistics from the monthly reports of the department of labor showing that in one month after the first codes were adopted wages in 89 industries had been raised from an average of 42.7 cents per hour to 48.5 cents, while hours of work per week had dropped from an average of 42.3 to 38.6 in the same industries. In citing the figures, however, the secretary remarked that "I never feel quite safe with statistics."

"This doesn't mean that each individual felt the effect of increased wages and shortened hours," she cautioned. "It does mean that there was sufficient trend in that direction to make such a showing—a real improvement—in the department of labor figures."

Calls Strikes Unimportant.

In an interview preceding the luncheon Miss Perkins minimized the importance of strikes in various parts of the country, especially in the Pennsylvania coal fields, declaring that for the most part "they aren't really strikes at all." They are demonstrations, she explained, due to misunderstandings more often than to real differences.

Secretary Perkins spoke last night at the University of Chicago, stressing the point that industry must be fitted to human needs and the machine made a servant and not a master. Shortened hours, she added, were necessary to balance consumption and production, and would also give greater opportunity for cultural development.

"It is our puropse to build an industrial civilization with human values paramount," the secretary declared.

Receives Salute at Fair.

In the afternoon the secretary was escorted to A Century of Progress, where she was given a salute of nineteen guns and a military review of troops from Camp Whistler. A tea in her honor followed in the trustees' lounge of the Hall of Science.

Later in the afternoon she received representatives of the state department of labor for conferences "in the interest of promoting public employment service," and gave some attention to discussions relative to the southern Illinois coal situation.

Before leaving for the University of Chicago she paid a brief visit to Miss Jane Addams, who is recovering from an illness. In the morning Miss Perkins had conferred at the headquarters of the Chicago Woman's Trade Union league with a group of 150 women under the chairmanship of Miss Agnes Nestor, president of the league.

Mrs. Frank Hixon of Lake Forest was elected president of the Illinois League of Women Voters at the convention session held during the morning. Vice presidents for the ensuing term will be Mrs. Alfred D. Kohn and Mrs. W. W. Ramsey of Chicago, and Mrs. Guy Tawney of Urbana, a trustee of the University of Illinois. Mrs. E. Olney Herman of Momence was elected treasurer.

UNIVERSITY WILL ASK $1,500,000 LOAN FROM R. F. C. FOR BUILDING

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—The University of Pittsburgh will ask the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a loan of $1,500,000 for completion of the Cathedral of Learning, it was announced today by Joseph C. Trees head of the executive committee of the trustees of the university.

The Cathedral was started seven years ago, after more than $5,000,000 had been subscribed. Funds began to run low and subscriptions declined when the depression began, and after a time work ceased altogether. Much of the lower section of the building as well as the top never has been completed. All costs have been paid with interest, officials said.

Disrobing Acts Are Out, Burlesque Theaters Told

New York, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The managers of two burlesque theaters were told to eliminate "indecent" disrobing acts today by Sidney S. Levine, new license commissioner, who made Sally [Fan Dance] Rand put on bloomers last week.

4 BULGARIANS SLAIN IN RIOTS IN CEDED AREA

SOVIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Four Bulgarians were killed and many injured today in the Dobruja district [formerly Bulgarian territory] while Nicholas Titulescu, Rumanian foreign minister, was in this city making preparations for a forthcoming conference between King Carol of Rumania and King Boris of Bulgaria. Shortly after Titulescu intimated that the meeting "could be expected soon," reports began arriving of fatal riots at Dobric, just across the border in Bulgaria.

PEACE RESTORED IN JERUSALEM; FIND 22 HURT

JERUSALEM, Oct. 14.—[Jewish Telegraphic Agency.]—Order was completely reëstablished in Jerusalem today following demonstrations by Arabs against the continuing Jewish immigration into Palestine and the sale of land to Jews.

The city was quiet, and stores, closed in anticipation of trouble, were open once more.

Twenty-two were injured in clashes attending the incident yesterday, authorities announced.

STEEL AND COAL DISTRICTS ENJOY LULL IN WARFARE

Picketing Will Continue, Union Leader Says.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Peace suspected of being only temporary prevailed today in the steel and coal industrial district touching three states, with employers and workers both holding their positions in various controversies.

Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania urged miners to stop "roving picketing" because of the partial victory they won in getting some operators of "captive" mines to agree to the check-off system. This requires employers to deduct union dues from the pay envelopes, and operators charge it opens the way for closed union shops.

Martin Ryan, one of the leaders of United Mine Workers of America, waved the compliment and plea of the governor aside. "The men will continue their picketing until we have complete recognition," he said.

Three More in Hospitals.

Three more men were in hospitals at Weirton, W. V., as the result of another clash last night between pickets and state police at a subidiary plant of the National Steel company. Several thousand strikers were driven from the scene with tear gas. The battle was started by men throwing stones into an automobile carrying police.

Quiet had been restored once again this morning, when a small number of pickets went on duty at the plant. Gov. H. G. Kump of West Virginia was asked in a telegram to withdraw the state police. A strikers' committee said police took orders from the company officials.

Weir Going to Capital.

Meanwhile, E. T. Weir, chairman of the board of the National Steel company, announced that he would appear before the national labor board at Washington despite a previous announcement that the offer of the board to arbitrate had been turned down. He repeated that the case would not be submitted to the board but said he would go before it Monday "in a desire to coöperate with the President's recovery program."

The Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers has been demanding that it be recognized by the company as the labor representative of all workers. Hundreds of employés have drifted back to their jobs in the past week.

Two Strikes Settled.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Minor successes in bringing employés of two unions back to work today spurred state officials in their efforts to end strikes affecting 18,000 workers.

Most attention was paid the 12,000 cotton pickers in the San Joaquin valley, where five deaths have resulted from the recent clashes. In this city more than 2,000 garment workers were still out, and a similar number of men were on strike in the Salinas valley, where demands were presented by workers on the lettuce farms.

Sixteen Police Injured in Cairo Funeral Fight

OPEN ONE CENT RESTAURANT TO AID CITY NEEDY

A One Cent restaurant was formally opened at 16 West Lake street yesterday in ceremonies attended by Mayor Kelly, Robert J. Dunham, chairman of the Illinois relief commission, and Bernarr Macfadden, New York publisher and head of the foundation sponsoring the restaurant. The eating place gets its name from the price charged for most of the food served there. It was established to provide nourishing food for the needy at the lowest possible price.

Similar restaurants are operating in New York City. The restaurant in Chicago, Mr. Macfadden said, was established in an effort to interest relief authorities. He said that through the establishment of other such restaurants the jobless could be fed at a cost to the community of only 10 per cent of the present food costs. According to Mr. Macfadden, the restaurants in New York, although charging only a few cents for most dishes, have been self-sustaining.

At Mr. Macfadden's invitation Mayor Kelly and Mr. Dunham had luncheon in the restaurant.

Three Mexican Bandits Slain by Federal Troops

MEXICO, D. F., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Three bandits were killed by federal troops last night in the region of Mascota, dispatches from Guadalajara said today.

Make him a BOY again

WHEN that husband of yours comes home after a hard day at the office, instead of bothering him with your troubles, give him a good dinner. A dinner for a man who has worked all day. A dinner that rests and refreshes him. That feeds him, supplying physical strength and mental poise.

A&P has the kind of good, fresh, appetizing food that appeals to husbands. And what's more, husbands are never in debt for what they eat, if their wives trade at A&P. For A&P sells for cash.

Good dinners, without nagging bills, go a long way toward transforming tired husbands into care-free boys again. And . . . . the well-fed are pleasanter to live with.

Really FRESH Coffee is ground before your eyes

When freshly roasted coffee beans are ground before your eyes, you get really fresh coffee—coffee with natural freshness, not "preserved" freshness. Nature's own seal, the coffee bean itself, is the best guardian of coffee freshness. When this seal is broken for you by grinding to your order, you get all the rich, full coffee flavor.

These three coffees differ only in flavor. Choose the one that suits your taste. The quality of each is the same, the finest that money can buy. And remember, the coffee you like best is the best for you no matter what it costs.

FINDS MARRIAGE TIES SOLIDIFIED BY DEPRESSION

Tolerance Marks Replies to Pastor's Questionnaire

A spirit of tolerant cynicism with respect to the morals of young men and young women of today is reflected in the answers to a questionnaire prepared by the Rev. Clinton C. Cox, pastor of the Drexel Park Presbyterian church, and sent to some 300 couples whom he has united in marriage.

Each year the marrying pastor, as he is known among the 2,500 members of his congregation, conducts a married couples' service in the church at 64th street and South Marshfield avenue, and his sermon is based upon the replies to his questionnaire. There was a full house at the service last Sunday, for Dr. Cox averages more than 150 wedding ceremonies a year and has been pastor of the church 15 years.

Depression Unites Home.

The questions, 21 in number, deal with domestic relations. The effect of the depression upon the home was one of the questions this year, and the majority of the married couples replied that it has exerted a unifying, stabilizing influence. "Not as much money but more love," was the way some of them put it.

Most of the married couples expressed the opinion that children bring happiness to the home, but there were just as many who favored birth control. "Limited birth control will work wonders," was the statement of one and the substance of most replies.

A majority of the couples were opposed to divorce and many of them advocated stricter laws regulating it, but some declared that a divorce can be a blessing.

Should One Confess?

However, tolerance was shown in some of the replies to questions involving morality.

"Should a prospective husband and wife confess their past transgressions to each other before getting married?" was one of the questions. Most of the couples were opposed to confessions of this nature.

"Should an erring wife be forgiven?" There was not an emphatic "no" in the replies, and most of them were in the affirmative. This was true also in the case of the erring husbands.

"Can a man or woman come back after a transgression?" Here again the ayes were in the majority and there was only one emphatic nay.

IDENTIFY GIRL WHO JOKED OVER ENDING HER LIFE

The body of the young girl, who drowned herself in the lake off Navy pier Friday after jesting with a taxi driver who drove her to the pier, was identified yesterday in the undertaking room at 716 North State street. She was Miss Geneva Hood, 18 years old, 635 West 46th street, a seamstress. Identification was made by a sister, Mrs. Nellie Robbins, with whom she lived.

Mrs. Robbins told the Chicago avenue police she knew of no motive for the suicide other than that her sister had been despondent. She said her sister left their home Thursday evening with a young man bound for a party. Police are seeking the girl's companion.

Miss Hood hailed the cab of Harry H. Harmon, 4355 Greenwood avenue, at 26th street and South parkway and asked to be taken to Navy pier. During the ride she spoke of suicide, although she appeared to be cheerful. When she arrived at the pier she leaped into the water. Herbert A. Andreen, 2917 Marmora avenue, recovered her body and an inhalator squad worked in vain to revive her.

NATHAN BALTER NAMED W. PARKS SUPERINTENDENT

Nathan F. Balter, chief clerk in the city prosecutor's office, was appointed general superintendent of the west parks system yesterday by President Harry Joseph. Balter was appointed chief clerk two and one-half years ago by Mayor Cermak and prior to that had served as secretary of the city council committee on railway terminals and for eight years was secretary to Ald. Edward J. Kaindl, now city collector. The city position vacated by Balter will be filled by Ray Hynes, who also is a member of the 31st ward Democratic organization. Balter lives at 2601 Iowa street.

Robber Denied Release from Joliet on Writ

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Judge John H. Armstrong today denied Arnold Greenbush of Chicago, serving a term in Joliet penitentiary for robbery, his release on a writ of habeas corpus. The contention of Greenbush's attorney was that inasmuch as he had been paroled on two of five indictments he was entitled to release on the other three.

Boat's Damage to Michigan Ave. Bridge Set at $7,000

Thomas Philfeldt, city bridge engineer, yesterday estimated the cost of repairing the damage caused to the Michigan avenue bridge when it was struck on Oct. 3 by the steamship Theodore Roosevelt at $7,000. Mr. Philfeldt said that he would recommend that the city sue the owner of the ship, the Chicago-Roosevelt Steamship company.

SANE ARE HELD WITH INSANE, ICKES CHARGES

To Move Patients from Canton, N. D.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—In scathing language Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes denounced today local political pressure and commercial interest as responsible for preventing the removal of "perfectly sane" Indians from a run down federal asylum at Canton, N. D.

Following an investigation disclosing "sickening and intolerable" conditions, the government is prepared to remove the inmates to St. Elizabeth's hospital here, Mr. Ickes disclosed.

Wants Asylum Retained.

Immediately, commercial interests in the town, anxious to retain the revenue deriving from operation of the government asylum, obtained an injunction in the local court restraining the proposed change, Mr. Ickes charged. At the same time, strong political pressure was brought to bear on officials of the Indian bureau in Washington.

"Those responsible for securing this injunction presumably are actuated by a desire to save for Canton the revenue that continued operation of the institution there means," Mr. Ickes declared. "They appear to be willing to make a profit out of the degradation of helpless Indians. They do not object to locking up sane human beings in an insane asylum."

Conditions in the institution were revealed by Dr. Samuel A. Silk, medical director of St. Elizabeth's hospital. He conducted an investigation at the request of Secretary Ickes. His report, made public by Mr. Ickes, described the asylum as "filthy, inhuman, and revolting."

Politics Keeps Asylum Open.

Officials of the Indian bureau stated that the government has sought for several years to close the Canton institution, but that pressure from North Dakota politicians repeatedly has frustrated every effort to do so. The present injunction action, they indicated, will be fought by the department of the interior. It is believed certain it will be canceled. An attempt to hasten the hearing has been made.

In the course of his report Dr. Silk said: "Many inmates were kept shackled to beds or water pipes who with adequate supervision would need no restriction.

"One helpless and bedridden man, supposed to be suffering from a brain tumor, was kept padlocked in his room to prevent other patients reaching him. One defective boy, not insane, was not only padlocked in his room but restrained in a straitjacket. On the hospital side each of the four wards was locked, and one patient, an epileptic, was kept padlocked to a bed."

Dr. Silk reported that his investigation revealed a substantial number of the 94 Indian inmates to be sane and without trace of previous insanity. In this connection the investigator cited the case of one man, now imprisoned for eleven years, whose clinical record merely showed that his mother had been an alcoholic and that the patient had once fought with a white man.

The present superintendent of the asylum has been asked to resign and is under charges of permitting the sane inmates to be incarcerated as insane patients.

Court Awards 2 Weekly Weeps to Mrs. Hiram Jeans

Allerton, Ill., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Domestic difficulties have been settled for Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Jeans. Mrs. Jeans may have two cries a week hereafter under the protecting wings of the court. Mr. Jeans wanted a divorce on grounds of his wife's crying. She retorted that a woman should be permitted to have a frequent spell of weeping. He said she cried every morning just before it was time for them to get up. A cry twice a week is plenty for any woman, and no man should be forced to listen, the jurist said.

WORLD LIBRARY LEADERS OPEN SESSIONS HERE

American Association to Convene Tomorrow.

More than 2,000 librarians from the United States and 14 foreign countries assembled here yesterday to attend a librarians' congress of international importance. It is expected that another 1,000 delegates will be enrolled by tomorrow when the American Library association opens its 56th annual conference.

The International Federation of Library Associations opened its meetings yesterday at the Stevens hotel. Other special meetings were held at the Congress hotel and at the University of Chicago. It was the first time that the international organization has met in the United States and the first time that China, Japan, and Mexico had been able to send representatives.

Vatican City Sends Representative.

Other delegates in attendance included Msgr. Eugene Tisserant, Vatican City, Italy; Dr. A. Vincent, Brussels, Belgium; Arundell Esdaile, London, England; Leon Bultingaire, Paris, France; Dr. Hugo A. Kruss, Berlin, Germany; Dr. Wilhelm Munthe, Oslo, Norway, and Dr. J. Muszkowski, Warsaw, Poland.

Most of the delegates were attracted by the American Library association's conference which will open a week's sessions at the Stevens hotel tomorrow, though a number of preconvention committee meetings were held yesterday and will be in progress today. The association is the oldest and largest library group in the world. It is the first time their annual meeting has been held here since 1893.

Demand Lower Prices.

At their meetings the delegates will discuss and criticize the high prices of scientific periodicals and suggest common measures that librarians of the different countries should take in an effort to have the prices reduced to a point where they could be more widely read. A voluminous report on the prices of such periodicals abroad, particularly in Germany, was submitted to the international group, but the main discussions are to be taken up in the American asociation's meetings.

At the international conference yesterday, delegates discussed the international unification of library statistics and endeavored to establish a common basis for an international comparison of library figures. It is expected that such a plan would be of great importance to educators, book sellers and publishers.

ONE MAN HOLDS 26 AT BAY FOR 3½ HOUR SIEGE

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 13.—[U. P.]—Wounding one constable and withstanding a three and a half hour siege by 26 deputies and soldiers, Benjamin Heflinger, 29, finally was captured last midnight. Tear gas bombs drove him into a dugout beneath the floor of his shack.

When Constable Joseph Doran and another deputy sought to question Heflinger about a robbery they were met by a volley of shotgun slugs. Several of the shot struck Doran in the face.

A radio call brought St. Louis police to the scene. The sergeant of the guard at Jefferson barracks sent half a dozen soldiers to investigate the firing.

Heflinger kept his besiegers at bay by running from window to window firing a shotgun and a pistol. Finally tear gas bombs from the barracks ended the siege. He was found in a dugout. He had been slightly wounded in one hand.

SEES FATHERS NURSING BABES AS POSSIBILITY

Akron, O., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Although qualifying his statement, Dr. Oliver Kamm of Detroit says "it is entirely within the realm of possibility" that "fathers soon will be nursing their babies."

He spoke before the Ohio-Michigan section of the American Chemical society, adding that he didn't want to make an out and out prediction concerning the fathers "from this platform."

Dr. Kamm announced the discovery of an extract of the posterior pituitary gland, a single injection of which "will stimulate the lacteal glands of mothers" and permit any mother in normal health to nurse her babies at the breast. Experiments with cats, he said, showed the gland extract enabled tom cats to nurse kittens.

OFFICIATES AT MARRIAGE OF HIS DAUGHTER

Miss Dorothea Pister, daughter of the Rev. Jacob Pister, pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, Orchard street and Fullerton parkway, became the wife of Charles Griswold Cowan, son of Mrs. Harvey Webb Cowan of the Windemere East hotel, last night at the Drake hotel. Miss Pister was given away by her father, who also performed the ceremony.

Miss Pister and Mr. Cowan both attended the University of Chicago. Miss Pister was secretary of the advertising council of the Association of Commerce for seven years. Mr. Cowan is a furrier. The ceremony was followed by a wedding supper at the hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Cowan will make their home at the Narragansett hotel.

The Rev. Mr. Pister used a simple, original ceremony. He also officiated at the ceremony of a daughter, Mrs. John Marey Wilson of Portland, Ore., eight years ago, and during the war married his two sons, Harold and C. Eugene Pister. He lives at 614 Fullerton parkway.

AWARDED $10,000 FOR INJURIES.

Elkhorn, Wis., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Harold Schulte, a postal employé in Milwaukee, was awarded $10,000 in court here today for injuries suffered when he was struck near East Troy in February of 1931 by an automobile operated by Victor Ludtke of East Troy.

U. S. PROBE OF AIR CRASH UNDERWAY IN THREE CITIES

Work on Two Theories on Cause of Blast.

The terrific explosion that tore a transcontinental air liner in half last Tuesday night over Chesterton, Ind., and caused the death of seven occupants was the subject of an intensive investigation by operatives of the department of justice in Chicago, Cleveland, and Newark, N. J., yesterday, it was disclosed by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the department's bureau of investigation at Washington.

Hoover revealed that the department of justice investigation had been under way since Thursday. No findings have been obtained that can be made public, he said. He expects to have a full report on the accident within a few days.

Theories on Cause of Blast.

Part of the report will deal with the possibility that the plane crashed after high explosives in the rear part of the craft were detonated, tearing the tail off and causing the plane to crash, out of control. The other part of the report will deal with the possibility that a mixture of gasoline fumes and air accumulated in the rear of the plane ignited and caused the explosion that resulted in the crash. Such a mixture might have come from a small gasoline leak not noticed by the crew or passengers.

Both theories of the cause of the accident have been investigated by inspectors of the aeronautics branch of the department of commerce, who are authorities in their field, and by officials of the United Air Lines, operators of the plane that crashed. At first these investigators gave some credence to the gasoline leakage theory, but as they progressed it appeared more and more improbable.

Blame High Explosives.

Confused by facts that could not be explained by the gasoline leakage theory, these investigators called in the department of justice to launch an investigation of the high explosive theory. Both the department of commerce inspectors, who are prohibited from making public their findings, and the air line officials were firmly convinced the explosion was caused by high explosives.

Dr. C. W. Muehlberger, crime detection expert for Northwestern university and coroner's chemist, examined parts of the wreckage of the plane and announced definitely that the explosion was caused by some form of high explosive, and not by gasoline vapor. Agents of the department of justice, who examined the wreck and correlated evidence gathered by the other investigators, hold the same theory.

Despite the conviction of aviation experts of the department of commerce, the officials of the air line, and operatives for the department of justice that high explosives caused the crash, the lack of any plausible reason for the existence of explosives on the plane will cause all other possible causes of the crash to be reexamined thoroughly.

Facts of the Accident.

The facts of the crash as developed in eyewitness accounts at the inquest and in examination of the wreckage are:

1. The plane exploded high in the air with a loud report. This explosion was not followed by fire, witnesses said.

2. As the plane fell toward the ground both motors were running and the navigating lights were on. Witnesses did not see the tail.

3. There was a second explosion after the plane crashed on the ground, followed by flames leaping 200 feet in the air.

4. The tail surfaces of the plane were found almost intact a mile and a quarter southwest of the main wreckage. Nearby were the bodies of two men passengers. The bodies of the men and the tail of the plane were not burned by flames.

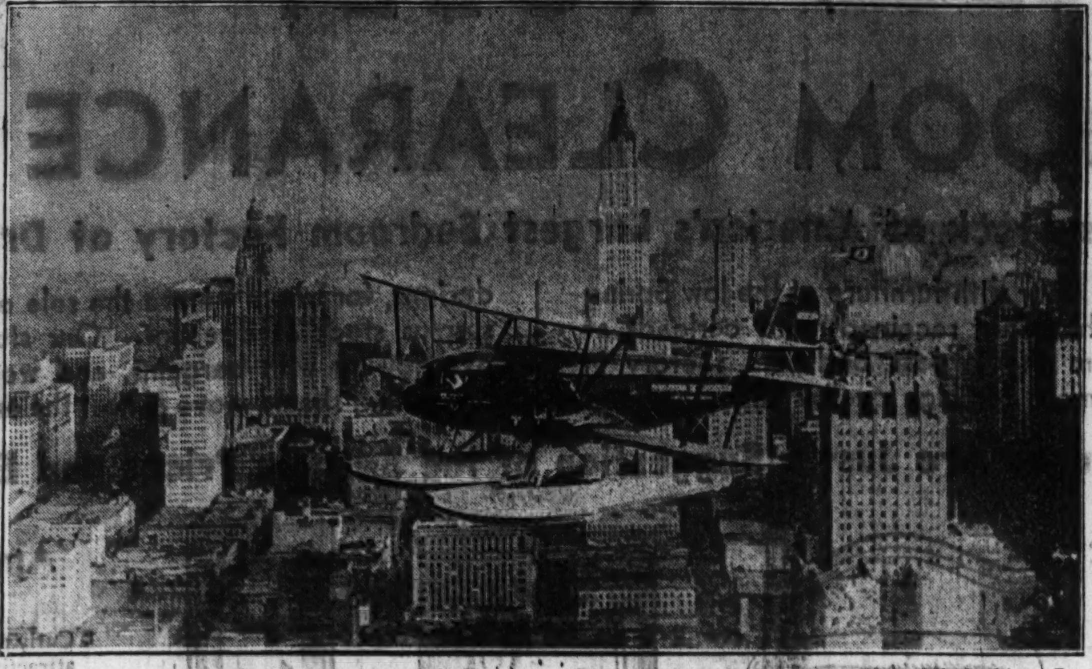
5. The gasoline tanks were burst inward, not outwardly.

6. The toilet and baggage compartments, which are between the passenger cabin and the tail of the plane, were completely destroyed. Other parts of the plane damaged by fire were recognizable.

Based on these known facts of the crash, investigators said they believed something other than gasoline vapor caused the explosion in the air. They gathered evidence and submitted it to Dr. Muehlberger, who found that the explosion was of such force as to shatter metal into small pieces and force it through thick plate of other metal. Such force could not be caused by a gasoline vapor explosion, he said.

In following the theory that high explosives caused the crash, department of justice operatives are investigating the private lives of all seven occupants of the plane. One angle being investigated is the story of Crawford Newby, a Negro porter, that one of the passengers carried a "mysterious brown package" when he boarded the plane at Newark. It is the theory that the package may have been a bomb.

BYRD SEAPLANE TRIES WINGS OVER NEW YORK



The Curtiss-Wright Condor seaplane, powered with two 700 horsepower motors, in which Rear Admiral Byrd plans to fly over the south pole, makes test flight over New York City. POLICEMAN SHOT TRYING TO HALT TAVERN BRAWL

Off duty and in civilian clothes, Policeman Daniel Donovan, 34 years old, received a bullet wound in the left shoulder early yesterday when he interrupted a brawl among patrons of the Frogleg beer tavern, 4233 Lake Park avenue, and joined in a gun battle with three of the brawlers. One of the rowdies, Hubert O'Donnell, 31 years old, 4517 Lake Park avenue, was severely wounded by the policeman.

Donovan was accompanied by a friend, Roy Rosenhorn, 7124 Ellis avenue. They visited the tavern on their way home from a tour of the Fair. Three men, said Rosenhorn, were quarreling with several other men. O'Donnell held a raised chair in his hands and was about to strike another man with it when Donovan wrested the chair from him.

O'Donnell conferred with his friends. One of these went out and returned a moment later with three guns. Donovan, witnesses said, seized a gun from O'Donnell. He threatened to shoot O'Donnell unless his companions [illegible] their [illegible]. Instead, they [illegible] and Donovan fell. As he [illegible] the policeman shot O'Donnell. The others fled.

O'Donnell was taken to the Bridewell hospital, where it was said he might not recover. An hour after the shooting O'Donnell was identified as one of three men who robbed a beer tavern at 6158 Cottage Grove avenue earlier in the evening and escaped with $34. Policeman Donovan was taken to the Chicago hospital.

TWO ESCAPE FROM DUNNING.

Authorities at the Chicago State hospital yesterday asked police to search for two patients who escaped Friday evening. They are Vernon Libby, 38 years old, 5855 Virginia avenue, and William Rastis, 31 years old.

PLANES COLLIDE IN AIR; PILOTS ESCAPE UNHURT

One Ship Crashes Into House.

Wilmington, Del., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Two "air circus" stunt planes collided 2,700 feet above the heart of Wilmington this afternoon and started dropping while several thousand horror struck spectators looked on.

One of the planes, piloted by Roy [Speed] Hunt of Oklahoma City, plunged into the roof of a two story dwelling, while its motor, torn loose, crashed through the house and buried itself in the ground beneath the first floor. Hunt bailed out at 700 feet and floated to the middle of a street on a parachute which opened only 500 feet above the central section of the city.

The gasoline tank of Hunt's plane exploded shortly after the crash, burning and injuring three policemen who had climbed to the roof to inspect the damage. Seven other persons suffered minor injuries in two dwellings that were badly damaged by fire after the explosion.

Lenn Povey of Boston, pilot of the second plane, managed to maneuver his ship five miles to Bellanca airport and land it without injuring either the plane, himself or Harold Newman of Moline, Ill., his co-pilot.

The crashing planes were both units of the American Air Aces, Inc., which had been hired to present an air circus at Bellanca field, Newcastle, for the Wilmington Junior league in the interest of charity.

'L' BONDHOLDERS URGED AGAIN TO ASSIST MERGER

D. F. Kelly Renews Plea After City's Threat.

D. F. Kelly, president of the Fair store and chairman of the first mortgage bondholders' committee of the elevated lines, sent out another urgent plea yesterday that holders of the first mortgage bonds be deposited with his committee immediately. He declared that the failure of the security holders to deposit some $23,000,000 par value of the bonds was an element in delaying the reorganization of the transit system under the traction settlement ordinance which provides for a merger of the surface and elevated lines.

Mr. Kelly said his new call was impelled by the threat of the city to impose 5 cent fares on the companies, based on a revaluation of the companies' assets. The threat was made on Friday by Ald. James B. Bowler [25th], chairman of the council committee on local transportation. Mr. Kelly emphasized that the deadline for acceptance of the traction settlement falls on Jan. 31, 1934. After this date the companies would be without franchises unless they accept the ordinance.

Committee for Settlement.

"Our committee is heartily in accord with the view of Ald. Bowler that there must be an early settlement," said Mr. Kelly. "We have not given any thought to revaluation, but we have given a great deal of thought to the consolidation of the two properties and the relation of value of one to the other.

"It is very important because of this that the bondholders of the Chicago Rapid Transit lines recognize the situation and the fact that the city officials are in deadly earnest in their intention not to extend the time for acceptance by the traction companies of the pending franchise ordinance.

Their failure to deposit their bonds to the extent of 100 per cent is an impediment in the negotiations toward agreement on a reorganization plan, even though the percentage required to give authority for official action has been placed in our hands."

Half of Bonds Deposited.

Mr. Kelly said that approximately 50 per cent of the outstanding $46,000,000 worth of first mortgage bonds have been deposited. The committee, he pointed out, can only speak for the holders of these bonds in the transit negotiations. He warned that there should be dispelled any hope on the part of the nondepositors that they can cash in on their bonds by dissenting from the proposed unification of the two transit systems. There will be no cash available for that purpose, he said.

Mayor Kelly and a number of the members of the council's local transportation committee have declared that they will not again extend the deadline for acceptance of the ordinance by the companies.

A re-appraisal of the properties of the surface and elevated lines as threatened by Ald. Bowler, could be demanded by the city in a petition to the Illinois commerce commission. The commission fixes the rates of fare, predicating them upon the value of capital investment of the properties, upon the operating expenses and upon the rate of return on the investment and the annual cost of renewal of equipment.

Value Fixed at 260 Millions.

The combined value of the properties of the two transit systems has been fixed at $260,000,000 for purposes of the proposed merger. Of that total, $165,000,000 is the value placed on the street car lines and $95,000,000 on the elevated lines. A consulting engineer said yesterday that there has been a 30 per cent drop in the cost of reproduction of the properties since 1929, when the values were fixed. This is a conservative estimate, he said. In addition, he declared, there probably has been a 20 per cent loss as a result of depreciation.

In other words, according to these estimates, the two companies may have today a combined valuation of $132,000,000 instead of $260,000,000. There is said to be included in the surface lines' valuation some obsolete cable car equipment.

The lower the valuation figures are the less money from earnings would be required for return on the investment, for the renewal fund, and for taxes. The savings possibly would be reflected in lower fares, it was declared.

DOHENY GIVEN $34,988 INCOME TAX CREDIT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Edward L. Doheny, wealthy California oil man involved in the Teapot Dome scandals of the Harding administration, today received an income tax credit from the federal government of $34,988.

At the same time other members of the Doheny family and a Doheny securities company received tax credits aggregating $95,557. This sum was divided as follows: Estate of Edward L. Doheny Jr., $30,653; C. E. Doheny, $34,536; and Petroleum Securities company, $31,368.

The credit to Deheny himself was allowed on the grounds that his losses in the operation of business and on the sale of certain securities were larger than originally deducted.

Doheny still had, however, income tax deficiencies of $361,123 from previous years, the bureau of internal revenue announced today, and the credit awarded him will be applied against that deficiency. Doheny was acquitted on charges of giving former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall a $100,000 bribe.

RARE HANDICRAFT IN BOOK BINDING SHOWN AT FAIR

Ancient Art Survives in Spite of Machines.

> Of the things which man can make here below, by far the most noteworthy are the things we call books.
> THOMAS CARLYLE.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

The most interesting exhibit in one of the most interesting buildings at the World's Fair is a craftsman of the stately old school who calls the people for whom he works not "my customers" but "my patrons," whose slogan in this machine age is "Absolutely no machine work by me," and whose mind is a treasury of beautiful memories.

Amid the twentieth century mechanisms and up-to-the-minute gadgets operating in the vast General Exhibits building and turning out work while you wait, white-haired Edward Hertzberg stands unique and his costly display is like nothing else in an area three and a half miles long and half a mile wide.

Man and boy, Edward Hertzberg has for forty-four years been binding books of the most distinguished collectors in Chicagoland. As your true bibliophile holds his books in hardly less regard than he does his children, Mr. Hertzberg has a place in the affections of scores of our old families such as their family physician has. He is their book doctor.

Owen Aldis' Ambition.

Crowding memories!

He remembers that the late Owen Aldis, grandee of a generation now nearly vanished from the local scene, once said to him:

"If I were young again I would load up a wagon with tinware and go through the New England towns trading new tins for old books which I might find in the attics of the old houses."

He remembers that he once bound into the great Ely volume of autographs that now reposes in the Milwaukee public library a scrap of Mark Twain's writing that read:

"Do not use your morals weekdays. It gets them out of repair for Sunday."

An Agnostic's Luckiest Break.

"I was born on the 11th of August, 1833, and that is the most wonderful thing that ever happened to me."

He remembers that years ago a woman brought to his bindery a book which was to be a wedding present and, showing a piece of cloth, she asked that the volume be bound in that piece, which, she said, was from the wedding dress of George Eliot. It must have been from the gown she wore at her marriage to Mr. Cross, for no wedding dress would have fitted into the tableau of the defiant lady's earlier alliance with Mr. Lewes, although she considered it a marriage.

A few years before his death Dr. Frank Gunsaulus, than whom Chicago never had a more discriminating collector, laid loving hands on the elephant folio—16 by 22 inches—of "Die Nibelunge" [better known to us, perhaps, as "Das Nibelungenlied"], the binding of which represented four and a half months of work under the Hertzberg roof, and exclaimed in the vibrant tone that he could make carry to the Auditorium's topmost gallery:

A World's Fair Masterpiece.

That volume is the chef d'œuvre of the Hertzberg exhibition at the World's Fair. It rests under lock and key in a glass case in the paneled Gothic room which the Hertzbergs erected in General Exhibits building, but for particular examination by the genuinely interested Edward Hertzberg and his colleague, Mr. Fischer, will lift it out of the case.

What commanded Dr. Gunsaulus' tribute was everything about the book—type, paper, and binding. Some experts consider it the most valuable specimen of modern printing ever bound in this country, and as to the binding and tooling it is solely a Chicago achievement.

The work was issued from the Imperial Printing office, Berlin, in 1904 in an edition limited to 200 copies, of which the World's Fair exhibit is No. 53. The late Ernst Hertzberg, Edward's father, acquired it in 1912. The late Theodore Roosevelt acquired another copy.

A Labor of Love.

The volume, thick as an old-fashioned pulpit Bible, contains 314 pages of text and pictures. The type was made especially for the edition. The paper, also especially made, is a handmade linen production, and the reason the elder Hertzberg selected the book for his firm's supreme achievement in binding was not only because he loved the twelfth century German epic but also because type and paper and presswork were masterpieces.

Under Edward Hertzberg's direction and from his designs Lorenz Schwartz, his master craftsman at that time, worked steadily for four and a half months in 1912 on No. 53. The volume is bound in golden brown French levant, a single goatskin, obtained in Cape Colony, but tanned in France, having been used. "French," said Mr. Hertzberg, "is the best tannage [a rare word I had never heard before, although the dictionary says Browning used it], because it polishes better. French levant is also the most enduring of leathers for book binding. It has been known to last for from 150 to 200 years."

Exhibitor at Fair

Mrs. William F. Letford, Palmyra, N. J., with a jar of peach butter which she made forty years ago and exhibited at the Columbian Exposition here of 1893. The jar is on display in the canning contest being held in the Hall of States at A Century of Progress.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Wonderful Blind Tooling.

Examine especially when you view this volume the exquisite blind tooling on the outer side of the first cover. It depicts with extraordinary delicacy of line the features of Chrimhild [also spelled Kriemhild], one of the two heroines of the epic. Blind tooling is ungilded tooling, and is much more difficult than the gilded, owing to the danger of burning the leather with the small heated tools with which the design is worked into the moist leather.

The treatment of the inner sides of the book's covers is gemlike. Description by a layman would be tedious to laymen and of no value to experts. But everybody can enjoy that loveliness of color and design and all will marvel at the patience and skill which created it. Patience and skill! For it is to be remembered that this work is not done with dies. Every beauty, however minute, represents the stroke of a tool in a steady hand.

"What is the value of this volume, Mr. Hertzberg?"

"It is not for sale. It's the Hertzberg masterpiece."

Pressed on the point of value, the owner replied:

"Well, if I were making an inventory of Hertzberg treasures I suppose I should be justified in writing three thousand dollars opposite this title. But I wouldn't like to sell the book."

The Old Resounding Lines.

Edward Hertzberg, I fear, is more an artist than a financier. You feel that when his eyes rest upon the epic's noble opening lines—so noble in their simplicity—and hear him half chant the ancient dialect:

Uns ist in alten maeren wunders vil geseit
Von heleden lobebaeren, von grozer arebeit,
Von freude unt hochgeziten, von weinen unde klagen,
Von küener recken striten muget ir nun wunder hoeren sagen.

Who wrote it seven centuries ago? Nobody knows. But, whoever he was, he would be proud could he see what our new city has done to give his poem covers worthy of it.

To do such a thing is Edward Hertzberg all over. Believing with Carlyle that "of the things which man can make here below, by far the most noteworthy are the things we call books," he loves to make bindings worthy of worthy books.

"Have a book's bindings," he says, "express the contents" and "make the exterior reflect the work within."

Working Out a Slogan.

Hence in his World's Fair exhibit you see his bindings on the sporting novels of old Robert Surtees—whose "Jorrock's Jaunts and Jollities" suggested to Dickens the scheme of "Pickwick Papers"—decked with foxhounds and foxes' heads and riding crops and horseshoes, and Sir Richard Burton's translation of "The Arabian Nights" with minarets, and the fore edges of the three volumes of Andreas' "History of Chicago" with the most ingenious disappearing water colors of Chicago at three periods of its history.

None of this decoration oppressive, I should add, but tactful, allusive, and charming.

The binding of the Andreas, by the way, is being carried on before the eyes of visitors to the Hertzberg exhibit at the World's Fair and will occupy one man a whole month—more than a week to each volume.

Always the Gothic room is crowded when binding is in progress, and the people look on with absorbed interest. Since the Fair opened the Hertzberg artisans have bound 400 volumes as a demonstration of the craft.

In the exhibition room's cases are 800 volumes of Hertzberg's representative work. I suppose one may fairly say that the whole show, so compact but so choice, is the most distinguished exhibit made at the Fair by an individual Chicagoan, because it represents not the machine but conscience and personality in craftsmanship.

Edward Hertzberg is pleased with the response of his visitors, and he is one of the few ageing men whom I lately have heard laud the oncoming generation. "Even the young girls," he exclaimed—"I have been astonished! They are not flappers. They know things."

He has rigorous standards.

For example, he would not put a hand made binding on a machine sewn book. "That," said he, "would be a monstrosity." Instead, he would take the machine sewn book apart and hand sew it before binding—if it were a book worthy of his art.

Where the Machine Conquers Not.

You might think that so meticulous an artisan would be an outdistanced putterer in this machine age. Not at all. There is a paying public for careful craftsmanship — and that is the heartening lesson of this beautiful exhibit. I made bold to ask Mr. Hertzberg if there were such a public in utilitarian Chicagoland and he, a cautious speaking man, replied:

"In the forty-four years I have been a member of the firm which my father brought to distinction and which my children will carry on I have done for the book lovers of Chicagoland about three and a half million dollars' worth of binding. I can and do go into houses of families for whom my father bound books sixty years ago and I find his bindings still sound. In some cases I watch them from year to year to see when they need an application of neatsfoot oil to prevent drying out. All leather bound books should be behind glass in this city owing to a certain acid quality in our smoke.

"Not long ago, in George Chandler's bookstore, I came on thirty volumes of Victor Hugo which my father bound forty-five years ago in French crushed levant. The work is as bright and sound as if done yesterday—and it will be as good a hundred years hence if kept behind glass. I recognized the volumes from my father's hand tooling, and I eagerly bought them. I can remember as a boy holding those books steady for him while he made hundreds of pressures on each of them with five different kinds of heated tools. I was terribly bored with my part of the task then, but nobody could get those volumes away from me now."

Mr. Hertzberg could write a history of Chicago collectors, living and dead.

Eugene and Roswell Field, John G. Shedd, Dr. Gunsaulus, Dr. Frank Bristol, Woolsey Stryker, the McCormicks, the Mannieres, and the Ayers were his patrons, and the McCormicks still are. So are Cardinal Mundelein, former Gov. Lowden, Dean Wigmore of Northwestern, and President Emeritus Kinley of the University of Illinois.

Priceless McCutcheon Volumes.

For thirty years they have been binding for John T. McCutcheon each year of his cartoons—a collection constituting a great social and political history of the United States by its suavest but most penetrating pictorial satirist.

And John J. Glessner, Chicago industrial magnate, now 90 years old, still comes to the bindery with choice volumes under his arm that he wants redone.

In short, the Hertzbergs are a Chicago institution and their plant is a school for the supervisors of binding in libraries as far away as the New York Public library. That plant they call the Monastery Hill bindery. There is no monastery and there is no hill at 1751 Belmont avenue, but there is a story.

Where Old Monks Wrought.

In Gramzow, a little town north of Berlin, there is a hill on which Ernst Hertzberg loved to play as a boy. On the hill are the ruins of a monastery where, tradition says, the monks bound books in mediæval times. And those ruins were a shrine of romance to the boy Ernst, who was learning the bookbinder's art. Having learned it, he came direct to Chicago in the sixties and when he was firmly established in business for himself one of the things he did was to name his bindery for the unforgotten shrine spot in Gramzow. That is why you see in his son's Gothic treasure room at the Fair a stained glass window depicting a ruined monastery on a lonely hill.

Yes, the Hertzbergs are sentimentalists. 'Tis in the blood. For Ernst's son did not make this exhibition to exploit his business. He did not have to.

"I made it," said he at the close of my three and a half hours of listening and viewing in the entrancing Gothic room, "in grateful appreciation of the patronage and trust which three generations of Chicagoans have bestowed on three generations of Hertzbergs. I always feel that they and we have worked together—we as much for them as for ourselves. I can't help but feel that way."

Galena Woman, Now 96, Does Housework Daily

Galena, Ill., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—In Galena, where old age and good health are synonymous, Mrs. Belle Green is today observing her 96th birthday. She never has worn glasses and sews and does housework every day. Henry Wilhelmi, another old Galena settler, will be 91 tomorrow and will celebrate the day with a five mile walk.

FORMER OFFICIAL OF SHIPPING CO. ENDS OWN LIFE

Harry Meyering, 69 years old, former general freight and traffic manager for the Goodrich Transit company, committed suicide yesterday morning by firing a bullet into his head in a bedroom of his apartment at 10 West Elm street. His body was found by his widow, Mrs. Anna Meyering, when she returned from a shopping trip shortly before noon.

Mrs. Meyering said that her husband had been in ill health and had been brooding over his financial losses. She said he had not had work since the Goodrich company went into bankruptcy three years ago. He had been an employé of that company and of the Graham and Morton Transportation company, which was absorbed by the Goodrich company in 1925, for more than 45 years.

Meyering is survived by his widow, a son, Lawrence V. Meyering, and a daughter, Mrs. Mary Farnsworth of Lake Forest.

SIX ARRESTED AT FAIR PEEP SHOW FREED

Six men who were arrested early yesterday when they precipitated a disorder at a peep show at the Streets of Paris concession of the Fair, were dismissed when arraigned later in the day before Judge Lambert K. Hayes in the Boys' court. Five of the men engaged in argument with the sixth, a barker for the peep show. They refused to leave the concession, insisting they had not seen a full show.

Before Judge Hayes the men shook hands and agreed to forget the incident. The men are Robert Van Hill, 32 years old, 2223 Grove avenue, barker for the show; John W. Mehren, 22, of 894 Linden road, Winnetka; R. H. Faircolugh, 40, of 958 Pine avenue, Winnetka; J. P. Sullivan, 30, of 343 Park avenue, Glencoe; Frank Belmont, 20, of 1036 Spruce street, Winnetka, and Harold Runnfeldt, 21, of 1037 Spruce street, Winnetka.

THIRD LARGEST CROWD VISITS WORLD'S FAIR

First Hour Breaks All Exposition Records.

Friday, Oct. 13, 1933	137,518
Friday, Oct. 13, 1893	215,343
Total, including Oct. 13, 1933 [140 days]	19,561,258
Total, including Oct. 13, 1893 [166 days]	17,618,293

The Columbian exposition opened May 1; A Century of Progress opened May 27.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Chicagoans poured through the gates of A Century of Progress Exposition in such numbers yesterday that by 11:30 p. m. a total of 276,210 was registered at the turnstiles. This established a new Saturday high for attendance and made the day the third largest since the fair started.

The next best Saturday was a week previous, when the attendance was 249,702. On Sept. 3 the maximum for all days was established, 367,004 passing in. Last Sunday the mark, second best, was 304,568. The fourth best attendance record was made on Oct. 4, when 274,396 entered.

35,000 in First Hour.

When the gates opened yesterday morning several thousand persons were waiting in line for admission, a sight that has not greeted the gate lieutenants in several weeks. During the first hour 35,040 admissions were recorded, the largest first hour figure of the Fair. At 11:30 a. m. the hundred thousand mark had been passed with an official clocking of 104,343. At that time officials calculated the tabulators were 5,000 behind in their count.

Only 17 More Days Remain in Which to See the Fair

An optimistic factor in yesterday's attendance figures was the prophecy of a record Sunday today. The present records have been set on Sundays, in each case followed by a decided slump on Monday.

"We have to thank Chicago people for this attendance," Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager, said. "Chicagoans make up the great majority of today's crowds, and it is on them we must depend for support. Chicago waited until the last to attend the 1893 Fair and they are doing so now."

Two other records will be set this week-end. The two millionth child under 12 years of age entered the Fair yesterday, and the twentieth million visitor will enter the grounds today. This shows an average of one child admission in every ten, a high record, according to officials. This makes an average gate charge of 38 cents. Children's admission charges have ranged from 25 cents during the first part of the Exposition to 5 cents on Fridays and 10 cents on week days at present.

Ahead of Old Fair.

The 20 million mark passed at the old Fair was passed on Oct. 24. The total attendance at the old Fair on Oct. 15 was 17,901,460 despite the fact the Fair had opened a month earlier than the current Exposition.

Although the official closing date of the 1933 Fair has been set for Oct. 31, present indications are that it may operate through Armistice day, Nov. 11, closing at midnight Nov. 12.

While no official announcement has been made, such a plan is being considered. If the plan is adopted an announcement probably will be made during the coming week as many exhibitors and concessionaires order their supplies two weeks in advance, and need notification of any change in the closing date.

A Halloween carnival was given yesterday afternoon in Enchanted Island for the two millionth child visitor to the Fair. The honor guest was Barbara Bishop, 5 years old, of Lake Odessa, Mich., who was accompanied by her parents when she entered the 12th street entrance. She was given a large doll and other toyland awards.

The highlight of the carnival was a clown parade participated in by more than four hundred children. The winners of the parade were as follows:

Roosevelt Among 17,000 Who Seek Kosciusko Stamp

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 14.—(AP)—The nation's "leading" stamp collector is to receive a first day cancellation of a new commemorative stamp issued yesterday on the 150th anniversary of Gen. Thaddeus Kosciusko's admission to American citizenship. Postmaster Rufus Jackson announced that President Roosevelt was one of 17,000 collectors who wrote from many points of the world for first day cancellations of the issue. The stamps were placed on sale in St. Louis and five other cities.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

Fiddlers from all parts of the United States will compete for the national championship trophy and other awards Oct. 24 and 25 at the Fair. The event will be a part of the American Folk Music week which will include concerts made up of the works of Stephen C. Foster, Francis Scott Key, John H. Payne, and other American composers. Entrants to the fiddlers' contest should notify Director Frederick Forthman, 179 West Washington street, Chicago.

Alumni of all Chicago high schools will hold a reunion at the Fair Sunday, Oct. 22. Registration booths will be set up in the Court of States. Registration will be handled by a committee of which Arthur Soll and Edward Saltiel, alumni of Waller High school, are co-chairmen. Emil W. Ritter, an alumnus of the old North Division High school, is chairman of the all-Chicago High School Alumni day committee.

A chest containing 90 kinds of wood made by Joaquin De La Vega of Ecuador, S. A., has been placed on exhibit at the Chrysler Motors building. The chest is made in natural colors of the wood, comprising more than 9,000,000 pieces.

African dances and chants to the accompaniment of 17 drums will be on the program of the Ashanti dancers tonight in the court of the Hall of Science. Duke Kwesi Kuntu, who directs the African dancers, singers and drummers, and has been featured in "Darkest Africa" concession on the Midway, will lead members of his troup in the Golden Stool ceremony and the Royal Appreciation dance. The program begins at 7:30 p. m.

Speeches by President Roosevelt and Newton D. Baker will be broadcast over the loud speakers in the court of the Hall of Science from 9 to 9:30 tonight. They will speak on "Mobilization for Human Needs of 1933." The Philadelphia Symphony orchestra, directed by Leopold Stokowski, will play.

Six bands from universities in the Big Ten conference have been invited to play the Fair before its close. Northwestern's band will play either Oct. 21 or 28. The University of Michigan band will play Oct. 28. Purdue, Illinois, Chicago, and Indiana universities will probably send their bands to the Exposition, but no dates have been set.

Mrs. Mary B. Abernechy of Seattle, Democratic state committeewoman and legislative chairwoman of the diocese conference of the state of Washington, was the 8,000,000th visitor to the Firestone exhibit at the Fair yesterday. She was greeted by Leonard Firestone, vice president of the California factory, who presented her with five tires and inner tubes for her Studebaker automobile. Mrs. Abernechy was accompanied by her four children, two boys and two girls. They drove from Seattle to visit the Fair.

K. K. Kawakami, author of "Japan Speaks," visited the Fair yesterday and spent considerable time in the Japanese group. He will remain for several days before returning to Japan.

Montana day will be celebrated at the Fair Tuesday by residents and former residents of that state. About 200 persons will arrive by train and automobile to take part in the day's activities, and "Miss Montana," who was to be selected in a contest last night in the Liberty theater at Great Falls, Mont., will arrive Tuesday by airplane. At noon Montanans will assemble at the Indian Village near 31st street in the Fair grounds to participate in a buffalo meat barbecue.

The New York Central Lines used ten extra train sections yesterday to bring 4,600 visitors to the Fair. More than 1,600 reservations had been made last evening on special trains which will arrive today from Tennessee, Kentucky, and the Carolinas.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

OUR PACIFIC RELATIONS.

Unless developments in the far east compel a radical alteration of policy, the foundation of American policy in the Pacific, as it is or should be in other regions of this troubled world, is well expressed by Representative Tinkham when he told a Peiping audience that "both China and Japan should have our understanding and sympathy, not our partiality."

It must be acknowledged that if the United States may be said to have a policy in Pacific relations it must puzzle foreign governments to steer a course with any safe reference to it. The uncertainties and inconsistencies of our diplomacy are not only disturbing to other governments but injurious and in some respects dangerous to ourselves. Whether a democracy can avoid them is perhaps doubtful, but while they continue it is the more important that our public men, and our press likewise, should emphasize in frank discussion the differences of sentiment, opinion, and interests which create them, and also and especially the underlying factors which in the long run will regulate or restrain our actions.

These factors, the chief of which is a sane reluctance to interfere with the affairs of other nations, as expressed in the classical warnings of Washington and Jefferson, are embarrassed and weakened by the enterprise of politicians and theorists enjoying a little brief authority, and we are therefore too often in danger of unfortunate complications or commitments. Yet in the long run, and upon issues faced under stress by the people, they will prevail.

If this were better understood in foreign offices our relations would be easier, and it is the duty of our public men and of our responsible press to assist to that end. Representative Tinkham's remarks are therefore timely, and should be helpful in correcting the notion, which there has been much reason for foreign governments to take seriously, that the American nation has discarded its traditions against international meddling and entered upon a course of world monitorship. The common sense and justifiable self-interest of the American people will not support any such departure when action is forced upon us, however indifferent we may seem to the apparent implications of our impromptu diplomacy.

We ought indeed to clarify our minds as to our interests and intentions in the Pacific. Our neglect to do so is mischievous in the present and dangerous in its future possibilities. But we are not very likely to do so until we are compelled by critical events, deplorable as the consequences of that postponement are likely to be.

WISCONSIN EYES THE EASY MONEY.

Fault is being found in Wisconsin because the constitutional prohibition of a state debt rises up to prevent federal loans for public works projects. It may not gain any good will in the state to say so, but in this connection Wisconsin does not know when it is well off.

This provision of the constitution has served Wisconsin well since it was first written, but it never has served better than now if it keeps the state from piling up a big obligation for the financing of state public works projects, no matter how desirable it may seem to get some of the easy money being handed out among the states.

Regardless of where they get the money or on what terms, if they have to pay it back with even the lowest rate of interest, Wisconsin is better off without these loans. So is any other state which pays its own way. Paradoxical as it may seem, Wisconsin, which is a contributing, not a mendicant, state, is almost better off without the money if it never has to pay it back.

The state's constitution forbids any public debt except for defense in time of war, to repel invasions, suppress insurrections and, up to a limit of $100,000, to defray extraordinary expenditures. It was adopted at a period when other states were deep in debt for railroads, canals, turnpikes, and for enterprises which seemed as glorious then as the prospect of large public works on Uncle Sam's money seems necessary now.

Wisconsin has a state debt of around $1,300,000 contracted during the civil war. It might many times have been paid off, but its bonds have found their way into the university and state school funds and the interest payment is only a case of taking money out of one pocket and putting it in another.

As a consequence of the constitution, Wisconsin has the lowest debt of any state and a per capita state debt of only 47 cents. This compares with other states, some of which have public debts running into several hundred millions. South Dakota since its memorable adventure into state socialism has a per capita state debt of around $80.

Whatever it may receive from the federal government, it will not be a patch on what Wisconsin contributes to the government and through it to the mendicant states. In 1930 Wisconsin paid in federal income taxes and other national levies $37,000,000, receiving back in state aids around $4,500,000. Despite the current disappearance of large incomes, this year, with added gasoline and nuisance taxes and the impost of $5 a barrel on beer, the national government probably will walk away with as much Wisconsin money as in the peak times.

The state's freedom from debt is due to the foresight of the pioneers rather than the virtue of succeeding generations. The citizens are carrying public obligations for county and local governments and for schools that total around $170,000,000, indicating that without the constitution's restraint the state likely would be in as deep as any of its neighbors.

There have been efforts to amend this wise provision and there probably will be proposals now of some way to get around it.

It is one of state's assets. It is of greater value to the citizens than any sum they are likely to get from the federal government and if they are wise they will guard it and fight for it.

LEGISLATING AGAINST TRUCK SERVICE.

Unless shippers are alert some form of truck regulation is going to be slipped over at the next session of the Illinois legislature or United States congress. Bills have been prepared and are ready for submission that have all the earmarks of railway authorship, because they either provide for regulation of trucks equal to that applied to the railways or carry conditions under which the trucks could not possibly live. The highway users have been told that the executive bodies will no longer submit to their continued objections to proposed legislation and to prepare something constructive themselves. The efforts of this body, of necessity, must be inimical to the interests of the shippers as well as contract and private trucks.

The conclusions of shipper bodies show that they are almost unanimously opposed to any form of legislation. A few consider that something should be done to banish the irresponsible truckmen from the highways, but this minority should remember the history of rail regulation and beware lest the camel get his head under the tent. Regulation of transportation in the public interest is a myth and each shipper organization should take swift and sure action to voice disapproval of any measure designed to limit the development of this valuable public utility. Each shipper should make it his personal business to see that action is taken by his organization.

RECOGNITION.

Visions of a billion dollars in trade were dangled before the delegates of the London conference by Foreign Commissar Litvinoff and are the gaudy background of the drive now under way to bring about the establishment of diplomatic relations with the bolshevik government. There is no doubt that soviet Russia will buy a billion dollars' worth of American commodities if we will also contribute the dollars. We are confident we can have this privilege without granting "recognition."

The bolshevik régime wants recognition for the sake of international prestige. In its other rôle as the Third or Communist Internationale it can and will make use of recognition to strengthen its subversive activities in every disturbed region of the world. It is not conducive to the prosperity of the American nation that these activities should be assisted. The notion that they will be restrained in return for American recognition is not supported by the experience of other governments which have had relations with Moscow.

These international considerations may not interest the public, but it will be interested in the possibilities of lending to Europe. We have sent billions of dollars' worth of American goods to Europe upon European government I. O. U.'s. The I. O. U.'s are not going to be paid. Perhaps the soviet will not repudiate, but it has repudiated before. And then, of course, Moscow need not repudiate. It can give us a token payment.

Editorial of the Day

MAINTAINING THE IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS.

[Railway Age.]

Business men have been accustomed to weighing a number of more or less familiar factors in trying to solve their problems, and when a large number of entirely new factors which they are not accustomed to weighing—and which they actually cannot weigh, because their importance is dependent upon what is going to be done in Washington by men who do not themselves know what they are going to do—are introduced into the equation, there is likely to be caused a hesitation by many business men in regard to what they should do which results in their not doing anything at all except marking time.

Business men are motivated principally by the desire to avoid losses and make profits. Many of them have been virtually forced by the government, at a time when they are still making losses, to increase their operating expenses without any assurance that they will get any increase in their earnings, and even at a time when the brain trusters in Washington are glibly saying that the time when business could be conducted principally to make profits is past. Furthermore, much alarm has been spread through business by the apparent tendency of the government to favor a labor policy which labor leaders throughout the country construe to mean the closed shop. In consequence, the administrators of the government's policy have succeeded in spreading fear instead of confidence through a large part of business, and the fear of losses and boycotts is not a good substitute for confidence among business men as a means of promoting recovery.

We do believe, however, that, regardless of the administration's recovery activities, general economic conditions in the country are much better than they were a year ago, and that they will continue to improve. To a real revival of business an increase in purchases of consumers' goods is necessary, but most essential of all is a real and relatively great increase in activity and employment in the capital goods industries, because the decline of activity and employment in the capital goods industries was the greatest and the revival in it as yet has been the least.

Among the greatest of the capital goods industries is that which consists of manufactures of railway equipment and supplies. No other news that could be published would have a more stimulating effect upon business confidence and general business activity than the news that the railroads had concertedly adopted a program to use their increased earnings, and money that they can borrow from the government, to make large increases in their employment of labor and their purchases of equipment and supplies to improve their equipment and other properties and to help promote the revival of business.

THE LIBERTIES OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

II.

BY CLIFFORD S. RAYMOND.

The government procedure today, politically considered, falls into several classifications. Of some acts, however strange, it may be said that they are wise if they succeed and unwise if they fail, costly or profitable accordingly. They do not invade principles, however much they may invade the treasury. They may be destructive, but it is material destruction, although not to be sniffed at for that reason. But it is to be considered that there are worse things. There are worse things even than a failure of governmental substitution of edict for economic law, the failure of pig buying, crop destruction, process taxing, rental of untilled land, etc. A free people may live down mistakes, pay for them, and manage to survive them.

Public works, extravagant subsidies, gifts, and doles will not break any new ground, although they may break many backs. They have precedent. They may be very unwise or they may be unfortunate, but deemed necessary. Public works and doles have broken many a nation, but even here we do not touch the question of liberty. We touch the pocketbook, the circulating wealth, to some extent the national resources and the individual welfare, but the individual is still a free man. He may be heavily burdened, but he still has his rights.

He may own property. Confiscatory taxation may make it difficult, but the right is preserved. He may buy and sell. He may work or leave his work. He does not need government consent. When the government steps into this field, when it adopts a scheme of prohibitions against inherent rights, rights which have become natural, another danger is in sight. The man under these prohibitions is not free. His government has been converted into something strange. The social conditions may be esteemed better or worse. Whatever they may be, they are not free. There are people in the United States who prefer the new ideas to the old, who would work under them and have others work under them regardless of emergency, and who think of the old order as one not of order but of chaos. These people do not think much of the free man. They want a planned society, by which they mean that very little is left to free initiative and activity, but nearly all proceeds according to a design. Government is the designer and the executive of the design. That means command and obedience. It is what we have now, presumably for a brief period, for a time of emergency. But who can guarantee the impermanence of it?

Emergency is a matter of opinion. Liberty is a matter of law. Expediency forms a government of men. It is what they decide it shall be, as, for instance, the decision of Herr Hitler and Herr Goebbels or of Sig. Mussolini or of Comrade Stalin. These men would disagree as to what is good, but they agree that enforced uniformity is the means of obtaining it. It may now seem good to American government administrators and to some of the American people that all private enterprise should be controlled in one way or another, by code, boycott, subsidy, suppression, confiscation, threats, and penalties, but they should know that it is neither a new era nor a new deal. As either it is very old and the people who accept it accept what their ancestors fought to abolish.

It has been established that the government has power to do anything it pleases. There are no restrictions. There are no limitations on federal authority. The delegated powers of the constitution include all powers. The states are repealing the eighteenth amendment, but under the new construction of the constitution the eighteenth amendment was not needed. Congress could pass the Volstead act without it. In fact, it could do more. It could pass an act giving the President the authority to declare national prohibition effective at will, for all time or any time.

Even more than this may be true today. There is no reason to believe that the adoption of the twenty-first amendment repealing the eighteenth was needed to permit the manufacture, sale, and taxing of alcoholic beverages. The fact that the prohibition amendment is being repealed is a strange one. An executive rule has been sufficient to dispose of other articles of the constitution. There would have been nothing illogical or inconsistent in an administrative order setting forth the national emergency as a reason for the suspension of national prohibition, defining a code for distillers, fixing a price for grain to be used in distilling, assessing a processing tax to pay the grain growers, and urging the people to purchase liberally. In 1923 such an exercise of power was undreamed of. Today it could have been done. So much for a decade. Emergency is the constitution of the United States.

If any one thinks it is not, let him remember the gold prohibition. The President may order the prosecution of a citizen who retains more than one hundred dollars in gold. The citizen has lost his right to possess property honestly come by. He has lost the right to provide for his future by retaining property in the form he thinks is safest. Here is a hard case because the gold hoarder has an ugly name. He is unsocial, but so also is a drunkard whose case produced the Volstead act. Hard cases make hard law. Hard law also makes hard cases.

Most of the people have accepted the new law as just and reasonable without reflecting that what can be done as to gold can be done as to real estate and to any form of personal property. A man holds as he held under William of Normandy, "of the king." He holds of and by the consent of the government. Forty acres may be his limit as a farm, twenty-five feet frontage for a home. On this forty acres a man may be required to raise wheat, on another tract he may be required to raise corn. It is the planned society of design and command. One man, by law, works forty hours a week, another, by law, works thirty-five, and their tasks are designated by the government. It is the planned society.

The people have not taken alarm at this. The courts have not said that it cannot be done. One court decision is that a citizen may not sell milk at a price he fixes to another citizen who is satisfied with both price and quality. It is only the price which is in legal question. The price must be higher than the seller wants to charge and the purchaser wants to pay. Other issues might enter the question, such as one of public health, but they can all be swept aside. The thing at bottom is the right of a citizen to dispose of his property at a price which satisfies him, and that right he no longer has. If it be true and accepted that he cannot hold property in the form of gold and may not dispose of it at the price he pleases in the form of milk it must be true that he holds and disposes of all property at the sanction of the government. The government has merely to find or set up a public interest in whatever he has.

The government is exercising these powers. Therefore it has them. Unless the courts finally decide that the exercise is illegal and beyond the power of government the precedent has been established. Government, then, in the United States is without restriction. What it has done it may do again. Even if it relinquishes control and restores rights it is not the government it was five years ago. It is a totally different thing and the citizen is a different person. He has suffered a permanent change and his government is invested with dictatorial authority. It is no wonder some people speak of this as the great American revolution. There must be another wonder as to how much of it is generally understood.

FLUORINE IN DRINKING WATER.

The acceptance of the theory that too much fluorine in the drinking water is the cause of mottled teeth is now almost universal. About the first observation of this tooth disorder was made at Colorado Springs a little more than thirty years ago. For nearly twenty years it was thought that mottled teeth was not found outside a few places in the Rocky mountain region. A report by Dr. H. Trendley Dean of an investigation to determine how widespread the disorder is in America disclosed two hundred locations where it was reported. Its presence in five of these areas Dr. Dean regarded as rather more than doubtful, and in more than seventy others he does not regard the case proved.

Based on his investigations, he has made a mottled enamel map of the United States. This map shows the condition to be widely scattered over the country. There seems to be more of it in Arizona than in any other state.

That drinking water was responsible for the tooth trouble was suspected almost from the beginning. As early as 1925 Dr. F. S. McKay persuaded a community to change its water supply in order to prevent this tooth trouble, with results that confirmed the theory that it was caused by something in the water. However, it was not until 1931 that proof was found that too much fluorine in the water was the cause of the disorder.

Since that paper there has been a fairly general effort to test water supplies for their content of fluorine, and we now have water maps based on these analyses. They are far from complete, but they prove that much has been accomplished in less than three years.

Fluorine is one of the most widely distributed chemicals, being found in soil, water, vegetable matter, and almost everywhere. When very much diluted with water it is inactive, but when concentrated the story is different. If a water supply contains less than two parts per million it is harmless. But if the proportion goes much above that the teeth register the effects.

There is no agreement as to the harm done the teeth by mottling aside from the change in their appearance. Some think mottled teeth decay readily and others that they resist decay well. It may be that both are right. In certain circumstances the teeth crumble. In others they are hard and resistant.

The question is now being raised as to the possibility of getting harmful amounts of fluorine in ways other than by drinking water that contains too much of it. It is in the soil and plants, and even animals may pick it up and assimilate it into their tissues.

Of far more importance is the possibility of getting too much of it through eating foods that have been sprayed with insecticides that contain fluorine.

LOW BLOOD PRESSURE.

A. G. writes: 1. a. What is low blood pressure? b. Is it dangerous? 2. Is a man 55 years old, 5 feet 7 inches, weighing 114 pounds, much underweight? 3. What are heart murmurs and are they dangerous? 4. Is hardening of arteries dangerous in a man 55 years old?

REPLY.

1. a. A person under 40 whose systolic pressure is under 110 can be said to have low blood pressure.

b. No.

2. Yes.

3. Abnormal sounds made by the blood in passing through the orifices in the heart.

4. It may be dependent on his blood pressure and the condition of his heart, kidneys, and retina.

ARGUMENT ON EACH SIDE.

F. G. writes: I have had a few disputes with people in regard to the fattening qualities of sour cream, much favored by many. I say it is fattening. Every one else I know says it is not.

REPLY.

This is an argument in which both sides win and everybody is happy. But it is also one in which both sides lose. Most foods are fattening or not, depending principally upon how much is eaten. It is quantity that counts. A person who eats a very large quantity of sour cream may put on weight. If he eats freely of other nourishing foods and on top of that eats sour cream liberally he is reasonably certain to put on weight. The same comment applies to buttermilk. On the other hand if the amount of other food eaten is small or if the total amount of food eaten is small the weight will not be increased.

DANGER IS SMALL.

M. A. writes: Is there danger in lifting a baby by the hands? As babies learn to walk mothers lead them by the hands. When they stumble, as they often do, they swing around in a circle, the weight being carried by one arm, and the shoulder feels the strain.

REPLY.

Of course, there is some chance that the baby's shoulder will be pulled out of joint and the capsule and nearby ligaments and tendons torn. But in my opinion the danger is trivial. There is some hazard in everything. Babies run some risk in walking. They fall, get burned, cry, get up, and try again. A baby does not weigh much and the shoulder is a pretty strongly bound joint. In later life the weight is greater and yet we encourage boys, at least, to chin the pole, skin the cat, and many other gymnasium procedures that theoretically imperil the shoulder joint.

TREATING HAY FEVER.

R. W. writes that he manages to control hay fever by taking enough alkali daily to keep his urine alkaline. He drinks milk freely. He uses a jelly containing ephedrine to soothe his nose.

DIVISION OF ESTATE.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Nine years ago my father died, leaving a farm to be divided equally among the children. The sons had all borrowed money from my father. So he made out notes and had the sons sign them and they were given to the ones who had not borrowed. The notes were made payable at date of settlement of estate, with 5 per cent per annum interest. One of the sons was named executor. Interest has been paid on all the notes except the one given by the executor. This note will be ten years old Sept. 1, 1933. 1. Can this note be collected after that? 2. Are the heirs entitled to a statement of the receipts and expenditures each year? If so, how can they be obtained? 3. Has the executor full power to sell the farm without consulting any of the heirs? 4. Can any one of the heirs call for a sale so they can secure their part? 5. How long is permitted for the date of settlement? The will reads the farm is not to be sold for two years after the maker of the will dies. O. L.

1. The limitation period is ten years from the maturity date.

2. The executor is under no legal obligation to account to the beneficiaries, but he must render an account to the court at the beginning of the court proceedings and should file a final account shortly after the end of the year.

3. His powers depend on the wording of the will.

4. Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree any one of them is entitled to force a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, are chargeable against the proceeds of sale.

5. We cannot advise further without knowing the wording of the will in other respects. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

1932 ASSESSMENTS.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—[Friend of the People.]—I am trying to get some information regarding assessments that were not paid for 1932 and have been told that the books from Arlington Heights have not been sent in as yet and probably won't be this year. Why are they holding back and what is the cause for not sending them in? J. A. A.

This office is now working on the assessment of property for the year 1932, which assessment will be completed early in November, at which time complete information will be available to taxpayers. With the completion of the 1931 assessment this office has been collecting data on the changes in real estate values and prices between April 1, 1931, and April 1, 1932, and the lower values of lands and buildings as of April 1, 1932, will be reflected in the 1932 assessments. This office, as you know, has nothing to do with the expenditures by the local governments or with the amount of tax extensions, and reductions in tax bills can only come through actual reduction in expenditures. J. L. JACOBS.
County Assessor.

TO MAKE A WILL.

Crown Point, Ind., Oct. 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I live in Indiana and am about to draw up a will. 1. I cannot afford to have a lawyer do it for me and want advice. 2. Is a will drawn in this way legal if signed by two witnesses? 3. Or stamped by a notary? The home we live in is in joint ownership. 4. Can I make provision to will my half ownership to my nephews, they to get it after the death of my husband, and can I request it all go to my nephews after his death? We have no children. A. F. D.

1. Ordinarily it is poor economy to dispense with the services of an attorney in such a matter.

2. Yes.

3. Not necessarily.

4. No. The survivor takes all, so that the one who dies first has no power to dispose of the property by will.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FRIEND OF THE FARMER

[Inquiries on problems of farm management, financing or governmental regulations sent to this department must be accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope for reply.]

Mrs. E. K. asks: Where do you apply for a government loan on a farm in Ripley county, Indiana?

Answer—Write to the agent land bank commissioner, care of Federal Land bank, Louisville, Ky., who has jurisdiction over all farm loans in Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio and Tennessee.

H. C. S. asks: Please tell me if the government makes second mortgage loans on farms, and does it make chattel mortgages and in what amounts?

Answer—The government has authorized the federal land commissioner to accept second mortgages, and in some cases chattel mortgages, either for refinancing farm indebtedness or to purchase seed or live stock to improve earning power of the farm. Limit of such loans is $5,000, which is in addition to amount federal land banks may loan.

E. J. V. asks: What government department handles loan applications to help me refinance my farm and crops lost in the hailstorm of last July?

Answer—Emergency crop loans and farm refinancing in the state of Illinois are handled by Mr. Wood Netherland, agent land bank commissioner, care of Federal Land bank, St. Louis, Mo.

NRA QUESTION BOX

Requests for information concerning the NRA will be printed in this column. It is urged that questions be stated briefly. Following are some typical questions occasioned by the national recovery act and their answers:

Question—How long will it be until there is a code for the furniture manufacturers?

Answer—A hearing on the furniture manufacturing code started Oct. 9. If the hearing goes along smoothly a code will probably be in operation some three or four weeks thereafter.

Question—Are employés of professional persons included in the NRA?

Answer—Employés who are in fact professional people such as internes, nurses, technicians, and the like, are not subject to the maximum hour provisions of the President's agreement. They are subject to the minimum wage requirements. Nonprofessional employés, of course, are subject to both maximum hours and minimum wage provisions.

Question—What are the hours and wages for workers in millinery manufacturing establishments?

Answer—Under a modified form of the President's agreement minimum wages in Chicago are 32½ cents an hour. Maximum hours are 40 per week. Employés may be worked 80 hours overtime during the peak season of any six months per year.

MORE DEGOUTEE.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—Degoutee calls upon Schopenhauer to bear him out in his belief that there is greater difference between the brains of men of his rank and those of the average man than between the average man's brains and the most intelligent monkey's. He is close to the truth. The difference I refer to [which I assume Degoutee never had in mind] is a pathological one. In other words, the average man's brain may be almost as healthy as a monkey's, whereas a philosopher or pedant like Degoutee is very likely to have a diseased brain, as is made clear in his article in the Voice of the People Oct. 9.

It is men of his "rank" who are most zealous in their work of leading their simian brothers to a higher plane of life.

But let us be tolerant and forego expressing our surmises as to what may have brought about his present mental state, even though he concludes [as the prohibitionists used to] that the courts should uphold the law because here the law is to his liking. Where there is no law punishing "indecent exposure" the people are simians, I suppose.

It is quite unnatural to have such a loathing of the body and a fear of sex as Degoutee evidences, and we cannot be led to higher planes by men who would force their complexes on us. Could we not dismiss the Sally Rand case with a smile at its sensationalism and perhaps some commiseration for a poor working girl sentenced to jail for "indecency"? ZORRO RUBEN.

GRATEFUL FOR SERVICES.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—We hear so much these days about the cost of electricity, gas, telephone, and other service furnished to the public by the large so-called public utilities and a hue and cry is constantly raised by the politicians who delight to play to the unthinking public. While they criticize the cost of a necessary service they spend the public money for things not necessary, with lavish disregard of the public welfare or of ordinary honesty because in most instances they do not contribute to the money they spend. They are even exempt, in so far as their salaries are concerned, from paying any income tax.

Having listened for years to the outcry against the public utilities, I have tried in vain to find something which gives me as much per dollar in service, satisfaction, and comfort as that which my dollar can buy from either the electric, gas, telephone, street car, or elevated companies. The service and comfort furnished me by the electric companies for a few dollars per month cannot be duplicated by any other commodity, even when sold by a tax spending politician. JASPER F. ROMMEL.

A DAY FOR THE HIGH SCHOOLS.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—It seems strange that out of all the days at A Century of Progess not one has been set aside for our high school boys and girls. Why not give them a 5 cent day or at least a 10 cent one? When a boy or girl must pay 53 cents admission and pay carfare, what is left to spend? The admission is 50 cents for all those over 12 years. Can't something be done? I have two high school girls myself, so you see I know how much it takes. When it comes out of the weekly budget somebody has to lose out. C. M. H.

THE CASE FOR PENSIONS.

Kenilworth, Ill., Oct. 4.—For the first time since the institution of the United States a President has advocated the principle and a congress has translated it into action that a war veteran, either volunteer or drafted man, is not entitled to any more consideration by the government than the civilian that stayed at home.

When a man becomes a soldier he gives up all control of his movements, his health, and even his life. He has no more liberty of action than a convict and is not so well cared for.

In the Spanish-American war of 1898 troops were sent to southern camps, to Cuba, and to the Philippines without proper food, clothing, tentage, medical supplies, or medical attention, and all through the fault and neglect of the United States government. My regiment lost 8 per cent by death and about 80 per cent were taken by tropical diseases, not because we did not know how to take care of ourselves but because the conditions the government placed us under prevented proper care.

The President says that the cities and states should take care of these soldiers just as it would of any other indigent persons. The states did not send these troops, but the government did and it should shoulder the results.

Every man who waits in camp for disease to strike him, who suffers under a bombardment of guns, or who goes over the top loses basic strength and stamina which, if it does not show at once, does show in his later years. If he is unable by illness or old age to earn a living he should be taken care of by the United States government, whether "service connected" or not.

SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR VETERAN.

THE PLIGHT OF THE GERMAN JEWS.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—It has occurred to me that if Germany is so eager to get rid of the Jews, why will they not allow them to go and take their possessions with them? Even if they do not allow them to take all and confiscate 50 per cent, I am almost sure that the Jews of Germany will be only too glad to make such an arrangement and leave the country that is eager to get rid of them.

It is not a very difficult matter to form an international holding bank which can pay, say, 20 per cent cash and the balance as liquidation takes place. I am certain that Jewish as well as Gentile international bankers can be found who would lend a helping hand to such a plan.

So I repeat, if the German government is honest in its desire to be rid of the Jews without confiscating all their property and enriching themselves, let them take such steps as any civilized country would and let justice prevail.

I am positive that then all propaganda against Germany, boycott or anything else, will cease at once, and the Jews will emigrate to other countries to start life anew, and those that have some money will help those who are compelled to leave Germany without any funds. GUSTAV HOCHSTADTER.

IF A COMPLIMENT.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—Allow me to congratulate the Chicago Surface Lines. For many years they have been striving to make the service on Archer avenue the worst in the city. They have at last succeeded. J. J. S lieved to be in classifying property for purposes of taxation. It was argued that if rates on intangible property were made low enough, people would gladly declare their property.

PERSONALTY TAX A VAIN HOPE AS REVENUE SOURCE

Experience Shows That It Won't Produce.

Illinois voted in 1916 upon a constitutional amendment providing for this sort of scheme, but through neglect by the voters it failed of adoption by a few votes. Although this plan has met with merited success in some states and has invariably led to the placing of increased amounts of intangibles on the tax books, it has not resulted in shifting any considerable part of the burden of government from real estate to personal property. In fact, in Connecticut, Iowa, Kentucky, Nebraska and Oklahoma the application of the classified property tax to personal property brought an increase in the tax burden upon real estate.

The pity is that under this system a few inexperienced or conscientious people who declare their intangible personal property pay a high price for doing so.

The Widow's Plight.

The widow whose plight over investments we described in an article a short time ago would have a tax of at least $551 to pay in Cook county on her $20,000 inheritance if she declared her property as the law provides. Her income would amount to only $250 if she left it in the bank and not more than the amount of her tax if she invested it in the highest grade bonds. The personal property tax law amounts to a confiscation of a part of the wealth of those who obey it.

The recognition of the injustice to the ignorant and the scrupulous and the impossibility of enforcing the laws as a general proposition has led in many states to the complete exemption of personal property from taxation.

Here is what a state commissioner said after a thoroughgoing investigation of the prospects of enforcing the general property tax against the owners of personal property:

"The widespread concealment of intangible property, increasing in amount year by year, is the most convincing proof of the failure of the general property tax.

"It shows that after more than fifty years of experience, with all conceivable methods in the way of inquisitor laws, severe penalties, and criminal statutes, designed to force the owners of moneys and credits, stocks and bonds, to put their holdings upon the tax duplicate, not only is the percentage of such property less than ever before, but public sentiment seems to be more and more openly approving an evasion of the law.

"Such a condition of affairs is so manifestly wrong and so inimical to good government that its longer continuance is a grave injury to the state."

Hope of Added Revenue Vain.

Any careful consideration of the general property tax under the most favorable conditions will dispose of the thought that local governments can expect any substantial amount of revenue by enforcing the tax against personal property.

But if there is still some lingering hope that by devices not discovered in a century of attempting in America to enforce the personal property tax owners can be made to pay, a consideration of the present status of owners of such property will show the futility of proceeding along that line at the present time.

The types of property which it is desired to reach are intangibles, consisting of cash, mortgages and securities. A consideration of the reduction in each class of intangibles will show whether much can be realized from this method.

Bank deposits in Chicago in 1929 were just short of three billion dollars. Today's figures are a little more than half of this amount. If a determined attempt was made to tax deposits fully they would quickly be reduced, for bank deposits are largely manufactured by loans. If deposits were taxed, a very considerable part of the deposits would at once be applied upon loans.

Deposits Move Readily.

Deposits moreover can readily be moved from a place where they are taxed to a place where they are not. And the haven of tax exempt securities during a tax hunt is also available. It does not seem likely that cash, which couldn't be made to bring a considerable revenue into the treasuries when it was plentiful, is going to be a big producer when it is so scarce as it now is.

The prospects of getting it from the mortgage owners would appear also to be anything but hot. Mortgage owners who didn't pay on their property when interest was being met are not going to come across with much when the mortgage is in default. The real estate mortgage owners are afflicted with the depression which rests upon real estate.

But what about stocks? The company which is paying a dividend at the present time is the rare exception. For the country as a whole dividends will be down 60 per cent for this year from the peak. The value of stocks on the New York Stock exchange is down 50 billion dollars from the peak. But this is for the country as a whole.

We can come closer to home. Stocks of the Insull companies are probably more widely held by Chicago people than any other security. In 1929 the total value of the stocks of the Insull companies was 2,000 million dollars. Now it is 97 million dollars.

Another type of security which might commonly be believed to be a substantial potential revenue producer is the stock of banks. The total market value of the stock of Chicago banks in 1929 was 1,879 million dollars. The total value of that same stock today is 69 million dollars. That is a shrinkage of five billion dollars in Insull stocks, Chicago bank stocks and Chicago bank deposits, combined. For other cities similar showings can be made.

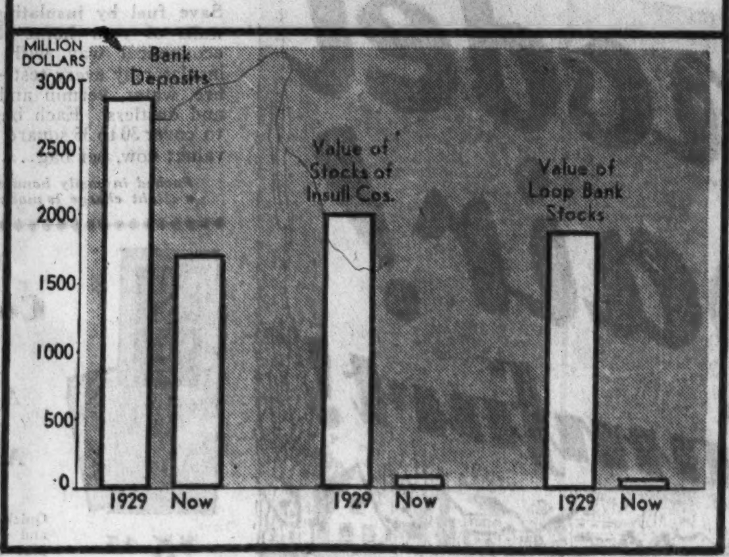
The Inescapable Conclusions.

A consideration of the possibilities of obtaining large amounts of revenue from personal property and thus reducing the assessment on real estate property in the light of all the facts would lead to these conclusions: First, that it has never been possible to force the owners of personal property to pay their proportionate share of the cost of government which is represented by the actual value of their property. Second, that even though it were possible to assess personal property, so great has been the reduction in the value of intangibles since 1929 that little would be realized.

It can be said without hesitation that a sufficient revenue cannot be had from the general property tax to sustain the present level of municipal expenditures.

In a succeeding article consideration will be given to the possibilities of avoiding the reduction of government expenses by collecting more based upon income tax.

Decline in 3 Principal Kinds of Personal Property in Chicago Since the Boom



3,000 PROPERTIES ALREADY IN TAX RECEIVERSHIP

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections last week were $1,623,217. Collections for the previous week were $2,409,027. A total of $77,817,991 has been collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act, began on April 28. This week's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for the last four years follow:

	1928.	1929.
Oct. 9-13	$ 116,001	$ 187,352
Uncollected	17,074,351	45,433,931
	1930.	1931.
Oct. 9-13	$ 245,729	$ 474,135
Uncollected	72,192,227	75,516,613

The number of properties ordered into receivership under the Kerner-Skarda act passed the 3,000 mark last week. During the week County Judge Jarecki appointed County Treasurer McDonough receiver for 219 properties to empower him to collect the delinquent taxes. Since the enforcement of the act began April 28, the treasurer has been named receiver in 3,121 cases.

"I have been placing these properties in tax receivership at the rate of 130 a week," Judge Jarecki said, "and I will continue to do so. While the primary purpose of the Kerner-Skarda act is to force payment of taxes by holding the receiverships over property owners as a threat, the act will be enforced rigidly wherever owners fail to realize taxes must be paid."

The treasurer filed 25 more tax receivership petitions in the County court yesterday. The properties named owe a total of $44,452 in back taxes.

JAPANESE SEND MILITARY TO 3 MANCHU CITIES

"Bandit Drive" Blamed; U. S. to Keep Out.

TOKIO, Oct. 15 (Sunday).—(AP)—Japanese troops, authoritative sources revealed today, have been sent to three points in Manchuria—Harbin, Changchun, and Mukden.

The troop concentration was believed to be a precautionary move, thought possibly to ward off a bandit drive.

Official refusal of information on troop movements coupled with general press censorship obscured the situation, but an army spokesman said there were no major movements on the Siberian border and no cause for alarm.

It was understood two or three companies of Japanese infantry recently moved in the direction of Pogranitchnaya to reënforce a small garrison on the Chinese Eastern railway.

First Train Arrives.

CHANGCHUN, Manchuria, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Another dream of Japanese imperialists was being realized today as the first train direct from Changchun to the shores of the Sea of Japan snaked its way along the new route.

As the train moved over the new route another departed westward from the other end of the line at Seishin in Corea.

Even before its completion, the new road has made history, for Chinese opposition to its construction was one of the primary causes leading to the outbreak of hostilities at Mukden in September, 1931, which resulted in Japan's occupation of all Manchuria.

U. S. to Keep Out.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—(AP)—The United States was described officially today as entirely on the sidelines so far as the apparently swift increase of tension between soviet Russia and Japan is concerned.

State department officials said the far eastern situation was being watched through regular diplomatic reports, but that Ambassador Joseph C. Grew was merely acting "in the rôle of a newspaper man" in reporting to the department any developments within view of his post.

Government officials in close touch with the far eastern situation feel that if hostilities are averted for the next four weeks the likelihood of a break will be considerably lessened.

The basis for this belief lies in the fact that winter will descend upon Siberia and Manchuria within a month and that the Japanese presumably would be reluctant to undertake an extensive military campaign in freezing weather.

RECEIVER'S REMOVAL ASKED AFTER CLAIM IS SETTLED FOR 7%

Boston, Mass., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Announcement that a personal claim against Edmund L. Dolan, city treasurer of Boston, had been settled for about seven cents on the dollar by Herbert Parsons, receiver of the closed Federal National bank, sixty million dollar institution which failed in 1931, was followed today by the announcement that a group of depositors has asked the comptroller of currency in Washington to remove Parsons as receiver.

Dolan, who declared under oath he was insolvent, was allowed to settle a $78,506.06 claim, involving one personal note for $50,000 and two smaller notes for his brokerage firm, for $5,886.71. Depositors of the bank, who have received only one 20 per cent dividend since the institution was closed, lodged a formal complaint against this and several other liquidating matters.

Parsons tonight declared he was far from satisfied with the payment, but that inasmuch as Dolan had taken oath he was insolvent he therefore deemed it wise to take the largest cash settlement which could be made.

FOUND DEAD IN JAIL CELL.

Lyle Kennedy, 43 years old, 1706 North La Salle street, a dope addict confined in the county jail by federal agents, was found dead in his cell early yesterday of morphine poisoning.

SIAMESE FORCE WINS AIRDROME; REBELS SEIZED

Federals Smash Back in Counter-Attack.

BANGKOK, Siam, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The Siamese government, besieged by rebellious forces which reached the outskirts of the city, smashed back today in a counter attack which was described officially as victorious.

Communiques said the government forces had recaptured the Donmuang airdrome, headquarters of the royal aeronautical service, taken two days ago by rebels under the command of Prince Bovaredej, a member of the royal family and former defense minister.

Battle All Night.

Government artillery roared all night in the counter attack which ended in a rebel retreat. Official communiques did not state that the rebellion had been suppressed, but merely that the government was confident it would be able to subdue it.

The rebel casualties were heavy, said announcements, which also reported that many persons were injured in minor clashes.

Air fighting occupied a spectacular part in the day's battle. Airplanes circling the city were shot down in the river, one of them crashing directly in front of the royal palace.

Fight on City's Edge.

The rebels apparently are mainly recruited from upcountry forces. The closest approach of their main body to the city was reported as eight miles distant, although fighting took place in the outskirts.

Three airmen, escaping from the ranks of the insurgents, landed at royal air headquarters. With them they brought valuable information of the opposition camps which they turned over at once to superior officers.

JACOBS WARNS OF RACKETEER TAX APPRAISERS

County Assessor J. L. Jacobs yesterday warned taxpayers against "racketeer appraisers" who charge fees for evaluating properties and intimate that they can "fix" the assessments in the assesor's office or before the board of tax appeals.

"I have received telephone calls and letters from property owners," Mr. Jacobs said, "in which they say they have been approached by men who tell them they can have their personalty and realty assessments lowered for a price. Some times the price is as low as $3 to $5. These racketeers have even tried to approach men in my office and offer them commissions to work for them 'on the side.'"

The assessor said that the "appraisers" do not represent themselves as his employés but tell the taxpayers they have influence in the office. In an effort to safeguard the public from other racketeers who pose as deputy assessors, Mr. Jacobs said that all deputy assessor badges will be called in by Nov. 1. The deputy assessors will then receive certificates bearing their photographs.

This Seems Just an Affair Among Three New Yorkers

C. L. Hanson of New York City, who arrived in Chicago on Friday with $380 in his wallet, yesterday was seeking two blonde young women who said they also were from New York. While Hanson was sitting in his hotel room the girls walked in, identified themselves and asked for a drink, he said. Hanson said he left his wallet on a dresser while he walked into the bathroom to mix highballs, when he returned the girls had departed. His wallet lay where he had left it, but it was empty, Hanson told Central police.

now the DEAFENED may HEAR thru their bones

Here at last is science's greatest gift to the deafened . . . SUPER-SONOTONE.

This super-power hearing-aid does not function through the outer ear. Instead it conveys all sounds through the bones of the head, directly to the inner hearing organs.

NO EARPIECE
NO STATIC . NO STRAIN

SUPER-SONOTONE requires neither earpiece nor head band. It's small sound-conveying oscillator lies comfortably, like a flat disc, behind the ear. One can hardly see it. Yet it's entire surface is so sensitive that you can hear without static, physical effort or strain on your nervous system.

FREE TEST!

Regardless of the apparent hopelessness of your hearing; no matter what type of aid you now use, don't fail to investigate this newest super-power SONOTONE. Come at once for a free test. If you cannot call, write for a free copy of the new booklet, "Science's Newest Hearing Technique"; or phone State 7007.

SEND 10c FOR SONOMETER. It will test your bone conduction. If it causes a gong to ring inside your head then be assured you can hear anything through your bones. So send 10c now (to cover postage, packing, etc.) for Sonometer and full instructions.

Do you trade your house every January?

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

The golden days of the glib salesman and the tricky trader and the careless buyer of cars, are over and gone. It will be long before we see their like again.

Every family in America knows that buying a car today represents about double the investment it did several years ago. Not that car prices have gone up, but family incomes have gone down. The national income which was 84 billions in 1929 is less than 40 billions in 1933.

This means that everybody is striving to make every outgoing dollar bring back an equal value in quality. And that is right.

No country ever comes to economic trouble where values are kept equal. It is only when a man gives honest labor for the dollar which he receives, and is given dishonest value for the dollar which he spends, that the nation's life becomes unbalanced and broken. This is an old lesson in Bible economics that we ought to have learned.

Buying a car and buying a house are on nearly the same level of importance in the mind of the American family just now. They are both major investments. Both are considered from the point of long-term use and value.

We do not buy houses to trade them for new models every January. When we buy a house we expect to make it a home that will give us long, comfortable and economical use. More than that, we expect that the money price will be so evenly matched with the real value of the house that we may reasonably hope to get back the unused part of our investment should we dispose of it.

Cars are now being considered in exactly the same way. People are not buying the sales talk invented by sellers. They are buying the quality created by manufacturers. And quality is doing the talking.

Our experience is that the real talk about a car comes after the car is bought and is in use. That is the talk we rely on.

Intelligent buying is going on in this country. Many families are making a solid investment in a new car. We know this because of the way people have bought the Ford V-8 in the last few months. It has been the choice of every class of car user, both those who can afford to pay more, and those who must carefully economize.

This car is the logical answer to the careful buyer's search for value.

ESTONIA VOTING TO CHANGE FORM OF GOVERNMENT

Balloting Is Heavy, but Orderly.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TALLINN, Estonia, Oct. 14.—The revolt against the parliamentary form of government reached a decisive stage today when the national referendum on the proposed change of the constitution began.

The polls, opened this morning, reported an exceptionally heavy vote. No disturbances were reported, the government having forbidden mass meetings and stopped the sale of alcoholic drinks until the referendum is concluded Monday night.

The new amendment, which reduces the delegates in parliament from 100 to 50 and provides for the election of the president by direct vote, granting him wide powers including the appointment of the cabinet and the right to dissolve parliament, is being bitterly fought by most Estonian parties, especially the socialists who are leading the campaign against the project.

Change Majority Figures.

The parliament's last attempt to prevent passage of the law was made a week ago when it was decided that hereafter the votes of 50 per cent of the qualified voters are necessary before the constitution can be amended. Heretofore only 30 per cent were needed.

The Estonian war veterans association which sponsored the amendment is making a bitter fight for its passage, and should only 40 per cent of the needed votes be obtained, the authorities fear a putsch to overthrow the present government may be attempted. President Jaan Tonisson, formerly one of the most honored men in Estonia, has lost much of his popularity through his determined stand against the amendment, which has the support of the Estonian home guards, army officers and the police. Should the government win and the amendment fail, wholesale transfers will be made in this organization—a list of new appointments of men believed to be loyal to the government already is prepared.

Remove Police Chief.

The government already has removed Johannes Soman, chief of the political police, from the post he had held for ten years for his advocacy of the project, but has been unable to find a man willing to take his job.

Gen. Johann Laidoner, commander in chief of the army during Estonia's war for independence, who will undoubtedly take command should trouble occur, has announced he is voting for the amendment. Other prominent Estonians favoring the change include the president of parliament, Karl Einbund; chief of the Estonian Supreme court, Artur Part; and the former presidents, Heilat and Teemant, all of whom agree that parliament has earned the popular nickname "talking house" and that cutting the number of delegates in half and reducing their powers would make for better government.

FAMILY SERVANT TO WED WIDOW OF LON CHANEY

Obtains License; She Is in the Hospital.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 14.—(AP)—A trusted family servant, who was almost a "man Friday" for Lon Chaney of the movies, said today he planned to marry the late character actor's widow, Mrs. Hazel G. Chaney, who is ill in a hospital.

The servant, John Jeske, appeared at the marriage license bureau to obtain license application blanks and said he expected to marry Mrs. Chaney at the hospital, but her physician, Dr. C. G. Toland, said he would not permit such a ceremony.

Dr. Toland said he believed a bedside ceremony would cause excitement of his patient that would be injurious to her health and "might endanger her life."

Jeske, the family chauffeur, has been a general handy man and confidential servant. He used to be "make up man" for Chaney, who highly prized the former's services and left him $5,000 cash in his will, describing him as "a faithful servant."

The will, filed in September, 1930, left most of a $550,000 estate to the widow. Shortly after his death on Aug. 26, 1930, she moved to a luxurious home the actor had designed in Beverly Hills.

Other members of the family include George and John Chaney and Carrie Keys, brothers and sister of the actor, and Creighton Chaney, a son, who is now in motion picture work. Creighton is the son of Mrs. Cleve Creighton Bush of Pasadena, former wife of the actor, who left her only $1 in his will.

The elder Chaney's life was insured for $275,000.

Graf Starts to Chicago by Way of S. America

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 14.—The Graf Zeppelin tonight started its voyage to South America en route to Chicago. All berths are booked for the first stretch and only a few are still available for the remaining eight stretches. The ship carries a large postal freight, including many letters sent from America with special 50 cent stamps.

LAUDS MARCONI FOR WIRELESS AS GIFT TO MANKIND

Notre Dame Gives Him Special Degree.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of wireless communication, was awarded an honorary degree of doctor of laws in a special convocation this afternoon at Notre Dame university. The Rev. John F. O'Hara, C. S. C., vice president of the university, presided in the stead of the Rev. C. L. O'Donnell, the president, who is ill.

"We honor you for the good you have done for humanity," Father O'Hara said; "for your devotion to science and your recognition of the hand of God in your work."

Recalls Chesterton's Visit.

Several hundred members of the student body and the faculty assembled for the ceremony, for which the only local precedent was the special convocation in 1930 when Gilbert K. Chesterton, English author, was given an honorary degree.

Marconi's visit to Notre Dame held special significance because it was there that experiments in wireless telegraphy were carried out in 1899, the year he succeeded in sending messages across the English channel. Father O'Hara explained that Marconi's theories were employed in the campus experiments by Prof. Jerome Green, then head of the physics department.

Changes World of Science.

The degree was bestowed by the Rev. Charles C. Miltner, dean of the college of arts and letters, who said: "The university confers this degree on a scientist whose experiments in the field of electricity, revolutionizing the communication of human thought have made the world forever his debtor, and have brilliantly demonstrated once more the Catholic principles of the essential unity of science and religion."

After the ceremony Marconi told reporters that "we have only scratched the surface of radio" and that he believes static will soon be eliminated. He motored back to Chicago where he is staying accompanied by the Marchesa Marconi, Dr. Antonio Ferme, Italian consul in Chicago, Signora Ferme, and Dr. Sergius P. Grace of Chicago.

AL SMITH ALREADY HAS 13 JOBS; HE WILL REFUSE TO TAKE 14TH

New York, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Wonder what "Al" Smith does with his spare time?

The former governor of New York has announced he would refuse the post of high commissioner to aid German-Jewish refugees if the league of nations offered it to him, because he already has "eight jobs."

In reality he has thirteen. He is president of the Empire State, Inc., editor of the New Outlook, chairman of the board of trustees of the College of Forestry of Syracuse university, chairman of the board of the County Trust company, the Federal Broadcasting corporation, and of a coal company.

And, as though those weren't enough to keep him busy, he's also director of the New York Life Insurance company, the Knott Hotels corporation, the Consolidated Indemnity & Insurance company, the National Surety corporation, the Beekman street hospital, the Henry street settlement, and the League of New York Theaters, Inc.

Woman Killed in Fall When Porch Rail Breaks

Mrs. Josephine Snuzcynske, 26 years old, 530 Francis street, Phoenix, was killed yesterday when a railing gave way and she fell 18 feet from her back porch to a concrete sidewalk, fracturing her skull.

"Removal Without Trial Asked," Says One.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 14.—Definite attempts to distort the purport of the memorandum about the essential difference between an extradition hearing and a criminal trial, which U. S. Assistant Attorney General Forrest Harness sent to the Greek prosecutor, Anthony Reganakos, continued to appear in the Greek press today.

Harness' memorandum merely sets forth views on the fact that an extradition hearings does not constitute a real trial as to the innocence or guilt of a person whose extradition is asked, and he has expressed these views repeatedly since he came to Greece.

On the other hand the Greek press today and yesterday have been printing garbled versions of the memorandum, declaring that Harness is seeking now to get Samuel Insull extradited without an open session of the Court of Appeals. The articles in the press in fact cause a curious confusion between the word "hearing" and "trial" which carries a vast difference in legal terms.

One paper, Hestia [Home], heads its article "Insull's extradition without trial demanded," which completely distorts and confuses both the significance and purport of Harness' communication to Reganakos. Another paper today characterizes the Harness memorandum "a very daring view" and expresses doubt whether the Greek court will accept it.

OIL HEIRESS' PRINCE SAILS FOR NAPLES

Miss Snowden is in California, where she is reported seeking an annulment.

"Our marriage," said the prince before sailing, "was unfortunate for us both. I understand she seeks an annulment. That is what I wish and I will await the decision.

"The annulment will restore my right to remarriage if I wish it."

"The finest thing to be said about a MOTOR CAR"

EACH year a vast army of motor car buyers moves into market and settles its choice and money on cars with Body by Fisher.

The value of these Fisher Body car purchases at retail ranges from over four hundred million to a billion five hundred thousand dollars a year.

To you who may be thinking of a new car today, there must be a meaningful lesson in this sales esteem which so clearly elevates cars with Fisher Body above all other cars.

Reflect that this multitude of purchasers is free to choose, under no compulsion whatever.

They may or may not be aware that Fisher enjoys through General Motors the advantages of technical research, engineering, testing and proving facilities far beyond the command of any other body-maker.

They may or may not know that at peak Fisher employs 60,000 workers, the majority skilled artisans, craftsmen; draws on the arts and crafts of 125 different vocations.

They may or may not be concerned with Fisher's reserves of highest quality materials, hardware factories, special resources in steel, glass and fabric supplies.

They may not comprehend or even be interested that Fisher builds in a different way, a different type and character of body—of highest grade steel scientifically reinforced for lasting strength, for quietness, for greater safety.

But what they do know either from personal experience or critical comparison is that there is inherent in Fisher Bodies a style, a security and a value which complete and perfect the fine mechanical qualities of the car itself.

They conclude that the finest thing to be said about any car is: "Body by Fisher," available only on General Motors cars.

And in proof of this conclusion, the sales of General Motors cars lead all other car sales today.

Your own experience will confirm this overwhelming evidence of the world's judgment, if you come to this same conclusion when you buy.

ASKS LA GUARDIA TO DISAVOW SLUR AGAINST LEHMAN

McKee Denies Governor Lets Thieves Go Free.

New York, Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Joseph V. McKee, independent candidate for mayor, sent a telegram today to F. H. La Guardia, his fusion opponent, calling upon him to disavow the criticism of Gov. Lehman by Samuel Seabury, his chief supporter.

Mr. La Guardia in a tart and immediate reply asked Mr. McKee if he was trying to "draw a red herring across the cowardly, contemptible and unjust attack" he had made and published against a great race, "so gloriously represented by our governor." Maj. La Guardia added that he had supported Gov. Lehman both for governor and lieutenant governor, but did not directly disavow Mr. Seabury.

Anti-Semitism Charge.

Mr. La Guardia's reply brought into the open the charge of anti-semitism against Mr. McKee that has been whispered about ever since a newspaper published a year ago, when he was acting mayor, an article attributed to him.

The article was published in the Catholic World in May, 1915, and was written when Mr. McKee was a teacher in De Witt Clinton High school. In it Mr. McKee urged Catholics to take advantage of the city's educational facilities and deplored the alleged fact that less than 25 per cent of the students in the city high schools were Christians and more than 75 per cent were Jewish. The article continued:

"The obligations of the orthodox Judaism of their fathers and mothers prove irksome in the competition for material advancement and are soon laid aside. In all discussions in such topics as 'is lying justifiable?' or 'is it wrong to cheat?' their words consistently show that they recognize no code of morals and are concerned with no motives higher than those originating from fear of detection and consequent loss of money. Surely we cannot look for ideal results from such material."

Inject Racial Issue.

Mr. La Guardia's injection of the racial issue into the campaign was declared to be justified in view of Mr. McKee's telegram to him. This telegram, given out by Mr. McKee at his headquarters, follows:

"The night before last at a meeting in the Bronx Samuel Seabury, the man who dictated your nomination and who speaks for you nightly, said this about the Hon. Herbert H. Lehman, governor of this state: 'If we had a governor of the state who was determined to enforce the law as it should be enforced these criminals that stole a good part of $10,000,000 would have been arraigned at the bar of justice and some of them now would be in Sing Sing.'

"The citizens of this city know Gov Lehman to be a man of unimpeachable character, zealous in his devotion to the highest ideals of public office, scrupulous and courageous in the performance of his duties.

Calls It Reckless Slander.

'When Mr. Seabury made the charge that Gov. Lehman was responsible for allowing to go free criminals who stole a good part of $10,000,000 your political dictator uttered a base and reckless slander. If true it would be sufficient to warrant serious charges being lodged against any governor who failed to prosecute men who stole millions of dollars appropriated for the relief of the poor.

"I know the charge is utterly and contemptibly false and I denounce here and now Samuel Seabury for making it.

"What do you say? Do you believe the charge to be true? Ifyou do not, and no fair minded man can believe it to be true, then I call on you to disavow it unequivocally and without reservation."

Tammany Defends Governor.

Tammany joined McKee in defending Gov. Lehman from attacks by Samuel Seabury, fusion strategist. Seabury's criticisms of the record of Lehman, friend of President Roosevelt, was characterized as a political blunder by forces behind Mayor O'Brien.

Gov. Lehman found himself the central figure in the city's bitterest mayoral campaign in years—with Tammany Hall, which fought unsuccesfully last year against the President and former Gov. Alfred E. Smith to block his nomination, joining in his defense.

"The Democratic party resents exceedingly the attacks being made on Gov. Lehman, the regularly elected candidate of the Democratic party," said former State Senator Abraham Kaplan, Tammany manager of O'Brien's campaign.

O'Brien Supported Lehman.

"In the campaign last year Mayor O'Brien worked indefatigably for the election of Gov. Lehman. Mayor O'Brien and the local Democratic party know that the governor has made an excellent record as the governor of the state of New York and see no basis for this unwarranted attack on him."

Supreme Court Justice Salvatore Cotillo heard argument for several hours today on the application by George Trosk, fusion candidate for the Supreme court, to strike from the ballot the names of six candidates on the McKee recovery party ticket on the ground that they have no right to the designtaion. In the course of the argument Samuel Seabury, appearing for his former aid, declared that the "scrambling" of six men to run for five places "is really in the nature of bootlegging."

Calls Special Session.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—The formal call of Gov. Lehman for an extra session of the legislature to enact laws for the financial relief of New York City was issued from the executive chamber here today. The session is to start at noon on Wednesday.

MACKAYS AT SABIN FUNERAL

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mackay attend funeral services for Charles H. Sabin at St. George's Protestant Episcopal church, Stuyvesant square, in New York.

DIVORCE WILL BE RECOMMENDED FOR MRS. STERN

Husband "Clowned" with Rival, She Says.

New York, Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Mrs. Helen Vogel Stern's suit for a divorce from Allison L. S. Stern, broker, will be favorably recommended, Robert D. Grosman, the advisory master in chancery, said after a hearing today in Elizabeth, N. J.

Mrs. Stern's action for $4,000,000 damages for alienation of affections against Mrs. Ruth Erlanger Nathan, whom she charged with breaking up her home, was withdrawn in the Supreme court in Manhattan this week. It was said at the time that the settlement did not involve a payment by Mrs. Nathan to Mrs. Stern.

The latter alleged that near the end of 1926 Stern and Mrs. Nathan "clowned" on the dance floor of an inn near Princeton, Mrs. Nathan pulling out Stern's shirt tail and afterward being found with him outside the inn. A light "that might have come from heaven" showed over the couple and enabled her to identify Mrs. Nathan, Mrs. Stern testified.

A short time after the incident at the inn, Stern left home and has not lived with her since, Mrs. Stern said in seeking a divorce.

The Sterns were married in January, 1923, and have two children, the elder 10 years old and the other 7. Mr. Grosman said he would recommend that the custody of the children be awarded to the mother.

50,000 DRIVERS OF BUSES NOW IN BROTHERHOOD

Cleveland, O., Oct. 14.—(AP)—A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of railroad trainmen announced today that the organization had recruited 50,000 men among the nation's "highway drivers" within three months.

Whitney disclosed that the drive to bring bus and truck drivers into the brotherhood began quietly three months ago, when more than 100 brotherhood workers were placed in the field for the purpose.

"It is the belief of the brotherhood," Whitney said today "that the organization of the highway drivers as we have undertaken it, will help stabilize wages, and will be helpful to the transportation industry as a whole."

John G. Bannister, Retired Steel Plant Official, Dead

FIVE BANDITS SHOOT WAY OUT OF TRAP; WOUND 2; DROP $1,000

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Five bandits trapped in the Hamilton-Harris & Co. downtown drug warehouse today shot their way to freedom with two machine guns, a sawed-off shotgun and four revolvers, leaving behind them on the floor two wounded men and $1,000 in loot.

The injured:

Charles L. Hodges, police sergeant, shot in arm.

John Garner, an employé, shot in the mouth; condition critical.

Hodges, with another policeman, had gone to the warehouse to answer an alarm. As they walked into the front door, they confronted the bandits on their way out with a bag full of money and jewelry gathered from the victims.

ORDER CITIZENS' FORCES IN CUBA TO GIVE UP ARMS

HAVANA, Oct. 14.—(AP)—While rumors that dissension exists in the ranks of his army and navy flew thick and fast, Col. Fulgencio Batista, erstwhile top sergeant, set out in earnest today to disarm the civilian groups that have been working hand in hand with his soldiers.

Orders went out from the general staff to the ABC radical group, the Caribbean army and the students' army, estimated to number some 5,000, to lay down their arms.

Meanwhile, the Grau San Martin government moved to fill out the still incomplete cabinet. Angel Alberto Giraudo, recently appointed magistrate of the Havana Audiencia court, was sworn in as secretary of labor.

RUPTURE
Don't submit to avoidable operations or the use of antiquated trusses, which set where the lump is and not where the opening is. The opening is seldom larger than a dime, no matter the size of the rupture, and all cases can be retained with the end of a lead pencil. The Spermatic Shield-Complex (Patent No. 747,247, No. 1237700 and other patents pending) is a scientific achievement in a highly specialized art. It will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case. Infinitely superior to any instrument method or operation and produces results in no other way obtainable. All cases are secure a lifetime as against any further trouble or expense. Large or difficult cases or incisional rupture (following operations) specifically solicited. This instrument received the only award at the International Medical Congress held in London, England, producing results without surgery, harmful injections, medical treatment or prescriptions. MUSICIAN KILLED WHEN HIS AUTO IS STRUCK BY TRAIN

Victim Veteran Member of Symphony.

Hans J. Parbs, 65 years old, 811 Cornelia avenue, a member of the Chicago Symphony orchestra for 38 years, was fatally injured when his automobile was struck by a Grand Trunk railroad train at Muskegon, Mich. He was en route to his summer home at Pentwater, Mich., to join his wife. Parbs played the double-bass viol in the orchestra during the entire period of his service.

Benjamin Dutson, 60 years old, a Centerville, Ia., farmer visiting Chicago to see the World's Fair, was instantly killed and his wife was critically injured yesterday when the autimobile in which they were riding collided with another machine at Western avenue and 159th street, Harvey. Two men riding in the other machine also were severely hurt. All the injured were taken to Ingalls Memorial hospital in Harvey.

Wife Becomes Unconscious.

Mrs. Dutson, who also is 60 years old, became unconscious soon after arriving at the hospital. The other victims identified themselves as Edward Reinko, 40 years old, 2044 Pershing road, and William Jaunikas, 46 years old, 4118 Maplewood avenue. The two men told police that Dutson's car was westbound in 159th street and they were driving south in Western avenue when the accident occurred.

The deaths of Dutson and two others yesterday increased the 1933 motor toll in Cook county to 814. The other victims:

Mrs. Anna Douglas, 74 years old, 1754 Long avenue. Died in Danish-American hospital of a fracture of the skull incurred Oct. 10, when she was struck by an automobile at Central Park avenue and Bloomingdale road. A coroner's jury exonerated the driver, Alfred Wendt, 7501 West Cermak road, North Riverside.

Bernard Murray, 69 years old, 6041 Troy street. Died in the Little Company of Mary hospital of injuries incurred when he was struck by an automobile at Western avenue and 106th street Wednesday. George H. Scott, 1630 West 189th street, Homewood, driver of the car, is to be ordered to attend an inquest, the police announced.

Dies of Infection After Crash.

Charles Stendahl, 60 years old, 6072 North Neva avenue, died yesterday in the Ravenswood hospital from blood poisoning caused by a wound incurred in an automobile accident at Warsaw, Ind., on Oct. 2.

Maxwell street police were holding James Micelli, 20 years old, 756 De Koven street, and seeking another youth yesterday after investigating the death of Miss Rose Citteroni, 20 years old, 1339 Edgemont avenue, who was fatally inured when struck by the car of a hit and run driver. The accident occurred Wednesday night in front of 1112 Taylor street.

Frederick Bainbridge, 19 years old, of Cary, in McHenry county, was killed yesterday when a Chicago and North Western railway passenger train demolished his truck at a crossing near Fox River Grove.

TWO HURT BY EXPLOSION.

Norton, Kan., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Gerald New and Floyd Eckhart, both about 20, were seriously injured when a dynamite fuse with which they were playing, exploded near Norcatur yesterday.

PLAN $100,000 TOMB FOR WILLIAM WRIGLEY ON CATALINA ISLAND

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Relatives of the late William Wrigley Jr. will erect a $100,000 mausoleum on Catalina island as a resting place for the man who bought the island and made it famous as a resort, it was revealed today when plans were filed for approval of the regional planning commission. It will contain two tombs and three crypts. Of Moorish architecture, it will rest high on a prominent hillside with a winding flight of stone steps leading up from the valley. It will be 80 feet high, 60 feet wide, and 50 feet deep.

NEW YORK CITY TAXES UTILITIES FOR RELIEF FUNDS

New York, Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Mayor John P. O'Brien signed today the city bill placing a tax of 1½ per cent on the gross monthly income of public utility companies during the emergency for which the city must provide relief funds.

The mayor did not disclose whether he had vetoed the city bill taxing savings banks and insurance companies. The veto of this bill was stipulated by the city's bankers as part of their agreement to finance the city and its relief needs over the next four years. The mayor, it was understood, would defer acting on this measure until the special session of the legislature, convening this week, completes its work. The session will enact into law several features of the city's four year financing agreement.

The bill, which became law today with the mayor's signature, places a city tax on the gross income of every corporation, company, association, joint stock association, co-partnership, and person operating in the city subject to supervision of the public service commission. The levy is effective from Sept. 1, last, until Feb. 28, 1934, and the proceeds are to go for relief and redemption of relief certificates already outstanding.

CARDINALS AND POPE TO CANONIZE TWO TOMORROW

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Pope Pius will hold a secret consistory with his cardinals Monday morning to approve two canonizations. The prospective saints are blessed Barnadette Soubirous of the Sisters of Christian Instruction, Nevers, France, and blessed Joan Antida Thouret, founder of a branch of the Sisters of Charity.

The approval of the consistory is a foregone conclusion, since the pontiff already has read the final decrees for both canonizations.

Rob Newspaper Office and Vendor, Taking $344

Two youthful robbers entered a circulation office of an afternoon newspaper at 4572 North Seeley avenue last night and forced the manager, Ben Olswang, to surrender $89. A few minutes later two bandits, believed to have been the same men, halted Joseph Solid, 1314 South Albany avenue, a fruit vendor, at Belmont and Ashland avenues and took $255 from him.

ENFORCE MILK CODE, DAIRYMEN DEMAND OF U. S.

Attack Federal Delay on Price Boost Pact.

The decision reached on Friday in Washington to delay the approval of a trade agreement amendment to boost retail and farm prices of milk in the Chicago area yesterday brought new demands on the farm adjustment administration by the Pure Milk association, the bargaining organization of dairy farmers supplying this market.

Delay on Amendment.

The decision to delay the approval of the amendment was given in reply to members of the city council health committee, headed by Ald. David Sutton [8th], who conferred with George N. Peek, farm administrator, in Washington. Yesterday D. N. Geyer, manager of the Pure Milk association, telegraphed to Mr. Peek, demanding that the government either enforce the milk code and licensing provisions issued by Secretary Wallace or cancel them "to permit the association to direct its affairs without intervention or delay."

Mr. Geyer and the association's directors had been authorized by the organization's advisory board on Thursday to tear up the agreement and withhold all milk deliveries from Chicago if the government did not act on the license enforcement at once. The increase sought by the association amounts to a cent a quart on the retail price of milk.

Attacks Council Group.

Mr. Geyer charged that the investigation into Chicago's costly milk distribution system was being fostered "by interests directly opposed to President Roosevelt's administration and recovery program." He declared that the aldermen had known of previous public hearings on the proposed milk price boost in Washington, at which the association "proved conclusively that the present increase is justified in line with the declared policy of the agricultural adjustment act."

Mr. Geyer also charged in his telegram that the Sutton committee's two years of milk investigation "developed no facts except that distribution costs were high due to high wages paid union workers."

DR. G. A. DIXON, AT M'KINLEY'S DEATHBED, DIES

PARIS, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Dr. George Arthur Dixon, a noted American physician who was among the doctors who attended President McKinley when he was shot, died at his home tonight after a lengthy illness.

Dr. Dixon, who was born in New York, had numbered among his patients many noted financiers, including J. Pierpont Morgan Sr., James A. Hill, and E. H. Harriman. He retired from medicine ten years ago and had lived in Paris the last five years.

A son, George Dixon Jr., who is a brother-in-law of Ambassador Jesse I. Straus, will arrive in Paris Tuesday. Funeral services will be held at the American cathedral.

EUROPE PUSHES SCHEME TO GAG AMERICAN PRESS

Would Force Reporters to Send "True News."

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

MADRID, Oct. 14.—An attempt to restrict the activities of American and other foreign correspondents in Europe by international sanctions and force them to send news compatible with the interest of the country in which they are stationed is expected to be rushed quietly through the international press conference meeting in Madrid on Nov. 7. Official invitations by the Spanish government were published today.

Under the excuse of insuring "true news," one of the most serious challenges to the general freedom of the world press and the right to get uncolored reports is exposed in the invitations adressed to the chiefs of governmental press bureaus.

Plan Foreign Office Control.

It would, in effect, put journalists of all nations working abroad at the mercy of the foreign offices of the countries in which they are stationed.

The invitation proposed that journalists be forced to obtain an international placet or that an "international journalists' carte d'honneur" should be established. This organization would largely be controlled by European foreign offices.

While Spain's invitation brings up the question of "true news" as the principal and in fact the only subject for discussion, Germany's delegate was the chief proponent of such a scheme in 1932 at the Copenhagen conference, where it was only a minor question. In reality it constitutes a way of controlling the press by Hitler methods. Since the 1932 conference considerable work has been going on behind the scenes and it is feared a preponderant number of government press bureaus will vote in its favor.

Plan International Tribunal.

While they do not dare use such a strong club as Germany wants, the various European governments would like to feel that they could force the hands of correspondents, particularly Americans, who cannot be controlled by ordinary European means. American correspondents who dared to send unbiased views would be likely candidates for an international tribunal at which instruments for deporting and hampering them would be enforced.

Ever since this plan for control of "true news" first appeared two years ago the United States has opposed it, pointing out that what is "true news" to a government may not be true news to the world at large. The United States prefers to depend on the judgment of its newspaper experts abroad, who are too well paid to accept the bribes frequenuly offered them by foreign interests and who are responsible to their respective newspapers or news organizations. American newspapers would automatically discharge any correspondent consistently sending false reports.

U. S. to Attend Parley.

The United States has formally accepted the invitation to attend the Madrid conference, but it is hoped it will not sent weak representatives incapable of dealing with the opposition which must be faced here.

Among the specific propositions to be discussed under the heading of "true news" are collaboration between government and press bureaus, a constitution for an international federation of journalists, an international card for journalists, a tribunal of honor for journalists as a means of assuring that the journalistic profession will be exercised only by men offering certain guarantees.

The participation of proprietors, directors, and editors is asked in the invitation to the conference. Only a large American and British delegation can hope to stem this threat to the freedom of the press, which is regarded as more dangerous than the Minnesota statute which THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE fought and defeated with the earnest support of the American Newspaper Publishers' association.

Detectives See Familiar Face at Gate to Fair

Sergts. Arthur Wachols and William Hosna stood in the crowd at the 23d street gate at the Fair yesterday and saw a familiar face. It was that of Edward Murphy, 52 years old, a pickpocket. Arrested, Murphy protested that he had just arrived in Chicago for the first time in 14 years to visit the Fair. Murphy's record began in 1902 and includes at least one arrest a year ever since. He will be charged with vagrancy.

2 Bankers, Now Convicted, May Ask for Probation

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 14.—[U. P.]—Denying motions for a new trial in the cases of Millard F. Dunlap and W. G. Goebel, convicted last Saturday on charges of conspiracy and of making false entries in the records of the defunct Ayers National bank, Jacksonville, Federal Judge Charles G. Briggle today gave both until Oct. 20 to file a petition for probation. Dunlap and Goebel were president and cashier, respectively, of the defunct bank.

PRESS FREEDOM VITAL NOW, SAYS MARLEN E. PEW

Defends Article Eleven of Publishers' Code.

Freedom of the press in the present period of reconstruction comes nearer to being a vital need of the country than at any other period in its history, Marlen E. Pew, editor of Editor and Publisher, said in an interview yesterday. Mr. Pew is here attending the convention of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalism fraternity, at Northwestern university.

Mr. Pew made his declaration in commenting upon the second publishers' NRA code now being drafted in New York. He spoke in defense of article 11 of the proposed code, in which it is asserted that the press in no way waives its freedom by signing the code. This article was included in the preliminary newspaper code.

Responsibilities Are Evident.

"The responsibilities of the press as the chief impartial and uncontrolled agency for the distribution of news are evident," said Mr. Pew. "Freedom of the press is one of the three great guarantees of the constitution. The others are freedom of speech and freedom of religion. But the press is peculiar in that it has a great industry behind it while the others have not.

"The need for education of the public is particularly important during the present cycle of reconstruction. If article 11 were stripped from the code, hysteria might lead to a licensed press and a licensed press produces Hitlers, Stalins, and Mussolinis."

Mr. Pew held that while there is no immediate danger of a licensed press the waiving of article eleven by publishers would be pure folly. Man is ambitious, he explained, and greedy for power to such an extent that no one can foretell what may come. He held as the safe course the guarding of all liberties.

"When the churches of the land are all willing to renounce religious freedom, then it may be time to consider discarding freedom of the press," he said. "We all hope and pray that day may never come. Freedom of the press and editorial courage go hand in hand, and without such courage we would be lost."

Concern Over NRA Policy.

In considering newspapers and the NRA Mr. Pew expressed concern over the policy of the recovery administration in calling upon newspapers to publish names of violators of the code, whose blue eagles have been taken from them. This, he held, is a question which publishers must consider gravely before deciding their policy.

"We do not want to be in the position of suppressing news but this phase of the code is fraught with danger," said Mr. Pew. "In the first place the offending member is stripped of the emblem without a hearing. Contrary to the spirit of our laws he does not have his day in court.

"We cannot forget that we are in a period of hysteria not unlike that of war days. An aroused populace might visit the establishment of the refractory member and demolish it in a spirit of indignation. Who would be responsible? Certainly not the merchant, probably not the NRA, and possibly the newspaper."

JOHNSON BARS WRITER FOR HIS CRITICISM OF NRA

Reporter Who Defies Him Accused of Sabotage.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Displeased with unfavorable references to the national recovery administration in certain weekly news letters out of Washington, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson today barred representatives of such services from his regular press conferences.

The administrator's action came shortly after James True, author of a weekly letter known as "Industry Control Reports," had given out for publication correspondence which recently passed between himself and Gen. Johnson and in which the administrator threatened drastic action against True.

Text of Johnson's Order.

The bar to news letter representatives was set up by Administrator Johnson in a "press conference regulation," which read:

"Admission to all future press conferences with National Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson will be strictly limited to:

"Bonafide correspondents of reputable standing in their business, who represent daily newspapers, or newspapers requiring telegraphic service;

"Accredited representatives of recognized trade or business papers or publications."

According to Mr. True, the administrator, on Oct. 10, addressed him in a letter as follows:

Mr. James True, Industrial Control Reports, National Press building, Washington, D. C.:

"Your last industrial control report is full of misinformation and sabotage of NRA. I encourage constructive criticism, but your statements have been consistently without foundation in fact and in one case distinctly libelous.

"In view of this fact, you will not be welcome at any more press conferences and I shall take such other steps as are necessary and within my power. Very truly,

"HUGH S. JOHNSON,
"Administrator."

In reply, according to True, he wrote to Gen. Johnson asking that the administrator specify particulars of the alleged misinformation and defying the atetmpt to exclude him from press conferences.

To Insist on Attending.

"If criticism of NRA is to result in exclusion from press conferences, then you have succeeded in setting up a most effective censorship in violation of the guarantee of a free press contained in the first amendment to the constitution," Mr. True wrote to the general.

"Regardless of your letter," he continued, "I intend to be present at your next press conference, which, I understand, is scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 17. To pursue any other course, I am convinced, would constitute a surrender of the rights of myself, the press, and the public under the constitution, and a violation of the obligations of my profession."

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

"Gee! ..it's great to get up in the morning when you use Gas Heat"

To prove that every home can now afford to heat with gas, we install it at our expense, remove it at our expense if you don't like it.

THE minute you awake in the morning you realize the luxury of automatic gas heat. A luxury that every home can now afford—at new reduced rates for gas heat. With gas heat you put an end to early morning fire building.

You sleep an hour longer in the morning and get up to a comfortably warm house. No kindling to chop . . . no coal to shovel . . . no ashes to shake or haul . . . and no waiting for heat to come up. Today . . . every day for many long months. And the womenfolks, too, appreciate the convenience of automatic gas heat. They never have to go near the furnace all day long. Walls and drapes stay clean. Dusting once or twice a week instead of every day.

Note this special offer on gas heat

It's not too late for you to get the countless advantages of gas heat. Our special offer is still available. We will install it at our expense and remove it at our expense if you don't like it. You are the sole judge. During the nine heating months of the first year you pay only $3 a month rental on the equipment in the average home. If you decide you want to keep it, the rental you paid applies on the purchase price of the equipment.

But if you don't want it, just order it out. Out it comes and we replace your former heating equipment in good workmanlike order. The rental charge stops immediately.

Banish ancient heating methods in your home

Why use ancient heating methods when it's so easy to try gas? Cost of gas heat has been reduced to one half the cost of the 1930-31 heating season. Never before such comfort for so little money.

Don't delay. Mail the coupon TODAY or call your nearest gas office. Let us install gas heat now and get this great convenience which means comfort and better health for the entire family.

In the Oldsmobile price range are eleven cars. More than one out of every four buyers of cars in this price range choose Oldsmobile. For Oldsmobile, so far this year, has sold 27.3 per cent of all cars in its price field—which is 100% greater than Oldsmobile's share of sales in its field in 1932. There are at least seven good reasons for this great Oldsmobile buying preference:

Style Leadership—Its distinctively modern style has very definitely won for Oldsmobile the reputation of being America's smartest car. Today its popularity is increasing faster than ever. Line, color, mass and detail blend into beauty as modern as the most style-wise buyer could want.

Performance Leadership—Truly unusual flexibility, quiet, and smoothness, with 90 h.p. and 80 to 85 miles an hour in the Eight; 80 h.p. and 75 to 80 miles an hour in the Six. Get-away and acceleration that put Oldsmobile out in front in any traffic.

Fisher Ventilation System—Everyone in the car gets fresh air and enjoys utmost comfort—freedom from dangerous drafts safeguards the health of all occupants of the car. Windshield and windows cannot fog.

Outstanding Dependability—Engine, chassis and body are true to the Oldsmobile tradition of reliability and long life. Oldsmobile's exceptional dependability makes it one of the most economical cars to own and to operate.

Value—This year's sales records point to Oldsmobile as the real value car in its field. In Oldsmobile you get, also, the fundamental economy of durability, and of the modern style which keeps a car young.

Owner Satisfaction—Oldsmobile owners are more than merely satisfied. They are enthusiastic in their loyalty. They recommend Oldsmobile to their closest friends.

Price—Oldsmobile looks, and performs, and lasts far beyond price indication. The Six—$745 and up. The Eight—$845 and up, f. o. b. Lansing.

N. U. TIES STANFORD, 0-0; ILLINOIS WINS, 21-0

ARE ILLINI GOOD? WRITE TO ANY BADGER PLAYER FOR THE ANSWER!

Frank Froschauer, Illinois half back, plunges off tackle for a small gain before he is stopped by Koenig, Wisconsin center (No. 46) and fellow conspirators in Big Ten battle at Champaign yesterday. No. 33 is Bobby Schiller, Badger half back, but Froschauer didn't go far enough for Schiller to tackle him. The Illinois team, uncovering a versatile attack directed skillfully by Jack Beynon of Rockford, surprised even the Homecoming day crowd by piling up a 21-0 victory over Wisconsin. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

HALT CARDINAL ON 1 YARD LINE AS HALF ENDS

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The purple of Northwestern and the flaming cardinal of Leland Stanford blended in a drab, scoreless tie before 28,000 yesterday at Soldiers' field. There was power in both elevens but it was all defensive, so they ran, plunged and passed sparingly through their 60 minutes of play, with the Californians making two scoring threats and Northwestern compensating for this by piling up more yardage both in the air and on the ground. But the Purple never came close.

The cardinal clad back field, which, behind a powerful line, swept three California rivals into the discard, wasn't able to get started. Here and there were limited gains but there was none of the swashbuckling, daring end runs that lift an ordinary football battle into a spectacle. The Northwestern defenders, particularly the ends, were too shifty to permit such demonstrations of prowess.

Purple Passes Puzzle Foe.

The Purple attack, although never sufficiently sustained to drive the Cardinals into the worry zone, at least furnished the invaders with a few football lessons. The Californians were repeatedly annoyed by the Northwestern's insistence on mixing lateral with forward passes and varying it occasionally by leaving out the lateral feature entirely. It is highly probable that Stanford saved itself considerable embarrassment by intercepting five of its foe's twelve attempts by air.

Another item with which the Californians had to cope after Northwestern recovered its wind in the second half was Harry Leeper, the fleet footed youth who sprang into regular employment as the result of the shakeup in the wake of the defeat by Iowa. When the Wildcats were going at their best just as the final period started, Leeper rolled the Cardinal back 16 yards with an end run but the benefits of this were lost a moment later when a Northwestern pass was intercepted on Stanford's 26 yard line.

Fumble Helps Cardinals.

It wasn't altogether Stanford's skill that enabled it to make the first of its two serious thrusts. With the second period almost over, Olson fumbled and the Californians recovered on the Purple 20 yard line. In three plays the Cardinals charged up to the one yard mark but the Wildcats held on the next down and the pistol, marking the end of the half, barked before another play could be made. Stanford's other bid was on a long pass which went wild in the end zone in the early part of the third period.

Northwestern's advantage in yards gained from scrimmage was 125 in 50 attempts against 90 in 49 attempts. Of its 12 passes, 5 were completed for a 40 yard advance. Stanford completed one pass in seven for a ten yard gain and two of its tosses were intercepted. Northwestern led in first downs by 9 to 6 and had a big edge in penalties. The Purple was shoved back 40 yards for four rule infrac-

Second String Backs Batter Gophers' Line

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Min., Oct. 14.—Purdue's varsity fenced with a giant Minnesota team this afternoon, yielding continuously throughout the first half and finally going down one touchdown. But in the fourth period, when the driving power of the Minnesota attack had vanished, a Purdue second team back field staged a vigorous line assault which smashed through the Gophers for 37 yards and a touchdown. The final score was Minnesota, 7: Purdue, 7; the Boilermakers' tying point having been scored by Quarter Back Paul Pardonner, who returned to the game for that purpose.

Considering Purdue's pre-season hopes, the tie today may be as disastrous as the 7 to 7 contest last season with Northwestern which prevented Purdue from claiming a share of the Western Conference championship. But as today's game was played the Boilermakers must return thanks for the tie.

Third Rush Pays Off.

Three times in the first half Minnesota rushed downfield, shoving the impotent Purdue linemen aside, and while the avalanche was stopped on the first two spurts Minnesota could not be denied its touchdown, which with Bill Bevan's place-kick sent the Gophers to the lockers at the half leading 7 to 0.

Purdue never threatened until its scoring march at the start of the fourth quarter. The deadlock is the second of the season for Minnesota, which ended its first conference game with Indiana one week ago, 6 to 6.

Today's attendance, as bellowed over the loudspeaker system just before the end of the game, was 26,497, a gain of some 8,000 over last year's figures, which indicated the enthusiasm this year's Minnesota team had aroused in this region.

Thousands in the concrete stand disagreed vociferously with the officiating, since all penalties except one were levied on the Gophers, and when Bob Tenner, a Gopher end, was called for interfering with Pardonner on a Minnesota forward pass, many evidenced a desire to take over the officiating on the basis of popular vote.

Timer Fools Everybody.

Then, too, lack of coöperation between the timekeeper and the scoreboard completely smothered what might have been a climax with each striving to break the tie. The huge sign at the north end of the gridiron showed four minutes to go, when without warning the subdued pop of the timer's pistol carried weakly to the stands. The boys stood around, scarcely believing the game was over and willing to argue that it was a mistake. But the referee marched solemnly toward the sideline and the players dispersed without demonstration, there being no particular occasion for exuberance by the Gophers, who should have won, or by Purdue, which had hoped to win.

The unofficial timer on the Minnesota bench reported afterward that his watch had two minutes and 45 seconds to run to complete the 60 minutes, and

MAROON BACKS RUN WILD FOR 40 TO 0 TRIUMPH

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—White jerseyed Maroon ball carriers ran loose all over Francis field this afternoon as the University of Chicago football team, contrary to predictions, rolled up 40 points to Washington university's 0. Five touchdowns resulted from long runs by the shifty Chicago backs and a sixth score climaxed a 41 one yard march.

The outcome was the more surprising since Washington's Bears had held Illinois to a two touchdown margin of victory the previous Saturday, and it set up the Chicago-Purdue game to be played at Stagg field next Saturday as something like an even contest. The first Chicago team, although playing most of the contest, came through with only minor hurts.

Zimmer, Wells Slightly Hurt.

Capt. Pete Zimmer, tackled hard during a 30 yard sprint in the third quarter, was taken out of the game, but showed no ill effects. Rainwater Wells, right end, took a crack on the head early in the contest, and, though dazed for half an hour, recovered to watch his team mates score their last two touchdowns.

A crowd of 9,000, watching this first match between the two schools, cheered the sturdy Washington line twice in the first quarter when the Bears repulsed Chicago's attempts to smash over the goal line, once from the six yard mark with four downs to do it in, and again from the seven yard line, also with four tries. One of these scoring opportunities resulted from Nyquist's 46 yard dash through tackle on a reverse play. The other came when Zimmer passed 21 yards to Berwanger. A third Chicago drive in the first period came to naught when Barton Smith let a 30 yard pass from Zimmer trickle out of his hands on Washington's 2 yard line.

Berwanger Goes Over.

Starting again from the 41 yard line the Maroons smashed their way to their first touchdown, which came in the second quarter, using straight line plays, with Berwanger, Wallace, and Nyquist alternating, interspersed with one pass, from Flinn to Berwanger for 10 yards. Berwanger required four plunges to make the last five yards.

Thereafter the game was ripped wide open by long runs and passes. Meanwhile the Maroon line, hitherto a question mark, resisted every effort by Washington to advance the ball.

Long Pass Brings Touchdown.

Chicago's second touchdown resulted from a long forward pass. Jay Berwanger, workhorse of the Maroon team, heaved the ball from his 35 yard line into the outstretched arms of Vin Sahlin, who had outrun the Washington secondary to past midfield. Sahlin galloped 38 yards to the goal, weaving to elude tacklers who were overtaking him.

Washington then made its only first down to the half, a daring if not wild effort starting from the 20 yard line, and encouraged to try it again, gave Pete Zimmer his chance to show the handsomest legs of the day. Zboyovski, Bear quarter back, tossed a pass straight into the arms of Zimmer,

Gary Boys Lead Notre Dame To Victory Over Indiana, 12-2

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 14.—Two Gary lads, Nick Lukats, who did his prepping some time back at Froebel, and Don Elser, late of Horace Mann, each scored a touchdown for Notre Dame today to give the South Bend warriors a 12 to 2 victory over their Hoosier adversaries, Indiana university, before 18,000.

Lukats contributed his part to the All-Hoosier festival by racing 53 yards to wipe out a 2 to 0 advantage which the I. U. fellows had acquired on a safety resulting from Bill Shakespeare's fumble in the first 30 seconds of the contest. Elser did his scoring on a ten yard dash midway in the final quarter, but this was far from being his sole accomplishment. He was a ripsnorter offensively and defensively most of the time he was at work. Elser carried the ball 84 yards on 17 tries and Lukats negotiated 61 yards in 11 tries, his 53 yard jaunt obviously constituting the bulk of his success.

Pilney Leads in Gains.

Neither of the Gary lads carried away yardage honors, however. This distinction went to Andy [Hunch] Pilney, Lukats' first string alternate. Pilney, as all Chicago prep fans know, was a star for Harrison Tech, and today, as they do not know but may have srmised, he gained 93 yards in 11 attempts, two of which were failures, for an average gain of eight and one-half yards per try.

Notre Dame partisans, alarmed by suspicions that Notre Dame football prestige is endangered by the potentialities of the current outfit, got little to calm them in the first quarter today. Afterwards the boys got to clicking and never really had to open up. But just the same there was little about the offensive today aside from the work of Elser and Pilney to throw the Notre Dame followers into fits of ecstasy.

At times Notre Dame looked downright clumsy, an observation that is supported by numerous fumbles, rarely observed on a Notre Dame team under ideal weather conditions such as prevailed for this game. The Irish also were assessed 70 yards in penalties, including two in tough jams for holding, the penalty most resented by the Notre Dame coach.

Statistics All Irish.

Though they failed to awe the populace with their precision and skill, Notre Dame can ponder the statistics with few apologies. The South Benders gained 292 yards by rushing against 30 for the Hoosiers. Notre

EVERHARDUS IS LEADER IN ROUT WITH 21 POINTS

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 14.—The big bad Wolverines of Michigan, shedding the sheep's clothing with which they have been deceiving their own public this last month this afternoon chawed up a band of nice, well behaved students from Cornell university by the brutal score of 40 to 0 at Michigan stadium. More than 35,000 Maize and Blue supporters shuddered during the carnage, and thereby forgot their own shudders about next Saturday's dreaded game with Ohio State.

Michigan showed a precision and power which almost made last week's mediocre decision over Michigan State seem a hoax. It was the same brand of football which has been manufacturing conference championships at Ann Arbor for the last three years. The boys who didn't look so hot last Saturday were verily ablaze today, and the entire team [for everybody and his brother and his cousin broke into the Wolverine lineup before the game was over], let on that it will tolerate no abuse, if any, from the mighty Buckeyes in the first conference game of the season here next Saturday.

Everhardus Scores 21.

It should be pointed out once more, of course, that the Cornell boys were just so many nice boys who were outweighed and outsmarted before the game started, and did nothing to refute these handicaps during the contest. Nevertheless, the victory was sweet to Michigan fans, for Cornell, an Ann Arbor foe from 'way back when, had won 10 of the previous 15 games played against the Wolverines.

A flying Dutchman from Kalamazoo, Herman Everhardus, scored 21 points personally. One was made on a 52 yard break from tackle, another on a 91 yard sprint with the opening kick off of the second half, and a third on a pass from Capt. Fay. The latter, playing far better than he did in the Michigan State game, scored a touchdown of his own, and John Regeczi, the Muskegon Heights Magyar, in addition to punting all over the place, broke out of a kick formation and went 79 yards for a touchdown, despite the clutching hands of almost every Cornell party on the field.

10 First Downs to 2.

The statistics are sufficient testimony of the Michigan power, which will be felt throughout the conference if today's pace is maintained. The Wolverines scored ten first downs against Cornell's two, and made 385 yards by rushing against the Red's 56. Ten out of eighteen Michigan passes were completed, a majority of them from the paw of Bill Renner. Renner tossed one to Mike Malashevich, a substitute end, for the Wolverines' sixth touchdown, a pitch which sailed 35 yards across the field. Cornell completed none of ten passes attempted. Regeczi and Everhardus, who did the Michigan kicking, averaged 37 yards, as did Ferraro and Switzer of Cornell.

Yale Pounds W. and L. Line; Wins, 14 to 0

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 14.—In a jovial, neighborly football scene, enlivened by the collegiate pranks of a lot of young Yales in clownish mood and costume, Yale's team won from Washington and Lee of Lexington, Va., Suh, in the Yale bowl this afternoon. Yale made two touchdowns and two placements thereafter for a score of 14 to 0.

There were about 20,000 witnesses, including a group of uniformed orphan boys from the local county home who brought their band and tootled strident parade music on behalf of the southern party who, for reasons all too familiar and unhappy, decided to leave their own varsity brass ware at home. It chanced that some alumnus of Washington and Lee had come along in his career to the superintendency of this orphanage and he turned out the kids to pull against themselves in a very trying problem in loyalty, for they were the guests of Yale but strutting their art and their footwork in the interests of the boss' alma mater.

Penalty Helps Yale.

The score might have been held as low as 7 to 0, a figure which the southern young men, in their humility would have regarded as a moral standoff, if not a victory. But along in the third period one or more of the Washington and Lee linemen were caught off side on a play which probably made the difference.

The first Yale touchdown wound up a progress of 54 yards early in the second quarter. They had been tussling along on fairly even terms throughout the first session, although the Yales had a superior look and manner about them. Just before the rest period, Bob Lassiter, the Yale captain and left half back, dropped a punt as he started to fetch it back. He made the catch on his own 30 yard line and had gone a few strides when he went a-sprawling and the ball squirmed out of his grasp to be

Iowa Freshman Player Dies of Football Injuries

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 15 [Sunday].—[Special.]—Arthur Ehlers of Oelwein, Ia., 21 year old freshman football player at the University of Iowa, died in the university hospital at 12:55 this morning following a second operation for injuries to the head suffered in practice last Thursday.

Ehlers, who never regained consciousness after being straight armed while attempting a tackle against the third team, was operated on immediately after his injury. He suffered a recurrence of hemorrhages last night and a second operation was ordered. He died on the operating table.

Ehlers was a tackle and a graduate of Oelwein High school, where he competed in both football and basketball.

BADGER ATTACK HALTED AT LINE OF SCRIMMAGE

BY STEWART OWEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 14.—Illinois' question mark football team straightened itself out into a big, black exclamation point to punctuate a stirring 21 to 0 victory over Wisconsin at the Illini's 24th annual home coming game in Memorial stadium today. It was the first home coming victory for the Orange and Blue since 1929, and bore out predictions that Illinois this year would be represented by its strongest team in four years.

While an Illinois victory had not been unlooked for, the size of the score and the superiority which the Illini evidenced over the Badgers this afternoon was a startling upset. The Illini outclassed the supposedly stronger and more experienced Cardinal eleven in every department of the game and after the first quarter, when Wisconsin made its only sustained attack, the Illinois goal line was not threatened until late in the final quarter when a team of reserves was backed up deep in its own territory.

Beynon Directs Attack.

Illinois' victory may be attributed to a hard charging, clean tackling line, a hard running back field and some of the finest generalship witnessed on a Big Ten gridiron. While Frank Froschauer, Dave Cook, and Les Lindberg did the touchdown scoring, it was the excellent judgment of little Jack Beynon, junior quarter back from Rockford, that was a great factor in the victory.

Beynon mixed passes judiciously with his running attack and the first Illinois touchdown came on the old Illinois flea-flicker play, which Beynon, Freddy Frink, and Froschauer executed perfectly as soon as the Illini moved into Wisconsin territory for the first time. Beynon was quick to take advantage of such breaks that came Illinois's way, and the smartness with which he directed his eleven is attested in part by the difference in first downs made by the two teams.

When Figures Lie.

Wisconsin made eight first downs to only three for Illinois, but this advantage in statistics does not tell the story. Beynon took advantage of a strong wind and excellent, accurate punting to keep the Badgers deep in their own territory during the second and third quarters. Wisconsin wasted its man power early in the game attempting to advance the ball by a driving attack through the line, when punting, with a gale to carry the ball, might have been served to better advantage.

Despite the difference in first downs, Illinois gained 217 yards from scrimmage to 146 for Wisconsin, and scored two of its touchdowns on long runs, Froschauer galloping 32 yards on the forward-lateral flea-flicker play for the first, and Lindberg loping 74 for the final score. In the matter of punting, too, the Illini were superior, both in distance and accuracy. Beynon and

60 YARD PASS HELPS PITT ROLL OVER NAVY, 34-6

Panthers Score 3 Times in Third Period.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Pittsburgh smashed a game Navy team, 34 to 6, today.

Seemingly holding in check the same power that dominated the east last year and won them the Rose bowl assignment against Southern California, the Panthers let go only in the third period when a sophomore, Hub Randour, of McDonald, Pa., made two swift scores in a three touchdown assault.

Navy Threatens in First.

After a scoreless first period in which Navy got to Pitt's 7 yard line as the whistle blew, the Panthers smashed to a score in the second, piled up three in the third, got a fifth in the final quarter, and then made a pair of mistakes that made possible the 6 yard dash of Gordon Chung-Hoon around end for Navy's lone touchdown.

While 45,000 sat in the sun that drenched the stadium, Mike Sebastian, brilliant running mate of Heller last year, faded back to his own 20 yard line half way through the second period and sent a pass straight down the middle of the field. Howie O'Dell got under it on Navy's 30 yard line, 60 yards away.

Weinstock Goes Across.

Izzy Weinstock, a 220 pound full back, O'Dell, and Sebastian, smashed to Navy's 2 yard line and Weinstock went over for the first touchdown. Lineup:

PITTSBURGH [34].		NAVY [6].

Weinstock	F. B.	W. Clark

Touchdowns—Weisenbaugh [substitute for Weinstock], 2; Weinstock, Shedlosky [substitute for Sebastian], Randour [substitute for O'Dell], Chung-Hoon. Points after touchdowns—Onder, 2; Weinstock, Rector [substitute for Weinstock].

N. Y. U., 13; LAFAYETTE, 12.

New York, Oct. 14.—(AP)—New York university beat Lafayette at Yankee stadium this afternoon, 13 to 12.

The Violets owe their victory to Siegel and Smith, but if they had lost the blame would have been marked against the same duo. Twice in the game the Violets were in position to score, but each time lost the chance on fumbles, one by Smith and the other by Siegel. On the other hand, it was the passing and line plunging of these two that gave N. Y. U. its pair of touchdowns. It was Smith who kicked the extra point that won the game.

FORDHAM VICTOR, 20-0.

New York, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Fordham turned back West Virginia's eleven, 20 to 0, before a crowd of 20,000 at the Polo grounds today.

The Rams got two touchdowns in the first half, both scored by Capt. Ed Danowski, and produced the third in the final period on an 80 yard run by Joe Maniaci.

COLUMBIA, 15; VIRGINIA, 6.

New York, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Cliff Montgomery, quarter back, led Columbia university to a 15 to 6 victory over the University of Virginia at Baker field today.

In the third period, with his team trailing 6 to 0, Montgomery made two runs of 28 and 17 yards, respectively, to put over the tying touchdown. With a 62 yard run he paved the way for Newt Wilder's field goal and then ran 60 yards for another touchdown in the fourth.

COLGATE WINS, 25-2.

Hamilton, N. Y., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Colgate swept to a 25 to 2 victory over Rutgers today, but the New Jersey team had the honor of being the first team to score against Colgate since 1931. Rutgers scored on a safety in the fourth period.

PENN TRIUMPHS, 9-0.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 14.—(AP)—A third period attack gave the University of Pennsylvania football team a 9 to 0 triumph over Franklin and Marshall in the season opener on Franklin field today. Twenty thousand saw Quarter Back Don Kellett score the game's only touchdown.

BROWN, 13; SPRINGFIELD, 6.

Providence, R. I., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Springfield held Brown to a 6 to 6 tie until the final period, when Brown pushed over a touchdown and made the point after to win, 13 to 6, today.

EASY FOR PRINCETON.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Princeton's array of sophomore backs ran wild today to swamp Williams college, 45 to 0.

An estimated throng of 16,000 saw Fritz Crisler's pupils record their second one-sided triumph in this campaign.

Garrett Levan, Pepper Constable, Homer Spofford, and Paul Pauk, all sophomores, were the big guns in Princeton's many offensives. Crisler used 41 players in all.

HARVARD SHOWS POWER.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 14.—(AP)—The Harvard football team impressed 15,000 with its off-tackle power while defeating New Hampshire, 34 to 0, to-day.

The Crimson appeared more interested in perfecting its running attack than it did in running up the score which was held down by a seven punt exchange in the first period and the employment of a third string lineup in the final quarter. New Hampshire managed to pile up ten first downs and a 158 yard gain by completing seven of its twenty-seven passes.

SYRACUSE EASY WINNERS.

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Syracuse university's powerful line thrusts and the speed of its backs enabled it to crush Ohio Wesleyan, 40 to 0, today.

Two of Syracuse's touchdowns came in the opening quarter after steady drives. Merz carried across the first on a short buck and Dinunzio the second after a 30 yard sprint.

DARTMOUTH, 14; BATES, 0.

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Coach Dave Morey again brought a Bates eleven to his alma mater, Dartmouth, today, and it was not until late in each half that the green was able to push over single scores as the Indians completed their early season games with a 14 to 0 victory.

SOMETHING THE MATTER, MR. HANLEY?

U. S. C. WINS 25TH IN ROW; DEFEATS ST. MARY'S, 14-7

80,000 See Griffith Lead Victors' Attack.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 14.—The University of Southern California, capitalizing on penalties and breaks, stretched its string of consecutive victories to 25 today by defeating St. Mary's, 14 to 7, before 80,000 in Olympia stadium.

The game was bitterly fought throughout, with the 210 pound St. Mary's line battling the heavy Trojans to a standstill most of the way. Three of the outstanding linemen in the game were carried from the field. They were Ford Palmer, co-captain of the U. S. C. eleven, and his teammate, Bob Erskine, 212 pound tackle, who sustained knee injuries that may keep them out for several weeks, and Ed Gilbert, huge St. Mary's guard.

U. S. C. scored on the last play in the first period when Iky Watkins, pony full back, plunged over from the two yard line after a five yard penalty on St. Mary's. Watkin's plunge ended a 68 yard march on eight plays, including two penalties on St. Mary's and a 25 yard run by Homer Griffith, U. S. C.'s 195 pound quarter back.

St. Mary's tied the score five minutes later when George Wilson, half back, passed over Griffith's head to F. Carnius for 47 yards and a touchdown. The play climaxed a 60 yard march in five plays.

U. S. C. got started again in the final minutes of the half, Griffith going over after gaining 38 yards in eight plays on a march that carried 72 yards in 13 attempts.

CALIFORNIA WINS, 23-0.

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 14.—(AP)—California defeated the San Francisco Olympic club, 23 to 0, in the 1933 revival of the Pacific coast's oldest football rivalry here today. The Bears opened the scoring with a safety in the first quarter, followed with two touchdowns in the second, and another in the third.

OREGON STATE VICTOR.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 14.—(AP)—A 95 yard run back of the opening kickoff by Norman Franklin proved the deciding margin here today as Oregon State turned back San Francisco university, 12 to 7.

MONTANA REPULSED, 13 TO 7.

Missoula, Mont., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Washington State college staved off five serious threats by Montana in the second half of a Pacific Coast conference game today to win, 13 to 7. Montana was only three yards from the goal line as the timer's gun halted the game. Montana's one touchdown was scored on a line drive by Bill Hileman, half back, after Henry Blastic, promising sophomore quarterback, received a kickoff and raced 95 yards to the five yard line.

Ohio State Whips Vanderbilt, 20-0; Defense Impregnable

Columbus, O., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Ohio State received its first real test of the season today at the hands of Vanderbilt university and came through with a 20 to 0 triumph. A crowd of 21,000 saw the game.

The Buckeyes found the opposition much stiffer than received from Virginia on the previous week-end.

The game was something of a warmup for the Michigan battle next week, for Vanderbilt, coached by Dan McGugin, a Michigan alumnus and a brother-in-law of Fielding Yost, plays "Michigan" football.

Buckeye Defense Strong.

Ohio State played brilliantly on defense throughout and held the Commodors in their own territory with the exception of once in the fourth quarter when Burton punted to Oliphant on Ohio's 37 yard line. Here the Buckeye back fumbled and Scoggins of Vanderbilt recovered on the 43 yard line.

In the first quarter Vanderbilt had the wind at its back, but failed to capitalize because of the superior punting of John Kabealo and Smith, Ohio State full back and half back.

The Buckeye line held almost at all times. The largest gain Vanderbilt could make throughout the game was an eight yard off tackle smash by Capt. Close early in the third quarter.

The Buckeyes scored in the first quarter, after eleven minutes of play, when the first team was inserted.

The first string eleven took the ball from Vanderbilt's 45 yard line and marched for the goal, Smith going over from the 18 yard line on a run around Ohio's left end. Cramer blocked out two Commodores to pave the way for the score. Wetzel failed to kick goal.

Ohio State Scores Again.

In the second quarter the Buckeyes scored again when Lucas was forced to punt from the end zone. His punt went straight up. Cramer returned it to Vanderbilt's 25 yard line. In three plays the Buckeyes were over. Smith and Cramer worked the ball to the 18 yard mark through the line from where Cramer went around right end for the score. Vuchinich place kicked the goal.

Neither team could score in the third quarter. Heekin's run of 35 yards off tackle from the Ohio State's 43 yard line to Vanderbilt's 23 yard line and Conrad's recovery of Vanderbilt's fumble on the 15 yard line paved the way for the Buckeyes' last score on the first play of the fourth quarter.

Changing goals in possession of the ball on Vanderbilt's five yard line, fourth down and one to go, Wetzel went over tackle for a touchdown on a triple pass behind the line. He was not touched by an opponent. Monahan added the point.

Drakulich Intercepts Pass.

Ohio State came close to scoring again in the fourth quarter just as the game ended. Drakulich, substitute for Cramer, Ohio quarter back, took a pass from Burton intended for Capt. Close of Vanderbilt and ran from his own 30 yard line to the opposing eight yard line, where he was run out of bounds. The game ended as Ohio tried two line plays.

U. OF WASHINGTON SHUT OUT AGAIN BY OREGON, 6-0

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 14.—(AP)—The University of Oregon continued its long string of successive shutouts over the University of Washington today, conquering the Huskies with a smashing aerial and running attack in the fourth quarter of their Pacific Coast conference battle, 6 to 0. It was the fifth victory for Oregon in the last six contests with Washington.

Mike Mikulak, burly, tireless full back, almost single handed turned back several Washington drives through the first three periods and then led a smashing attack in the last quarter to score the only touchdown.

Oregon passed and pounded to Washington's one foot line, only to lose the ball on a fumble, and then came right back with a deceptive aerial attack that concluded with Mikulak hurling himself over the top of the Husky line for the touchdown. John Milligan, a substitute half back, failed to tally the extra point from placement, his kick going wide.

Washington was handicapped in that its pile driving full back, Paul Sulkowsky, was able to play only for a time in the last half because of an injured knee.

ARMY PREPARES FOR ILLINI WITH 52 TO 0 VICTORY

1st, 2d, and 3d Teams Run Over Delaware.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 14.—(AP)—The Army, using the same starting lineup that will go against Illinois at Cleveland next Saturday, today scored a 52 to 0 victory over the University of Delaware.

Showing a big improvement over their first two games, the first team galloped up and down the field for six touchdowns in the first two periods, then retired to the sidelines to watch the second and third stringers hold Delaware safe through the last half of the game and score twice more for good measure.

Good Backs Are Plentiful.

Lieut. Gar Davidson, coaching his first year at the Point, trotted out half a dozen backs who could take the ball and go places. Johnson, Buckler, Simons, Brown, and King showed equal facility in splitting the Delaware line or sweeping the ends.

It took just four plays for the Army to send Travis Brown dashing across with the first score of the game and within five more minutes they scored two more. Paul Johnson took across the second one with a 48 yard run and Burlingame scored the third as his partner on the other end of the line, Kopcsak, blocked Kemske's punt on Delaware's 28 yard marker.

Beall Runs 67 Yards.

The other Army scores were registered by Jack Buckler on a buck through the line, John Beall on a 67 yard run with an intercepted pass, Kopcsak on a 25 yard pass over the goal from Simons, Ralph King on a 20 yard run around end, and Bill Grohs on a 65 yard run with another intercepted pass.

Delaware made its only real scoring threat near the end of the third quarter when a 52 yard drive by Capt. John Branner, Crowe, and Kemske stalled on the Army 12 and ended with an incomplete pass by Quarter Back Green over the goal line. Lineup:

ARMY [52].		DELAWARE [0].
Kopcsak	L. E.	Hurley
Hutchison	L. T.	Nigels
Gooch	L. G.	Russo
Bucknam	C	G. Thompson

WABASH'S RUSH IN SECOND HALF BEATS ROSE POLY

Crawfordsville, Ind., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Wabash college this afternoon defeated Rose Poly, 20 to 6. The visitors scored in the opening quarter when Wabash used its second string team. With the regulars in during the second and third sessions, Wabash counted three touchdowns. Varner scored two of the markers and passed to Gewecke, who ran 60 yards for the third touchdown.

Hawks Report at Urbana for Training Work

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Eighteen hockey players reported to Manager Tommy Gorman of the Chicago Blackhawks hockey team this afternoon in time to attend the Illinois-Wisconsin football game. The team will remain in Urbana for the length of its training season, which will be held mostly on the ice of the University of Illinois rink. The tuning up period will take about three weeks.

In the squad which reported today were Chuck Gardiner, Mush March, Johnny Gottselig, Lolo Couture, Elwin Romnes, Roger Jenkins, Donnie McFadyen, Art Coulter, and Paul Thompson. All were members of last season's Blackhawks team.

Taylor Seeks Berth.

Four members of last season's American association teams—Jack Leswick, Bill Kendall, Norman Locking, and Pat Shea—are here to try for berths, as is Ralph Taylor, a member of the Detroit Red Wings last year. Taylor has been declared a free agent and reported to try for a defense position. He is a former member of the Blackhawks, New York Rangers, and Chicago Shamrocks.

On hand also were Tom Coulter and Reggie Shields. Both are amateurs. The former has been playing with the University of Pittsburgh hockey team and the latter comes from Quebec, where he led the scorers of the Maritime Hockey league last season. The absentees were Tommy Cook, Lionel Conacher, and Taffy Abel.

Cook Leaves Hospital.

Cook was discharged from the Fort Williams [Canada] hospital today. He is on his way here and is expected to report Monday. Abel and Conacher are due to arrive Thursday.

Manager Gorman will put his charges through their first skating practice tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

COACH PROTESTS FOE'S PLAYERS; CALLS OFF GAME

Montgomery, W. Va., Oct. 14.—(AP)—After the fourth play in the first period, Coach Jimmy Callaghan of Concord Teachers college took his team from the field today, claiming New River college was using ineligible players.

The game had been delayed more than an hour while Callaghan protested seven men in Coach Marshall Sharer's New River lineup because there names were not on lists furnished by the State Collegiate athletic conference. Shearer replaced the men and the game started.

Callaghan said that after the fourth play Shearer sent in some of the protested men and he imediately ended the game.

Shearer said none of the men on his squad were ineligible, explaining they were not on the conference list only because a shortage of blanks had not allowed him to complete the list.

Neither coach has claimed a forfeit.

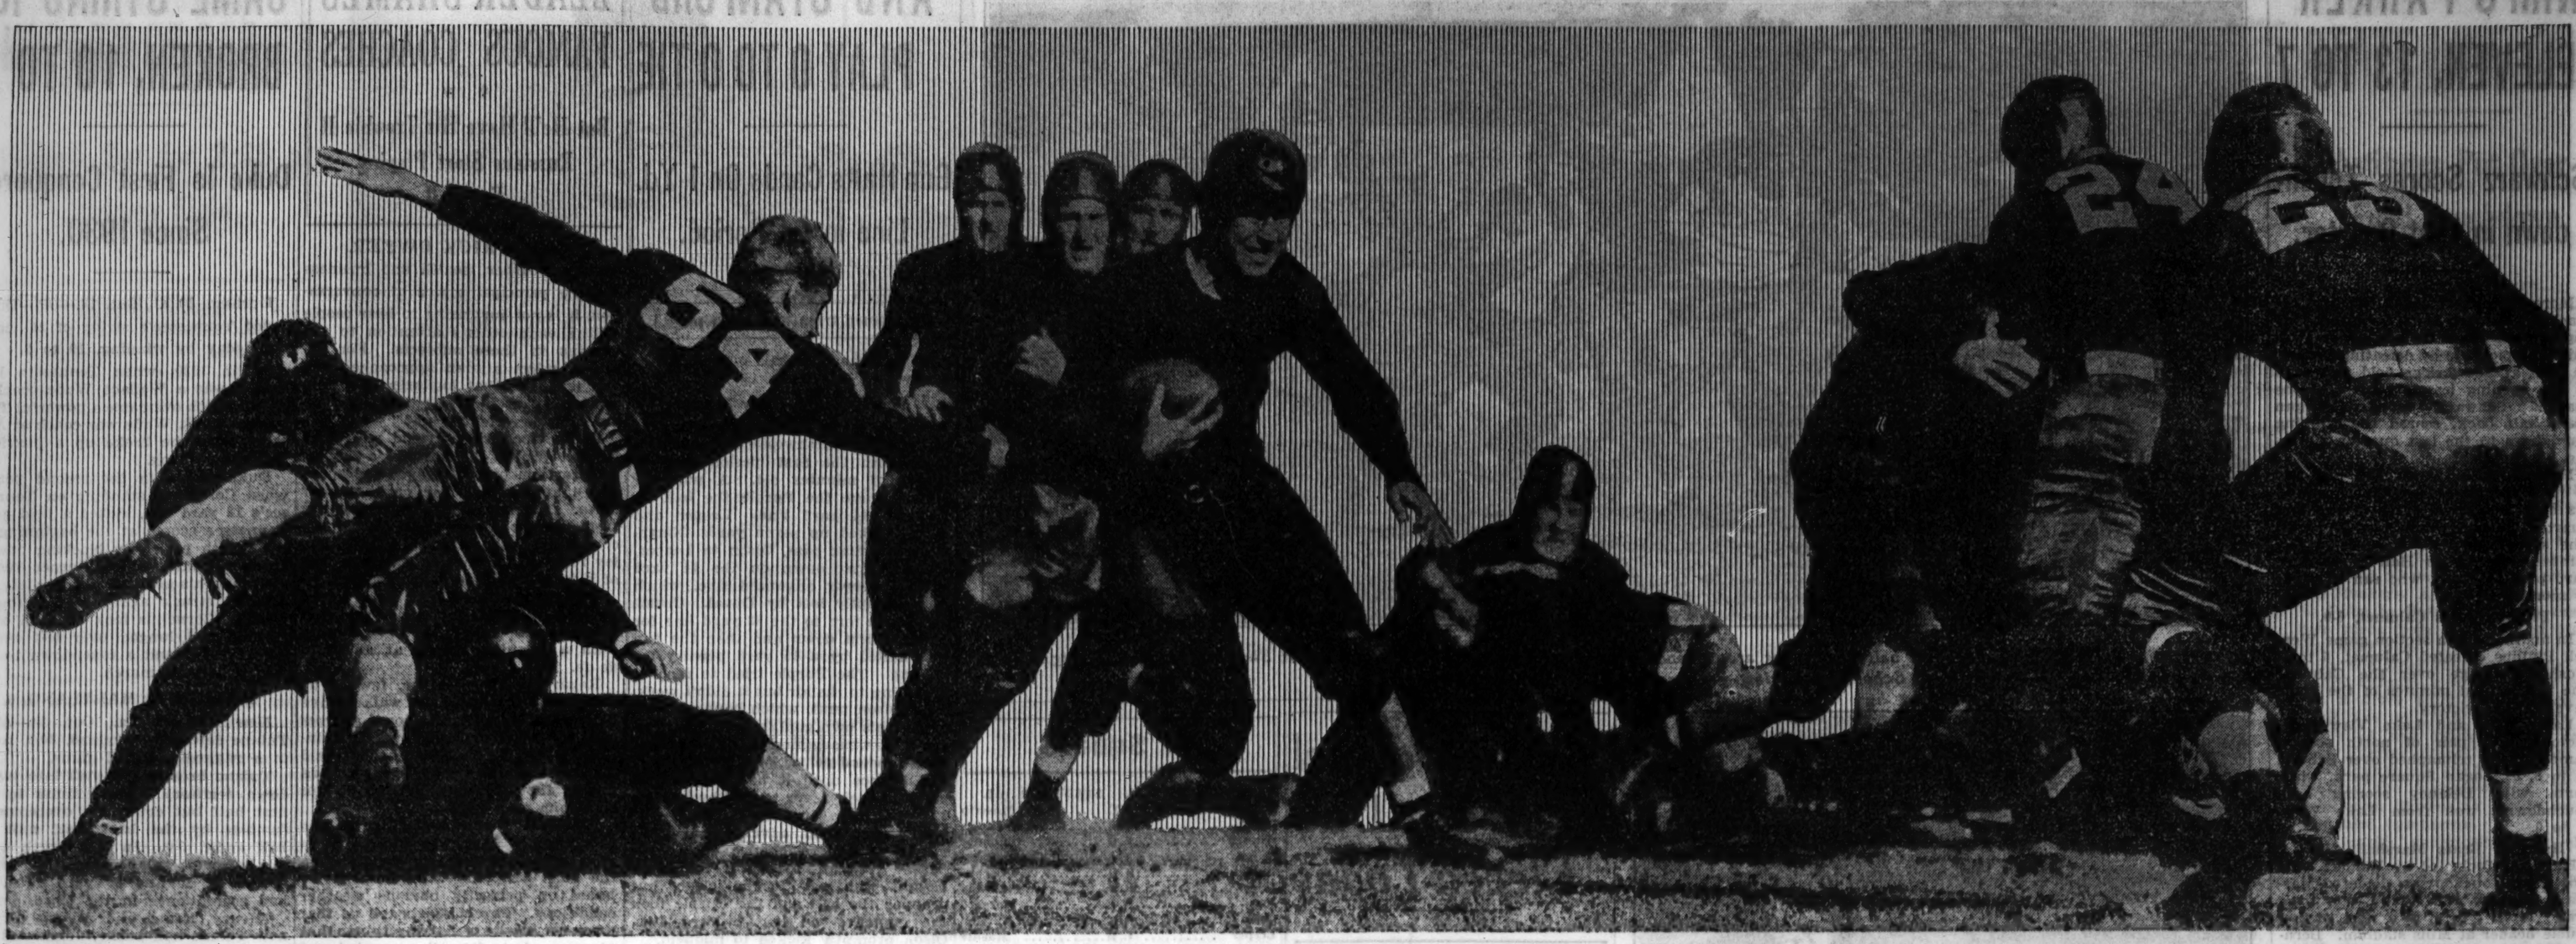
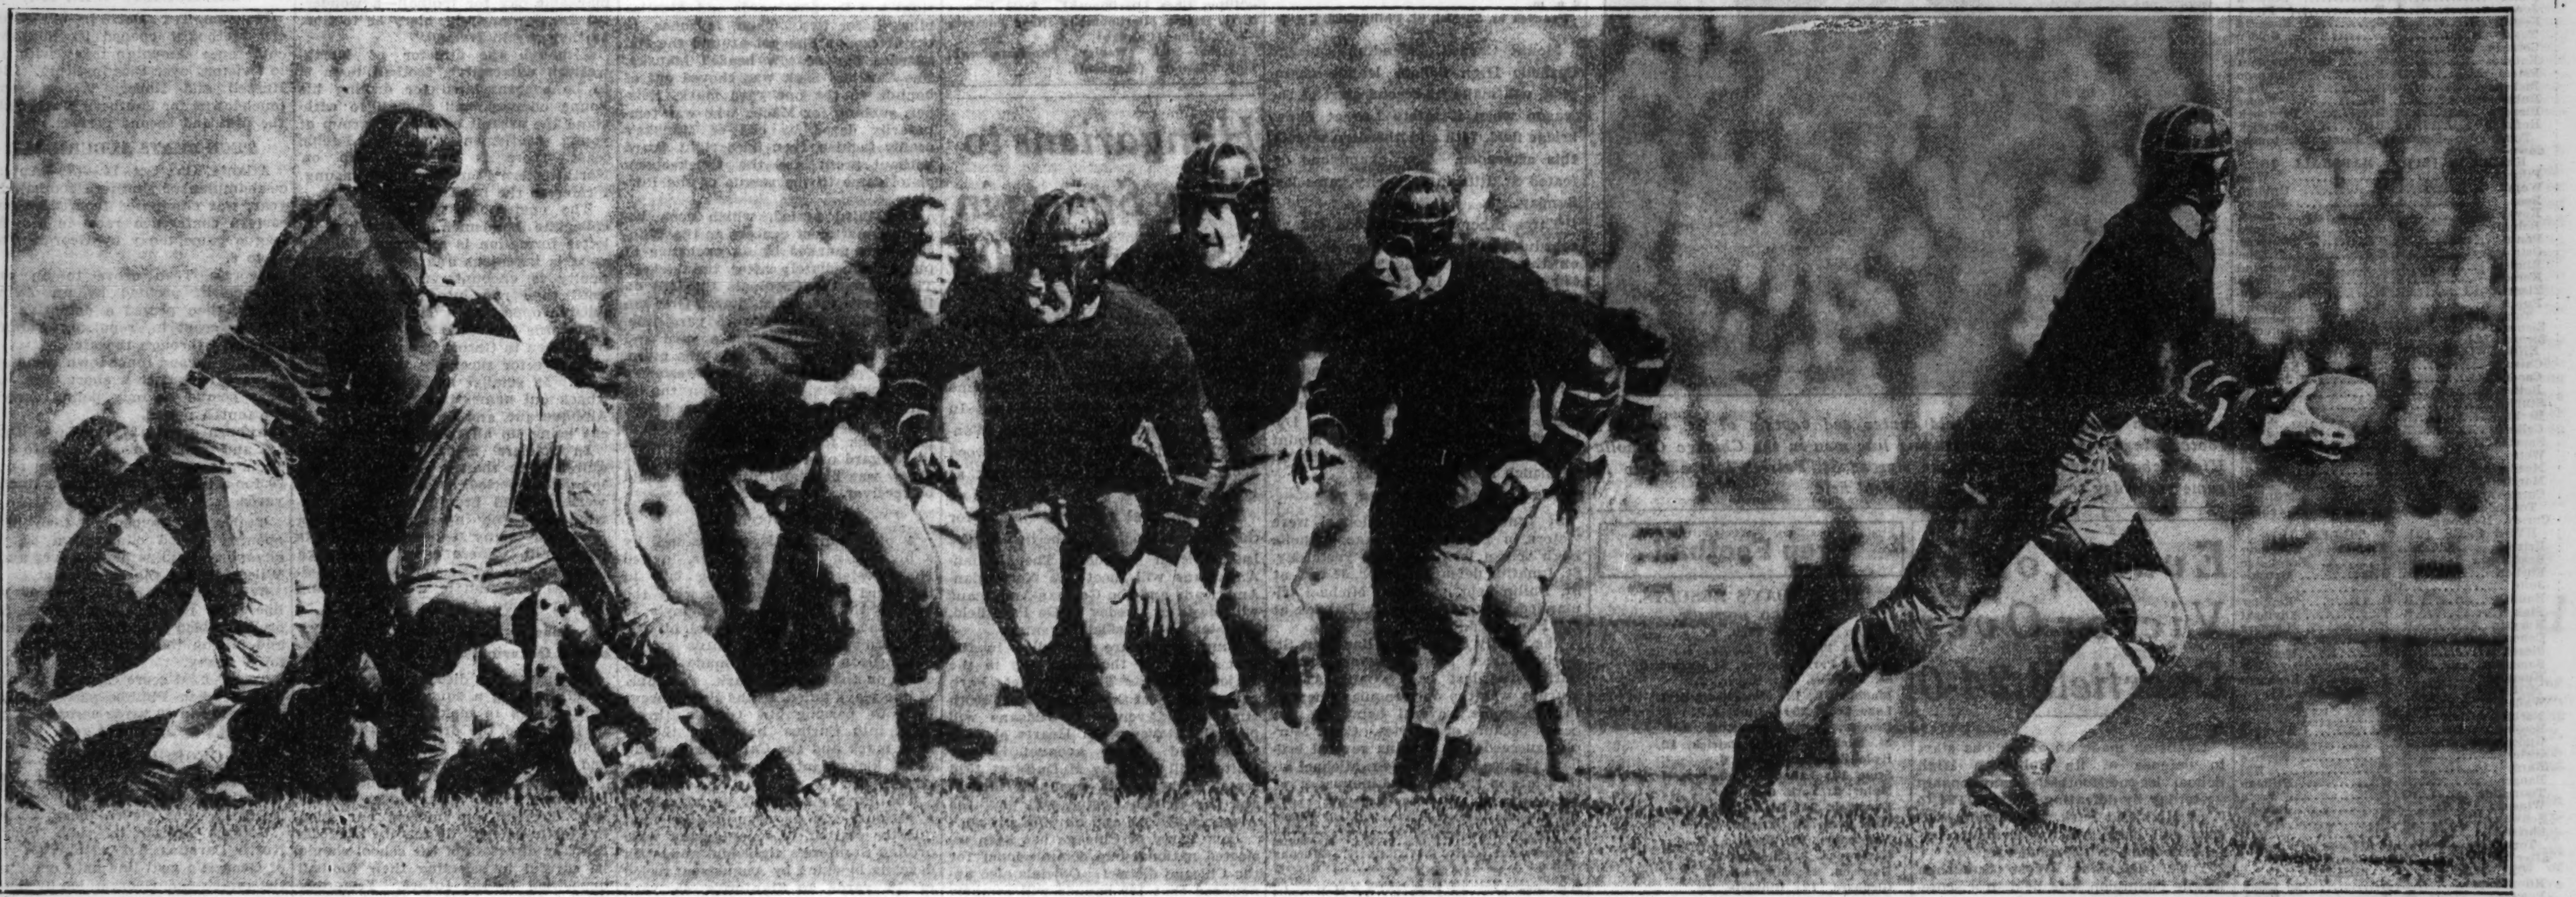
Football Season's Really Here! Camera Shows You Big Ten Teams Battling for Touchdowns



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

NORTHWESTERN BATTLES STRONG STANFORD TEAM TO SCORELESS TIE, FRUSTRATING PLANS OF COAST ELEVEN TO SCORE FOURTH SUCCESSIVE VICTORY OF SEASON, AT SOLDIERS' FIELD. Maentz, Stanford left half back, breaks away for a 5 yard gain in first quarter of yesterday's struggle, evading the outstretched arm of Eggs Manske (No. 54) of Northwestern, who makes desperate lunge. This was one of the few times that Stanford managed to block out Manske, who was the outstanding star of the game. The Californians made two scoring threats. Northwestern piled up more yardage from scrimmage and forward passes, but its attack was not consistent enough to carry near the Stanford goal.



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

CORNELL, VICTOR OVER MICHIGAN IN 10 OF 15 PREVIOUS BATTLES, MAKES LONG TRIP TO ANN ARBOR ONLY TO TAKE 40-0 BEATING FROM RAMPANT WOLVERINES LED BY HERMAN EVERHARDUS. Capt. John Ferraro of the Ithaca, N. Y., eleven goes back to hurl forward pass in second quarter of intersectional game, while Red half backs move over to left to protect him from Michigan tacklers. Even then Cornell's hopes of victory were fading, for Michigan had scored in first quarter on John Regeczi's 79 yard run. Three of the Wolverines' touchdowns were scored by Everhardus. On the kickoff in the second half he ran the ball back 91 yards for a score and had a dash of 52 yards to his credit earlier in the game.

MINNESOTA HANDS JOLT TO PURDUE TITLE HOPES BY HOLDING BOILERMAKERS TO TIE, 7 TO 7. Julius Alphonse, new Gopher back field star, crashes into Purdue line for short gain in second quarter of game at Minneapolis. It was Minnesota's second straight tie in Big Ten competition, last week's game with Indiana ending 6-6.

"JUST A MINUTE, MR. PETOSKEY, LET'S TALK THIS OVER!" SAY HUSKY TACKLERS FROM CORNELL. Ted Petoskey, Michigan end who doubles as a half back on offense, is stopped in attempt to gain ground in first quarter of game at Ann Arbor yesterday. At right in picture is Willis Ward, Wolverine end, looking for enemies to block.

MINNESOTA ACE LOOKS FOR A HOLE IN PURDUE DEFENSE BUT SEEMS DOOMED TO DISAPPOINTMENT. Pug Lund (extreme right), living up to his reputation established last year, led Gophers in touchdown march yesterday, but in this picture doesn't seem to be going anywhere. Purdue, whose aerial attack failed, managed to tie the Northmen with belated rally.

MORGAN PARK WHIPS PARKER ELEVEN, 13 TO 7

Schwarz Scores Touchdown in Last Quarter.

Morgan Park removed the first obstacle in its path toward another Chicago Public High School league football championship by defeating Parker, 13 to 7, at Shewbridge field yesterday in the opening league contest of the season. Schwarz, veteran Morgan Park half back, scored the winning touchdown in the last quarter, plunging five yards.

Morgan Park, which had lost two of its three pre-season games, scored its first touchdown early in the first quarter when Schwarz ran 30 yards. The score was tied, however, a few minutes later when Hall threw a 40 yard pass to Frain, who ran 10 yards to score.

Phillips Beats Calumet, 6-0.

In another south section game Wendell Phillips defeated Calumet, 6 to 0. Foshee's plunge over the Calumet line in the final minutes of the game gave Phillips victory.

Lane Tech and Lake View were victors in a pair of north section games. Lane triumphed over Schurz, 25 to 8, at Logan Square park, while Senn, with Delaney scoring both touchdowns, won from Lake View, 13 to 0.

Harrison Beats Marshall, 21-6.

Harrison Tech, led by Rimicci, who scored two touchdowns, defeated Marshall, 21 to 6, and Austin won from Crane Tech, 7 to 0, in a west section double header at Mills stadium. Bernbock scored Austin's touchdown in the third period.

In the central section Englewood overwhelmed Bowen, 31 to 0, while Hyde Park and Tilden played to a scoreless tie.

North Carolina State Holds Florida to Tie

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 14.—(AP)—North Carolina state held Florida to a scoreless tie here tonight. Florida was doped to beat State and threatened to score several times.

In the third period Ray Rex, State's fullback, apparently scored a touchdown on a 51-yard run. The referee ruled, however, that State was guilty of holding and Rex was called back and his team penalized 15 yards.

Evanston Is Victor Over Deerfield, 24-0

Evanston made an auspicious start in defense of its Suburban High School league football championship yesterday by defeating Deerfield, 24 to 0, at Highland Park. Champion, veteran full back, led the Evanston attack, scoring two touchdowns.

York, defending West Suburban league champion was held to a scoreless tie by Maine at Des Plaines. In other games Downers Grove defeated Riverside, 27 to 0, and Glenbard and Hinsdale played a 12 to 12 tie.

The Evanston-Deerfield game was the only league contest scheduled. Oak Park, Proviso and New Trier all engaged in nonleague competition. Oak Park routed Fenger, 46 to 0; Proviso defeated Roosevelt, 21 to 6, and New Trier lost to La Grange, 32 to 13.

Mount Carmel to Meet Leo Eleven Today

Games Today

CATHOLIC LEAGUE.

Loyola vs. St. Rita, St. Rita field, 2 p. m.
Leo vs. Mount Carmel, Shewbridge field, 2 p. m.
De La Salle vs. St. George, Evanston, 2 p. m.
Fenwick vs. St. Mel, St. Philip field, 2 p. m.

Mount Carmel, defending Chicago Catholic High School league champion, will make its second start of the season when it meets Leo at Shewbridge field, 74th and Aberdeen streets, this afternoon. The champions defeated St. Rita in a charity game last Sunday.

Three other games are on today's schedule. Loyola will play St. Rita on the latter's field, Claremont and 63d streets; De La Salle will oppose St. George at Evanston, and Fenwick will meet St. Mel at St. Philip field, Van Buren and Albany streets.

St. Rita will be without the services of Leonard Quinn, half back, and Ed Dybrousky, also a half back, against Loyola. Quinn was ordered by physicians to give up the sport, while Dybrousky suffered injuries in the Mount Carmel game which will keep him on the bench for several weeks.

ST. IGNATIUS WINS, 38-2.

St Ignatius and St. Michael were victors in a pair of Chicago Catholic High school league games yesterday. St. Ignatius defeated Weber, 38 to 2, at St. Philip field, while St. Michael triumphed, 13 to 12, over St. Patrick at De Paul field.

The sturdy St. Patrick line kept St. Michael from scoring several times during the last half. Capt. Austin Murphy was the only regular lineman in the game, several being on the bench because of injuries. Capt. Murphy succeeded in making several brilliant tackles to stop the St. Michael attack late in the game. Lineups:

MEMPHIS HAILS BILL TERRY; HE'S A COLONEL NOW!

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 14.—(AP)—William Harold Terry—Col. Terry, suh—took a ride down Main street in a flag draped automobile today.

It was the same old Main street he'd known all these years, but the flags were out and the bands were playing.

So many people, too—there were thousands of them lining the sidewalks, waving handkerchiefs, throwing their hats into the air and cheering with unquestionable volume and fervor.

Memphis was welcoming Memphis Bill home again. The manager of the world champion New York Giants was receiving the acclaim of thousands in a mammoth celebration that swept down Main street from one end to the other.

The cheering procession finally wound up at the courthouse, where Watkins Overton, dapper little mayor, stood waiting on the steps of city hall.

"We knew all along Bill Terry was a good baseball player," he said, "but we didn't know he would reach the pinnacle so quickly."

Without further ado, the mayor detailed the virtues of the distinguished citizen and concluded by presenting him with a commission as colonel on the staff of Gov. Hill McAlister.

WELCOME CRONIN, O'DOUL.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Joe Cronin, manager of the Washington Senators, and Frank [Lefty] O'Doul, New York Giants outfielder whose pinch hitting was a factor in the Giants' world series victory over the Senators, arrived home today to be welcomed by thousands of San Franciscans assembled at the Ferry building.

After an official greeting by Mayor Angelo Rossi the pair headed a parade up Market street in which several thousand school children marched to the tunes of many bands.

PURPLE SQUAD FETED AT DINNER FOLLOWING GAME

Forty members of the Northwestern football squad were guests last night at a dinner given by the Northwestern university associates, a group of prominent Chicago business men interested in the university.

The dinner, which was held in the Blackstone hotel, was attended by approximately 150 guests, among whom were Silas Strawn, Chicago attorney, chairman of the organization; President Walter Dill Scott of Northwestern, Fred W. Sargent of the Chicago and North Western railway, Tug Wilson, Northwestern athletic director, and Dick Hanley, head football coach.

Maj. John L. Griffith, Big Ten athletic commissioner, in the principal address of the evening, complimented the team upon the showing made against Stanford.

Montreal Maroons Seek Weiland for Hockey Team

MONTREAL, Oct. 14.—(AP)—The Montreal Maroons of the National Hockey league are seeking the services of Cooney Weiland of the Ottawa Senators. The Maroons have asked the Senators to name a price. Roter Roth, high scoring center sensation with Buffalo in the International league last year, is also sought by the Maroons.

Mississippi Runs Beat Marquette Eleven, 7-0

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Scoring a touchdown in the first period on two runs of 40 and 30 yards, the University of Mississippi tonight defeated the Marquette football team, 7 to 0.

tions and the Cardinals only 10 yards for two.

Penalty Halts Early March.

One severe penalty put a crimp in a promising Northwestern rush which came with the first period only a couple of minutes old. A punt by Maentz gave the Purple the ball on its own 44 yard line. Leeper and Duval picked up seven yards. Northwestern's first pass, Olson to Leeper, made it first down on the 44 yard mark. Leeper advanced five, which was promptly lost by Duval. Cruice and Olson tore to the 33 yard line for another first down and then the fun was halted by a 15 yard penalty for holding. The Purple tried to recover by taking to the air but it didn't work.

An Olson punt, which bounced back toward his own goal, gave Northwestern some uneasy moments at the start of the second period. Stanford let the ball bounce until it had traveled 11 yards in their favor to Northwestern's 32 yard line. In three plunges the westerners could advance only five yards, so took a chance on a long pass. Hillman tossed it to Afflerbaugh, who was in the clear, but dropped the ball and the Purple took the offensive on its 27 yard line. Olson promptly kicked to midfield.

The real Stanford menace, which arose late in the second quarter, came after Alustiza had punted to Leeper on the Wildcats' 25 yard line. On the next play Olson dropped the ball and Reynolds, the Cardinals' 227 pound tackle, fell on it on the 20 yard mark. Sim went tearing over Northwestern's right end for nine yards and Alustiza plunged for two. Then, for once, in the afternoon Sim got around the end guarded by the tow headed Manske. The Cardinal back was shoved out of bounds on the one yard mark. Reisner, subbing for Maetz, who was temporarily dazed by one of Manske's deadly tackles, then tried right guard without profit and the timekeeper's pistol came to the rescue of the Purple.

The third period, which soon became a matter of concern to the Wildcats, was marked by an exchange of punts immediately after the kickoff. That gave the Cardinals the ball on their foe's 38 yard line. Grayson ripped through to the 25 yard line. Hillman hit the line for a yard and Sim sneaked through for three more. Maentz waded into Northwestern's left tackle for first down on the 14 yard line. Afflerbaugh, in two plays, advanced three yards. Then, from a place kick formation, Corbus passed to Norgard over the goal line but the throw was high and eluded the would be receiver.

A Break for N. U.

A poor punt by Maentz, caused by a high pass from the center, invited Northwestern to get going late in the third period. The kick gave the Purple the ball on the enemy's 35 yard line. Leeper and Duval hit the Stanford wall for five yards and a pass, Olson to Manske, made it first down on the 24 yard mark. A couple of line plays failed, so the Purple went back to passing but Olson's throw went into Curbus' hands on the 21 yard mark and the Cardinals immediately kicked into Northwestern territory.

The Purple renewed its attack in a serious way as soon as the final quarter started. Leeper swung wide around Stanford's right end and, with dazzling blocking by Augustson, reeled of 16 yards to Stanford's 45 yard mark. Line assaults by Augustson, Duval, Leeper, and Cruice shoved the Cardinals back to their 30 yard line but the march halted when Augustson's pass was intercepted by O'Connor on the 26 yard mark. The remainder of the battle was waged in midfield.

HIRSCH COMES BACK TO BEAT FARRAGUT, 12 TO 6

Hirsch and Farragut, two of the newly created high schools, met on the gridiron for the first time yesterday at Shewbridge field. Hirsch won, 12 to 6. Farragut took the lead in the first quarter when a series of line plays terminated with a 10 yard end run by Kodl for a touchdown.

Hirsch tied the score in the third period when Skelly, who replaced Johnson at full back, plunged three yards. In the fourth quarter Shauers, who went in for Jenkins, intercepted a forward pass and raced 40 yards to score. Lineup:

MOOSEHEART IS VICTORIOUS, 13-0, OVER CULVER

Culver, Ind., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Mooseheart academy defeated the Culver cadet eleven, 13 to 0, today. Mooseheart scored first in the second period when a forward pass to H. Hellman netted 50 yards and a touchdown. The Cadets excelled in first downs and yards gained during the first half, but were unable to score. Mooseheart pushed over another touchdown in the fourth quarter.

$500,000 South Texas Race Track Opens Thanksgiving

Houston, Tex., Oct. 14.—(AP)—The racing plant of the Texas Breeders and Racing association, known as the Lone Star Jockey club, will start a 27 day race meeting, the first in south Texas, on Thanksgiving day, M. S. Ingleright, vice president and secretary, announced today.

The club's track, seven miles outside Houston, is under construction. Contracts call for completion of the layout by Nov. 28 at an estimated cost of $500,000.

But He'll Have His Trouble If Russians Start Playing Football

BY PATRICK DWYER.

Since weather, health and business are the principal topics of conversation, it is not surprising to hear people calling each other's attention to the obvious in these subjects. For example, when a man approaches you and tells you that business is rotten, you smile on him pityingly, and remark, "you're telling me?"

In like manner, a friend will come to visit you in the hospital a day or so after you had misjudged the speed of an approaching car on the outer drive. The friend is perfectly aware from the newspaper and verbal accounts that you have had your left leg removed, as well as a square foot of hide and your faith in recovery.

"How are you feeling?" the friend will say, when he knows well that you would have traded places willingly with a Spanish heretic at an Auto de fe.

Regarding the weather, few of us are disturbed when, after walking five blocks in a rainstorm to board a street car, the conductor observes, "Raining, isn't it?" We know he has said the same thing to 5,000 passengers during the last hour, but we do not class him as a moron.

However, when a football game like that between Northwestern and Stanford universities is concerned, even the most sanguine will comment for hours on perfectly obvious weather conditions. Psychologists tell us that we never weary of hearing things that please us, but after all, a psychologist is not the only one who knows that.

Coaching Team Is Tough, but the Band!

After this preliminary, forgive me if I take you into my confidence and tell you that yesterday was a remarkable day for football—a wonderful fine day entirely, glory be to God, as they say in Ireland.

Although the director of Northwestern university's football team is to be congratulated for drilling his young charges well enough to withstand the assault of another group of young gentlemen from the Pacific coast, there is another hero on Northwestern's faculty as yet unsung. I refer to the band director.

The custom of training youthful collegiate bandsmen to swing into letter formation is an art as delicate as it is ingenious and no serious difficulty is encountered by the boys until they run into two and three syllable opposition. They can knock out words like Ohio and Iowa in no time, even in Gothic upper case if the band director succumbs to his artistic urge. In smaller fields the boys can whack out names like Gnadenhutten, Albuquerque, and similar terrors without using up all their bandsmen.

In Soldiers' field, however, it requires more than a corporal's guard to make a period, so when the Northwestern band bravely began to unwind with the intention of spelling Stanford, many sympathetic hearts stood still. There were not enough bandsmen to go around, even including the unfortunate wights carrying the big drum. A crisis, in sooth.

Bandmaster Rises to the Occasion.

But the band director met it. Instead of using a squad of extra football players to make the top of the F, he placed the drums in that position, flanked by a drummer on each end of the line.

The fact that there were not enough bandsmen to go around does not reflect discredit on musical education in Northwestern. It merely suggests that the directors of the school should be careful in selecting their football opposition in the future. Yesterday the bandmaster rose to the occasion, but if football ever becomes international, Russian universities need not expect to see their names in living formations unless our universities call out the army.

XAVIER HOLDS CARNEGIE TECH TO 3-0 VICTORY

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Xavier university almost stopped Carnegie Tech today, but lost, 3 to 0, as a weary line weakened long enough for Stewart to place kick a field goal. The score came midway in the final quarter.

A moment before Spencer, sub right half, had broken away for a 30 yard sprint, the longest run of the game, and then found his team losing ground in attempting to buck across from the Xaxier 10 yard line. But for that, Tech would have found itself held to a scoreless tie by a team generally considered elsewhere as a setup.

Duke Is First Conqueror Since 1930.

Durham, N. C., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Duke ended Tennessee's string of 26 victories today by winning, 10 to 2.

As in 1930, when Tennessee last lost, it was a Wallace Wade coached eleven which overcame a powerful Tennessee attack. Wade was coach at Alabama when he broke up a previous Tennessee string.

Duke scored in the second period when Cornelius, standing on Tennessee's 18 yard line, kicked a field goal. Tennessee scored at the beginning of the fourth period by blocking one of Laney's punts, which Durner recovered over his goal line for a safety.

Duke struck again in the fourth period. Cornelius took the ball on a reverse and lunged over left tackle for 14 yards and a touchdown to climax a 31 yard march.

TULANE, 20; MARYLAND, 0.

New Orleans, La., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Tulane defeated Maryland, 20-0, today in a raggedly played game.

Tulane brought the ball into touchdown territory several times in the first half but could not overcome 10 fumbles by the back field and the half ended 0-0. In the fourth quarter, however, Tulane scored two touchdowns on 50 and 60 yard runs. It had scored once in the third period.

Barney Mintz and Bucky Bryan, new Tulane half backs, dominated the play. The first touchdown was scored on Mintz' pass. He made the second touchdown by intercepting a pass, Nelson to Ennis, and running 50 yards. He also added two extra points.

Bryan raced 60 yards with a punt for the third touchdown.

METHODISTS WIN, 13-7.

Houston, Tex., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Southern Methodist opened its Southwest conference campaign today with a 13 to 7 victory over Rice institute. Lloyd Russell and Robert Wilson scored touchdowns for Southern Methodist in the first and second periods.

TECH BEATS AUBURN, 16-6.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Auburn, co-champion of southern football last year, was eliminated from the Southeastern conference race in its first league game today by Georgia Tech, 16 to 6.

Georgia Tech drove to an early touchdown, profited by an Auburn safety, then played a defensive contest to coast in, repulsing Auburn's late rally through the air

Tech's second touchdown came on a 50 yard run after a short pass. Auburn scored its only points early in the fourth period.

Auburn gained 271 yards to Tech's 147 and made 19 first downs to 5 for Tech. It completed 13 passes out of 20 for a total of more than a hundred yards.

Tech's first touchdown early in the opening period climaxed a 60 yard advance. Phillips plowed over and E. Wilcox booted the extra point.

With Auburn on its own 10 yard line after taking a Tech punt, Kimbrell fumbled a bad pass from center and fell on the ball on the goal line for a safety.

Techs' final score came in the third period, when Phillips passed to Roberts, who ran 60 yards across the goal. E. Wilcox again kicked goal.

GEORGIA WINS, 30-0.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Georgia defeated the University of North Carolina eleven today, 30 to 0. Georgia scored in each quarter. North Carolina got within 23 yards of Georgia's goal line only once, near the game's end. Georgia, led by George Chapman and Homer Key, rolled up 354 yards against North Carolina's 82 yards.

Chapman, playing full back, scored Georgia's first two touchdowns with long runs.

ALABAMA WINS, 18-0.

University, Ala., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Frank Mosely led Alabama to an 18 to 0 victory over Mississippi State today.

Mosely, playing his first game as a full back, started a touchdown march in the second period after Mississippi had outplayed Alabama through the first quarter.

Mosely began with a 17 yard smash off tackle and finally went over to complete a 71 yard march.

In the third period Howell skirted right end for 17 on a fake kick to start a 68 yard Alabama drive. He went over for the touchdown on a seven yard run.

A short kick to the 39 yard line placed Alabama in scoring position in the fourth period, off tackle smashes and short end runs finally sending Mosely over the final foot for the score.

BEARS TO BATTLE CARDINALS TODAY IN 26TH OF SERIES

Kickoff Set for 2:15 at Wrigley Field.

Civil War

CARDINALS.		BEARS.
Creighton	L.E.	Hewitt
Gordon	L.T.	Lyman
Bergerson	L.G.	Carlson
Yarr	C.	Miller
Kiesling	R.G.	Kopcha
Williams	R.T.	Richards
Nesbit	R.E.	Johnsos
Malloy	Q.B.	Molesworth
Lillard	L.H.	Grange
Tipton	R.H.	Sisk
Hinchman	F.B.	Nagurski

The Chicago Cardinals will meet the Bears at Wrigley field this afternoon in the 26th battle of their football series that started in 1920. The kickoff will be made at 2:15 o'clock.

The Bears have won 14 games, the Cards six, and the other five were scoreless ties. The Bears have scored a total of 242 points to 107 by the Redbirds. In the last seven meetings the best the Cards could do was obtain a tie in the first of the annual two games last year.

Both teams will be near their best today, with a minimum of injuries. The Cards will miss Tim Moynihan and the Bears will miss Bull Doehring and possibly Bert Pearson.

Schissler's Chicago Début.

Paul Schissler, who will make his Chicago début as coach of the Cardinals, has been drilling his team in offensive tactics, believing that the big Red line will be able to cope with the Bear forwards and enable the light Cardinal backs to get away.

The attack will be centered around Joe Lillard, the colored athlete who can do everything with the best of 'em. Joe beat Cincinnati with a place kick from the 35 yard line, and that will be one threat against the Bears every time they are backed up in their own territory.

Jim Bausch, who owns the national all-round athletic championship, was not named to start at full back, but will get into the game. Schissler announced that Hubert Hinchman, acquired from the Boston Redskins, would be at full at the kickoff, with Malloy, formerly of Chicago Loyola, at quarter, and Lillard and Tipton, the latter a product of the University of Southern California, at the half back posts.

Nagurski Scorns Noseguard.

Coach George Halas named Molesworth quarter back; Grange and Sisk, half backs, and Nagurski, full back for the Bears. Bronko, by the way, expects to play without the special headgear designed to protect the broken nose he acquired from Herber of Green Bay Oct. 1.

Individual rivalries always have marked the games, but today two new ones are sure to pop out between Tommy Yarr at center for the Cards in opposition to Ookie Miller, and Ray Richards at tackle for the Bears across the scrimmage line from Gil Bergerson, a guard.

Until a few days ago Bergerson was a teammate of Richards, who is playing in his first pro campaign. They are a pair of giants, Bergerson with his 6 foot 4 inch frame draped with 240 pounds of muscle being the biggest of the Cards. Richards stands 6 feet 1 inch and weighs 225 pounds.

Stars in End Positions.

Miller is playing his second season. Last year he was acclaimed one of the topnotchers in the league. Yarr is a newcomer from Notre Dame and Miller from Purdue.

Johnsos and Creighton will renew their rivalry of three years' standing, at end, while Nisbet, another new Cardinal, will square off with Hewitt, one of the best in the league, at the other flank.

At the invitation of Dr. David J. Jones, Cardinal president, the Stanford university squad will attend the game.

On the eve of the contest the Cards announced the release of Chuck Bennett, veteran back from Indiana.

DE PAUW RUNS UP 28-0 VICTORY OVER EARLHAM

Greencastle, Ind., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—De Pauw vanquished Earlham this afternoon, 28 to 0. A sophomore back field, led by Frees, playing his first game of college football, scored two touchdowns in the last quarter.

De Pauw scored in the second quarter on a 55 yard end run by Ave and a 20 yard pass, Bishop to Bradley. De Pauw collected two points on a safety in the third period when Battey, Earlham right half back, stepped out of the end zone while attempting to punt out of danger. The entire De Pauw squad was tried out in various combinations. Twenty-eight men were substituted during the game.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

By Westbrook Pegler

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 14.—At the risk of being called an umpire's friend I will take the stand that Charlie Moran, the old football coach who represented the National league in the late world series, was well within his rights and duty when he expelled Heinie Manush from the fourth game of the inter-league championship set in Washington as thousands jeered. The umpire has a trying and thankless job at best and in a world series his responsibilities grow in proportion to the solemnity of the occasion. The intricate rules and special regulations which an umpire in a world series must keep instantly in mind would tax the intellect of a bench jurist, and the umpire is not allowed to withdraw to some library to pore over the authorities and weigh the evidence, either. He must call them as he sees them according to his knowledge of baseball law, without the slightest deliberation.

HEINIE MANUSH.

In 15 consecutive world series I have never seen an umpire call one contrary to any phrase of the great mass of stuffy, legalistic article in the book or any of the special provisions which are handed around on typewritten slips to be memorized and visualized before any play begins.

And What Did He Say We Can't Mention It.

This is job enough, as the rules of baseball recognize. The rules empower an umpire to put a player out of a game for disorderly conduct and the umpire himself is made the judge in such cases. Manush knew that a player who keeps a still tongue in his head and his hands to himself runs no risk of banishment. Imposing on his special position as a star in a world series, he overspoke himself and was canned.

The text of his remarks probably will not become generally known except by the gradual word-of-mouth process, for the sort of language which would draw expulsion from a world series is such as you are not likely to see verbatim in any family newspaper. But they must have been unusually cross and uncouth words, for the normal repartee between player and umpire is very robust and no man ever was put out of a game for calling an umpire an old meanie.

The world series umpire is heavily loaded with cares, and not the least of these is his obligation to be fair. He probably feels some personal dislike for certain characters coming under his jurisdiction and he would not be human if he didn't, for umpires, even in a world series, have to deal with some pretty trying types, including dumb ones. And please do not cite me here the college records of the many intellectual athletes who played in the last world series, because the most illustrious scholars among them showed unmistakable signs of braincramp in the newspaper essays which they authored throughout the week. Most of them, including one who claims to hold a law degree, demonstrated that they didn't study grammar or composition in the course of their bright college years, and the general average would have been humiliating to a ten year old fourth grade flunk.

Umpires Are Always Fair to Players.

Notwithstanding their personal dislikes, the umpires, without a single provable exception, have always been fair to the players, which is a commentary on their character that the players, themselves, would do well not to challenge. The umpires' record for honor has never been impugned in modern history, but the players cannot say as much for theirs.

So the baseball scheme of authority gives umpires the right to defend themselves against players who try to hamper them in the performance of an exacting and important work.

It is insisted that the players, themselves, are put under a fierce competitive strain and therefore ought to be excused certain protests which burst from them impulsively in the heat of the fight. The fact is that they are excused much. But the player works under no greater strain than the umpires, and nobody has ever suggested that an umpire ought to be allowed to scream, swear, and chuck things around to relieve his feelings under trying conditions.

The Washington journalists were extremely partisan in their discussion of Charlie Moran's writ of banishment against Manush and, recognizing the expert's right to emote without hindrance, I must say that I have never known any local corps of baseball experts who were as partisan, hysterical and spoon-fed as my colleagues in Washington during this year's world series. It is a familiar home town newspaper policy, of course, to try to root the homers in, as this tends to steam up interest in the sport page and build the circulation which appeals to the advertisers. No partisanship, no circulation, no advertising, no jobs for experts.

The Boys Seem to Agree with Mr. Griffith.

But in Washington there is a pronounced instinct to see all things as Mr. Griffith would see them, although I have known numerous occasions when I thought Mr. Griffith could reasonably have been disagreed with.

When Manush was fired out of the world series Griffith emitted a squawk which took no account of Manush's offense, but only hollered about the outrage to his baseball firm. Griffith even went so far as to speak for Judge Landis, although the old judge, in my experience, has always been a pretty ready talker and thoroughly able to speak for himself.

Last spring when the Yankees had a riot with the Senators, in which lives might have been lost, Mr. Griffith used the newspapers to utter a squawk which seemed to me to be an incitation to another public riot and a dangerous public expression. His remarks undoubtedly did tend to arouse the anger of the dumb element among the customers who could not realize that they were being ballyhooed up to the turnstiles for subsequent games between his club and the Yankees.

In the world series, when Moran had expelled Manush, a mob waited for him after the game, but notwithstanding this, Griffith let fly another characteristic squawk which, with very little exploitation, could have moved some mental defective among the element who believe in the squawks of magnates to hit Moran over the head with a bottle or bat and leave him dead.

What's a Riot if Tickets Sell?

From Mr. Griffith's record as a player and dealer I do not take him to be a great public leader, but suspect him of taking every advantage he can of every situation for his own benefit. Therefore, when he squawked so excitedly over Moran's just order against a disorderly ball player in the world series, I read between the lines of his complaint a very plain and, considering the dangerous possibilities, a deplorable attempt to sell some excessively expensive bleacher seats at the risk of public disorder.

He probably doesn't love umpires much anyway. One old umpire tells me of having literally kicked Mr. Griffith every step of the way for 150 yards in full view of the customers at the Philadelphia ball yard in putting him out of a game some years ago.

LONBORG TO PICK BIG 10 STARS FOR TULSA BATTLES

Four of the leading amateur basketball teams in the United States will meet in a series of games at the 132d armory, Rockwell and Madison streets, Oct. 23 and 25. The Diamond Oilers of Tulsa, Okla., national A. A. U. champions, will face a team of former western conference stars, and the Durant Cardinals, Durant, Okla., national A. A. U. women's titleholders, will oppose the Spencer Coals of Chicago.

The ex-Big Ten team will be named by Dutch Lonborg, Northwestern university basketball coach, early this week. The squad, which will include Joe Reiff, former Purple star, will start practice probably Thursday or Friday.

Chuck Hyatt, former University of Pittsburgh forward, who made 302 points in winning the individual scoring championship of the east during the 1928-'29 season, will be in the Oilers' lineup. The Oilers were undefeated in 29 games last year.

Led by Anne Goldstein and Cassie Martin, the Spencer Coals last season won the Central A. A. U. women's championship. They also captured the Chicago city and Cook county titles. Coach Mark Singer will call the squad together for its first practice this morning on the 132d armory court. They lost only two games out of 60 last season.

Besides Hyatt, the Oilers will have Barton Carlton, former guard at East Central Teachers' college, Ada, Okla.; Tom Pickell, former member of the Arkansas university squad; Spee Futhey, Cotton Lantrips, Carl Larson, Moon Mullins, and Art Hyatt, 21 year old brother of Chuck, who starred as a forward on the Schenley High school quintet of Pittsburgh, Pa.

U. S. GIRLS WIN AT HOCKEY.

DURHAM, Eng., Oct. 14.—(AP)—The United States women's hockey team won the first game of its British tour today, defeating North England, 2 to 1.

The Cardinals are confident that Joe Lillard, colored half back, can tie the best performance of a Bears back today. Joe kicks, throws passes, runs with the ball—a handy gent to have around.

Lukats, Elser Lead Irish to 12-2 Triumph

Belated Start

NOTRE DAME [12].		INDIANA [2].
Millner	L. E.	E. Antonini
Stilley	L. T.	Anglemyer
Leonard	L. G.	Voliva
Gorman	C	Kelso
Pivnarik	R. G.	Spraner
Michuta	R. T.	Zoll
Peters	R. E.	Lyons
Laborne	Q. B.	Dauer
Shakespeare	L. H.	Sawicki
Tobin	R. H.	Robb
Hanley	F. B.	Jones

Touchdowns—Lukats, Elser.
Safety—Shakespeare.

Substitutions—Indiana: Huffman for Babb, Crum for Kelso, Sutherland for Huffman, F. Antonini for Voliva, Leech for Crum, Schilawski for E. Antonini, F. Antonini for Leech, Babb for Dauer, Busbee for Spraner, Keck for Sawicki, Peters for Jones. Notre Dame: Gaul for Laborne, Vairo for Millner, Krause for Stilley, Wunsch for Leonard, Schiralli for Pivnarik, Devore for Peters, Lukats for Gaul, Brancheau for Tobin, Elser for Hanley, Pilney for Lukats, Michuta for Roach, Layden for Brancheau.

Referee—Coffin [Cornell]. Umpire—Nichols [Oberlin]. Field judge—Daniels [Loyola]. Head linesman—Ray [Illinois].
Coaches—Heartly W. [Hunk] Anderson [Notre Dame]; E. C. Hayes [Indiana].

Dame punt catchers averaged a return of 34 yards, while Indiana averaged only 17. On punting distance the invaders had an average of 41 yards, as compared with Indiana's 38. Notre Dame made eight first downs to the Hoosiers' five, and was penalized 70 yards against Indiana's 20. Indiana had the edge on passing, however, completing two passes for a total gain of 47 yards, while Notre Dame failed to complete a single aerial attempt. Three Crimson passes were incomplete and two were intercepted, while Notre Dame had three incomplete tosses and one was intercepted.

Indiana tried hard and on one occasion showed a lot of dash and ingenuity. The vaunted sophomores looked a bit on the merry go round at times, but undoubtedly will profit by their mistakes today before they go against Northwestern next Saturday.

Jones' erratic punting hurt his team, but the veteran was not altogether to blame. The improving Notre Dame line usually broke through to hurry him and twice his efforts were blocked.

Indiana Leads Early.

Thirty seconds after the opening of the first quarter Indiana had rung up two points and, though it was a negative accomplishment in so far as the Hoosiers were concerned, the score went down as their first tallying in competition with Notre Dame since the 19 to 6 Notre Dame victory of 1928.

Hanley received the opening kickoff and returned it to the 15 yard line. On the next play Shakespeare fumbled and as soon as he recovered he was downed in the end zone for a safety.

This early event, as might be expected, perked up the I. U. team like everything and at the same time seemed to shock the shock troops into inept behavior.

For eight minutes I. U. enjoyed a big advantage—until Jones foozled a kick which went out of bounds at the center of the field. Elser broke through for Notre Dame's first down on Indiana's 33 yard line. Lukats lost three, then Elser fumbled, and Lyons recovered on Indiana's 41 yard line to end what appeared to be a Notre Dame threat.

Lukats Gets Away.

The second quarter barely got under way before Notre Dame took the lead on Lukats' 53 yard sprint. An attempted pass by Huffman was incomplete on the first play of the period. Huffman dropped back to try another one and a swarm of green clad athletes bore down on him. Angelmyer, left tackle and ineligible to receive passes, impulsively reached for the ball, then evidently realizing his statuts in the situation, tried to get out of the ball's path. The ball hit him, however, and under the rules governing such a situation it went to Notre Dame at the point of the preceding down, which was on Notre Dame's 47 yard line. On the first play Lukats squirmed through the left side of line, squared away on Indiana's 35 yard line, and legged it for a touchdown. He failed to add the extra point.

Notre Dame became right sprightly at the outset of the third period, but a march in which Pilney was the main man offensively with dashes including a 22 yard and a six yard gain, was halted by Indiana a foot from the Crimson line. After Pilney had found a hole at his left guard to put the ball on the nine yard line he cut through to advance to the three yard line. Elser made two yards on a plunge, but on fourth down Pilney was stopped less than a foot from a touchdown.

Elser Goes Over.

Jones kicked from the end zone, but the ball was brought back and Notre Dame was penalized 15 yards for holding. Sutherland ran his right end to Indiana's 40 yard line. After two plays had failed Indiana kicked and Notre Dame after three plays punted, Elser getting off the best punt of the day for a net of 70 yards to Indiana's 16 yard line.

Elser made his touchdown about half way through the final quarter after several spurts had buoyed the spirits of the Bloomington contingent. The first of these cheering events was Dauer's recovery of Layden's fumble on Notre Dame's 39 yard line and immediately afterward the first completed forward pass of the afternoon, Jones to Schilawski, netted 15 yards. But there was a swing of the pendulum when Elser intercepted Dauer's pass on Notre Dame's 21 yard line.

Notre Dame punted and, after failure to progress, Indiana tried kicking out. Jones' punt was blocked, however, and Layden recovered. Elser and Brancheau moved up seven yards, then Lukats made it first down by inches on Indiana's 10 yard line. Elser then went around his left end for the touchdown. Lukats again failed to kick the extra point.

HOME TOWNERS TO SEE ROOT IN ACTION TODAY

Middletown, O., Oct. 14.—Special.]—Charley Root of the Chicago Cubs will return to the scene of his first pitching efforts tomorrow when he takes the mound for Armco against Indianapolis in the first of a three game series for the championship of the Indiana-Ohio league.

Charley, a Middletown boy, got his start in baseball on the Armco team while employed in the foundry of the team's sponsoring company.

Armco will also add Ethan Allen of the St. Louis Cardinals, and John Heving, American league catcher, for this series.

ILLINOIS WINS FROM BADGERS IN HARRIER RACE

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—The Illinois cross-country team defeated Wisconsin here today 24 to 35½. Bone of the Badgers finished first, but the Illini took four out of the next five places. The winning time was 17:07.5 for the three and a quarter mile course. The first five finishers were as follows:

1. Bone, Wisconsin, 17:07.5.
2. Dufresne, Illinois, 17:15.
3. Schwalbach, Wisconsin, 17:55.
4. Galland, Illinois, 17:56.
5. Gandmeier, Illinois, 18:05.

LICENSES SALE FALLS OFF AS SEASON OPENS

Canton, Ill., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—There have been fewer applications for hunting licenses, with the duck hunting season opening Monday, than in several years, City Clerk Joseph Waugh announced today. Despite the fact that the Illinois river is lower than for several seasons at this time of the year hunting conditions are reported to be exceptionally good.

Aurora Boosters Beat Stateville Eleven, 20-7

Joliet, Ill., Oct. 14.—Stateville varsity lost to the Aurora Boosters on the prison gridiron this afternoon, 20 to 7. Stateville scored in the first quarter when John [Speedy] Lynch, quarter back, plunged over after a march down the field. The prison team missed a chance to score again late in the second period when it fumbled on the five yard line. Three members of the Aurora team were treated for minor injuries at the prison hospital.

MICHIGAN STATE RALLIES TO BEAT WESLEYAN, 20-12

Score Three Touchdowns in Second Quarter.

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Michigan State's Spartans staged a second half comeback today to win the third annual encounter with Illinois Wesleyan, 20 to 12.

The Bloomington team showed a strong offense and impenetrable defense in the first half, establishing a 12 to 0 lead, partly by capitalizing on State mistakes. Weger, a half, and Kaska, full back, bore the brunt of the Wesleyan offensive, the former making a long end run in the second half to place the ball on the one yard line from which point Kaska carried it over. The second touchdown, coming in the same quarter, resulted from a long pass, Weger to R. Neuman.

State Stages Comeback.

The Spartans came back to play Wesleyan to a standstill and assume the lead late in the final period. McCrary, Negro full back, and McNutt did the heavy work in preparation for the first State touchdown, which came on a long pass from Muth to Warmbein. After missing another scoring opportunity when State had the ball on the Wesleyan one yard line, another pass, Armstrong to McCrary, clicked for a second touchdown early in the fourth quarter after a series of end runs and cross bucks had pushed Wesleyan back nearly to its goal line. McCrary place kicked for both extra points and the Spartans were ahead.

Benson Fumbles Punt.

Wesleyan apparently was tiring and Benson fumbled a punt on his 44 yard line to give State another scoring opportunity. McNutt's recovery of the ball was questioned by Benson and the latter was ejected from the game by Umpire Paul Goebel. After two plays, which gave State a first down, McCrary ran off left tackle for 34 yards and the final touchdown. Lineup:

ILLINOIS WESLEYAN [12].		MICHIGAN STATE [20].
R. Neuman	L.E.	Jackson
Blazine	L.T.	Buss
Cutlip	L.G.	Lay
Sweat	C.	Paxson
H. Sweeney	R.G.	Terlaak
Kasovilka	R.T.	Reavely
McMackin	R.E.	Klewicki
Benson	Q.B.	Muth
Weger	L.H.	Warmbein
Appleton	R.H.	McNutt
Kaska	F.B.	McCrary

Touchdowns—Warmbein, McCrary [2], Kaska, R. Neuman. Points after touchdown—McCrary [2].
Referee—Dwight W. Rich [Columbia]. Umpire—Paul G. Goebel [Michigan]. Field judge—R. V. Bovil [W. and J.]. Linesman—H. H. Donnelly [Olivet].

AUGUSTANA TIED, 6-6.

Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Augustana played a 6 to 6 tie with North Central today at its homecoming game. Augustana still remains undefeated since 1931, but its chance of winning the Little Nineteen championship apparently was dimmed considerably.

Spiegler, North Central reserve half back, stopped March when Augustana had the ball on the five yard line in the third quarter and then blocked a pass when Augustana threattned to score again.

Dillon, co-captain of the North Central team, scored a touchdown in the third quarter when he caught Russel's fumble and ran 50 yards. Dittman's place kick failed. Grumley, reserve half back, led the Augustana offensive in the second half, his long runs placing the ball on the seven yard line from which Marack went over. Summary:

MONMOUTH WINS; OUTGAINED.

Jacksonville, Ill., Oct. 14.—(AP)—A bad pass and a blocked punt gave Monmouth a 13 to 2 victory over Illinois college here today. Illinois scored 11 first down to Monmouth's two. Winbigler and Woll scored touchdowns.

LAWRENCE WINS, 6-0.

Lawrence college handed Lake Forest its first defeat of the season yesterday at Lake Forest, 6 to 0. Lake Forest fumbled punts frequently.

Lake Forest blocked a kick in the second quarter and recovered on the 8 yard line, but failed to score on three line plays and a pass over the goal line.

Lawrence threatened early in the fourth quarter, but Lake Forest held. Two minutes later Walter returned Lake Forest's punt 15 yards and on the next play he ran 18 yards for the Lawrence score.

GARY, 7; DE KALB, 0.

Gary, Ind., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Gary Junior college defeated Northern Illinois State Teachers of De Kalb, Ill., today, 7 to 0. In the second half, Gary launched a 70 yard drive which ended with Earl Smith, Negro half back, skidding off guard for the touchdown. Cooper made the extra point on a placement kick.

MACOMB CRUSHED, 45-0.

Carbondale, Ill., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—The Southern Illinois Teachers crushed the Macomb Teachers, 45 to 0, here today, the first time the two football teams ever met. With the score 20 to 0 at the half the Southerners sent in their second team. Macomb, although hopelessly defeated, made a last minute effort to score with a 75 yard march that was halted by the whistle half a yard from the goal.

ELMHURST, WHEATON TIE.

Elmhurst and Wheaton colleges battled to a 6 to 6 yesterday in Elmhurst's homecoming game. Glover scored for Wheaton in the second period after grabbing a pass. Armin Rusicke, Elmhurst right half back, evened the score in the third quarter when he plunged over from the one yard line.

ILLINOIS NORMAL WINS.

Charleston, Ill., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Homecoming turned out to be a dreary day for Eastern Illinois State Teachers college today when Illinois Normal's eleven romped to a 32 to 6 victory. The Red Birds scored a touchdown in the first, second and twenty points in the last period. Murray was the leading scorer. The Teachers scored in the final period on a 35 yard pass, Evers to Funkhouse.

MENDOTA WINS, 26-0.

Mendota, Ill., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—The Mendota High school football team opened its home season here today by defeating DeKalb High, 26 to 0, in a North Central conference game.

THE ROLLING PEANUT.

THE WAKE has received a letter from George Ade, author, playwright, and food fellow, asking for assistance. George Ade is one busy person who has never been too busy to do favors for others when a gratis product of his pen was asked, whether it be for a Purdue alumni publication or dinner, Forty club anniversary, C. A. A. magazine, or what not.

Therefore we pass along to Helpers this communication from Mr. Ade:

Hazelden Farm, Brook, Ind.—Dear Harvey: In 1905 I was the owner of a one cylinder Juggernaut with a curved dash and a steering helm, and a crank on the side, the same as a hand organ. At the request of the makers I wrote a little book about the car, the title being "The Rolling Peanut."

I am trying very hard to find some copies of this little book, and I thought maybe you would print this letter and let your millions of readers know that I will be glad to negotiate for copies, which may be sent to Brook, Ind. If you sneak this letter in I will pay you by sending the following items for your column:

I can remember 'way back when morning papers came out in the morning.

Pearl Putt, who lives near here, has been made the queen of our golf club.

Bob Fitzsimmons thought he could sing. If you wanted a good interview with him, all you had to do was praise his rendition of "Sweet and Low," which was his favorite.

Two hours before Fitz met Maher for the heavyweight championship of the world he hopped off the train at a lonesome railway station in Texas and indulged in a "wrestling" match with a full grown bear, chained to a pole in front of a saloon. His manager, Martin Julian, tried to stop the battle, but was afraid to go near the bear.

I am, with best wishes, sincerely,
George Ade.

A Singer and Her Song.

HTW: A very large chanteuse arose in a Chicago cabaret and began dolefully to chant, "I Cover the Water Front." A gentleman at a ringside table who had indulged not too wisely but a little too well glanced at the abundance of the singer's physical proportions and commented openly, "Sister, you not only cover the water front, but you interfere with the view quite a bit inland."

Memories.

When the sun hangs low in the summer sky
And the day is near its close,
The breeze wafts scents of the new mown hay
And the flaming garden rose.
The cows come slowly down the lane,
And the children all come home again.

When the winter moon is cold and white
And the night is stark and still,
When your thoughts turn back to yesteryear
And your eyes mist 'gainst your will,
For scattered are all in the world so wide,
And you sit alone by the old fireside.

"What are you doing nowadays?"
"O, I play the market."
"Are you a bull or a bear?"
"Neither; just an ass."

Blissful Bob.

CARROLL BEATS RIPON WITH A SAFETY, 9 TO 7

Ripon, Wis., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Carroll ruined Ripon's homecoming today, winning, 9 to 7. An automatic safety on a blocked Ripon punt in the fourth quarter gave the Pioneers the two point margin. Frequent fumbles halted Ripon's stronger offense. Ripon fumbled four times when within scoring territory.

Carroll scored first in the third quarter, Jordan running from midfield for a touchdown on a short pass from Jacobs. Jordan place kicked for the extra point. Carroll's safety came in the fourth period when Duac's point was blocked and fell into the end zone.

Ripon scored in the final minute of play. Three successive first downs took the ball to the one yard line from where Duac plunged over to score. Holmes place kicked for the extra point.

Ripon gained 155 yards from scrimmage and made eight first downs. Carroll made 85 from scrimmage and four first downs. Powell and Holmes did most of the ball carrying for Ripon while Jacobson and Jordan were Carroll's best ground gainers. Defensively Greco, Ripon center, was the outstanding man on the field.

NEBRASKA BACKS HAMMER IOWA STATE LINE, 20-0

Substitutes Put Over the Final Touchdown.

Ames, Ia., Oct. 14.—(AP)—A well oiled Nebraska football machine which never fully opened up trounced Iowa State, 20 to 0 today. The Cyclones showed superiority only in punting. They made only one first down.

Nebraska's back field, particularly the veterans George Sauer and Bernie Masterson, and the substitute, Skewes, were stopped on few plays, slashing to right or left with equal effectiveness.

Starting from Iowa State's 44 yard line, Miller, Boswell, and Masterson advanced 27 yards in three plays for the Huskers. A forward-lateral, Sauer to Roby to Boswell, planted the ball two yards from the goal and Masterson went over.

In the final minutes of the third period Parsons, a substitute for Miller, led a drive from the Nebraska 46 yard line to Iowa State's six yard mark. A new team went in as the final quarter closed, and it took only two plays to run the ball over, Skewes making the touchdown. A 25 yard pass from Skewes to Yelkin brought the third touchdown.

Nebraska superiority was shown clearly in the statistics, Nebraska making 22 first downs to Iowa State's one. The Cyclones gained only 29 yards from scrimmage and nine on passes, while Nebraska rolled up a total of 372 from scrimmage and 68 from passes.

KANSAS STATE, 33; MISSOURI, 0.

Columbia, Mo., Oct. 14.—(AP)—A polished aerial offensive directed by Quarter Back Lee Morgan, coupled with smashing line charges manned principally by Capt. Ralph Graham, full back, enabled Kansas State college to administer a 33 to 0 defeat to the Missouri Tigers in the Big Six conference football season opener today before a crowd of 7,000.

The Wildcats rained passes all over the lot, completing 11 out of 21 attempts for a total gain of 219 yards through the air, to give the Tigers the most decisive thumping they ever received from Kansas State in 19 years of football rivalry.

350 Entries in Horse Show Break Record

Assurances were given yesterday that the World's Fair horse show, which will open next Saturday night at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue, will be the largest event of its kind ever held.

More than 350 horses have been nominated, as compared with 250 expected to enter. Porter Fox, president of the show, announced that practically all leading exhibitors of the United States and Canada have chosen the pick of their strings to compete for the World's Fair ribbons and the $30,000 in cash prizes.

Competing in the ring will be the champion army teams of the United States, Sweden, Irish Free State, and Szechoslovakia. These officers are entered in the four cornered international military jumping classes.

The Swedish riders have been in Chicago for more than a week. Arriving yesterday were the Czechoslovakian quartet and their mounts. They will take their first workout tomorrow.

The Irish officers and their jumpers are on their way to Chicago following arrival yesterday in Boston. Count Gustaf Frederik von Rosen and his fellow members of the Swedish team speak in glowing terms of the clever Irish riders. The United States entry is due tomorrow.

In addition to the record number of horses entered there will be more classes than ever before, 189 in all. The management will give five prizes instead of the customary four in each event.

Every type of horse will be in the ring to curry the favor of the judges. There will be the saddle classes, with such famed performers as Sweetheart on Parade, owned by Mrs. William P. Roth of California; harness horses, including Mary Gwyn Fiers' Roxie Highland from Oklahoma; Mrs. Jock Whitney's brilliant octet of gray jumpers from New York, and the Anheuser-Busch championship draft team from St. Louis.

This week will mark the arrival of the competing horses, many of which are not purchasable at any price. Maj. Roy B. Nordheimer, managing director of the show, has been on the scene with his staff for several days.

SIDNEY GRANT WINS CUP RACE BY FIVE LENGTHS

Leads Field Over Long Route as Track Closes.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Sidney Grant is the iron-hearted horse of Chicago racing and Speedy Skippy is the fastest thing on four legs around here among the 2 year olds.

They were the outstanding horses yesterday at Washington Park, where a big crowd gathered to see the curtain go down on the major Chicago racing season for the year.

Sidney Grant, after leading from flagfall to the finish, won the $2,000 Washington Park Cup at two miles and a quarter by five lengths. Speedy Skippy stepped in lively fashion to take the $2,500 Lakeside Juvenile handicap by a length and a half.

It's Hardly a Contest.

It was the long grind of the cup race, the greatest endurance test offered in Chicago on the flat in many years, which held the interest of the big closing day crowd. Yet Sidney Grant, a 6 year old son of Maintenant-Flittersan, won it so easily it was hardly a contest.

It was the first race Sidney Grant has won this year in 17 starts and the third time he had even been in the money. The field against him was composed of route running selling platers, however, and if he had four legs to stand on it appeared that Sidney Grant should win it on his class alone.

He did it in handy fashion. His advantage was never threatened. He ran in even stride all the way, turning the three-quarters in 1:17 far in front, the mile and a quarter in 2:10, still far in front, the two miles in 3:22, and rounded out the two miles and a quarter in 3:54 2-5. He was ridden by Jockey Melvin Lewis. This time was far off the American track record of 3:28 for the distance, held by Mike Hall.

Sidney Grant Returns $5.20.

Sidney Grant paid $5.20 in the $2 betting. He is owned by Abraham Bartelstein of Chicago. Watch Tower finished second, but was completely outclassed by Sidney Grant. Excellency was third.

Ideal autumn weather and a lightning fast track found 15,000 trying desperately to pick winners. It was the largest crowd of the Washington Park autumn season and wagered so energetically and with such volume that it was reported the track wound up the season showing a small profit.

Two weeks of bad weather and poor track conditions had cut the crowds and caused the track to suffer a loss. During the last four days of the season, however, with good weather prevailing, the track was packed and turnstiles and mutuel machines hummed almost as they did back in the boom days.

Everybody at the track appeared to have money and did not hesitate in backing their judgment.

Speedy Skippy Goes to Outside.

In the Lakeside the Audley farm entry of Trey and Wacoche ruled as almost a prohibitive favorite. When Trey jumped out into a lead of two lengths before the field had gone a furlong it looked like pay day for the favorite players.

Trey continued to lead around the bend, with Penncote second, Wacoche third, and Speedy Skippy running fourth. Heading into the stretch Penncote jumped into the lead, and the dash forward left Trey floundering and caused Wacoche to all but quit running.

Jockey Corbett took Speedy Skippy to the outside. He began to run like the wind. His backers sent up a shout. He came on and on until his nose was in front of Penncote. Then he went on to win going away by a length and a half. Penncote had no trouble holding the startled Trey safe to save second money. Trey finished third and Fiji moved up to be fourth.

Speedy Skippy Earns $2,145.

Speedy Skippy, a son of Paicenes-Dicks Daughter, bred by C. W. Hay, general manager of the Washington Park track, ran the six furlongs, carrying 116 pounds, in 1:11 3-5. He was just galloping when it ended. In the mutuels he paid $6.94.

Speedy Skippy races for H. Cooper of Kentucky, a subsidiary of the Jack Howard stable. He's the most promising racer sent out by Paicenes. The race was worth $2,145 to Owner Cooper.

During the afternoon two sensational races were run. Bedight ran six furlongs in 1:11 to tie the track record and win the Au Revoir purse, while Bonny Maureen, a California mare from L. T. Whitehill's stable, galloped a mile in 1:36 3-5 to capture the third race. She wound up a daily double which, coupled with Sister Zoe, paid off at $70.70.

Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 4 o'clock. At post 1 minute. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

GRAMARYE, allowed to drop out of it and strongly restrained until reaching last three-eighths, stood mild pressure gamely entire final quarter and got up in closing strides. DAMASCENE, rated off the pace for five-eighths, took command quickly and held on stubbornly, but was not good enough. OUR JUSTICE was a strong factor throughout and held on well. PULIS weakened in stretch.

SPEEDY SKIPPY, jostled about at far turn, saved ground approaching stretch and brought out for final quarter, closed with fine speed, disposing of the leaders for a handy win. PENNCOTE, going in her best form and a strong factor from start, worked her way to front under strong hand riding, but could not withstand the winner. TREY had fine speed, saved ground after a quarter and weakened under his impost after reaching final eighth.

SIDNEY GRANT saved ground when drawing away into a long lead in first half mile, was cleverly rated and given a breathing spell when rounding far turn into the final half mile, easily held WATCH TOWER safe in final run. Latter, under stout restraint until reaching final half mile and saving ground throughout, held on well, but was no match for the winner. EXCELLENCY, far out of it until reaching final quarter, passed tired horses in stretch.

Open Meeting Tomorrow at ½ Mile Track

Sportsman's Park, half mile track in Cicero, will be the next scene of operation for Chicagoland's horse race fans. Starting tomorrow afternoon, the National Jockey club opens a 14 day program which will be the final Illinois meeting of the season.

Hundreds of racers are already stabled at the half miler, and many more will move in today from Washington Park, which closed its meeting yesterday. In all there will be more than 750 head stabled at Sportsman's and nearby tracks, according to Racing Secretary Robert Shelley.

Many leading riders have registered for the meeting among them are H. Hughes, Eddie Arcaro, J. Hunter, and A. Anderson, top flight performers at Washington Park, and Johnny Logden, leading rider of the western Canada tracks. Arcaro was the star of the spring meeting at Sportsman's.

ILLINI SOCCER TEAM DEFEATS BADGERS, 1 TO 0

who caught it on the run, reversed his field twice, eluding tacklers with a neat change of pace, and ran 68 yards for the third score, caroming off his own interferers in the last few yards.

Nyquist Plunges Over.

Chicago's fourth score followed upon an exchange of several punts in the third quarter. Zimmer returned one of the punts of Ray Hobbs, defensive star of the game with his long kicks, thirty yards along the sidelines to the Washington 20 yard mark. Berwanger, Nyquist, and Wallace smashed through to the goal, with Nyquist going over.

Washington took the aggressive in the beginning of the final quarter against Chicago's second team and was stopped twice, once by a fumble which Deem recovered for Chicago on the Maroon's 15 yard line and again on a pass interception, which Smith took out of the hands of Hobbs. Sahlin then squirmed out of a mass of players on his own 41 yard line and wove his way 59 yards to the goal. The last Chicago score was a tag-end affair in which Mavrakis of Washington tried a pass from his own 18 yard line which was intercepted by Wallace. Keith Hatter, reserve back for Chicago, made five yards through the line and then lobbed a pass ten yards to Bill Langley, reserve end, who clutched it on the goal line.

Illini Defeat Badgers, 21-0; Lindberg Runs 74 Yards

Lindberg repeatedly got away kicks that traveled more than 60 yards from the line of scrimmage and either rolled out of bounds or were downed by the alert Illini forwards within a short distance of the Badger goal.

Badgers Good at Start.

The Badgers' vaunted power in the back field was in evidence only at the outset of the game. Capt. Hal Smith chose to defend the south goal with the wind at his back. Illinois kicked and an exchange of punts left the ball on the Wisconsin 13 yard line. Fontaine ripped through the line for five yards and Smith followed it up with a 27 yard gain through right guard. Schiller was stopped at the line of scrimmage, but Fontaine tore through guard again for 10 more yards and a second successive first down. Then the Badger attack bogged down.

A few more punts found Illinois with the ball on Wisconsin's 38 yard line, Beynon having returned a punt for 15 yards. On the first play, Lindberg fumbled and Fontaine recovered on Wisconsin's 43 yard line, but the Badger attack couldn't gain and Fontaine punted over the goal line. Just before the quarter ended, Fontaine and Smith worked the ball up to the Illinois 38 yard line, the Badgers' farthest advance until the last period.

Wind Helps Illini.

As soon as the teams switched goals, Illinois took advantage of the wind. Once Lindberg punted 71 yards to the Badger nine yard line and a few minutes later followed it up with another of 65 yards, Schusteki downing the ball on the same spot. Fontaine punted out and Beynon, who returned kicks with considerable skill all afternoon, dashed back 15 yards to Wisconsin's 15 yard line. Cook made three yards through the line.

Then Beynon called a pass, his first of the game. Froschauer dropped it near the side line. Beynon followed it up immediately with another, this time to Frink, the left end, who caught it in the flat zone and just as two Wisconsin tacklers bore him to the ground, flipped it laterally to Froschauer, who was coming around fast toward the west side line. He caught the ball on the dead run and raced down the side of the field unmolested 32 yards to the goal line. Cummings kicked the point after touchdown.

Again in the third quarter it was punting that placed Illinois in a position to score. With the ball near the middle of the field, Beynon punted out of bounds on Wisconsin's 19 yard line. On the first play, Peterson, who had replaced Fontaine, fumbled and Lindberg recovered on the 22 yard line. The Illini hopped into a wide spread formation and Froschauer ran around his left end for five yards. Again the Illini spread, and this time Cook slipped through guard for four yards. Beynon passed to Froschauer for the necessary yardage to make it first down on the 11 yard line.

Lindberg ran wide around his left end for nine yards and Cook went through the center of the line for another first down, a foot away from Badgers' goal. Cook went over for the Illini's second touchdown on the next play. Cummings, who had been taken out in favor of Palmer, returned to the game to kick the point after touchdown from placement.

Coaches—Dr. C. W. Spears, Wisconsin; Robert Zuppke, Illinois.

Lindberg Makes Long Run.

On the first play after the last quarter opened Smith punted from his 27 yard line to Beynon, who returned it to his own 26 yard line. Steve Steib, who had taken Froschauer's place in the Illini back field, couldn't gain through the line, so Lindberg tried. He went off left tackle and into the open. He dodged two tacklers, cut over toward the west side line and headed south, with Deanovich, the Wisconsin left end, Kundert, the left half back, racing along only a few yards behind. For a time they moved up on the flying sophomore, but as he neared the Badgers' 25 yard line, he began to pull away and finished his 74 yard run to the goal standing up and well out in front.

From then on a flock of substitutions kept the complexion of the Illini team constantly changing. Cliff Gano, a sophomore quarter back, returned one of Smith's punts 20 yards to midfield, but on the next play he fumbled and Ferguson recovered for Wisconsin. Smith's plunging and a pass from Fontaine to Smith gave the Badgers two successive first downs and, when the Illini secondary interfered, a second pass was ruled complete on the Illini 12 yard line. The blue jerseyed line stiffened there and held for downs, taking the ball on the three yard line. Snook got away a bad punt against the wind and Wisconsin took the ball again on the 26 yard line, but a fumble by Fontaine after he had made one first down on an eleven yard run, ended the Badgers' hopes of scoring.

WHY SUFFER? A WRESTLER DOES IT SO EASILY!

Stadium Rounds Up a Few Pain Dealers.

The first peep of the new indoor sports season turns out to be not a peep after all but a groan and a grunt—wrestlers' groans and grunts.

The place is the Chicago Stadium, the time is a week from Wednesday. The participants will be James McMillen and Joseph Stecher in the feature rôles, with George Zaharias, Ray Steele, Milo Steinborn, Pat O'Shocker, and Gino Garibaldi among others in the supporting cast.

In attempting to direct the public mind from the great outdoors to the great indoors the publicity department of the Chicago Stadium makes a good point. Listen:

"It is human nature, when one is having a tough time, to get a kick out of watching another fellow suffer. Many of us won't admit this trait, but every one possesses it more or less. And all there is to wrestling is trouble. The sport gives you a chance to enjoy yourself in a comfortable big red seat while the other fellow suffers."

The Best "Sufferers" Are Here.

Some of our best "sufferers" as rated in wrestling circles are on the Stadium card. Stecher's pet pain producer is the scissors hold, a grip in which he entwines his legs around an opponent's body and squeezes until something gives.

McMillen measures out misery through the application of the flying tackle. He throws his huge body through the air, strikes a foe amidships, and while he is hors du wrestling on the mat flattens him by rolling him over and touching both shoulders to the canvas.

Zaharias is an old meany. He does everything the rules allow to the other fellow, and then when the latter retaliates sets up a loud weeping and wailing.

Mussolini Loves Him, Too.

Garibaldi is taller than Carnera, although not quite so bulky, but Mussolini loves him just as much, and so do Gino's fellow Italians. The tall wrestler apparently is a quiet workman, but when annoyed rages around the ring. This, like Zaharias' crying, also taps the fount of public emotion.

Such entertainment, so the Stadium publicity department avers, is just what the public needs. It's a safety valve. For those who take their wrestling seriously, it is added that Jim Londos is signed to meet the Stecher-McMillen winner next month.

More than 15,000 seats are scaled at $1.10 for the show.

Two Beauties at A CENTURY OF PROGRESS
Miss Lillian Anderson, Queen of A Century of Progress Exposition, Chicago, is shown in this actual photograph of the beautiful new Model D-1 Truck on display in the International Harvester exhibit at the World's Fair. The half-ton Model D-1 is available equipped with two types of bodies—the modern panel body illustrated and a neat, trim cab and pick-up body. A catalog will be sent on request.

THIS YEAR International Harvester is making rapid strides in a new field of transportation—the half-ton truck field! The smart, beautiful, low-cost Model D-1 has made this new success possible.

The Model D-1 is a quality job from end to end, carrying with it all the advantages of Harvester experience and Harvester service. Its chassis features include 113-inch wheelbase; 6-cylinder, high-compression engine; tool steel exhaust-valve seat inserts; full-pressure lubrication; centrifugal pump cooling; air cleaner; fuel filter; vibration-dampened clutch; self-adjusting spring shackles; and chrome-vanadium steel springs. Yet the half-ton Model D-1 is sold at the lowest price ever quoted on an International Truck.

Remember that International offers you good small trucks and good big trucks... and a complete range of sizes in between. Ask us to arrange demonstrations of whatever model your business demands. Not the slightest obligation, of course.

• Hardened Exhaust-Valve Seat Inserts are an International engine feature. They retard valve seat burning, engine efficiency is retained, and valves seldom need grinding. Details like these spell low-cost hauling for years.

HUNTERS OPEN FIRE TOMORROW ON WATERFOWL

Guns Roar Annual Salute to Ducks, Geese.

BY BOB BECKER.

For thousands of waterfowl hunters in Chicagoland, along the Mississippi river and in the famous Illinois river valley, today is a sort of "zero hour." It's the last day of waiting before the 1933 waterfowl season begins and the last chance to make arrangements for boats, blinds and decoys because tomorrow the season officially opens at noon under the regulations issued by the U. S. department of agriculture.

Starting at exactly 12 o'clock tomorrow, it becomes legal to hunt mudhens or coots, ducks, geese, and jacksnipe. Hunters are warned to hold their fire until midday, because both federal and state wardens will be policing many of our waterfowl areas to see that everybody gets a fair start at the time specified by the government regulations.

Remember Closed List!

Jacksnipe hunters also must heed the 12 o'clock starting time. Another restriction to be kept in mind is that ruddy ducks, buffleheads, and wood ducks are on the closed list this year. It is against the law to kill these birds at any time. According to the state law, every hunter must have his license on his person while out hunting.

The opening of the Illinois waterfowl season sees two hunter "migrations" from Chicagoland. One march from northern Illinois will start this afternoon when sportsmen who are opening the season downstate leave for their favorite shooting spots which are several hundred miles from the loop. Although there has been no big flight of birds from the north, opening day sees a pretty good bunch of so-called "local" birds in the Illinois and Sangamon river marshes. Therefore, the first few days of the season provide fair sport.

Northern Lakes Draw Crowds.

The second migration of hunters from Chicagoland will take place early tomorrow morning. Most of these shooters will be heading for the northern Illinois lake region, where Grass lake, Fox, Nippersink, and other bodies of water offer mudhen shooting.

Inasmuch as it is mostly a case of "everybody for himself" in this territory, the shooters get their boats early and row to positions in the marsh vegetation, there to wait until 12 o'clock. When the siren blows the cannonading is so terrific and so much shot is flying around that it makes Buffalo Bill's old wild west show with black powder and screeching Indians look and sound like a sewing circle.

Several hundred thousand rounds of shotgun ammunition are fired by the eager mudhen shooters on a normal day when the full quota of shotgun users is on the job.

New Migration Soon.

After this opening day flurry with the local ducks a migration of birds from the north will be counted on to bring the next spurt in hunting pintails, mallards, and other species. We may look for a storm to send the ducks down this way some time between Oct. 18 and Oct. 25 if our autumn weather runs truest to form. In the meantime hunters who are planning on visiting day shooting places should be making their reservations so that they will be able to get a blind when they wish to try their luck.

SIX GIRLS ENTER ELGIN TO CHICAGO BIKE MARATHON

One hundred and forty-one amateur bicycle riders have entered the 46 mile Elgin to Chicago road race which will be held next Sunday, Oct. 22, under sponsorship of the Homer J. Byrd A. C. The list includes six girls, all of whom will receive a time allowance of 45 minutes over the men contestants.

The race route will follow the Fox River trail from Elgin through the towns of Algonquin and Dundee to the northwest highway, over the Northwest highway through Cary, Fox River Grove, Barrington, Palatine, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines to Touhy avenue in Park Ridge, turning left in Touhy avenue to Milwaukee avenue in Niles, right on Milwaukee avenue to Devon, and left one half mile to the finish line in front of the Emmett Whealan pool.

Among the entrants are Henry Sima of the Henry Wheelman, the present Illinois state champion; Wally Vertenten of the Belgian-American Cycle club, the city champion; Jerry Rodman of the Carl Stockholm Cycle club, Ed Tries of the Stockholm club, last year's state champion; and Harold Ade of the Belgian club, member of America's Olympic cycling team.

SNYDER DRIVES IN RACES TODAY AT EVANSTON

Jimmy Snyder, a new star in automobile racing; Shorty Sorenson of Detroit; Emil Andres of Evanston; and Gordon Chard and Verne Frank of Ohio will take part in the events today at the Evanston Motor speedway, Lincoln and Devon avenues.

Starting at 2:30 p. m., there will be three races. One will be at 15 laps, one at 30 laps and the other, a three-car match, at 10 laps. In the match event, contestants will be determined by the fastest qualifiers in time trials.

Snyder last week won the 100 mile dirt track championship race at Roby speedway, while Andres and Franke finished second and third. Sorenson and Chard will have new cars for today's program.

RUNNING AWAY FROM THE FIELD

Juan Zabala of Argentina, 1932 Olympic Marathon champion, gallops to victory in the 30 kilometer (about 19 miles) distance run at A Century of Progress yesterday. Twenty other starters failed to extend Zabala, whose time was 1:44:45.6, nearly four minutes slower than the world's record.

Juan Zabala Wins A. A. U. Marathon; Sloboda Second

Juan Zabala, Argentina's Olympic marathon champion, pounded his way over the pavements and through a dense World's Fair crowd yesterday to win the National Amateur Athletic union's 30 kilometer championship.

The slightly built South American was never extended by the 24 other starters as he sped over the distance in 1:44:45.6, nearly four minutes slower than the world's record made by Jose Ribos of Buenos Aires, last year.

Zaballa, setting the pace from the start, crossed the finish line almost eleven minutes in front of August Sloboda, Chicago, who was timed in 1:55.27. Bruno Bassini, another Chicago runner, was a fast closing third in 1:57.37, while Frank Jerry of Pittsburgh, led the remainder of the straggling field.

For five of the eight laps William Dwyer, also from Chicago, forced the pace but never was able to extend Zabala. The Argentine runner increased his advantage with every turn around the course.

Three laps from home Sloboda took over the runner-up position, but like Dwyer, was unable to force Zabala to a faster pace, which might have led to a new world's record.

ST. JOHN'S BEATS LAWRENCE FIRST YEAR TEAM, 12-7

Delafield, Wis., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—St. John's Military academy defeated the Lawrence college freshmen this afternoon, 12 to 7. St. John's went into the game crippled by the loss of Heinze, left guard, who suffered a broken arm three hours before the time for the kickoff. Conrad ran 25 yards for St. John's first touchdown early in the opening period. In the fourth quarter Flato, St. John's right half, took the ball over for a touchdown from the 30 yard line. The freshmen's touchdown was also made in the same period when Loos took the ball over.

RACE CAR HITS FENCE; INJURES FIVE PERSONS

Belair, Md., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Five persons were hurt, three seriously, as a racing car crashed through a fence during the running of a automobile racing program at the Harford county fair today.

The driver of the car, Maynard Clark of Milan, Ill., escaped unhurt. He had completed three half mile laps and was speeding into the straightaway toward the grandstand when his car went out of control and crashed into the fence crowded with spectators, including several children.

MILLS PLAY TWO WITH AMERICAN GIANTS TODAY

The Mills team of the Wisconsin-Illinois league and the American Giants, Chicago's fastest colored team, will meet this afternoon in a double header at Mills stadium to decide which is entitled to the semi-pro supremacy of Chicago for 1933. The first game will start at 1:30 o'clock. The teams have played two double headers this season, each winning two games. Gordon McNaughton will pitch one of the games for the Mills today.

ALBION ROUTED BY KALAMAZOO IN FINAL HALF

Kalamazoo, Mich., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Kalamazoo college celebrated its centennial homecoming today with a 20 to 6 Michigan intercollegiate victory over Albion. Albion scored early in the third period on Brown's 20 yard pass to Green, who ran 30 yards. Later Neifert crashed the line for two of Kalamazoo's touchdowns and Lines went off tackle ten yards for the other.

Two Teams Set Hurricane Pace in Bowling Leagues

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

Two of the winningest teams among major league bowling leagues are the Mineralites of the Randolph league and the Illinois Pies of the Windy City league.

With Fliger, Steers, Rusch, Wright, and Karthelser knocking the pins dizzy, the Mineralites are batting 1.000 against Randolph league opposition in twelve games. The latest conquest was three in a row over the Birk Brothers' team of Geiser, Pekle, Krisch, Traubinik, and Lellinger.

A record almost as impressive is that of the Illinois Pies who have brushed aside Windy City league rivals in fourteen out of fifteen starts. That one black mark on the slate did not come until the league's most recent session, when the lowly Vogels reared up to stop the rush of A. Komrska, A. Hoffenkamp, S. Kosobucki, and J. Jilek, the mainstays of the Illinois Pies, whose team averages 996.

The Windy City league will resume action tomorrow night with the following games:

Rosedale Dairy vs. Illinois Pie company; Curtiss Buy-Jiminy vs. J. M. Kralovec & Sons; Cicero Boosters vs. Mineralites; Pilsen Olympias vs. Atlas Wet Wash; Svehla Prima Beer vs. Rock Garden Tavern; Vogel Brothers vs. Monarch Old Times; Soper Brothers vs. Corina Cigars; Blazek Tailors vs. A. J. Cermaks.

The Randolph league schedule for Thursday:

9 o'clock—Wagner & Hanson vs. Bowlers Journal; Burlington Route vs. Von Thenen Café; Sunkist Pies vs. Litsinger Motors; Live Stock Press vs. Anheuser-Busch.

Classic Race Tightens.

The men's Classic league race has tightened with the Moulding-Brownells leading the second place Baby Ruths by one game, their respective records being 26 won and 13 lost, and 25 won and 14 lost. W. Ott of Olive Can, averaging 212 for 15 games, is the new individual leader, while Ad Carlson of Lorenz Knitting is second with 211. High series is now owned by the Budweisers with 3,279. Charley Wass shot two 700 series during the week, his best being 729. Tonight's schedule will be:

Old Manhattan vs. Baby Ruth at Gold Coast; Stevenson Heating vs. Lorenz Knitting at Goldammer's Garden; Arlington Bowlers' Aid vs. Budweiser at Cinderella; Edelweiss vs. A. J. Cermaks at Windy City; Olive Can vs. Moulding-Brownell at Schueneman's Logan Square.

About the Women.

M. Fukal of Windy City tops the individual averages of the women's Classic league with a 178 average, followed by B. Fender of Petersens and M. Warmbier of Blue Ribbons, each with 177. Garden Recreation and Windy City are the team leaders with 6 won and 3 lost. Next games on Wednesday will be rolled at Garden Recreation, 4074 Milwaukee avenue.

Exceptional scores are being registered in the Samuelson Arcade Women's Major league, as witness these series: Anna Walz, 585; Gertrude Samuelson, [illegible]; Ruth Gruenes, 542; Lill Roos, 533; Bertha MacEwan, 530, and a dozen other series over the 500 mark. Irving Smart Shop is leading the league with 10 victories and 5 defeats, while Martha Benedick is the individual pacesetter with a 169 average, followed by Helen Miller, 167; Elsie Carlson, 164; Marie Ledene, 164; Ida Johnson, 162, and Theresa Koehne, Rose Boyle, and Bertha MacEwan, each with 160.

The Alberti Jewelers, claimants of the women's team championship of the world, will roll the Brady men's team tonight at the Bruck Recreation, 6044 South Halsted street.

A league of 40 women is rolling at the Monte Cristo alleys. And are the Bigelows, who share the leadership with the Quaker Girls, each with 8 won and 4 lost, proud of their 2,636 team series! Those who combined for this total were Mrs. Wohlers, 568; Miss Griffon, 538; Mrs. Anderson, 538; Mrs. T. Berlinger, 500, and Mrs. E. Berlinger, 463. Mrs. C. Ehrns is leading the individuals with a 167 average, while Mrs. Anderson is second with 165 and Mrs. M. Shaw third with 161.

Sweepstakes.

The Clark-Lunt Recreation will conclude its individual sweepstake today for which $35 is the first prize. It's open to all, with four games across eight alleys. . . . Tom Gaynor of Western Recreation, 63d and Western, announces an individual tournament for next Saturday and Sunday with a guaranteed first award of $20. First entries include the entire personnel of the Pabst Blue Ribbon team. . . . On Oct. 28 the Stevenson and Schalk Recreation will hold its fifth annual five man sweepstakes with squads commencing at 8 and 10 p. m. All teams are eligible, the fee being $15 per squad.

North End Traveling.

By taking three from Fox's De Luxe, the Birk Brothers continued in front in the North End Traveling league, but the second place Edelweiss remained on their heels with three in a row over the H. B. Kaads. Al Bartock's 647 was the best series of the week. Outstanding on tomorrow's schedule is the Edelweiss-Birk Brothers match. The schedule:

Birk Brothers vs. Edelweiss at Milford, 7 p. m.; Luzor Cigars vs. Tavern Pales at Idle Hour, 9 p. m.; National Teas vs. Fox's De Luxe at Kaadland, 7 p. m.; Michelobs vs. Birk's Superbs at Willow, 7 p. m.; P. J. Westers at Harry Kaads at 7 p. m.

New Traveling League.

Eight teams banded together as the South End Traveling league will open their season next Saturday with a schedule that will be divided into two 14 week blocks. The winner of each half will meet for the championship in the event the same team does not finish on top both times. Teams have been formed to represent the following establishments: Laurel Recreation, Marzano's, Stevenson & Schalk, Archer-Kedzie, Western Recreation, Chicago Bowling and Billiards, Steinbrecher's, and the Highland Recreation. Carl Marzano is president, John Quan vice president, Larry Denney secretary, and Al Suva treasurer.

Here and There.

Fred Schroder blasted out a 279 game and a series of 684 to help the Gold Coast team shoot a 3,030 total in the Gold Coast Major league. Lloyd Strouse banged out 665 for Baby Ruth. The Maloneys with 12 and 3 and Curtiss Butter Fingers with 10 and 2 are the team leaders. . . . The leading Logan Beer Gardens hit a snag in the Frank Zintaks and lost two games in the Harding league. Red Dugan of the Logans, new individual leader, followed his 700 of last week with a 636 series, but his team's 11 game winning streak was broken. Another streak was ended—the Weiss Restaurants' ten game losing string—when they took two from the second place Edelweiss.

In the Woodlawn Major league the American Brakebloks shot a game of 1,090 and a series of 3,056 while winning three games and taking front place from Young's Boosters. Calloway leads the individuals with a 210 average. . . . Led by George Bernstein's 668, the L. E. Jenkins crashed through with 2,929 for high series in the Woodlawn Junior league. Brown had 651, Rosenberg 610, Hess 608, and McMahon 604. . . . The Scribes and Nortons got off to a successful start in the Hughes Council league with three victories apiece. Hanson of Nortons had 598 for high series. . . . The De Barrys were the only team to sweep their series in the Cinderella Major league, Hall, Carey, Westphal, Murray, and Boyle taking the Garcia Grandes for a ride. Marty Hogan of the Jurors cashed in with a 632 series in shooting into first place in the Peoples Gas Club league with a 197 average.

FOUR CHAMPION BIKE RACERS TO RIDE AT STADIUM

John M. Chapman has signed up four American champions to compete in Chicago's 30th international six day bicycle race which starts at the Stadium Oct. 29. The riders are: Alfred Letourner of France, the American paced champion for the last two years; George Dempsey of Brooklyn, N. Y., who dethroned Cecil Walker as the sprint champion of America, after Walker held the title three years in a row; Norman Hill, San Jose, Cal., who captured the all around championship this season; and Eddie Miller, New York youngster who is amateur champion of the United States.

Kentucky Wins on Kick in Last Three Minutes

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 14.—[U.P.]—The accurate toe of Ralph Kercheval, University of Kentucky full back, tonight defeated the University of Cincinnati, 3 to 0. Kercheval place kicked from Cincinnati's 20 yard line in the last three minutes of play.

PURDUE'S SECOND STRING BACKS TIE MINNESOTA

Drive 37 Yards Through Line to Avert Defeat.

Minnesota, in the first half, had all the power for which Minnesota teams long have been famous. Purdue failed to make a first down or to reach the center of the field. It spent the 30 minutes striving to bring down the hard running Pug Lund, the smashing Sheldon Beise and the squirming Julius Alfonse. Minnesota ran up nine first downs, two by passes, and, moreover, exercised such complete surveillance over Purdue's pasing that five were incomplete and two others intercepted. None was completed.

Purdue Stops Drive.

Minnesota's first drive started from Purdue's 47 yard line after Lund had outkicked Purvis to gain this advantage. Beise smashed over guard for three yards and Lund ripped over left tackle to Purdue's 30 yard line. The power attack piled up short gains and established a first down on Purdue's 10 yard line. Beise dashed through guard for five yards, but this was offset by a Gopher offside on the next play. Alfonse made two yards, but Seidel's lateral to Lund went out of bounds and an incomplete pass then gave the ball to Purdue on its 18 yard line.

Alfonse furnished Minnesota with a second opening in the following period when he raced 41 yards down the east sideline on a spinner play to Purdue's 26 yard line. Lund and Beise carried on to the 15 yard line in three plays, but seconds later on fourth down and five yards needed Pardonner intercepted a pass and came out to his own 17 yard line.

Checked along the ground, Minnesota turned to passes. The scoring march started with a 31 yard pass from Lund to Frank Larsen, an end, which reached Purdue's 21 yard line. Another pass, Lund to Seidel, added ten yards. Lund piled through the line at right tackle for nine yards and Beise made it first down on Purdue's one yard line. Alfonse scored on the next thrust.

Hecker Starts Attack.

Such was the status of the game when the veteran Purdue full back, Fred Hecker, intercepted Lund's pass on the final play of the third period and ran 40 yards before he was dropped from behind on the Gopher 37 yard line. Hecker might have gone all the way, but his leg injury cut down his speed. Then the Purdue bench became the scene of action as the teams changed goals.

Leon Dailey, right half, George Basker, left half, and Butch Keegan, a replacement for Hecker, jogged out on the field. With them came Dan Toriello, a number three choice at quarter back. It was Purdue's only chance to tie the score and Toriello made the most of the opportunity. He directed the attack as if he had a dozen varsity games behind him and with the drive of fresh men at his service Purdue went to town.

Three wide runs, two by Basker, and Purdue was on Minnesota's 26 yard line with a first down. Still chary of passes, the Gophers continued to use six men in the line and five in the secondary defense. This defense allignment was all Toriello asked. On successive plays Basker and Dailey reached Minnesota's 16 yard line. Two plays lost as many yards, then Basker whirled through an opening at guard for six yards. The same play smashed through the tired Gophers for a first down on the 4 yard line.

Basker Goes Over.

Minnesota held for one down. Dailey then went wide to his left for two yards before Beise brought him down. On the next signal, Basker barely reached the goal line on a knifing drive between Minnesota's left guard and left tackle. Then came Pardonner from the bench, replacing Toriello. His drop kick tied the score. Minnesota never regained poise.

Statistics show Minnesota made ten first downs to four for Purdue. Three of Purdue's first downs came in the the touchdown rush. Purdue failed to complete a pass in eight attempts, two of which were intercepted. Minnesota passed seven times, completing two for forty-one yards. Two were intercepted.

Purdue lost 15 yards for purposely grounding a pass. Minnesota was penalized sixty yards, being called twice for holding, twice for offside, once for backfield in motion and once for interference on its own forward pass.

Michigan Jolts Cornell, 40-0; Long Runs, Passes, Do Trick

Everhardus, who did the honors at the first tee for Michigan, was forced to do it twice, his first effort hooking out of bounds. He finally sent one away to Ferraro, who was brought down by Wistert on the Reds' 23 yard line. Not even a five yard assessment on Michigan for offside aided the visitors in their first ball carrying turn, and Ferraro lofted one to Fay, who returned to his 35 yard line.

Everhardus chipped off a couple of yards through right tackle, and Heston crashed through for a first down on the Michigan 45 yard line. The Reds halted Regeczi at the line, but Everhardus and Heston then gathered up nine yards, and with one yard to go and fourth down, Regeczi punted over the Cornell goal line.

Everhardus Tries Place Kick.

The Red backfield averaged a yard in two plays, and Ferraro's punt, after being smothered by Ward, was scooped up by Petoskey on the Cornell 18 yard line. Michigan failed to go anywhere in the next three plays and Everhardus tried his luck with a place kick from the 24 yard line, which sailed low and far to the right of the posts. Ferraro punted after Cornell had failed to gain, and Fay made a nice return to his 17 yard line.

Two plays through the line produced little, and Regeczi punted over the line again, inches from the corner flag. They traded punts twice, with Switzer finally sending one to Fay, who did a tight rope act and finally fell outside at his own 21 yard line, leaving Michigan in what seemed to be a pickle. Regeczi went back apparently to punt, but instead wormed his way clear with only Ferraro to pursue and eventually miss him, and the Wolverine full back finished the long run with a touchdown. Everhardus redeemed his first effort with a place kick for the extra point.

Ferraro Gets Going.

Ferraro attempted to put on a personal demonstration of ball carrying on the subsequent kickoff to the Reds, dashing to his own 46 yard line before being pushed out of bounds. Two Cornell passes were knocked down, and after the Reds had kicked, Everhardus made a timid punt of 12 yards on the third down. Cornell tried two more passes, but the second was interrupted by Fay on the Michigan 26 yard line as the quarter ended.

The Wolverines were still having difficulty in keeping their footing and Everhardus finally booted ont to Switzer, who was stopped on the Cornell 22 yard line. He soon kicked back to Westover, who slipped with the ball on his 45 yard line. Oliver, replacing Regeczi, picked up 3 yards. Everhardus, starting off on what appeared to be an everyday smack at right tackle, suddenly cut back into the wide open spaces and ran 52 yards for the second touchdown. On the attempted place kick for the extra point, Westover, who had come in for Fay, fumbled the pass from center, and Everhardus picked it up and ran, only to slip after running 10 yards toward the sidelines.

Next Michigan Attempt Fails.

The Wolverines immediately came back as though they were hungry for another touchdown before the half time curtain. After an exchange of punts during which Michigan was penalized 15 yards for illegal use of the hands, the Wolverines went to work from the Cornell 45 yard line. Everhardus got 3 off left tackle and Renner, replacing Heston, passed to Oliver for a first down on the Reds' 35 yard line. Cornell became stubborn at this point and Oliver finally kicked out of bounds on the Cornell 12 yard line.

Switzer's return punt was short, but the Wolverines were given a 15 yard penalty for roughing the kicker. The Wolverines finally regained possession of the ball on the visitors' 37 yard line. They picked up 6 yards, and Renner then tossed one to Chapman on the Cornell 19 yard line. Renner attempted another pass, but couldn't get the ball away and so carried it up to the 10 yard line. Oliver and Renner then marched to the 3 yard line, when the latter fumbled, only to have Petoskey recover it for him. Petoskey went into the backfield, but fumbled and Kossack recovered for Cornell and the threat was ended.

It's Everhardus Again!

The Wolverines did not allow the customers to become settled in their pews at the opening of the second half before they had scored a third touchdown. Everhardus attended to this personally, taking the Cornell kickoff on his nine yard line and cutting over to the left side of the field and continuing to the goal with little or no difficulty. He added the extra point on a place kick to make the score 20 to 0.

Michigan then began to make a touchdown procession of the day, scoring twice before the quarter ended. The Reds were restrained within their own territory easily and the Wolverines didn't appear to be half trying. Finally Regeczi punted over the goal line, and Cornell fumbled on the first play. Regeczi and Heston collaborated for seven yards in two efforts, Everhardus split the right side of the line for two, and Regeczi made it first down on the eight yard line.

Heston picked up a yard. Fay and Everhardus slanted off to the left and the Michigan captain threw a lateral pass which Everhardus carried over the goal line for a touchdown. Everhardus added the point that made it 27 to 0.

It's Fay's Turn Now.

After an exchange of kicks Michigan gained possession on Cornell's 45 yard line. A combination forward-lateral pass with Renner and Petosky involved, gained 12 yards. Two plunges and a lateral, Renner to Fay, brought the ball to the 18 yard line. Petoskey fumbled, but recovered and kept on coming through the line for a nine yard profit. Fay made it first down and then accepted Renner's lateral for a touchdown. Savage place kicked the extra point, just before the third period ended.

Cornell was again futile in its offensive efforts in the last period, and when Ferraro attempted to punt, Chapman blocked his kick on the Cornell's 32-yard line. The Reds evened this by intercepting Renner's pass on the first play, but it availed them naught. They began bartering punts again, and Michigan finally took the ball on its own 40 yard line. Renner, standing on his 42 yard line, tossed one to Malashevich, who caught it on the Cornell 26 yard line and dashed the remaining distance for a touchdown. Chapman's attempted place kick was wide and the Wolverines led, 40 to 0.

The only excitement for the remainder of game, aside from Cornell's frantic efforts to get somewhere with passes, was a pass from Renner to Remias, which brought Michigan to the Cornell 13 yard line. Another Michigan pass was intercepted by Stofer of Cornell and that ended that.

flopped upon by Ed Nichols, the Yale left guard, at Yale's 46 yard line.

This little accident showed a neat profit and soon after the second quarter began Stan Fuller, a Yale back, went loping off on the loose to circle the enemy's right wing for a 20 yard gain. This gave Yale a first down at the Washington and Lee 26 yard line. Curtain and Callan, Yale backs, then nudged their way through to the 15 yard line. From there Curtin made five yards in two attempts and Fuller rounded right end to a first down two yards from the goal.

Callan Goes Across.

Curtin lost two yards as Tom Boland, one of the visiting guards, smashed him down on the next play, but Callan brought it up to the one yard line on the next play and he hit center for the touchdown from there. C. Curtin then kicked the goal with Del Marting holding for him.

In the third quarter Joe Arnold, the Southerner's quarter back, made three grabs at a tumbling punt kicked from Yale's 30 yard line and was still stepping around and shooing at it like a farmer's wife trying to chase a chicken out of the garden when along came three large, burly Yales and dumped themselves all over the football. They downed it at Washington and Lee's 21 yard line, where it was Yale's ball because Arnold in his frantic reachings had cuffed it a couple of times and this play gained almost 50 yards for Yale. The guest artists had a chance to relieve this unfortunate situation on the next play when Lassiter fumbled for Yale and a Washington and Lee man recovered but this hope perished when it was ruled that both clubs had been off side and that the play was therefore null and void.

Smith and Dyer of Washington and Lee ripped through and mauled Lassiter down as he tried to pass on the next play and his throw went wild, but Fuller came charging around his left end on the next one, gaiting himself well behind strong interference, and gained eight yards. This so pleased the Yales that they tried the same play again and Fuller got a first down at the four yard line. On the third down, Fuller went off tackle for Yale's second touchdown.

This Was Another Curtin.

Curtin kicked the goal. This was Clare Curtin, the tackle, not Tom, the back field. It is not easy to keep the Curtins parted here at the Yale games.

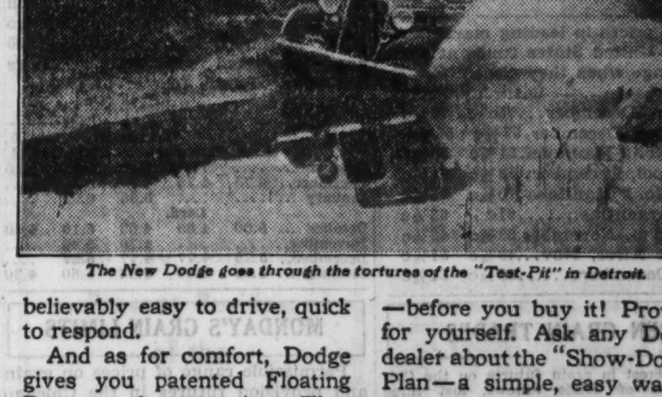
SAY THOUSANDS OF NEW DODGE OWNERS

Dodge Now First In Its Field . . . Outselling All Makes Except the Three Lowest Priced Cars!



The New Dodge goes through the tortures of the "Test-Pit" in Detroit.

FROM the first minute America had a chance to look at this new longer-wheelbase Dodge, sales have been steadily shooting up! Dodge sales increased at a faster rate than any other car . . . and then, several months ago, Dodge left all competitors 'way behind and today is leading its field by a bigger margin than ever!

It's because American motorists are wise . . . because anybody who compares Dodge with the other cars can see in a minute that it offers most for the money!

Speed? Dodge gives you all you want. More than you'd ever use. Performance? Well, figure it out for yourself . . . with Free Wheeling and optional automatic clutch; with gears quiet in all speeds, including reverse; with shockproof steering; with squeak-proof Oilite springs, Dodge is unbelievably easy to drive, quick to respond.

And as for comfort, Dodge gives you patented Floating Power engine mountings. That means smoothness; no annoying engine vibration. Long wheelbase. Big, low-pressure Airwheel tires.

Safety, too—with safety-steel body, hydraulic brakes and sturdy frame that's ten times more rigid than ordinary frame construction.

Not another car in the world gives you all the features you get in this new Dodge Six at this low price. And any car that doesn't have them is out-of-date —before you buy it! Prove it for yourself. Ask any Dodge dealer about the "Show-Down" Plan—a simple, easy way to compare cars. Shows you how little it costs to run a Dodge, too!

The value of your present car gets less and less every day. Why not trade it in right now —when it will probably make the full down payment on a new Dodge? You can own this Dodge today for the lowest price in Dodge history—on easy, convenient payments!

GRAINS PLUNGE TO NEW LOWS AS INFLATION DIMS

Traders Sell on Talk of Stabilizing Dollar.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Prospects that the administration would announce a policy of stabilizing the dollar without inflation caused traders who had bought grain, provisions, and many other commodities on recent inflation talk to dump their holdings yesterday. When the trading session ended, all deliveries of grain and provisions, with the exception of December wheat, oats, and rye, had sold at new lows for the season.

Liquidation was on in full force in the grain markets early. Wheat broke 4⅞ cents from Friday's finish, while corn and oats showed 3 cents decline and rye 5 cents, the two latter grains breaking the full limit permitted for one day's operations under the exchange regulations.

Prices Far Below Peaks.

December wheat, which sold up to $1.24 in July, when inflation talk was rampant, was down to 74 cents yesterday. December corn touched 37⅛ cents, or 39⅞ cents under the recent high, while December oats at 27⅝ cents, were off 25⅝ cents from the top and within 1⅝ cents of the season's low.

Some recovery from the extreme low came later, but final sales showed net losses of 3⅝ to 3⅞ cents on wheat, with the December option closing at 47⅞ to 75 cents. Corn was 1 to 1¼ cents lower, with December at 38¾ to 39 cents. Oats lost 1⅞ to 2 cents, December being 28¼ to 28⅜ cents. Rye was off 4¾ cents, with December at 53⅝ cents, which was 58⅛ cents from the high point in July. Barley closed 3⅛ cents lower, December being 44½ cents.

Prices Decline Steadily.

There has been steady liquidation in the grain markets for nearly two weeks and wheat has dropped 16 to 17¼ cents; corn, 11 to 13⅛ cents, and oats, 10¾ to 12 cents from the highs of the previous week. Even at the inside figures yesterday it was asserted the markets were still "long" affairs owing to the trade being afraid to take the short side.

News other than regarding the monetary policy of the administration counted for little. Heavy margin calls were reported to have been sent out over night and general selling developed in all grains at the opening. Houses with eastern connections sold wheat freely.

Millers became heavy buyers of wheat futures on the break and there were reports of large flour sales. A strong rally from the inside levels on all grains followed, but toward the last some of the buyers on the break sold out to even up for the week-end, causing a recession from the best figures.

FRANCE TO TAX FARMS RAISING TOO MUCH WHEAT

PARIS, Oct. 14.—(AP)—Reduction of wheat production will be attempted by the French government through a bill approved by the cabinet today. The bill provides for a tax of 500 francs to the hectare [two and one-half acres], or about $8 an acre, on all wheat lands which have produced above the average for the last three years.

France's intention to reduce wheat production was made known in statements issued by representatives on the international wheat advisory commission last month at London. Plans to aid the international wheat recovery program by increasing consumption also were outlined in a report that was interpreted by experts at the meeting then as virtually removing France as a factor in the wheat exporting field for next year.

HEAVY PRESSURE ON LARD; PRICES DECLINE LIMIT

Lower prices for hogs and grains were reflected in a sharp decline in lard and bellies, with liquidation an important factor. Prices declined 50 cents from Friday's close, the maximum permitted under the exchange regulations, with a finish at net losses of 47½ to 50 cents. The decline failed to bring in new buying of any consequence.

Spot lard was down to 4.72½ cents for regular, 4.62½ cents for loose, and 4.62½ cents for leaf, showing heavy losses. Cash bellies were off with futures. Liverpool lard was easy.

Export clearances of lard were 1,092,480 pounds yesterday and bacon 49,500 pounds. Packing in Chicago since March 1 aggregates 4,443,000 hogs, compared with 3,412,000 hogs last year. Prices follow:

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was quiet today and with the futures market closed there was little disposition to make fresh commitments. Late yesterday the market declined 1-32c, with sales made of 14,000 bags of Cuban to a local refiner at 3.35c, and 25,000 bags of Cuban for prompt shipment to an outport refiner at 3.33c. It was believed that sugars were available today at 3.35c, but no additional business came to light. In refined, prices were unchanged at 4.60c for fine granulated, with second hands available at from 4.55c to 4.57½c, but trading was light.

BUTTER, EGG FUTURES DECLINE UNDER SELLING

Moderate selling sent butter futures sharply lower on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, net losses of ⅝ to ⅞ cent being sustained. Eggs eased ⅛ to ⅜ cent under strong selling.

The heaviest supply of butter in history was reported on hand as of Oct. 1 in the monthly estimate, with production sharply higher than last year and the surplus gaining every day. This tended to offset the bullish effect of a more or less definite knowledge of what the government plans to do in the future with regards to buying butter. Buyers were cautious and the market fell back rapidly.

Egg news was generally favorable. Stocks were under the five year average, and the daily four market out movement continued heavier than last year. However, receipts have been somewhat heavier of late. Selling was strong at the close. Sales: Butter, 70 cars; eggs, 178 cars. Deliveries: Eggs, 5 cars. Prices follow:

ROOSEVELT AIDS SEE PRICES CRUX OF MONEY PLANS

Hold Values Too Low to 'Peg' Dollar.

[Copyright: 1933: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—(AP)—The American government, it was learned tonight on high authority, does not yet consider prices high enough to warrant stabilization of the dollar.

Although in many other respects the currency program remains in the "when, as and if" category, it was learned that present administration thought inclines to these beliefs:

That issuance of small bonds, definitely retirable out of the budget, for the purpose of retiring interest-bearing government bonds, would not constitute "greenback" inflation.

That it would be absurd to attempt in present circumstances to stabilize the dollar against foreign exchange.

That the present credit expansion in itself is intended to be inflationary, increasing buying power.

That it still is the purpose to redeem government securities in dollars of the same value as those borrowed.

Money Policy Awaits Events.

On the same high authority it can be said that the President feels his monetary policies are at this time as apparent and definite as possible; that there is no monetary uncertainty aside from the uncertainty which is inherent in an economic situation of the present character; and that, in a general way, future monetary policy will depend on the "when, as and if" necessity.

President Roosevelt may soon, at a time not yet chosen, discuss the monetary situation in an explanatory way, and in terms of the multitude of alternatives which may be selected as circumstances in the unpredictable future may indicate. There may be changes at any moment.

The fact that the President has said he would use his inflationary powers "when, as and if," necessary does not forecast that any decision on the question as a whole will be promulgated at a given time.

The administration feels it is making decisions every day; that neither its banking policies, its home and farm loan activities, its gold price determination, nor any of its other major activities in the field of finance are without their relation to the currency problem.

Wants Buying Power Steady.

The present monetary policy is said on this same high authority to be predicated on these definite ideas:

The President announced many weeks ago that he hoped to perfect monetary plans which would provide a dollar of constant purchasing power. He still has such plans, but the completion of the program must await a higher price level.

The President has been pressing credit expansion almost from the day of his inauguration, and this is at this time definitely part of his policy. This involves:

First, the use of the government's credit for public works, farm relief loans, home loans, loans by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and so on.

Second, he has sought to increase the power of the banks to lend privately, and to stim[illegible]e business so that private use [illegible]is credit will follow.

Third, and of similar intent, his plans are directed at strengthening all banks and opening closed banks.

Seeks to Expand Private Credit.

None of these ideas is secret. They are being worked and reworked constantly on the thesis that once these powerful agencies have stimulated business sufficiently, private credit will be open.

Credit expansion is regarded here as in part inflationary, since it increases the supply of money and the rate at which it is spent.

Discussion of dollar devaluation or of plans otherwise to provide a dollar of constant purchasing power is proceeding. Until more time has elapsed, it is felt it would be extremely difficult to judge what a proper stabilization point would be for foreign exchange. It must be remembered that sterling is constantly fluctuating in relation to the franc, and that this fluctuation would be far wider except for the use of an artificial pound.

Prices, that is, American values, have got to go up. The relationship of the dollar to the pound, franc and all foreign currencies, from the point of view of mathematics, is looked upon as affecting only 4 per cent of the total production of the nation, and 4 per cent of its consumption.

Plan to Raise Values.

The objective is to raise American values, and put people back to work, and in putting them back to work give them purchasing power. There is a definite question mark in the administration as to the continued use by certain banking elements of the phrase "currency inflation," as if it meant "greenbacks." The issuing of $5, $10, or $100 bonds, definitely retirable out of the budget, year by year over a period of years, for the purpose of retiring interest bearing bonds, is felt by high authorities here to be merely the substitution of one government debt for another.

"Greenbacks," or "starting the printing presses," is described as an entirely different thing, that means issuing paper with no retirement provisions for the payment of ordinary government running expenses.

Finally, it is asserted by these authorities that the policy and purpose of the government is just what it was in April—to raise American values so that a topheavy debt structure can be paid off in the same kind of dollars in which the debt was incurred.

Bankers Will Ask Revised Security Law

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Demands for amendment of the new federal securities act will be voiced at the annual convention of the Investment Bankers Association of America late in October at Hot Springs, Va.

In view of the administration's current drive for expansion of credit to finance industry under the national recovery program, it is believed that these demands will be listened to by Washington.

There will probably be no change in the administration's attitude that the investor should be protected from fraud and against loss through sloppy financing. Recent developments indicate, however, that Washington will be willing to consider amendments that would make new financing possible, provided those amendments do not remove reasonable safeguards for the investor.

Whether or not the present law is the chief reason for the almost complete lack of new corporate financing is still a moot question. Without doubt there are other barriers, such as the uncertainty about the value of the dollar and the unwillingness of investors to buy long term bonds as long as inflation is still a possibility.

Even stabilization of the currency and a return to sound money, however, would probably not revive the capital market as long as corporations are so apprehensive about the new security law that they refuse to offer their bonds.

Stable money would bring back the investor's willingness to buy bonds, but it alone wouldn't revive the corporation's willingness to sell them.

The necessity of quieting inflation talk in order to facilitate the treasury's bond conversion program helped the market for high grade bonds considerably last week, but it dealt the stock and commodity markets a severe blow.

December wheat lost 11⅜ cents during the week and the closing quotation of 75 cents was only 6⅞ cents above the 1933 low. Other commodities sustained similar losses. December corn dropped 3⅛ cents to close at 38⅞ cents, only 1¾ cents above the 1933 low. Cotton, sugar, hides, coffee, rubber, and silver are still well above their low points for the year, but they, too, suffered materially from the stabilization talk.

In order to sell billions of dollars worth of bonds that it must put out in order to finance the 12 million dollar government credit expansion and relief program the treasury must give assurance of a stable currency. On the other hand, stable currency forces prices for commodities downward because the public has been bidding prices up on the anticipation of inflation. And prices for commodities must be raised considerably if the administration's farm program is to be a success. The President a few weeks ago promised the farmers a 50 per cent increase in prices, and prices then were much higher than they are now.

One program seems to negative the other. If there is to be inflation to raise farm prices, then there can't be stabilization to sell bonds; and if there is stabilization to sell bonds, there can't be inflation to boost farm prices.

The treasury's conversion plan was the chief topic of conversation in La Salle street during the last few days. Experts on government bonds predicted that the operation would be successful. If any large proportion of holders of the called bonds chooses to take cash on April 15 instead of the new bonds now, the current sale of the 500 million dollars of additional bonds is expected to offset the demands for cash.

Several interesting sidelights were developed by the conversion plan. For one thing it increases by two billions or so the amount of outstanding government bonds eligible as backing for national bank notes. The Fourth Liberty 4¼s which have been called were not eligible, but the new bonds will be after the first year, when their interest rate goes down to 3¼ per cent.

The act of July 22, 1932, provides that all bonds bearing an interest rate not exceeding 3⅜ per cent shall be receivable by the treasurer of the United States as security for the issuance of circulating notes to national banks. This provision is to be in force until July 22, 1935.

Government bond experts, however, do not believe that this will result in a large increase in national bank notes, because banks have not yet issued as much of that type of bond secured currency as they have been permitted.

Several attorneys delving into laws regarding state taxes on capital stock now say that preferred stock sold to the Reconstruction Finance corporation may not be subject to personal property taxes, because the RFC is a government body. If that opinion is upheld, banks selling preferred stock to the RFC and cutting their outstanding common stock by an equivalent amount will reduce their tax bills substantially.

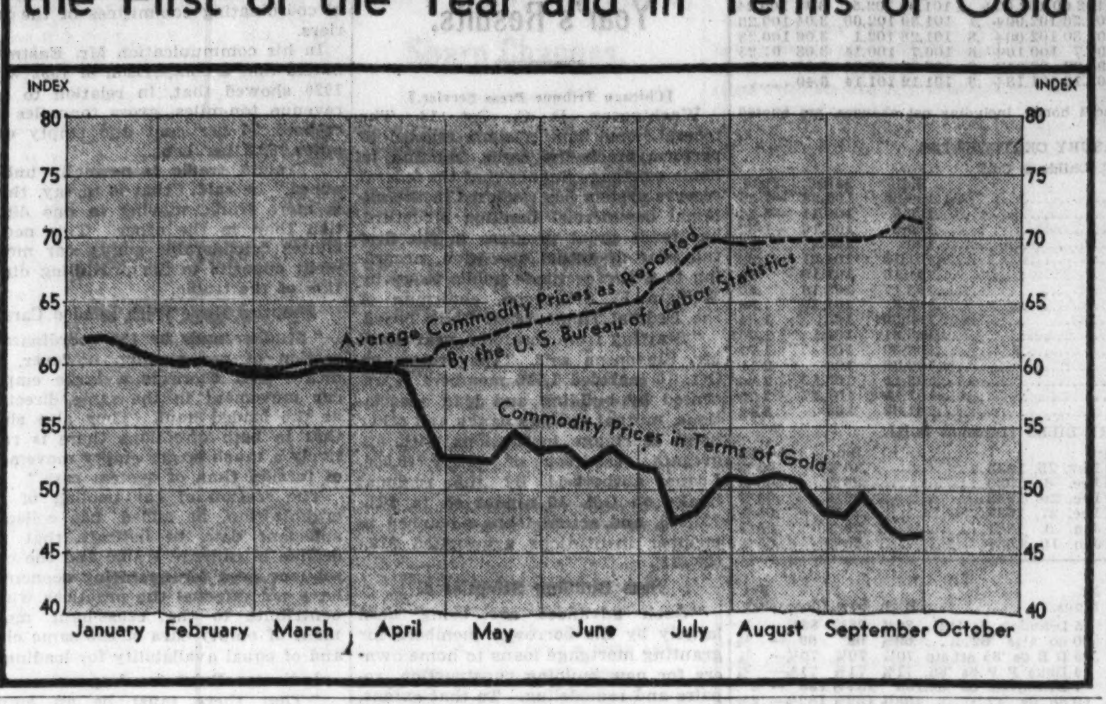
The personal property tax on bank stock amounts to a little more than 2 per cent of the par value per annum. Under the law it must be paid either by the stockholder or the bank. In the past the banks have followed the policy of paying the tax for the stockholders.

A favorable ruling by the courts would mean in the case of the Continental Illinois bank, which is selling $50,000,000 of preferred stock to the RFC and reducing its common by a like amount, an annual saving of a little more than a million dollars a year in personal property taxes.

Estate Guardians May Exchange Liberty Bonds

Probate Judge John F. O'Connell yesterday issued an order allowing administrators, executors, conservators, and guardians of all estates under the court's jurisdiction to exchange fourth Liberty Loan bonds for the new government ten and twelve year bonds. The general order will permit the changes to be made without the necessity of individual applications being made to the court.

Trend of American Commodity Prices Since the First of the Year and in Terms of Gold



Stocks Lower, Though Rallies Help in Spots

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 14.—Traders could not quite make up their minds today just what effect Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations might have on the stock market's immediate future. A majority of those willing to risk money on a guess seemed to think the situation held possibilities for the bull side.

At any rate, the list braced impressively when the news came over the cables after another sinking spell in the early dealings due to further weakness in the dollar and in commodity prices. Some brokerage house commentators seemed to find a war threat in the news that might result in a bigger demand for materials.

Business was at a little brisker pace than on last Saturday, the turnover rounding out to about 802,460 shares. Closing prices were irregularly lower with the more important losses confined to a point or so.

Mining Shares Decline.

While the early selling was quite general, pressure centered chiefly on the gold mining and other metal shares and three or four of the repeal stocks which were so conspicuous in the long summer advance. Homestake in the yellow metals gave up another 5 points, leveling down to 315 which compares with its all time high of 373 registered about two weeks ago when inflation talk was strongest. Alaska Juneau, United States Smelting, Dome Mines, Kennecott, McIntyre, and Cerr de Pasco were other selling targets of note.

The acute weakness in the grain markets brought selling into the farm implement shares. Case sold off about 2 points but recovered to its previous close in a little flurry of buying orders which came its way just before the final gong. The mail order issues were also easy.

Decline Then Turn Strong.

Numerous high priced favorites such as Allied Chemical, Western Union, American Can, Celanese and the like sold off 1 to 2 points in the first hour, but most of them firmed up briskly toward the last. American Can and Celanese both wiped out their initial losses with gains, Can recording a net gain of 2 points on the day. United States Steel common closed a point lower.

In the alcohol division Crown Cork and Seal lost about a point. National Distillers and Schenley, however, managed to emerge behind plus signs. Oils just about held their own.

Utilities again displayed a better tone than most other groups. Consolidated Gas, Public Service and other favorites of the department received good support when things were going against the market and moved ahead moderately when the turn came.

COMMODITY PRICES CONTINUE DOWNWARD; MANY AT NEW LOWS

Grain and commodity prices in general were on the downgrade last week and with few exceptions have been sinking steadily for two weeks. Practically every speculative commodity was lower at the close yesterday, with December corn, December lard, and October ribs selling at a new low for the season. Wheat was off 11⅜ cents; corn, 3⅛ cents; oats, 5 cents; rye, 5¾ cents; lard and bellies around ¾ cents per pound; sugar and cocoa around ¼ cent per pound, and silver down 2¼ cents per ounce as the result of the general liquidating movement. Closing prices on commodities for the last two weeks, compared with the lowest levels of the season, follow:

DOLLAR CLIMBS HALF CENT MORE TO 69.46 IN GOLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 14.—The dollar rose further in gold valuation today but fell in terms of sterling and some other non-gold currencies. Measured against the franc, the United States currency rose to 69.84 cents in gold value, and closed at 69.46 cents, compared with the previous close of 68.98 cents.

The franc fell to 5.61 cents, the lowest price since Sept. 9, and closed at 5.64 cents, down five points. The movement represented a continuation of the covering of bear commitments in dollars that had been set in motion by the treasury's announcement of its conversion plans, but the news of Germany's withdrawal from the league of nations and the disarmament conference also contributed to the weakness of French exchange.

The pound sterling recovered strongly from its acute weakness of the previous day and closed 3½ points higher at $4.57¼. Canadian dollars rose 25 points to 97.12 cents.

The further rise in the dollar against the gold standard exchanges brought a fresh drop in the treasury's daily quotation for newly mined gold. This was 79 cents lower at $29.83 an ounce, the lowest price since Sept. 15.

FORD CO. PLANT, CLOSED BY STRIKE, TO OPEN MONDAY

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Closed since Sept. 27, the Ford Motor company assembling plant at Chester, near here, will reopen on Monday, it was announced today.

"The Chester branch of the Ford Motor company will reopen Monday morning employing 900 men," a statement from officials read. "Due to seasonal demand the curtailment of force is necessary and for the present the employment office will be closed."

The opening of the plant was forecast yesterday when several hundred persons entered it presumably to prepare the place for resumption of operations.

Employés of the plant walked out Sept. 26 protesting against the reduced working week. The next day it was announced that the factory had been closed "indefinitely."

GEN. COLEMAN TO BE GUEST OF FINANCE GROUP

The Finance Officers Reserve association of the Sixth corps area will give a dinner tomorrow evening at the South Shore Country club in honor of Maj. Gen. Fred W. Coleman, chief of finance, U. S. A.

Accompanied by his wife the army finance chief is making a tour of inspection of the Sixth corps area and will be the guest of Col. and Mrs. Fred W. Boschen while in Chicago.

The finance reserve association is composed of 1,200 reserve officers who handle finances in the district. Three hundred are expected to attend the dinner in honor of Gen. Coleman.

Youngstown to Curtail Steel Output This Week

Youngstown, O., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Steel production in the Youngstown district next week will decline slightly to about 52 per cent of capacity, mill schedules indicated today. Sales executives report slight improvement in new orders, and say that if the demand does not increase a further curtailment of operations is likely.

45,000 Return to Furniture Factory Jobs

More than 45,000 workers returned to their jobs in the furniture industry between April and September as a result of renewed activity, according to figures released yesterday at the headquarters of the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers in the American Furniture mart.

Dr. A. P. Drake, managing director, said that more than half of those who were thrown out of jobs by the slump are now back at work. He estimated the total employed in the industry at 75,000 persons.

Many Factories Still Closed.

Furniture factories which were in operation in 1929 and still going are employing more men now than then. However, some 800 to 1,000 factories have closed and are still unable to resume operations.

Improvement during the last month has been marred by strikes in various sections. Some districts have gained but the strikes have reduced the figures for the country as a whole.

August and September retail furniture sales ran far ahead of 1932 and total volume for 1933 is estimated at slightly above 1932. If the forecasts prove true it will be the first year since 1929 that a gain has been shown.

Milwaukee Firm to Show Here.

The improvement is expected to help the mid-season market which will be held at the mart Nov. 6-11. It was announced that the E. Weiner company, Milwaukee, which has exhibited in Grand Rapids for more than twenty years, is moving its show rooms to Chicago.

A general meeting of all furniture merchants with stores east of the Rockies will be held Nov. 6 at the mart to consider the new retail code which is now awaiting the President's signature.

PUBLIC INTEREST IN BANK STOCKS IMPROVES HERE

Increased public interest was shown in Chicago bank stocks last week, unlisted brokers report. The market interest centered in Continental Illinois National which fluctuated between a low of 24⅛ and a high of 31. The stock closed yesterday at 26 bid, 27 asked, following the announcement of the plan to cut the capital from $75,000,000 to $25,000,000 and the sale of $50,000,000 preferred stock to the RFC. The final quotation represented a loss of 3 points from the preceding week's final price.

First National shares declined 3 points to close yesterday at 74 bid, 76 asked. Shares of both the two big state banks, Harris Trust and Northern Trust, were also lower. Northern finished at 295 to 310, off 25, while Harris closed down 18 points at 200 bid, 210 asked. The best bid for Central Republic Trust was ¾ against an asked price of 1½. Terminal National closed 8 bid, 10 asked.

Income of New York Life Far Above Disbursements

Total income of the New York Life Insurance company in the first nine months of 1933 exceeded disbursements by $43,133,000, reports Thomas A. Buckner, president. This amount has been added to ledger assets, which on Dec. 31, last, totaled $1,974,076,041.

Wholesale Prices Raised on Several 5 Cent Cigars

Wholesale prices on several leading brands of 5 cent cigars have been increased $1.50 a thousand to cover higher manufacturing costs. The new quotations generally are $40 a thousand, less the usual discounts.

CITIES' COSTS IN NEW YORK STATE INCREASE 220%

Mayors' Data Show Rise in 14 Years.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 14.—The total cost of government of 57 cities in New York state, excluding New York city, Buffalo, and Rochester, rose 220 per cent during the 14 year period ended Dec. 31, 1931, according to a survey by William P. Capes, executive secretary of the New York state conference of mayors. The findings of the survey are based on official figures.

The great bulk of the increase, according to Mr. Capes, is the result of new or expanding functions and services, and higher salaries. Some of this increase, he finds, is the result of annexed territory and growth of population. Most of the increases occurred from 1918 to 1923.

Shows How Expenses Soared.

In computing the gain in the cost of government during the period under review, the percentages of increase were as follows:

General government, 144; protection of lives and property, 183; conservation of health, 158; sanitation, 158; highways, 153; charities and correction, 515; education, 283; noncommercial public utilities, 209; interest on public debt, 203, and all other expenditures, including judgments, tax refunds, and tax deficiencies, 314 per cent.

"The charge that municipal officials are solely responsible for the rapid increase and the high cost of government is greatly exaggerated," Mr. Capes concludes. "If the depression beginning in 1929 had never occurred the cost of city government in New York state was headed for a gradual decrease, provided economic and social changes did not necessitate any increase in municipal functions.

Welfare Expense Stays Up.

"As economic conditions improve the cost of city welfare work will drop below that of 1931, but it will probably never go below that of 1918 because of the heavy expenses for veteran relief and old age security. The cost of general government overhead probably reached its peak during the period from 1928 to 1931, unless the functions of government increase rapidly in the future.

"There will probably be very little reduction in costs of sanitation and there may be a substantial increase. The expense of highways may jump somewhat as economic conditions improve, but over a period of years the curve should flatten out and probably decline. The indications are that there will be a reduction in the cost of education. The increase has been halted and important readjustments are now under consideration.

"Interest charges will begin to drop only as tax delinquencies, public welfare and funded debt decrease and as cities adopt a modified pay as you go policy. The depression has emphasized the need for the reduction of municipal debt. Whether or not cities will heed the warning remains to be seen."

TWENTY CHAIN SYSTEM SALES ABOVE YEAR AGO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 14.—Sales of the first twenty chain store systems reporting for September, or that approximate period, were 5.7 per cent ahead of September, 1932, according to a compilation made by Lehman Brothers. That percentage of gain, it is stated, is identical with the gain shown in August over August, 1932.

The compilation shows that the shoe chains were responsible for the largest group gain with an advance of 24 per cent, which was followed closely by the specialty and department store chains whose sales were 22 per cent greater than for September last year. Sales of the 5 and 10c-$1 chains advanced 13 per cent against a gain of 10 per cent for the mail order houses. The grocery chains lost ground with a sales total about 3 per cent less than the figures for September, 1932.

The largest individual improvement was made by G. C. Murphy with a sales gain of 34.7 per cent.

Pacific Power Firms Oppose U. S. Projects

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 14.—Public utility companies in the Pacific northwest are aroused over the allocation of $83,000,000 from the national public works fund two weeks ago for the purpose of building two power plants on the Columbia river in Oregon and Washington.

This has created, for that territory, a situation similar to that brought about in the south by the federal government's plans for the development of the Tennessee valley power project, power company executives assert. The difficulties anticipated in the northwest are even more acute, they say, because that section of the country has long been stirred by municipal ownership movements, with a number of the principal cities already owning their generating and distributing systems.

Cite Oversupply of Power.

What has principally aroused the utility companies at this juncture, is not so much the possibility of an extension of municipal ownership as the absence of any markets for the power to be developed in the territory with government funds.

There is already an oversupply of installed generating capacity in the northwest, according to figures, including all interconnected power companies in Washington, northern Oregon, and western Montana, as well as the city systems of Seattle and Tacoma. Present electric power capacity in the northwest now amounts to 1,880,000 horsepower, more than twice the aggregate peak loads of 190,000 horse power encountered in any month this year.

The surplus capacity of 960,000 horsepower in this area is sufficient to serve greater New York on most days of the year and is two-thirds of the peak load of 1,484,000 horse power supplied by local utilities on Jan. 4, 1933, the peak day of the year.

Fear Rate Cutting by U. S.

In view of the superabundance of power in the area, the utility companies aver that the proposed plants to be built with federal funds cannot sell any power except in areas already served, by themselves, and that in order to sell the new power the government financed plants will offer rates to municipalities far below those asked by the utility companies.

The same course was taken by the Tennessee valley authority in making public rates which experts immediately asserted would fail to cover the actual distribution costs and would be ruinous not only to private companies but also to municipal plants. All such developments, undertaken with public monies, the utility men claim, could not succeed were it not for the contributions made by utility companies and other corporations and by security holders, salaried men and wage earners in the form of taxation.

RFC LOAN TO PAY PART OF DETROIT BANK DEPOSITS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[U. P.]—On request of the controller of the currency, the Reconstruction Finance corporation announced tonight that it would authorize loans of $26,000,000 to the receiver of the Guardian National Bank of Commerce and $48,000,000 to the receiver of the First National Bank of Detroit.

RFC Chairman Jesse Jones said: "It is the expectation of the RFC that all of the details in connection with this transaction will be speedily completed so that depositors of the two institutions may obtain liquidating payments for which these two loans are intended, without delay.

"The money to be made available will permit of an additional distribution of 20 per cent to the depositors of the Guardian National Bank of Commerce and 10 per cent to the depositors of the First National bank. For the balance still due them the depositors will have recourse to the assets remaining with the receiver, including the equity in RFC collateral. It has not yet been decided whether this money will be paid out through Detroit banks or by receivers direct."

Expect Canada's Exports to Take It Out of "Red"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 14.—Canada will be out of the "red" by the end of the present fiscal year, government experts asserted today in issuing the best monthly trade report in over three years. It shows September export jumped $15,500,000 and imports increased $3,700,000 over September, last year. Total trade for the month was over 96 million dollars, compared with 76 million dollars in September, last year.

PLAN GREAT U. S. BANK TO FREE VAST DEPOSITS

Roosevelt, Financier Weigh Project.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—Plans for the establishment of a federal bank, which would make no provision for the release of more than $2,500,000,000 in frozen deposits of closed banks, were given additional consideration at a White House conference today.

J. H. PERKINS.

President Roosevelt talked more than an hour with Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation; William C. Potter, president of the Guarantee Trust company; James H. Perkins, president of the National City bank, and Percy H. Johnston, president of the Chemical Bank and Trust company, all of New York.

After the conference those attending declined to reveal the nature of the discussions. The White House would make no statement. It appeared, however, that plans for the establishment of the bank were still tangled in legal difficulties involving the method of raising the capital.

Suggest Acting Through RFC.

Attorney General Cummings, who has talked to the President and other officials relative to the bank, said that he had made no formal opinion on the subject. He would not express his views on the proposal to establish the bank under the District of Columbia banking laws and finance it through the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the Federal Reserve banks.

One suggestion was that the bank exchange its preferred stock for debentures of the Reconstruction Finance corporation and then obtain cash by discounting the debentures at the commercial banks or with the Federal Reserve banks.

However, it was pointed out that the reconstruction finance act provided that RFC debentures were not discountable at the reserve banks. The Glass-Steagall bill provides for the discount of virtually any instrumentality held by a bank with the reserve institutions on the affirmative vote of five members of the board. It is a question which of these acts would apply.

May Seek Big Banks' Support.

Officials believe that financing might be accomplished through the commercial banks of the country, either through advances on debentures of the RFC or on preferred stock of the bank. Financing through the commercial banks gave rise to the report that the conference of the President with big bankers may have been to sound them out as to what support might be expected in that direction and to urge them to coöperate in the plan to free bank deposits.

It is felt that a great stimulus to business would result from the release of the frozen deposits. In addition, it is estimated that $2,000,000,000 would come back to the banks and in circulation through the operations of the federal deposit insurance corporation.

Hope for Billion from Hoarding.

Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the board of the insurance corporation, believes that when deposits are insured more than a billion dollars in deposits will find their way back from hoarding and an additional billion would be removed from the postal savings system and deposited in the commercial banks.

Thousands of applications for membership in the insurance fund have been received by Mr. Cummings from the nonmember banks. National and state member banks automatically are admitted to the system.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation today announced it had authorized the purchase of $120,000 of preferred stock in the Missouri Bank and Trust company of Kansas City, Mo., a new institution succeeding the Missouri Savings Bank and Trust company. The sale is contingent on subscription of an equal amount of common stock.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 14.—With the exception of United States government bonds, which closed generally higher, the listed bond market moved lower during the brief trading period today. Foreign loans were weak, notably German issues, on the withdrawal of the reich from the league of nations, and domestic corporation bonds swung lower for the first time since Oct. 3. Trading was active for a Saturday, amounting to $5,989,000.

United States government bonds closed 8-32ds up to 3-32ds off. The uncalled Fourth Liberty loan 4s finished at 103 21-32ds, off 1-32, and the called bonds of the issue at 101 31-32ds, or unchanged. Most of the long term treasury issues closed at the highs for the day.

Foreign List Declines.

Aside from the weakness in virtually the whole list of German bonds, other sections of the foreign list moved lower as the dollar gained strength in the foreign exchange market. French government 7½s and 7s dropped 3⅛ to 2¾ points, respectively; United Kingdom issues were all down a point or more, and Dutch East Indies loans declined 2 to 2¾ points. Bonds of the Japanese group weakened fractionally to more than 5 points. Swiss government 5½s were marked down 1¾ points.

The losses in the domestic corporation were not particularly severe, but in some instances nullified the gains of the previous day or two.

Maximum Losses 4 Points.

Industrial, railroad and utilities bonds averaged lower in the order named. The maximum losses ranged up to 4 points, but the more active issues declined only fractionally to a point or two.

Both domestic and foreign bonds were weaker on the curb exchange, with German issues suffering the most. Only a few domestic issues showed considerable activity and most of them closed unchanged to fractionally lower on the day.

Gold Mining Shares.

Eastern and Canadian promoters have been flooding the country with their tipster sheets touting stocks in new gold mining enterprises.

Most of them dwell more on the attractiveness of gold stocks as a class than upon the merit of the particular companies they are pushing. The prospective purchaser is told that gold producers have no merchandising problem, that their market is constant and that competition is not a factor.

Much is made of the rise in the price of gold since the United States abandoned the gold standard and the probability of further appreciation of gold if there is to be additional inflation is pointed out.

It is true that the shares of the currently successful gold mining companies have soared with the depreciation of the dollar and that the holders of these shares have enjoyed a handsome profit.

This, however, does not alter the fact that gold mining is one of the most speculative types of business enterprise known.

Geologic surveys indicate where gold deposits are likely to be, but every shaft that is sunk is a gamble. The western states are pocked with holes sunk to reach gold. Most of them are barren.

Ever since the possession of gold in excess of $100 was made illegal individuals have been seeking other means of protecting themselves against possible further decline of the dollar. Many have gone on the assumption that gold mine shares were almost as good a hedge as the metal itself.

That is faulty reasoning. Many of the best gold stocks are probably overvalued at present prices, because they have been pushed up to levels that discount a further rise in the price of gold. As for the little known stocks of new companies that are being promoted by the tipster sheets, most of them are rank speculations.

Here are some ways in which the individual who insists on gambling in gold mining stocks may protect himself:

First, scrupulously avoid any stock that is not legally qualified for sale.

Second, refuse to purchase the stock in any new venture unless he knows what the underwriting commission amounts to. In one case brought to our attention the brokers were to get 25 per cent of the sales price of the stock.

Third, examine the sponsors' records. Many of them are irresponsible. The Investors' Guide has files on a large number of them.

Fourth, remember that even in a period of inflation purchase of shares in new gold mining enterprises is not an investment but a pure gamble and that the chances for gain are far less than the probability of total loss.

U. S. HOME BANK ADVANCES LOANS OF 72 MILLIONS

Head of System Tells of Year's Results.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—The federal home bank system, created to perform much the same function in home mortgage finance that the federal reserve system has rendered in the national commercial banking structure, has made great progress in the first full year of actual operation, according to a survey made public today by William F. Stevenson, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank board.

"Starting from scratch a year ago," Mr. Stevenson said, "the system on Oct. 10 included 1,766 members represented by building and loan associations, mutual savings banks and other home mortgage institutions with aggregate resources of $2,172,740,000. Loans authorized by the regional banks on Oct. 10 amounted to $82,232,869, and actual loans advanced to member institutions aggregated $70,028,318.

Sees Building Stimulated.

"Such advances are being uesd largely by the borrower members for granting mortgage loans to home owners for new building construction, repairs and remodeling. To that extent, the home loan banks are relieving the actual shortage of home mortgage credit which had resulted from general economic conditions, creating new employment in the building industries and, incidentally, saving homes from foreclosure of mortgages held by receivers of commercial banks and like institutions.

"On the same date [Oct. 10] members had subscribed for 155,382 shares of stock in the 12 regional home loan bnaks, entitling them to a line of credit from those banks aggregating approximately $184,562,000."

Sees System Self-Sustaining.

Mr. Stevenson said that ten of the twelve home loan banks were now operating at a profit, and added that estimates indicated that by the end of the calendar year the system's reserves should reach a substantial figure, even after deducting organization expenses and the accumulated dividend payable to the federal government on its original stock subscription. The system, he declared, will be self-supporting.

"Recent growth in the system's membership," he continued, "largely reflects the constructive coöperation of the state legislatures with the federal government in making the system a powerful reserve in the service of private mortgage institutions which seek to make ample credit resources available to home owners throughout the country."

WHEAT ACREAGE CONTRACTS GET CLOSE SCRUTINY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—A national reviewing board composed of statisticians, farm leaders and state extension leaders will review the 500,000 or more wheat acreage reduction contracts which will reach the department of agriculture within the next few weeks, for approval for adjustment payments.

Chief duties of the group, which will be known as the county acceptance unit, will be to check the total acreage and production reported by each county, to compare these totals with federal crop estimates for the counties and to make detailed reviews of typical contracts. Before contracts from any county are reviewed, the wheat section of the AAA will check and approve a budget for the country wheat control production association.

Structural Steel Sales 20,000 Tons in Last Week

Sales of structural steel during the last week were slightly under 20,000 tons, or about the same as in the preceding week. This volume compares with an average of less than 10,000 tons weekly early in the year.

RAIL CHIEF SEEKS CUTS IN MILEAGE OF EMPTY CARS

Asks Suggestions of Carriers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—Suggestions of methods for reducing empty car mileage have been asked by Joseph B. Eastman, federal coördinator of transportation, from the regional coördinating committees of the carriers.

In his communication Mr. Eastman stated that a comparison of 1932 with 1920 showed that, in relation to net revenue ton-miles, gross ton-miles increased 26 per cent and empty car-miles, 62.8 per cent.

"Freight traffic is normally unbalanced," he said, "that is to say, there is more traffic moving in one direction than in the other. This necessitates considerable empty car movement opposite to the prevailing direction of the traffic.

Empties Move With Loaded Cars.

"Studies made by the coördinator's section of car pooling, however, indicate that there is a large empty-car movement in the same direction as the loaded haul. They also show that in both directions there is relatively a much larger empty movement of foreign than of system cars."

The section of car pooling of his organization, he added, has collected sufficient data to indicate that the decline in railroad traffic and the consequent need for operating economies have not affected the practices which contribute to the cross-haul movement of empty cars of the same class and of equal availability for loading.

Indicates Point for Improvement.

"That there must be an empty movement opposite the prevailing direction of an unbalanced traffic is axiomatic," he said. "While even such empty movement may be excessive, it is the movement of empty cars in the same direction as the prevailing loaded haul to which I now direct your attention.

"We find that in the terminal handling of nearly 50,000 cars per day, while there were 26.3 empty system cars moved for each 100 loaded movements, there were 36 foreign empties moved for each 100 loaded cars, an excess in the ratio of 37 per cent."

BANKS ADVISE HOLDERS TRADE LIBERTY BONDS

New York, Oct. 14.—(AP)—"What shall I do with my Liberties?" is a question which is pouring in upon bankers from their clients.

Wall street bankers generally are explaining to customers holding 4¼ per cent Fourth Liberty bonds which have been called that they stand to receive a substantial premium by accepting the United States treasury's offer to convert them into new 12 year bonds, callable after 10 years, paying 4¼ per cent the first year, and 3¼ per cent thereafter.

If the holder of a $1,000 Liberty bond that has been called keeps it until it is redeemed at par next April 15 he will receive just $1,000, but, based on current prices of the various treasury issues, he should get a bond commanding a price of $10 to $20 more than the flat $1,000, if he accepts the exchange offer.

The called Liberties, of which there are approximately $1,875,000,000, commanded a price of just under $1,020 per $1,000 par value at the close of today's bond market. Trading will not be started in the new bonds until next week.

Canada's Refunding Loan of $225,000,000 Is Sold

OTTAWA, Oct. 14.—(AP)—With a last rush of subscriptions this morning, Canada's $225,000,000 refunding loan closed at noon, oversubscribed by a substantial margin. The amount of oversubscription will not be known until returns by assistant receivers general are completed Monday night. Last minute subscribers have until 6 o'clock Monday night to validate their applications by deposit of maturing victory bonds.

LATE RALLY WIPES OUT EARLY BREAK IN COTTON

Liberal selling of cotton was on early in the day, yesterday, with prices off sharply in sympathy with stocks and grains. The break brought support toward the last, and prices rallied sharply recovering the early losses. The finish was at practically the top, with Chicago 6 points higher to unchanged for the day. New York was unchanged to 2 points lower on futures, with spots up 5 points to 9.40 cents. New Orleans closed 1 point lower to 4 points net higher on futures, with spots unchanged at 9 cents. Galveston and Houston were 8.95 cents, or the same as the previous day.

Consumptive movement for the month shows a liberal volume and specialists say that American prices usually govern the world's supply, which is not the case in grain. Prices follow:

$15,500,000 TO START NAVIGATION PROJECT ON MISSOURI RIVER

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—(AP)—The public works administration today allotted $15,500,000 for the first year's work on the Fort Peck dam and reservoir in eastern Montana designed to conserve water and assure an adequate flow for navigation on the Missouri river.

War department engineers estimated the Fort Peek project will give work to 6,500 men for a year. Preliminary work on a railroad and power line to the site is to be started immediately.

Senator Bennett Clark of Missouri said after a conference that President Roosevelt assured him the entire Missouri river project, including Fort Peck reservoir, would be carried out but only funds to take care of immediate work would be allocated.

Makes River Cities "Seaports."

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 14.—(AP)—Construction of the Fort Peck dam and reservoir virtually will make seaports of such Missouri river valley cities as Kansas City, St. Joseph, Mo.; Omaha, Neb., and Sioux City, Ia., sponsors of the river development program here said today. The reservoir would assure a 9 foot channel in the Missouri river from the Mississippi river to Sioux City and possibly farther.

RECEIVER ASKED FOR STATE LIFE; DISPUTE ASSETS

Action Requested by Insurance Chief.

The State Life of Illinois Insurance company, 167 East Ontario street, has been named in a receivership suit brought in Superior court by Attorney General Otto Kerner. The action was taken at the request of Ernest Palmer, state superintendent of insurance.

The bill was filed several days ago, but was suppressed by agreement between the two parties. The suit is an outgrowth of a writedown in the company's assets by Supt. Palmer.

The valuations placed on the assets by Mr. Palmer were understood to have been disputed by the company officials. Edwy S. Parrish, president of the company, was out of the city yesterday, and A. C. Stockton, treasurer, refused to comment on the suit.

The company had total admitted assets of $485,259 at the close of last year. Of this total $158,615, or approximately one-third, was represented by real estate investments.

Mortgage loans represented $192,162, or 40 per cent of the total; policy loans aggregated $45,889, or 10 per cent. The company wrote $2,456,250 of insurance last year, bringing its total slightly above 7½ millions.

It is understood that the insurance department placed a value of $200,000 on the company's home office building, at St. Clair and Ontario streets. The company claims that the property is worth more than this figure.

TRADE MEASURED BY BANK CHECKS SHOWS DECLINE

Business in the Chicago reserve district, as measured by the volume of checks cashed at member banks, receded last week as compared with the preceding seven days, but is still running materially ahead of last year.

The Chicago reserve bank reported yesterday that $651,279,000 debits to individual deposit accounts were reported by 138 banks in the 38 leading cities of the district for the week ended Wednesday. This compared with $792,405,000 in the preceding week and represented a loss of 17.8 per cent.

In 37 cities where year ago figures are available, debits aggregated $650,988, or 8.1 per cent above the comparable 1932 period.

Chicago again was conspicuous among the cities which showed substantial gains over last year. Debits here totaled $413,330,000 against $346,930,000 last year. Other cities reporting increases included Milwaukee, Peoria, Sioux City, and Indianapolis.

RETAIL PRICES OF FOODS SHOW FURTHER GAINS

Upturns Surpassed by Pay Rolls, However.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—Retail food prices again moved upward during the two weeks ending Sept. 26, after a slight drop during the two preceding weeks, according to reports made today to the bureau of labor statistics of the labor department from retail dealers in fifty-one cities.

Increases were reported in the average of 21 of 42 food items and the general level of retail prices rose by four-tenths of 1 per cent for the country as a whole. The weighted index numbers of the bureau, which uses the average prices for the year 1913 as 100.0, were 107.4 for Sept. 26, 107.0 for Sept. 12, and 90.4 for April 15, which was the low point of the year.

Up 7 Per Cent in Year.

As compared with Sept. 15, 1932, with an index of 100.3, retail food prices have risen by more than 7 per cent within the twelve months. The increase since the low point of the year in April was slightly less than 19 per cent and the general level is higher than the 1913 average by nearly 7½ per cent. The index for the period covered was higher than for any period during the last two years.

The largest increase occurred in pork chops, which rose almost 10 per cent in the two weeks. Other items showing a 2 per cent or more increase were eggs, oranges, bread, canned tomatoes, hens, and prunes.

Pay Rolls Gain More than Prices.

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Although food prices are going up, retail prices of foods for 51 cities in the United States have risen less since March than either pay rolls or farm prices, according to a comparison by Dr. R. W. Bartlett of the department of agricultural economics, college of agriculture, University of Illinois.

In September the average price of 42 foods was 68 per cent of those in 1925-'27, seasonal variation being considered, he reported. This was an advance of 10 points, or 18.4 per cent since April, the month of lowest retail food prices. Since factory pay rolls have advanced 19 points, the purchasing power of factory workers in terms of food has materially increased. The increase in real income for each worker has been much less than that for all workers because of the substantial increase in numbers of those employed.

BUTTER STOCKS 85,367,000 POUNDS OVER YEAR AGO

The supply of butter in cold storage in the United States on Oct. 1 was estimated at 174,857,000 pounds in the monthly summary issued by the United States department of agriculture. This total was 85,367,000 pounds greater than the supply a year ago, and 57,308,000 pounds greater than the 5 year average for Oct. 1.

Holdings of shell eggs were 7,468,000 cases, 2,573,000 cases more than last year, but 85,000 cases less than the five year average.

Holdings of butter showed a net reduction of 619,000 pounds during September, which compared with withdrawals of 17,769,000 pounds a year ago. The movement out also was 13,863,000 pounds less than the average movement for September. Withdrawals of shell eggs were 1,476,000 cases, 411,000 cases more than last year's movement and 261,000 cases more than the five year average.

H. M. Byllesby & Co. Asks Reassessment of U. S. Tax

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—(AP)—A petition for reassessment of a government claim of $54,721 has been filed with the board of tax appeals by H. M. Byllesby & Co. at 231 South La Salle street, Chicago. The deficiency was assessed against the petitioning company as a transferee of American Utilities Service company. The petition denied the assessment as a transferee was proper, and said the commissioner of internal revenue erroneously assessed the American Utilities Service company for dividends and stock allegedly received from the Union Power corporation.

Silver Futures Drop on Dollar Stabilization Talk

Silver futures dropped 60 to 79 points yesterday with further liquidation in evidence. Talk of the dollar being stabilized with an ultimate return to a gold basis had considerable influence. Spot silver was off 1⅛ cents for the day. Total sales of futures aggregated 5,600,000 ounces. October closed at 36.85 cents; December, 37.05 cents; March, 37.55 cents; May, 37.95 to 38.05 cents; July, 38.40 cents, and September, 38.80 cents.

GRAIN TRADERS

In the last twelve months Ainsworth's Financial Service has taken $1.27⅜ profit per bushel on all gain trades as against 4 cents loss on all loss trades, leaving a net gain over all losses of $1.23⅜.

On September 25 we claimed that May wheat would shortly sell down to 90 cents, but would not sell below 85 cents.

Our bulletin of October 16 gives a review of the world wheat situation and forecasts materially higher prices in all grains this winter. This bulletin is free for the asking.

LIVE STOCK MEN ASK IMMEDIATE AID FOR INDUSTRY

Government Program Is Declared Inadequate.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Confronted with a shrinkage in revenues of 48 per cent in 1933 as compared with a year ago, representative live stock farmers of the nation, meeting yesterday at the Congress hotel, urged upon Secretary of Agriculture Wallace immediate action in rehabilitating the entire live stock industry.

The meeting was called by the United States Live Stock association and was said by its officers to be the largest representation of the live stock producing industry which had ever been assembled.

Among the immediate demands which the association urged on the agricultural adjustment administration were prompt and effective action on the program to boost corn and hog prices and the adoption of immediate measures to improve the domestic market for beef and lamb.

Meeting Called by Wallace.

This meeting was called at the request of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, who sent a representative, John N. Norton, who is expected to take the resolutions adopted by the association back to Wallace as an expression of the sentiment of the live stock industry.

The live stock farmers want the government to buy the surplus beef products, to be disposed of through relief agencies or other outlets. They declare that the beef importations so far this year are 83 per cent greater than a year ago, and recommend that the government check this and use domestically produced beef products for all federal agencies.

It was urged that everything possible be done to reduce the spread between what the live stock producer receives and what the meat consumer pays.

Would Control Rural Buying.

The association, moreover, recommended that government regulation of live stock marketing be extended to control buying of live stock in rural areas, just as it applies now in competitive markets like the Chicago stockyards.

The live stock farmers urged an immediate public hearing under the AAA on a marketing agreement proposed by the United States Live Stock association.

It was recommended that federal policy be expanded in regard to the testing of dairy cattle and breeding cattle for tuberculosis as a step in reducing live stock population and that the government include the abortion test for cattle, with indemnities.

Finally, the association asks immediate announcement of the national monetary policy.

Declare Program Inadequate.

While the live stock producers declared they were anxious to coöperate with Secretary Wallace they asserted that the government program, which was drawn up according to recommendations of the national corn-hog committee, does not meet the needs of the industry. Instead of aiding only a part of the industry, that devoted to pork production, the association would adopt a comprehensive program including the development of foreign markets, prevent the increase in direct buying of live stock by packers, and coördinate production control methods for all forms of meat animals.

Discussion yesterday centered about a resolution presented to the association by A. D. Majors of Omaha, Neb., its president. He proposed a plan providing for a processing tax on all live stock, instead of hogs alone, improving domestic market conditions by stabilizing prices at a minimum level, and government regulation of rural concentration points as well as terminal live stock markets.

HOG PRICES MOVE LOWER DESPITE SMALLER SUPPLY

Week's Trade Marked by Sharp Changes.

The slump in hog prices that began late Friday was continued yesterday. However, only a few hundred head of hogs were offered. About 4,400 of the total of run of 6,000 were billed direct to big packers and hardly enough hogs were offered to excite competition. The top of $5.10 was off 10 cents from the previous day and the general average of $4.65 showed the same loss.

The late weakness in the trade came as a surprise to traders, considering the light receipts of the last two days. From appearances, killers were marking time, as supplies of dressed pork are apparently ample. The late easiness of the market, however, was consistent with recent trends as unusual fluctuations have been the rule.

The week's top of $5.55 compares with $5.50 in the preceding week, $4 a year ago, and $5.70 two years ago. The average of $4.80 was 15c over a week ago and $1.15 over a year ago.

Prices of Steers Lower.

The last week was the first since last April that the top price of steers was as low as $6.75, and it was also the first time in years that heifers have sold practically on a par with long fed steers of all representative weights. Early this year heavy steers were selling at a severe discount, but finished light steers commanded a substantial premium over heavies and over heifers.

The recent active demand for lightweight carcasses, from cattle scaling 950 pounds downward, coupled with a shortage of these has elevated the market on light yearlings. In the scramble for numbers, heifers shared favor of the buyers and brought as much as comparable steers. Meanwhile, weighty steers worked lower and the spread in the price range between various classes of fed steers and yearlings became the narrowest of the season.

Sheep and Lambs Active.

The sheep and lamb market was fairly satisfactory for the week. Quotations were higher the fore part of the period and were later depressed by heavy receipts. A bright spot in the trade at all times was good demand for sheep and yearlings, and feeder lambs found dependable outlet.

Native and western fat lambs topped for the week at $7.75. Best yearlings bulked at $5 to $5.35, with a few up to $5.50. Feeder lambs topped at $6.50, this for 63 to 73 pound weights. Other good feeders sold at $6 to $6.40. Yearling breeding ewes found ready outlet at $4 to $5 and several carloads of fullmouth breeding ewes went to the country at $2.75. Fat ewes bulked at $2.75.

Hard Tires Still Common on Trucks

Tire dealers report that progress is being made in putting Chicago's trucks on pneumatic rubber. However, hard tired vehicles are still common on the city's streets.

Since the Illinois tire law became effective on Jan. 1 of this year Chicago police have made several hundred arrests, but the enforcement has not been consistent enough to ban uncushioned wheels from the public's pavements. The statute requires pneumatics on vehicles driven faster than ten miles an hour.

Six Violators Found.

THE TRIBUNE roadster in an hour yesterday took a speed check on six hard tired trucks and found them violating the law. One, bearing the name of W. V. Witkowski, wholesale meats, carried a 1931 license A-27-847. It was driven north from Fullerton avenue in Elston avenue at 14 miles an hour.

Another violator was a train of hard tired trailers hauling refuse for the city department of public works. It also violated the statute limiting the overall length of such combinations to 40 feet. Pulled by a truck bearing license H-3608, the train was checked at 15 miles an hour, rattling and banging over the pavements, scattering windblown ashes and papers in Montrose avenue east from Western avenue.

North from Addison street in Ashland avenue, a Consolidated company truck, virtually a box car of sand, was clocked at 15 miles an hour with its solid tires furnishing little protection to the pavement.

Freighter Goes 15 Miles Per Hour.

Another huge freighter, apparently loaded with asphalt, was trailed at 15 miles an hour east in Fullerton avenue. Its license number was G-3521. Its name had been scratched from its sides.

A load of coal in George R. Hinners company's truck, D-12-641, was timed at 20 miles an hour south bound on Elston avenue. A Gillman Lumber company hard tired trailer pulled by a truck with license B-[illegible]6-460 was clocked at 25 miles an hour in North Robey street.

Other hard tired trucks recently reported in traffic are E-66, John Carette; B-61-246, Henry Dolinsky, 9512 Van Buren street, and 37-358, Great Western laundry.

This body on a Dodge chassis has a dual function. This picture shows the automobile as a delivery car. The tonneau panels can be removed to convert the job into a passenger sedan.

Hijacking of Chicago Bound Trucks Halted

BY HAL FOUST.

Coincident with a cleanup of so-called "protective" or "police and sheriffs'" associations, there has been an abatement in the highjacking of fruit and vegetable trucks bringing produce from Michigan, through northern Indiana to Chicago.

"These associations," said Capt. Lawrence A. Lyon, deputy superintendent of the Michigan state police, interviewed at his headquarters in Lansing last week, "operated like the racketeers you have, or at least used to have, preying on various businesses in Chicago.

Loads Are Highjacked.

"Last summer, the self-appointed protectors were putting the squeeze on the trucks as they left the big farmers' market at Benton Harbor headed for Chicago. The haulers were asked to pay $25 or $50 as insurance against losing their cargoes to robbers.

"While these heavy handed solicitors were selling memberships, trucks were being highjacked right and left during the night trips to Chicago. The situation got so bad last fall that several big shippers abandoned the use of trucks and sent their produce to market by boat.

"We drove the membership solicitors out of the state, and thereafter the highjacking of trucks virtually ended. So far this year in Michigan there have been only three trucks robbed. On two of the jobs, four men and two women are serving penitentiary terms. On the third job, five defendants are awaiting trial.

"I say we drove the solicitors for these racketeer associations out of the state, but perhaps this is not an accurate statement. We halted the most active of these crews, but occasionally one will come into the state and shakedown some truck operator to 'protect' his fleet."

Offers Membership.

The captain related an incident that took place in Detroit seven weeks ago. The officer was visiting a friend who hauls steel from Mansfield, O., when a caller entered the offices. Mr. Lyon, in civilian clothes, was asked to keep his seat while the caller introduced himself and stated his business.

"I represent the Ohio Brotherhood of Police Officers," the visitor told the fleet operator. "Are your trucks having any trouble in Ohio?"

"No. That is, nothing to complain about."

"You don't want to have any trouble, do you?"

"Of course, not."

"Well I can offer you a membership in the Ohio Police Brotherhood for $25."

The solicitor is awaiting trial on a charge of operating a confidence game.

The Indiana state police, at the district barracks at Chesterton, near Dunes state park, corroborated Capt. Lyon's report that truck highjacking is on the wane since racketeer protective associations have been suppressed. Chambers of commerce in northern Indiana and southern Michigan gave similar reports.

No Reports of Shakedowns.

At the Benton Harbor cash to grower fruit market, said to be the largest market of its kind in the world, operators of a couple of score of produce trucks plying between Michigan and Chicago were interviewed and said they had not heard any recent reports of such shakedowns.

"There are an average of 200 trucks a day that leave here to go into or through Indiana, mainly to Chicago," said James C. MacMillan, market master, "and I'd probably be one of the first to hear of any resumption of this racketeering. I can say that we have been free from these vulture this summer and fall."

"Our northern Indiana branches," said Joseph J. Cavanaugh, manager of the Chicago Motor club, "last year received several reports of this 'protection' racket but we haven't had any complaints this summer."

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

GAS TAX DIVERSION.

Chicago, Oct. 5.—The article appearing in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE concerning the proposed diversion of the gasoline tax and the recession of road work by the county for many years to come was enlightening and interesting to the motorist who pays the gasoline tax.

The motorist does not object to paying a gas tax, provided he gets something in return, but he certainly will object if he is compelled to carry the lion's share of unemployment relief. If the gasoline tax is diverted and road work halted our boulevards and through streets, which are breaking up, will soon be impassable.

Recession of road work would not be in line with President Roosevelt's policy of encouraging and promoting public works. Instead of getting a new deal, the motorist would get a raw deal. NRA to the motorist would mean no relief for autoists. MOTORIST.

DRINKING AND DRIVING.

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 5.—The article by Hal Foust in today's TRIBUNE, in which he states that the legalization of beer and the repeal of the 18th amendment received recognition among delegates at the convention of the national safety council as perhaps the outstanding safety advancement of 1933, is dangerous in that it might be taken to prescribe beer drinking as a safety measure.

There is enough alcohol in two bottles of beer to slow up a driver's judging faculties to a point where he may not put on the brakes, turn the wheel, or do whatever is necessary to avoid an accident. This is not a W. C. T. U. conclusion, but comes from Dr. Francis G. Benedict, director of nutrition laboratory of the Carnegie institute at Washington.

Scientific measurements have proved that with a driver in normal condition this mental process takes about one-fifth of a second. Experiments under the medical research committee of England, reported by Dr. A. Vernon Stocks, established the fact that from two to four hours following the taking of as much alcohol as will be found in two ounces of whisky [the average American high ball or a pint bottle of beer] this process takes from two-fifths to three-fifths of a second.

This has been interpreted to mean that a normal driver at a 35 mile speed will cover ten feet before he starts to put on the brakes or take whatever action is necessary in the emergency. After a highball or two glasses of beer he may go 20 to 30 feet before the brain functions properly. An additional split second may thus mean the difference between safety and disaster.

WEST BOULEVARD PARKING.

Chicago, Oct. 12.—Referring to numerous articles and letters in regard to automobile traffic to the west, the facilities of both Washington boulevard and Jackson boulevard could be practically doubled during the morning and evening rush hours if the west park commission would simply enforce the ordinance in regard to parking on these boulevards during the above mentioned hours.

At present no regard whatever is paid to this ordinance and apparently no attempt made to enforce it. The result is that only one line of cars can move in each direction and it is impossible to pass a slow moving auto without risking an accident. B. T. ROBERTS.

BLOCK PEDESTRIANS.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Would it be possible to do anything in the way of forcing traffic to stop behind the red light on 71st street and South Chicago avenue?

Traffic of all kinds, including trucks, street cars, and automobiles, coming north on South Chicago avenue, all run up anywhere from ten to twenty feet ahead of the stoplight. This, considering that the traffic from 71st street cuts straight across, doesn't give the poor pedestrian a chance at all. KAY A. MOSS.

INTERCITY BUSES FOUND VIOLATING 40 M. P. H. LAW

Tribune Roadster Trails Four Offenders.

Intercity buses are violating the Illinois law that limits their speed on the open road to 40 miles an hour. THE TRIBUNE roadster last week trailed four of these carriers and in each case the speedometer registered well above the legal maximum.

A bus with Illinois license G2882 was followed south from Deerfield, Ill., in Waukegan road Friday afternoon with the speed indicator fluctuating between 46 and 52 miles an hour.

Duluth Bus Hits 52.

That night a Chicago-Duluth carrier, Illinois license G3795, was trailed north in Waukegan road from Dempster road to West Lake Forest. In the outskirts of the village of Northbrook the bus was traveling 45 miles an hour. North of Deerfield a maximum of 52 was reached.

A little later a Chicago-Twin Cities bus, Illinois license F2017, overtook THE TRIBUNE roadster on U. S. 41, north of Lake Forest. The roadster was held at 45 miles an hour on the winding, rough pavement carrying considerable traffic. The bus followed close behind for several miles. With the appearance of clear road ahead the bus driver gave a blast of his horn and passed the reporter's automobile. The big carrier was trailed at 50 and 52 miles an hour.

The same night a bus with Illinois license G2176 was followed in the winding Rand road from Lake Zurich to Wauconda, Ill., at 47 miles an hour.

Superintendent Is Interviewed.

All four buses carried the name of the Northland-Greyhound lines. The headquarters of this company is in Minneapolis. J. E. Spencer, operating superintendent in Chicago, was interviewed.

"How fast do your buses travel?" he was asked.

"Between 40 and 45 miles an hour," he replied.

"Don't they obey the 40 miles an hour speed limit?"

"The highway police allow a little leeway because no speedometer will remain absolutely accurate."

Governors Permit 52 M. P. H.

"Don't you have governors on the engines to hold down the speed?"

"The governors won't permit a speed higher than 52 or 53 miles an hour unless the bus is rolling down hill."

Legislature fixed the maximum speed for buses at less than the legal limit for passenger cars because of the great weight of the common carriers. While the buses are well equipped and well maintained for high speed travel—probably better than the average private car on the road today—the weight is so great that any mechanical failure would release a terrific momentum. The average loaded bus weighs 23,750 pounds, as compared with 3,600 pounds for a private car.

Momentum Is Compared.

George Barton, engineer for the Chicago Motor club, prepared the following table comparing the momentum in foot pounds of an average private car with the momentum of a loaded bus traveling at various speeds:

Speed—	Private car.	Bus.
35 miles an hour	147,296	971,744
45 miles an hour	243,805	1,608,442
50 miles an hour	300,721	1,983,026
60 miles an hour	433,432	2,859,452

In other words, a loaded bus going 35 miles an hour would hit an immovable object with more than twice the force of a private car doing 60 miles an hour.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Oldsmobiles sales figures for the last ten days of September showed a 69 per cent increase over those for the corresponding period in 1932, making total sales for the month 91.5 per cent greater than for September of last year, it was announced last week by R. M. W. Shaw, sales manager.

"Sales for the first nine months of 133 have totaled 43 per cent greater than for the same period of 1932," said Mr. Shaw. "During this period Oldsmobile has increased its percentage of total sales in its price range from 14 to more than 27 per cent. Oldsmobile's price group includes ten other makes of cars."

Announcement was made recently by H. A. Prussing, vice president in charge of the taxicab division of the General Motors Truck company, that orders have been received totaling over 1,600 taxicabs from the members of Radio Fleet Owners, Inc., New York City, one of the largest individual orders for taxicabs ever placed in the history of the industry.

C. M. Jacobson, a teacher in San Francisco, recently reported he drove his Terraplane 8 a distance of 1,404 miles in an elapsed time of 18 hours 45 minutes—an average of more than 55 miles an hour. Returning from a vacation trip, Mr. Jacobson left Jackson, Wyo., at 7 o'clock in the morning, crossed the states of Idaho and Nevada, and arrived at Oakland, Cal., at 1:45 o'clock the following morning.

Domestic registrations of Chevrolet cars and trucks, as officially reported by R. L. Polk & Co. for the first seven month of 1933, continue the record of impressive leads scored in the earlier months of this year. Up to Aug. 1 Chevrolet had registered 289,830 cars and 55,030 trucks, a total of 334,860 units. In 1932, in the same period, registrations were 243,450 passenger cars and 40,420 trucks, a total of 283,870.

W. F. Hufstader, Buick sales manager, reports a continuous strengthening in Buick retail sales, with complete September figures marking a definite increase over those of last year.

"September sales," says Mr. Hufstader, "show a most satisfactory volume, especially as compared with the same month a year ago. Total for the month is over 1,400 cars ahead of that of September last year, which is an increase of naturally gratifying proportions."

NEW DEAL HAS PRESS AGENTS TO BOOST WORK

High Salaried Men Hired to Contact Papers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—With the new deal has dawned a new day for the press agent and he is flourishing in the halls of government as never before. The urgent need of propagating the Rooseveltian doctrines of industrial control, farm relief, and social experimentation has given a mushroom growth to the corps of press relations officers attached to nearly every department and agency of the government.

Particularly have the agencies created specifically for the administration of the new deal found use for high salaried men who can disseminate to the press information reflecting the success of the recovery program. Every one, except one of the "administrations" set up since March 4—the NRA, the AAA, the PWA, etc.—has at least one and more often a corps of officials who serve as contact men with reporters.

Treasury Without One.

The older departments and commissions retain, of course, their own press relations officers, and only one department, the treasury, is without one. But the scope of their publicity activities in no way approaches the vast organizations set up by several of the new deal agencies.

The national recovery administration is a shining example. Under the direction of Charles Michaelson, whose highly skillful handling of publicity for the Democratic national committee is credited with a large part of Mr. Roosevelt's success in the last election, the NRA maintains a complete "public relations division."

Mr. Michaelson is director of public relations. He directs not only the press relations section but sections dealing with the radio, the motion pictures, and advertising as well. Under him are approximately a dozen highly trained publicity men whose function is to present the bright aspects of the recovery campaign through every available medium of dissemination.

AAA Has Staff of 17.

The agricultural adjustment administration closely rivals the NRA in the completeness of its publicity machine. The AAA has a publicity staff of seventeen persons, most of them press agents with previous experience, a few of them stenographrs and office assistants.

Directing the AAA press relations is Alfred D. Stedman, former Washington correspondent for a large daily in the farm area, and under him is a complete staff of "handout" writers, one being assigned to every important commodity involved in the new deal for agriculture.

In addition to the AAA publicity machine, the department of agriculture maintains its own "director of information," and its own chief of press relations, each with an office and a staff of his own.

Eastman Does Without.

Only one of the new deal agencies to proceed to date without the services of a press contact man is the office of the federal railroad coördinator. All information coming from this bureau is given out by Coördinator of Transportation Joseph B. Eastman himself, through the secretary of the interstate commerce commission.

The federal emergency relief administration has its own press agent with two assistants; so has the federal public works administration. The Tennessee valley authority maintains a staff of about six press relations officers and the farm credit administration has an equally elaborate setup. The civilian conservation corps, likewise, has its own press contact man, but his duties are not confined to this activity.

In addition, the older establishments of the government maintain their individual press sections. Except for the treasury, every department, and every important commission or independent office has its own press agent.

Also Serve as Buffers.

While the function of the governmental press officers is to send out information regarding the activity of their particular agency, they serve another purpose. They are the buffers between officials of the government and inquiring reporters. They arrange interviews, where arrangement is necessary, or they relay reportorial inquiries to the proper official.

In most cases their treatment of reporters is fair and their handling of inquiries satisfactory. This is particularly true of the commerce and state departments, where the press relations men have established reputations among capital reporters for impartiality and frankness concerning the affairs of their departments.

In the older departments, the press agent is regarded largely as a guide for reporters. When an inquiry is to be made of a governmental official, the reporter seeks the press relations officer, asks him who to see, and is directed to the proper person in the department. In most of the departments, officials are willing at any time to see reporters.

Referred to Press Agent.

But in the new deal agencies, a tendency has developed to bar the disclosure of any information except through the office of the press agent. This is true of the AAA, where inquiries directed to officials almost invariably bring the reply: "You'll have to get that through Mr. Stedman. There's a ruling that we can't give out any information except through him."

The preparation and distribution of "handouts" or prepared statements, is, however, the primary function of the press sections. These are generally flavored with the attitude of the federal agency involved and are designed, of course, to reflect the best side of the governmental activity involved.

"Handouts" Are Numerous.

The national recovery administration's public relations office is far and away the most prolific "handout" dispenser. Scarcely a day passes that a thick stack of prepared statements is not distributed to newspaper offices throughout the capital, and of the scores of "releases," only one or two are generally used. Most of the information concerning the national recovery drive comes direct, by word of mouth, from Administrator Johnson, who holds either a scheduled or [illegible] impromptu press conference nearly every day.

ATTACK IS MADE ON DEMOCRATS' NEW DEAL PLAN

G.O.P. Senator Assails Roosevelt Policies.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 14.—[Special.]—Evidence that Republican politicians deem the time ripe to begin sharpshooting at the Roosevelt administration was produced today with the publication of a vigorous attack upon the various policies and agencies for recovery set up under the Democratic new deal.

Indicator of the sniping that President Roosevelt may expect from the Republican right wing during the coming congress was in a letter, made public here today, written by Senator Henry D. Hatfield of West Virginia, chairman of the Republican senatorial committee during the 1932 campaign.

Ostensibly, the missive was to convey to Gov. H. G. Kump of West Virginia the suggestion that states and their subdivisions declare a partial moratorium on their bonded indebtedness, maintaining a fiction of solvency through "token" payments until the return of better times.

Supporter of Hoover.

Actually, the 12 page document was the vehicle for a deluge of criticism. The tenor of the letter is considered significant because Senator Hatfield was a staunch supporter of President Hoover and is regarded now as one of the probable congressional mouthpieces through which the Republican opposition which still looks on Mr. Hoover as its leader will voice its political attacks on the Roosevelt régime.

Senator Hatfield contrasted Republican attempts during the last congress to amend administration bills in order to preserve state rights. He described how, in the face of such attempts, a "dictator" had been set up to dole out half a billion dollars in relief funds.

"By this step," the Republican senator wrote, "the states and their governors were treated as mere provinces, administrative areas, or even conquered territories, always subject to dictation from Washington—and all of it in direct conflict with every vestige of protection guaranteed to the states by the constitution, or reserved by them in their original delegation of power."

Democratic Methods Cited.

On the testimony of the senator's letter, the Republicans have learned and will make use of the methods—a stream of critical statements, broadside attacks, pot-shots at every possible target—which the Democrats under Charles Michelson, director of publicity, used so effectively to cut down the Republican forces during President Hoover's term.

Had Republican suggestions been heeded, Senator Hatfield wrote Gov. Kump:

"Then there would have been no excuse for abandonng our Democratic form of government and substitution for it a species of Russian-like socialism."

The laws invoked by the new deal such as the NRA act with its codes, were, he said, "conceived by an unscrupulous and unpatriotic mentality that is not in sympathy with our traditional form of government, so that by their crafty designs they have made it virtually impossible, under the codes, for any individual man to battle in court for his bill of rights, as they have made every day of violation punishable by a fine of $500 and six months in jail."

Labor has lost rather than gained by the codes, Senator Hatfield contended; for, he said:

"If the laboring man strikes in defiance of the dictator he may be held guilty of treason. Besides, under the code the prices of the necessities of life are increased. I can understand why a great many industrial workmen and farmers, too, think they are worse off under the codes than they were before."

Senator La Follette Will Lecture Here Tomorrow

Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin will give a lecture on "Progressive Statesmanship in America," tomorrow evening at Temple Sholom, 3480 Lake Shore drive. The senator will review the acts of the Roosevelt administration and interpret them from the view point of the Progressive party.

Suburban Building Figures Break All Records for This Year

LAST MONTH'S TOTAL EXCEEDS AUGUST BY 53%

Permits in 54 Towns Are $450,173.

BY AL CHASE.

[Real Estate Editor.]

September's suburban building figures broke all records for 1933. In addition they registered a gain of 53 per cent over those of the preceding month. The total of building permits in fifty-four Chicago suburbs was $450,173 for September, compared with $294,972 issued during August. The September figures exceed by $15,000 the next largest total for the year, which was that of June, with $435,000.

JAMES ARTEBERRY

[Brown Photo.]

When the low figure for the year is recalled, that of March, when the suburban total was only $198,000, the lowest ever recorded in the Straus Securities corporation survey of suburban building, last month's record total of $450,173 seems impressive.

Monthly Totals for 1933.

Following are the monthly totals so far this year, given in round numbers:

January	$235,000
February	305,000
March	198,000
April	330,000
May	416,000
June	435,000
July	352,000
August	293,000
September	450,000

The total for the nine months of 1933 still lags behind the figures for the same period of last year. This year the total is $3,014,000 as compared with $3,856,000 last year.

Following are the detailed figures for last month as compared with the same month last year and also with the preceding month of this year:

From the above table it is apparent that comparisons with the same month last year are still not so cheering, but there are indications of increasing activity which should steadily raise the total from now on, month by month.

Lake Forest Leads.

The September suburban survey is led by Lake Forest, for which community William O. Paape, building commissioner, reports a volume of permits totaling $50,943, a gain of 187 per cent over the preceding month and 243 per cent over the same month last year.

Winnetka is second with $46,150, and Robert Anderson, building commissioner, states that permits are continuing to hold up well.

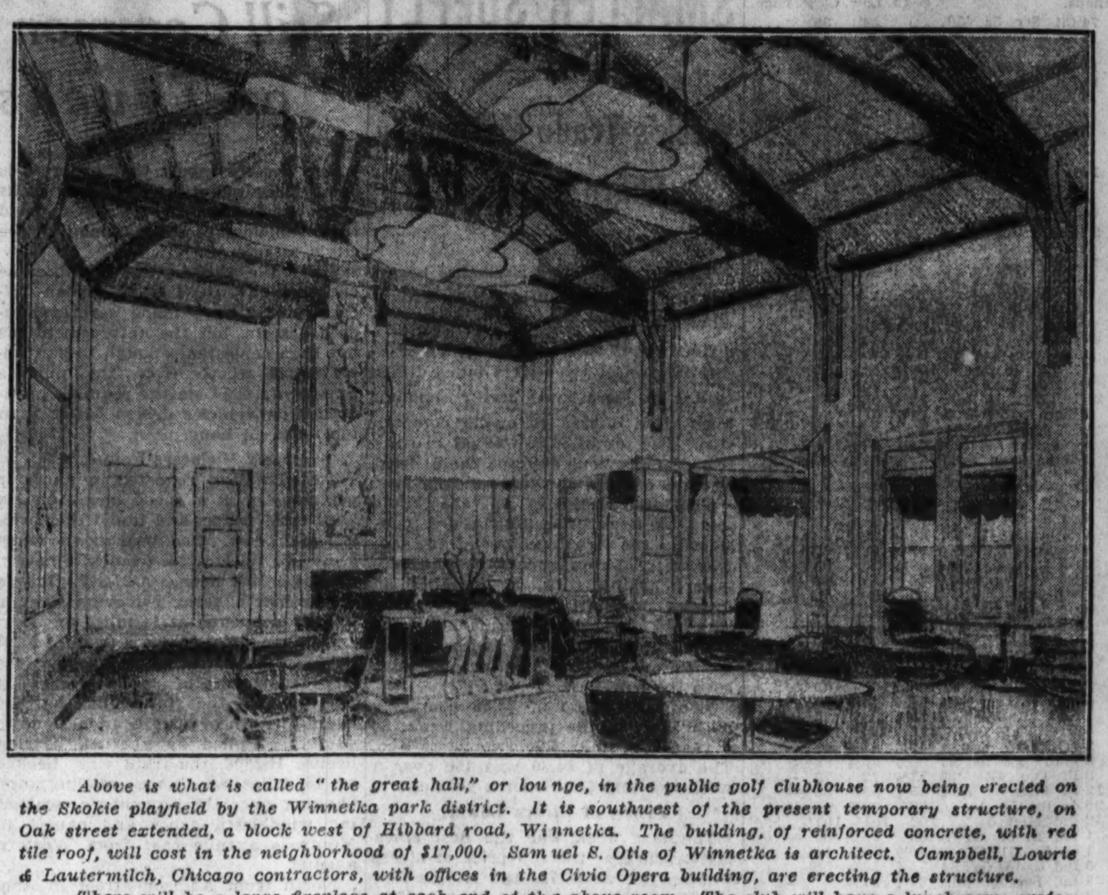
Third in line is St. Charles with $38,575. James Arteberry, superintendent of public works, explains how this community managed to lead several much larger cities on the north shore.

Publisher Builds.

"Plans are complete and work has started on a new building for the Chronicle Publishing company, which issues a weekly paper called 'The Chronicle,' founded more than half a century ago," he said. "The Chronicle has been handicapped by a shortage of space and the company's bindery has been located in outside quarters. The two plants will now be combined in the new building at the southeast corner of Walnut and First avenues.

"Another building of the same construction is being built adjoining the Chronicle, the two to all appearances forming one structure. The second building is being erected by L. J. Norris of St. Charles, and will be a commercial structure."

LUXURY FOR THE SUBURBAN CITIZEN GOLFER



Above is what is called "the great hall," or lounge, in the public golf clubhouse now being erected on the Skokie playfield by the Winnetka park district. It is southwest of the present temporary structure, on Oak street extended, a block west of Hibbard road, Winnetka. The building, of reinforced concrete, with red tile roof, will cost in the neighborhood of $17,000. Samuel S. Otis of Winnetka is architect. Campbell, Lowrie & Lautermilch, Chicago contractors, with offices in the Civic Opera building, are erecting the structure.

There will be a large fireplace at each end of the above room. The club will have a lunchroom, professionals' quarters and racks for golf bags. There will be no locker room. Mr. Otis made this sketch.

Says Millions Were Given to Save Company

M. E. Greenebaum, president of the Greenebaum Sons Investment company, told bondholders of issues underwritten by that concern, in a letter mailed yesterday, that he and his brother, James E. Greenebaum, had given their personal fortunes to aid the company during the worst days of the depression.

M. E. GREENEBAUM

"Without the slightest legal obligation on us personally, my brother, James E. Greenebaum, and I felt keenly a moral obligation to do everything possible to save the good name which we and our father before us had labored for seventy-five years to build," Mr. Greenebaum stated.

"We met that obligation by pouring $5,000,000 into the company, our entire personal fortunes, all we possessed, all we could borrow. This money enabled the business to continue, making it possible for our organization to devote its efforts toward aiding our investors during this trying period.

"I know that in those issues where our company has been acting as reorganization managers we have, after lengthy negotiations, succeeded in avoiding the appointment of a receiver in every single case, and have thereby been successful in holding the costs of reorganization down to an exceedingly low figure. Another point: Neither our company nor any of its officers has at any time acted as receiver for any property."

CASKET COMPANY LEASES PLANT IN WESTERN AVE.

The Hamilton Casket company, makers of steel coffins, formerly at 2153 Taylor street, has leased the block-long plant on the east side of Western avenue, between 42d and 43d streets, for a three year term at a reported total rental of $17,700. The lessee has an option for two more years at a term rental of $20,000 and also has an option to buy the plant within three years at $125,000, payable over a period of fifteen years. Mark Levy and Brother were the only brokers.

The building just leased is a one and two story brick structure containing 50,500 square feet of floor space. It was leased from the United Autographic Register company, which moved three years ago to a new and much larger plant at 5000 South California avenue.

Oak Park Land Values Soar Eighty Million Per Cent

Joseph Kettlestrings, the first settler in what is now Oak Park, in 1835, paid Uncle Sam $1.25 an acre for a quarter section in the present business center of that suburb, including the present Lake, Harlem, and Marion streets. A front foot of this land, then valued at half a cent, increased in value to $4,000, a gain of 80,000,000 per cent.

GEORGE R. HEMINGWAY.

George R. Hemingway, head of the realty organization bearing his name, who was born in 1876 at the northeast corner of Oak Park avenue and Superior street, yesterday recalled memories of early days in the western suburb.

He described the steady and remarkable growth of land values in Oak Park featured by the Chicago Title and Trust company in the next of the series of studies of "One Hundred Years of Land Values in Chicago," edited by Homer Hoyt.

Father Sold Acres.

Mr. Hemingway's father, in the real estate business before him, sold much of the land in Oak Park in acres. He, himself, has subdivided acres in response to the steady and constant demand for home sites.

"Land from Ridgeland to East avenue and from Augusta to Division was a cow pasture only fifteen years ago," he recalled. "In 1917 I sold lots on both sides of Euclid, from Thomas to Division, for $8 a front foot and resold them in 1926 for $100 a front foot.

"Land at Augusta and Fair Oaks avenue that sold for $800 an acre in 1913 was sold at the rate of $24,000 an acre in 1926. Lots on Madison street, from Oak Park avenue to Austin boulevard, that brought $25 a front foot in the boom of 1890, sold for $300 a front foot in 1925."

From $165 to $3,000 a Foot.

A corner on Marion street, half a block south of Lake street, in the heart of Oak Park's fast growing business center, was sold by Mr. Hemingway in 1908 for $165 a front foot. A few years ago it brought $3,000 per foot, an increase of 1,700 per cent.

URGES UNIFORM UPTOWN SQUARE MODERNIZATION

Modernization of business buildings in a development of Uptown square, at the intersection of Broadway, Lawrence and Racine, was suggested by B. C. Greengard, architect, at a recent meeting of the Central Uptown Chicago association, at the Lawrence hotel. Mr. Greengard showed sketches of how the district would look if roof tanks on the Riviera and Uptown theaters were camouflaged with towers; low buildings made modern by elimination of copings and roof structures; and side walls of tall structures decorated with shadow paneling, etc.

"Detailed designs of the individual buildings involved will be studied later, should it be possible to get the owners to agree on some unified action," said Mr. Greengard. "As individuals proceed with improvements they might then follow the accepted style set by the general design and so in time realize a dream of unified architectural effect in keeping with the importance of this great business and amusement center."

Big Mart Signs Contract to Maintain Elevators

One of the biggest elevator maintenance contracts ever signed is reported negotiated by the Merchandise Mart with the Westinghouse Electric Elevator company to take care of the thirty lifts in the world's largest building.

Building managements are contracting for specific services more and more in order that they may plan their budgets precisely. For instance, the Foreman State National bank building recently contracted by the year for the scrubbing and polishing of brass.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago the week of Oct. 6 to Oct. 12, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 18, with a combined cost of $307,700.

OAK PARK FIRM REPORTS GAIN IN OCCUPANCY

W. L. Vance, renting manager of F. A. Hill & Co., in Oak Park, reports an unusual increase in renting inquiry and apartment occupancy this fall. From an approximate 19 per cent vacancy list at the beginning of the fall season, their office now shows more than 94 per cent occupancy, he states.

In one building eleven vacancies have been reduced to one. Many buildings under their management, he says, already have been filled to capacity. Mr. Vance predicts that if conditions keep on improving at the present rate higher rental values may be expected by the spring of 1934.

GARDEN FLATS REPORTED TO BE 96% OCCUPIED

Big Project Has 14% Gain in 7 Months.

Ninety-six per cent of the 453 suites in the Michigan Avenue Garden apartments, the large housing development founded by the late Julius Rosenwald, are now rented, according to a report issued yesterday by Robert R. Taylor, manager. The lowest point of occupancy during the depression was reached March 1 of this year, when the building was only 82 per cent rented. Since then there has been a steady improvement and the present figure represents a gain of 14 per cent in occupancy in seven months.

ROBERT R. TAYLOR

The Michigan Avenue Garden apartments were erected in 1929 as a demonstration of large scale housing designed to serve families of moderate income. The entire development includes a city block of six acres, with a total of 453 apartments. The original investment amounted to $2,750,000, of which $500,000 has been paid back to the Rosenwald estate out of the income of the building since 1929.

On a Profitable Basis.

"The corporation has been operated upon a profitable basis each year since the completion of the building, including the year 1932 when a very small profit was earned on the $1,500,000 common stock," said Mr. Taylor. "The net profit is arrived at after allowance for operating expenses and fixed charges, including taxes, interest and depreciation.

"In 1933 the building will show a slight loss as indicated by the first six months' statement of this year which reveals a loss of $7,000 on the equity after all allowance for expenses and fixed charges. Drastic reductions of rent and various concessions have been made to tenants amounting to approximately 30 per cent of the 1929 rental prices.

"Today the price range on apartments is as follows: three room suites start at $38 with a $2 monthly rebate on two year leases; four room flats start at $45.50 with a $2.50 monthly rebate on two year leases; five rooms at $54 and up, with $3 rebate. Gas, electricity and electric refrigeration are furnished free.

Gets Nation-Wide Attention.

"The success of this venture has attracted nation-wide attention as evidenced by the visits and studies being made of it by architects, engineers, social workers, government and municipal officials from all over the country.

"At this time where there's such a widespread interest in low priced housing, the Michigan Avenue Garden apartments are serving the purpose of their founder—a demonstration in good housing."

EARL H. REED HEADS CHAPTER OF ARCHITECTS

Earl H. Reed Jr., with offices in the Tribune Tower, has been elected president of the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects. He succeeds Eugene H. Klaber, who resigned as president of the chapter to accept a position as technical adviser to the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works at Washington, D. C. Mr. Reed was first vice president of the Chicago chapter. He is in charge of the School of Architecture of Armour institute, located in the Art institute. Pierre Blouke succeeds Mr. Reed as first vice president of the chapter.

Scottish American Gets More Space in Rookery

The Scottish American company, which recently leased space on the eighth floor of the Rookery building for its offices, yesterday rented additional quarters on the fourth floor of the same building for research work. Shreve Cowles Badger is president of the concern, which acts as estate agents.

GRUNOW ILLINOIS COMPANY TO MOVE TO WACKER-WELLS

The Grunow Illinois company, distributor of Grunow refrigerators and radios, now in the Medinah Michigan Avenue club building, at 501 North Michigan avenue, has leased 1,800 square feet of space on the ground floor of the Engineering building, at the southwest corner of Wacker drive and Wells street, for five years and will move shortly.

L. W. Cohen, president of the company, stated that the addition of a radio line necessitated removal to larger quarters. The McKeown Realty company, agents of the Engineering building, represented both parties.

REAL ESTATE BOND SERVICE

Inquiries must be accompanied by stamped, self-addressed envelope for personal reply. Answers are based on information received from outside sources and, beyond care in securing it, The Tribune assumes no responsibility. Inquiries should be addressed to the Real Estate Bond Service, Chicago Tribune. Information should not be asked for more than one issue at a time. Give the name of the underwriter and the full title of the bond.

Produce District Administration Building.

I purchased a bond of the Produce District Administration building from the Straus National Bank and Trust company in 1925. I am 70 years old and bought this as an old age investment. I can get no information regarding its status. Can you tell me anything about it?—J. M.

H. W. Schloss of the Straus Service corporation makes this statement regarding the issue in question: "This property remains in possession of the trustee under the first mortgage. However, operations are reported to be so unfavorable that the property has not earned sufficient to meet operating expenses and current taxes. After part payments, past due taxes [including accrued penalties] amount to approximately $75,000.

"Foreclosure proceedings have been instituted by the trustee on behalf of all the bondholders. However, in view of the unfavorable operations and the necessity of applying all surplus proceeds of the operations of the property toward accumulated past due taxes, it appears that no reorganization will be possible for a considerable period.

"We are advised that the bondholders' committee, in view of the situation, has not felt justified in incurring additional expenses in connection with a supplemental report to the bondholders and that it will report to the interested bondholders whenever there are developments of sufficient importance to warrant the expenditures."

Belle Shore Apartment Hotel.

Can you tell me anything about the bond issue against the Belle Shore Apartment hotel at 1062 Bryn Mawr avenue?—H. A. W.

"The Belle Shore Apartment hotel is owned and operated by Max Malter, the original signer of the bonds," Mr. Malter writes THE TRIBUNE. "It is one of the few apartment hotels not in the hands of a receiver.

"But due to the unfair competition of receivership hotels which surround us, we were forced to cut the interest due as of April 15, 1933, to 3 per cent, which has been duly paid to a majority of the bondholders, in fact, all that we have been able to reach.

"In every instance they were glad to coöperate with us to this extent at this time. Every indication points to a resumption of 6 per cent payment of interest by Oct. 15.

"If your inquiry is from a bondholder who has not been paid, due to our inability to reach him, please advise that we will pay coupons at 1062 Bryn Mawr avenue."

Dodge Official to Speak on the Building Outlook

T. S. Holden, vice president in charge of the statistical department of the F. W. Dodge corporation, will speak next Tuesday afternoon at the annual convention of the American Hardware Manufacturers' association at the Palmer house. His subject will be "The Building Industry and Its Probable Outlook."

HYDE PARK 'Y' OPENS A DRIVE FOR MEMBERS

Englewood to Start Campaign Thurs.

A twelve day enrollment period, in which 300 men and boys will be sought as new or renewal members, opened Wednesday evening at the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A., 1400 East 53d street. The drive will end Oct. 23. At the same time, plans are under way for the annual membership campaign of the Englewood Y. M. C. A., set to begin with a dinner at 6:30 o'clock next Thursday and continue through Oct. 30.

Timed to coincide with the blossoming of fall activities, the Hyde Park drive is headed by Ward B. James, chairman of an executive committee of 26 members. The committee is divided into units representing various activities of the "Y."

The division of the executive group: wrestling, Edward Howell and Don Beals; swimming, Fred Luepker; tumbling, Harry Shaddow and Russell K. Chapman; gymnastics, Ben Chapman and Al Van Linden; handball, Robert Harlan and Dr. A. S. Jacobson; basketball, Edward Knudsen and Al Gilmour; riflery, William Vandera and Sherwin Murphy.

More Group Divisions.

Men's work, L. H. Maurseth; boys' work, William Boutry and Volney Morin; senior division, Warren Ziv and Emmanuel Hirsch; residence, M. M. Minnick and George N. Smith; forum, M. R. Soelberg and Louis Torch; 6 p. m. men's gym class, Oscar H. Boenicke and James Bogie; 5 p. m. class, C. A. Beckwith; 11:15 a. m. class, Charles Hermanek.

Basketball, swimming, volleyball, and contract bridge groups got under way last week. Paul Allais is in charge of the biggest contract class since that activity was taken up. The social dancing class will be resumed Thursday evening under the direction of Holmes Walsh.

O. E. Peterson is executive secretary of the Hyde Park "Y" and C. L. Shaw is program secretary.

100 Workers on Job.

The Englewood "Y" drive to open Friday, will give the 100 workers a flying start with a "Take-off Banquet" Thursday evening. The campaign is to be run in the form of a balloon race. Fifty "balloons" will enter, each carrying two men, thus splitting the 100 men into 50 teams.

J. E. Glen, chairman of the membership committee, is in charge of the drive. Members of the committee assisting him are Fred Heick, George Essex, Willard Kock, and David Donnan. Coöperating with these leaders are James F. McFarland, executive secretary, and Harper Glezen, men's secretary.

'LIONESSES' OF HYDE PK. TAKE OVER THE CLUB

The "Lionesses" had their day last Tuesday at the Hyde Park Lions club luncheon in the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. About fifteen of these wives, sweethearts, and relatives of club members stormed the meeting for Ladies' day and took over the conduct of the meeting. Miss Ethel Castle, sister of the club vice president, was president for the day. The speaker, too, was a woman. Miss Bertha McCarty. She is a lovelorn columnist in the east under the name of Elise Joy, and now is "bumming" her way west on food and pennies picked up by speaking to clubs en route.

Officers for the day: Vice presidents, Mrs. S. J. Aurelius, Mrs. J. A. Butler, Mrs. John Algar; secretary, Mrs. Ben Wagner; treasurer, Mrs. Abner Barnard; lion tamer, Mrs. F. B. Rose; tail twister, Mrs. E. W. Oliver; song leader, Mrs. Arthur Schoenstadt.

Committee chairmen: Program, Mrs. W. H. Sherwood; publicity, Mrs. Herbert Walgren; music, Miss Irene Coates; activities, Mrs. J. H. Kaleher; membership, Mrs. J. E. Kidwell; boys' work, Mrs. A. P. Dippold; milk fund, Mrs. E. F. Sullivan; attendance, Mrs. C. C. Cricks; finance, Mrs. A. B. Butler; sports, Mrs. John J. O'Connell.

ST. RITA HIGH TO HOLD FOOTBALL DANCE ON DEC. 2

Dec. 2 has been selected as the date for the annual homecoming and football dance of St. Rita High school, 63d street and Oakley avenue. The senior class is in charge of arrangements for the affair which will be held in the high school gymnasium. Class officers recently elected will appoint a committee to handle arrangements. The officers are James Meehan, president; Vytal Eicas, vice president; James Gibson, secretary, and Ralph Jackowski, treasurer.

Improvement Group Wars on Idea of Fair as Spa

The South Shore Improvement association last week went on record opposing the conversion of A Century of Progress site into a city playground "until such time as a proper method of taxation is worked out whereby the costs and expenses will be distributed equally, as we deem it a great injustice to all taxpayers of the south park district to be compelled to support by taxation such a project." The resolution adopted has been forwarded to Mayor Kelly and to south park commissioners. It contends that the entire city and county should pay the costs of such a spa, since the entire district will reap its advantages.

What to Wear for Fall Shown at Blue Island Style Exhibit

What the modish maiden will wear this fall was demonstrated by these Blue Island young women at the fashion show held Oct. 7 at St. Aidan's Episcopal church under the auspices of the Woman's guild. Left to right, Miss Ruth Rogers, Miss Mattie Beasley, Miss Glady Johler, Miss Betty Herman, Miss Iona Boughner, Miss Betty Lemon, Miss Ruth Strelow, and Miss Shirley Johler. Arrangements were in the hands of Mrs. A. M. Weaver, chairman, and Mrs. David Jaiser, president of the guild.

OUR TOWN

THAT much talked about vacation in the golden west has become a jaunt to the southland. Chesterfield folk have been hearing all summer from Mrs. Norris Murray that she and her brother were going west for a vacation this summer. Somehow, they just never got going, and Mrs. Murray averred something would have to be done about it after all the conversation. A postal card last week announced they were in Tennessee.

If Robert McMillen, 9208 Merrill avenue, had wanted to blow his own horn last week-end he would have been just out of luck. In fact, he was out of luck, for thieves purloined two auto horns from his car last Saturday night while it was parked near 92d street and Commercial avenue.

Mrs. Julia Ferber, mother of Author Edna Ferber, has returned to her home in the Windermere East hotel after a pleasant summer of travel in Norway and Sweden.

THE University of Chicago is living up to its reputation for picking the cream of the crop. Six south side high schools have their top ranking scholars there as freshmen—Norman Davidson of Hyde Park, Georgina Stewart of Parker, Norman Nachtrieb and Claude R. Cox of Tilden Tech, Clara Sprague of Bowen, Thelma Friedman of Lindblom, and Robert Schuback of Englewood Evening High. Second place senior scholars include James Majarakis of Calumet, Helen Varkala of Englewood, Elizabeth Hennens of Morgan Park, and Arthur C. Lundahl of Tilden Tech. Also on the Midway is Elizabeth Thompson, first among the Thornton Township High seniors.

From Oberlin college comes the news that Leslie K. Walker, 10734 South Wood street, is making good with his fellows. Leslie has been made one of the two social chairmen for the men's building, largest freshman dormitory and campus headquarters for first year men.

OCT. 9 of each year brings recollections of Chicago's great fire on that day in 1871. One of the interesting bits this year comes from Mrs. E. A. Weeks of Blue Island. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. August Dufrene, now in Port Huron, Mich., were married just three months before the fire. The Dufrenes lived but a block and a half from the famed Mrs. O'Leary and her more famous cow; they knew Mrs. O'Leary well. Their recollection of Mrs. O'Leary, according to Mrs. Weeks, as "a kind of careless woman" is interesting. They add that she would milk her cow "whenever she felt like it." Both are living and in good health. Mr. Dufrene, now 82, has gained his second sight and now reads without the aid of glasses. Mrs. Dufrene is two years her husband's junior. Both enjoy THE TRIBUNE, and Mrs. Weeks frequently sends them copies of it.

"The Morning After" is the intriguing title borne by the latest book of modern verse by Sis Willner, of Hotel Shoreland, one of the south side's promising young writers. This is her third volume and has just been published by William Targ. Sis will read excerpts at a 12:30 o'clock breakfast today before the Pen and Pencil club at Hotel Knickerbocker. Her preceding books of verse are "A Lady Thinks" and "A Gentleman Decides."

J. W. Kendrick, 9610 Vanderpool avenue, dropped in the other day to show us he has been reading THE TRIBUNE for more than 49 years. He brought along a copy of the issue of Aug. 30, 1884, telling of Jeff Davis' attempt to obtain pensions for Confederate soldiers.

THE Chicago-Spring Valley commuting John W. Pachankises, 5919 South Troy street, have been at it again. After entertaining Mr. and Mrs. James Riva during the Legion convention, and watching Red Faber mow down the Cubs, the Pachankis family returned to Spring Valley with the Rivas last week-end for a two day sojourn.

When the James Noaklers came from Niagara Falls, N. Y., to visit the Vincent Macklins, 1501 West 82d street, they planned to stay but a few days. Like many another World's Fair guests they extended their visit to two weeks so they could see everything. But we have an idea that the Macklin hospitality had something to do with it, too!

Becoming silver wedding anniversaries today, Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Selig, 545 East 80th street, will have a reception for old friends this afternoon and evening. Married in the old Ellis clubhouse, 35th and Ellis avenue, the Seligs are lifelong south siders.

Among the last to return from summer haunts were Mrs. Thomas F. Madigan and her son John, 3832 West 61st place. Scarcely two weeks ago they bade good-by to their vacation home on Paw Paw like in Michigan.

We almost forgot. Grace Tupes, 8130 Kimbark avenue, wrote us a little note the other day telling all about the big time the gals of Alpha chapter of Lambda Alpha Lambda sorority had in their visit to the Fair. Dinner at Ukraine and then the Midway sideshows. Better hurry, folks. That Nov. 1 closing date is almost upon us.

MARRIED 25 YEARS

Capt. and Mrs. Harry T. Scheckel were beseiged with unexpected visitors who helped them celebrate their silver wedding anniversary. The impromptu celebration took place at their home, 3716 South Honore street, where they were married in 1908, and many of the guests were present at the anniversary. Capt. Scheckel is in command of hook and ladder company No. 14 of the Chicago fire department. He and Mrs. Scheckel have two sons, Howard and Harry, shown above.

FLOSSMOOR TO WELCOME NEW PASTOR TUESDAY

Flossmoor will welcome the Rev. Dr. Robert Ward McEwen as pastor of its community church Tuesday evening. The service of installation will be held at 8 o'clock at the Flossmoor school with Dr. Charles W. Gilkey, dean of the University of Chicago chapel, as preacher. Afterward there will be a reception for Dr. and Mrs. McEwen in charge of the Woman's association of the church.

DR. ROBERT W. McEWEN

Dean Gilkey's participation in the installation service is a consequence of Dr. McEwen's association with him in the work of the chapel while studying for a doctor's degree at the university.

Others taking part in the service will be the Rev. Richard E. Shields, executive secretary of the Community Church Workers of the United States, the Rev. J. E. Charles, rector of St. John's Episcopal church of Flossmoor and Dr. Herman Kieter, pastor of Our Savior's Lutheran Community church of Riverdale.

Dr. McEwen is the second pastor to serve the Community church in the six years since its founding. He succeeds the Rev. John Gray Rhind, now pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Covington, Ky.

SOUTH END GRID LEAGUE TO PLAY 3 GAMES TODAY

The South End Chamber of Commerce Football league, which opened its third season last Sunday, has three games scheduled at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The Pullman A. A., in its first game of the year, will meet the Balchunas eleven at Palmer park, 111th street and Indiana avenue. The West Pullman Boosters will play Kensington Merchants, also at Palmer park, while the third game sends Calumet park against the Robins A. C.

The North Roseland Boosters drew a bye in the seven team league of 150 pounders. Last Sunday brought only one decision, West Pullman Boosters beating the Robins, 8 to 0. Scoreless ties were recorded in the Balchunas-North Roseland Boosters and Calumet Park-Kensington Merchants games. Racine Thompson is president and Ernest A. Backlin is secretary treasurer of the league.

Dr. Evans to Talk on Safety to Pullman Group

Dr. W. A. Evans, health editor of THE TRIBUNE, will address the greater Pullman group of the Chicago safety council at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening in Palmer Park fieldhouse, 111th street and Indiana avenue. This will mark the opening of the third season of meetings for executives, foremen, and key employés of industrials in the district. "What About Accidents" is Dr. Evans' subject. There will be a short entertainment program prior to the address of the evening. The public is invited.

Lincoln Centre Opens Morning Series of 20 Lectures Friday

The Friday Morning forum of Abraham Lincoln centre, 700 Oakwood boulevard, will open its season of 20 lecture-discussions this week. The subject matter of the series ranges from art and religion to the "new deal" and recent political and social developments in half a dozen foreign countries. The lectures will begin at 10:30 o'clock each Friday, with a 30 minute question period and luncheon after each address.

Prof. William F. Ogburn of the sociology department of the University of Chicago, will speak Nov. 3 on "The Consumer and the New Deal," in one of the leading programs of the forum. Prof. Ogburn until recently was director of the consumers' advisory board of the NRA. He also was on the wartime labor board, in the United States bureau of labor statistics, and director of the Hoover research committee on social trends.

The speaker at the opening session next Friday will be Maud Phelps Hutchins, wife of the University of Chicago's president. Her subject is "Art and Life."

Dengler on Austria.

The first of the discussions of other lands will be on Oct. 27, when Paul Dengler will speak on "Austria: Has It a Future?" Mr. Dengler, a graduate of the University of Vienna, is in the United States this winter under the auspices of the Institute of International Education.

Other lectures in this category include an address by Upton Close, Asiatic observer, on Nov. 10. Mr. Close is a favorite of some years on Chicago lecture platforms. Harold Lasswell, associate professor of political science at the University of Chicago, will speak Jan. 5 on "Lessons to be Learned from Germany."

The Rev. Frederick B. Fisher, former bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church in Calcutta, will speak Jan. 12 on "Gandhi and India." The Rev. Mr. Fisher now is minister of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Ann Arbor, Mich.

"Our Stake in Latin America" is the topic of Ernest Gruening, editor-in-chief of the Nation, who will appear on Feb. 9. Quincy Wright, professor of international law at the University of Chicago, will speak March 2 on "Mexico." The last of the foreign discussions and the semi-final program of the series will be "From Manchuria to Geneva." by Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for the Prevention of War.

Future Religion Topic.

The final program will be a panel discussion of "The Religion of the Future." Taking part will be Dr. James M. Yard, former director of religion at Northwestern university Dr. A. Eustace Haydon, professor of comparative religion at the University of Chicago, and Dr. Solomon B Freehof, rabbi of K. A. M. temple.

Other programs:

Nov. 17—"Youth and the World It Faces Today." Ethel Kawin, research psychologist of the Institute of Juvenile Research.

Nov. 24—"Mid-West Pioneer Architecture." Earl Reed Jr., head of the department of architecture at Armour Institute of Technology.

Dec. 8.—Dr. John Haynes Holmes, editor of "Unity," and leading progressive churchman.

Dec. 15—"Can Our Colleges and Universities Be Improved?" Prof. Mortimer Adler, University of Chicago professor of philosophy of law.

Jan. 19—"What Liberties are Left?" Roger Baldwin, director of American Civil Liberties union.

Jan. 26—"Poetry in Our Modern Age." Bonaro Wilkinson Overstreet, poet and critic.

Pitkin to Speak.

Feb. 2—"Life Begins at Forty." Walter B. Pitkin, Columbia university journalism lecturer.

Feb. 16—"The Progressive Movement and Its Aftermath." William T. Hutchinson, associate professor of history at the University of Chicago.

Feb. 23—"The Negro's Contribution to American Life." William Pickens, field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

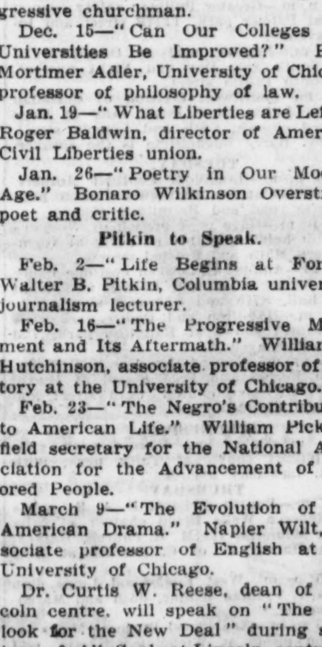
March 9—"The Evolution of the American Drama." Napier Wilt, associate professor of English at the University of Chicago.

Dr. Curtis W. Reese, dean of Lincoln centre, will speak on "The Outlook for the New Deal" during services of All Souls-at-Lincoln centre at 11 o'clock this morning.

St. Kilian Society to Give Halloween Party

The St. Kilian Altar and Rosary society will hold its annual Hallowe'en costume party at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening at the parish hall, 87th and Aberdeen streets. Old fashioned entertainment and games with prizes for the most unusual and most amusing costumes are being arranged by Mrs. James Clancy, chairman of the affair, and Mrs. Joseph A. Hogan, president. Refreshments will be served and no admission will be charged, but all who come without costumes will be penalized.

BENEFIT TAGGER



Miss Rosemary Gleason, 6617 Ingleside avenue, will head a group of young girls who will be taggers tomorrow for the Children's Benefit league. Miss Gleason is a daughter of Mrs. Joseph Gleason, president of the South Side Catholic Woman's club.

SLIGHT UPTURN MAY BRING 60% TO DEPOSITORS

Receiver Points Out Economies.

[This is the seventh of a series of articles analyzing the condition of closed banks on the south side.]

BY HERBERT VEDDER.

Checks for a 10 per cent dividend were mailed last week to the 3,000 depositors of the closed Kenwood State bank. A minimum of 35 per cent more in dividends may be realized in the course of liquidation, according to John M. Thomson, receiver.

This conservative figure is arrived at without counting on collections from the $224,894.72 in notes held by the bank, and constituting its largest item on the balance sheet. It depends only upon a slight increase in the present market value of stocks and bonds held by the institution and collection of one-fourth of the stockholders' liability.

With any luck, however, the depositors may receive a total return of 60 per cent or more, in the opinion of one man in close touch with the bank's affairs. Any figure above 50 per cent, apparently guaranteed, must be considered in the nature of a guess dependent upon improved business conditions.

Stocks Shrink 66 per Cent.

When the bank closed it had more than $100,000 in what were considered class A stocks and bonds. These tumbled to a market value as low as $33,000. In gleaning cash for last week's dividend payment of $26,251.74, some $10,000 of these were sold at an average of slightly more than 90. The remaining stocks have a market value of more than $50,000 at present, enough to pay an additional 20 per cent dividend now. Mr. Thomson hopes by holding them to realize half again as much for the depositors.

The bank was capitalized for $200,000, and collection of less than one-fourth of this amount from the stockholders' liability suit would provide cash for a 15 per cent dividend. Mr. Thomson scored dilatory tactics of the courts, charging a haphazard attitude in serving summonses, but hopes to see the case brought to trial this fall.

It is apparent to one who has examined the balance sheet that depositors could be paid 90 cents on the dollar if just half of the $225,000 in loans outstanding could be collected. The balance due creditors of the bank is $235,532.46 after payment of the $26,251.74 dividend. Stocks and bonds are worth more than $50,000 today, and at least $40,000 is expected from stockholders' liability suit, and there is $5,404.99 cash reserved against preferred claim suits not yet settled.

Preponderance of "Bad Paper."

Any estimate of what actually will be realized on the loans, however, is strictly a guess. A preponderance of the notes is considered "bad paper" by Mr. Thomson—and the remainder as "very slow paper." Debtors either cannot or will not pay, and Mr. Thomson cited the case of one director who for a year has been obtaining continuances or changes of venue in court. Others threaten to institute bankruptcy proceedings if pressed for payment.

Opened in 1930, the bank was too young to have been caught with large real estate loan holdings. The balance sheet carries but $38,235 in this item. Accounts receivable total $1,252.77, and various other assets amount to $1,580.51. Something, though not much, is expected to be realized from these. The $50,805.44 at which furniture and fixtures are held must, however, be considered almost a total loss.

Depositors are fortunate in not having a banking house as a theoretical asset—or a liability in upkeep. The bank operated in rented quarters. Rental of $450 per month has been eliminated by Mr. Thomson, who has moved the receivership to his office at 1053 East 43d street.

Points Out Economies.

Mr. Thomson also is proud of the economy effected when he obtained appointment as receiver for the stockholders' liability suit, thus saving the cost of two receivers, as is the usual case. The bank closed June 22, 1932, and expenses have been $25,644.97, nearly matched by earnings of $20,274.60.

A loss of $28,167.75 has been suffered in the conversion of stocks, bonds, and loans to $140,000. No bills remain — more than $100,000 being erased in addition to payment of $11,833.99 in preferred claims.

The remaining stocks and bonds carry a book value of $122,261.90, slightly less than par. The principal bad holding is $15,000 in Insull Utilities Inv., Inc.

Utility holdings, rated highly: Central Power and Light company, $5,000; Cities Service Power and Light company, $5,000; Continental Gas and Electric company, $5,000; Utilities Power and Light corporation, $5,000; Central Power company, $4,000; Public Utility Holding Corporation of America, $8,000. Other principal investments: Louisiana and Arkansas Railway company, $15,000; McKesson and Robbins, Inc., $13,000; Erie Railroad company, $10,000; Western Newspaper Union, $6,000; St. Louis-San Francisco Railway company, $5,000; Valspar corporation, $5,000; Houston Oil Company of Texas, $5,000; Thermoid company, $6,000; 200 shares of Van Sweringen corporation, no par, book value $4,837.50. All other figures represent par value.

10,000 WOMEN TO GATHER AT 6 CLUB MEETINGS

State Federation to Hold Regional Sessions.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Timely topics, from Indian welfare to international relations, will occupy the attention of 10,000 Illinois club women the next fortnight when they gather at the six regional meetings of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. The series opening Tuesday in Galesburg will reach its climax on Oct. 26 when the Chicago conference is held at the Sherman hotel.

Mrs. William Franklin Farrell, the hard working president of the state federation, will preside at each one of the six meetings. At Galesburg and Decatur, the locations of the two conferences in the central region, Mrs. Farrell will be assisted by Mrs. Ralph W. Pringle. Mrs. O. A. James will be the assisting officer in Edwardsville and Benton, where the two southern conferences are to be held, and Mrs. Roy F. Hoadley will be the second presiding officer in Chicago and in Mendota.

Following registration at 9:30 o'clock the morning of the 26th the Chicago conference will convene at 10 o'clock. Mrs. Laura Waples McMullen of New York, chairman of the international relations department of the general federation, will be the guest speaker at the luncheon at 1 o'clock. Her subject will be "Interpretation: World Events of the Hour."

Plan Garden Program.

At the afternoon session, which will include a series of open forums, Mrs. Wallace B. Combs, chairman of the state garden department, will present Frank Isel in a demonstration of "How to Make an Outdoor Garden." Rodney H. Brandon, former director of the state department of public welfare, will address a conference of the welfare leaders of the various clubs at 2:30, presided over by Mrs. Morey Roberts, chairman of the state welfare department. Mr. Brandon will present the salient points of the state's program and explain the comprehensive welfare program of the state federation.

Mrs. Earl W. Padgett, chairman of club institutes for the general federation, is coming from Galwin, O., to discuss the topic "Valuations" at the afternoon conference. Mrs. Padgett will be introduced by Mrs. Paul I. Pierson, chairman of club institutes for the Second district. One of the most interesting forums will be the press and publicity conference presided over by Mrs. Fred R. Lufkin and addressed by Miss Irma Dupre. Miss Dupre's subject will be "Interpreting the Woman's Club — New Days, New Ways in Publicity."

The Indian welfare representatives of the various clubs meeting in open forum will hear Mrs. J. Marc Fowler explain "Emergency Conservation Work." Other speakers on this program will include William Wilkerson, a Cherokee Indian; Mrs. Charles Fitzgerald, president of the First Daughters of America and Indian welfare chairman for the Ninth district of the Illinois federation; Mrs. William Rogers, chairman of Indian welfare for the Third district, and Miss Marion Gridley, secretary of the Indian Council Fire. The addresses will be followed by a general discussion led by Mrs. William Hawk, Indian welfare chairman for the state federation.

Juniors to Have Conference.

Juniors of the northern Illinois region will wind up the day with a conference at 8 o'clock in the Bal Tabarin of the Hotel Sherman. The evening auxiliary of the Austin Woman's club will give a musical program and Miss Gwendolyn McDonald will do several interpretive dances.

The Galesburg conference on Tuesday will be held in the First Congregational church of that city. In Decatur on Wednesday the meeting place will be the First Baptist church. Members of the First Methodist Episcopal churches of Edwardsville and Benton will be hostesses for the southern conferences on Thursday and Friday. The first meeting in the northern region in Mendota Oct. 24 will be held at the First Presbyterian church.

Native Daughters to Meet.

Mrs. Jacob Baur will given "Present Day Impressions of Europe" when she addresses the opening meeting this year of the Native Daughters of Illinois at 2 o'clock Tuesday in the president's suite at the Congress hotel. Mrs. Clarence Gilbert Goodwin will be the presiding officer.

The purpose of this active group of women is expressed in a few lines spoken recently by one of the members in a radio broadcast . . . "to bring together women born in Illinois to promote the study of and to inspire unswerving loyalty to the constitution of the state, to foster and to uphold the history and the traditions of the state and to establish a common meeting place for the lovers of Illinois."

The organization is only six years old, but the accomplishments are myriad. Outstanding is its gift of the Lorado Taft statue of Lincoln and Joseph Birren's painting, "Blossom Time," to the Illinois Academy of Fine Arts. The Native Daughters have a scholarship loan which is awarded to a deserving young woman each year for the study of music.

STARS AID COOKERY EXPERT

JOAN KAY.

Stars from the stage, screen, radio and the musical world will vie with Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, famous home economics expert, in entertaining the women of the south side of the city for four days, beginning Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 7, at the third annual TRIBUNE School of Cookery, to be conducted in coöperation with Miss Mary Meade, TRIBUNE cooking editor, at the Trianon ballroom, 6201 Cottage Grove.

Among the entertainers will be D. A. Clippinger, Chicago choral director and author of books on music, who will lead community singing; Georgeann Huxley and Doris Bell, students of the Ethel and Gertrude Morgan School of Dancing, who will present a 15 minute dance interlude, and Joan Kay, who is known in radio as the "Personality Girl."

PLANS MUSICAL

Miss Elizabeth Lorang, as music chairman of the Blue Island Junior Woman's club, has arranged a musical program Tuesday evening for the club.

CHURCH COUNCIL OF ENGLEWOOD TO OPEN SCHOOL

Leadership Training Is Purpose of Courses.

Sponsored by the Greater Englewood Church council and open to all, the seventh annual session of the Englewood School of Leadership Training will open at 7:20 o'clock tomorrow evening at the Englewood Y. M. C. A., 6547 South Union avenue.

Four courses will be offered, two on Monday evenings and two on Tuesday evenings, to make it possible for a person to take two courses during the school. Each subject will be run in double periods, so that 12 hours' work may be done during the six week term. The school is approved by the Chicago Council of Religious Education and its credits are accepted at national headquarters of all leading denominations.

Two Hundred Students Expected.

More than 200 Sunday school teachers and adults of Englewood churches are expected to enroll. Last year's record of students from 44 different churches is expected to be equaled or exceeded. The school draws from as far west as Chicago Lawn, as far north as 55th street, as far east as Woodlawn, and south through Auburn Park.

One of the newer subjects, American church history, will be taught on Mondays by Dr. William W. Sweet, author and lecturer, recognized as a leading authority in this field. This series of popular lectures is designed to lead to an understanding and appreciation of the background and development of the churches in America.

The other Monday course, a new one in the school, will deal with personal relationship and personal counseling in religious leadership. The instructor will be Dr. Earl E. Emme, former professor of religious education at Nebraska Wesleyan university and author of educational works.

Course on Old Testament.

Dr. George L. Robinson, nationally known author and lecturer, who is professor of the English Bible at the Presbyterian Theological seminary, will teach a popular course on the Old Testament. This is designed to furnish a better understanding and more effective use of the Old Testament. A Study of the Pupil, for teachers of elementary grades, will be taught on Tuesdays by Miss Marion Everett, whose experience has brought her in contact with children both in church and public schools.

James F. McFarland, executive secretary of the Englewood Y. M. C. A., is dean of the school. The registrar is Miss Melba Newstrom of Bethel Lutheran church, a member of the Y staff.

The committee supervising the school consists of the Rev. Olin Clarke Jones, Calvary Methodist Episcopal church; the Rev. John G. Koehler, Normal Park Baptist; the Rev. Karl H. Meyer, Grace Evangelical; E. C. Slaughter, Englewood Christian; J. C. Clay, North Congregational, and R. G. Rydin, Bethany Swedish mission. The latter three are Sunday school superintendents.

Church Leaders Meet.

Both the Englewood Sunday School Superintendents' association and the Englewood Ministers' association held their first fall meetings last week, each discussing plans for the school. The superintendents heard Dr. Emme and also received reports. Clyde L. Burtis of the Normal Park Baptist church is the president.

Robert F. Havlik, managing officer of the St. Charles School for Boys, was the principal speaker at the ministers' meeting. The Rev. Howard A. Vernon of the Englewood Baptist church, the new president, occupied the chair. Harry K. Eby, Boy Scout executive of the Southwest district, was a guest and discussed with the group means of helping underprivileged boys.

Lawn Civic Group to Discuss Limit on Tax

Tax limitation will be the topic of a public session of the Lawn Civic association at 8 o'clock Monday evening at Gage Park fieldhouse, 55th street and Western avenue. William F. Stelzer, president, will discuss the prospects for pushing a one per cent limitation bill through the legislature, and speakers from the Cook County Civic council will talk on the operation of the tax machinery of Cook county, illustrating their discussions with slides.

LEADERS OF WOMEN

ENGLEWOOD "Y" OPENS DOORS TO 75 OF FAIR SEX

Mrs. Ellis in Charge of Fall Program.

After two summers of experiment, during which women and girls were given special memberships, the Englewood Y. M. C. A. has opened its facilities to the fair sex for the fall and winter season. Because of limited equipment and facilities, however, only 75 memberships can be given to girls at present. Two-thirds of these already have been taken.

Mrs. Hortense Ellis, who had charge of summer activity for girls, will be in charge of their winter program. During the summer 175 girls between 9 and 17 years old were Englewood "Y" members, taking part in gym work, swimming, outings, and World's Fair trips.

Ping Pong Favorite.

Ping pong again rises as one of the favorite diversions of the boys' department for the second straight season. Last winter the "Y" boys' team was ranked one of the strongest "Y" or park teams on the south side.

Because of the interest last year, the first big ping pong season at the "Y," two teams are to be organized this year—one for younger boys and one for older boys. Both will be coached by William Dorgan, last year's Englewood champion and well known in south side ping pong circles. Boys' teams seeking games are invited to contact the Englewood "Y."

Wolff Elected.

Clarence Wolff, 6351 South Green street, last week was elected president of the Y-Minutemen, a service group and one of the boys' departments oldest clubs. Other officers named: Vice president, Fred Chabot, 6625 South Union avenue; secretary-treasurer, Eugene Morgan, 6718 Sangamon street; sergeant-at-arms, John Gross, 6915 South Union avenue; athletic director, Leroy Lundgren, 231 West 59th street.

The Minutemen include about 20 of the older boys in the department, some of whom have been in the club four or five years. The group has been in existence almost since the opening of the "Y" seven years ago.

Football Mothers' Club at Luncheon Tuesday

The Lindblom Football Mothers' club will hold a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock Tuesday at St. Matthew's church, Marquette road and Hermitage avenue. Harry Keeler, principal; Edgar Palmer, assistant principal; E. L. Moore, football coach and dean of boys; H. O Stanger, assistant football coach, and mothers of boys on the varsity squad will be special guests. Mrs. E. G Weimer is president of the club this year; Mrs. J. F. Schneider, secretary; Mrs. Joseph Kiecka, treasurer, and Mrs. J. L. Baker, social chairman.

Heald Chapter of D. A. R. to Entertain 28 Groups

Rebecca Wells Heald chapter, D. A. R., will be hostess to 28 chapters of the fourth division of the organization all day Thursday in the Zella Gamble Memorial First Methodist Episcopal church, Harvey. Mrs. Julian G. Goodhue, state regent, and other state officers and chairmen from all over the state will take part in the program which will begin at 10 o'clock and continue through the day. The Harvey chapter is opening its third season with Mrs. Wilbur Day as regent.

PRESIDENT

Mrs. Fred W. Waterman, president of the Third district, Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, will conduct the opening meeting of the year Tuesday at Lawn Masonic temple, 62d place and Homan avenue, at which the Chicago Lawn Woman's club will be hostess.

Englewood Grant Store Marks 27th Birthday

The Englewood store of the W. T. Grant company at 825 West 63d street last week joined in the celebration of the 27th anniversary of the launching of the company with its single store in New England. The Englewood store was opened in August, 1931, and has become one of the leading members of the chain. M. W. Rowe, manager of the Englewood store, said that the company has been enjoying one of its best years, depression notwithstanding. The 500 stores in the Grant company extend from coast to coast and from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico, doing an annual business of more than $80,000,000.

WEST KENWOOD'S BEST GARDENERS WIN SILVER CUPS

Jerry Casey Is Accorded First Honors.

Climaxing its better homes and gardens contest, the West Kenwood Improvement association Monday evening awarded silver cups to the owners of the four most beautiful gardens in its territory.

The awards were made at the home of Jerry Casey, 4405 Emerald avenue, whose garden was adjudged the finest in the district. The loving cups were presented by Ald. James J. McDermott [14th].

Others to receive them were Charles F. McLaughlin, 545 West 44th place, second prize; Edward A. Knoth, 645 West 46th place, third prize; Daniel Walsh, 639 West 48th street, fourth prize.

Honorable Mention to Many.

In addition, honorable mention was accorded many of the hundred odd residents who entered the contest. The competition was launched last spring by the newly organized association as the first step in carrying out its slogan, "Make This Neighborhood a Fit Place to Live In." Its territory is bounded by 43d and 49th streets, Parnell avenue, and Halsted street.

That the contest will be an annual event was indicated by Larry Kean, president. A depot for the collection and distribution of seeds has been established at 4605 South Halsted street, and members of the association are bringing their extra seeds there to be given away to residents who could not otherwise afford a garden.

"Next season none will have an excuse to stay out of the contest because of the expense involved," Mr. Kean said. "We're going after every shirker until there's not an eyesore left in the neighborhood. As an added inducement we plan to increase the number of prizes to 25."

Variety, Lighting Recognized.

Mr. Casey's rock garden was accorded first prize because of its layout, the variety of its flowers and shrubs, and its illumniation at night by colored lights. Mr. McLaughlin's recently remodelled house and his wide variety of flowers won him second place. Mr. Knoth's perfect hedge was mentioned among his qualifications for third place, and Mr. Walsh's numerous varieties of flowers and their arrangement earned him a cup.

Those who received honorable mention, listed by the blocks in which they reside, include:

43d street—Mrs. Delia McMonagle.

43d place—Mrs. Anna Lyons, Mrs. William De Wilkins, J. Bockman, and P. Hughes.

44th place—George Newby.

46th place—Mrs. Gussie Mayer.

48th place—John Waldron, Michael Scanlon.

Halsted street—Mrs. Anna Evans.

Emerald avenue — Barney Burns, Timothy Casey, Steve Reagan, James P. Shaughnessy, Thomas Gavin, Jerry Casey, Mrs. Delia Walsh, Charles A. Murphy, Mrs. Catherine Murphy, John Healy, Mrs. Mary Meehan, John O'Halloran, Tim Gleason, David Casey, Jack Gleason, Mrs. Julia Sinon, John Murphy, John Murray, Mrs. E. Bell, Patrick J. Horan, Mrs. Mildred A. Kean, John Gibbons, John O'Toole, Kiron Holloway, J. Stansbury, and Mrs. B. McDonough.

Union avenue—James A. May, Lawrence J. Finnegan, William Cornfield, Mrs. Robert Magner, Edward Gaynor, James Ellis, Patrick Kenney, Herbert Weed, William Walsh, James Lysaught, Denis Mitchell, Joseph A. Fitzgerald, Daniel J. McCarthy, Patrick Lavin, James O'Donnell, Daniel Noonan, and John Ross.

Lowe avenue—St. Gabriel's convent.

Wallace street—Meynell Fowler.

AWARD CUPS FOR BEST GARDENS

Chief Thomas E. Ryan of the 11th division of the Chicago fire department is shown as he awarded a cup to Jerry Casey, first prize winner in the West Kenwood Improvement association's better homes and gardens contest. Chief Ryan headed the committee which judged more than 100 gardens entered in the contest. Others in the picture, left to right, are Kenneth Holloway, treasurer of the association; Edward J. Joyce, vice president; John J. Canavan, member of the garden committee; Larry Kean, president; Charles F. McLaughlin, Edward Knoth, and Daniel Walsh, respectively second, third, and fourth prize winnets.

BAPTISTS MARK 100TH BIRTHDAY HERE THIS WEEK

Special Service Series Begins Tuesday.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

DR. PERRY J. STACKHOUSE.

Where were the Baptists when the Presbyterians came to Chicago? This question was answered on Oct. 19, 1833, by the founding of the First Baptist church a few weeks after the Presbyterians founded their first one. In recognition of the centennial, the Rev. Dr. Perry J. Stackhouse, pastor of the First Baptist church, has announced that a series of special services will be held beginning Tuesday.

The church was founded with a membership of fifteen persons whose names, Dr. Stackhouse points out in his book, "Chicago and the Baptists," are Puritan and biblical "with a strong flavor of the rockbound coast of New England from which most of them had migrated."

Some of the Earliest.

The Rev. Samuel Freeman, Samuel Jackson, Peter Worden, Samantha Harmon, Nathaniel and Abel Carpenter and Susannah Rice, are names from the original membership. They illustrate why a Baptist church in Chicago was "predestinated," and why, as Dr. Stackhouse points out, the Baptists have been greatly influential in shaping the city's destiny.

The centennial program begins with a young peoples' night in the church auditorium, 935 East 50th street. On Wednesday historical services will be held with Dr. Johnston Myers of old Immanuel church, Mary McDowell of the University of Chicago settlement, George Dixon, Dr. Graham Taylor and Mayor Kelly the speakers. Centennial night on Thursday will welcome former members of First church and a great birthday cake will be served.

Plan Unity Service.

Fellowship with seven other denominations will feature the services Friday night. Bishop Ernest L. Waldorf of the Methodist area of Chicago; Dr. Henry S. Brown, superintendent of the Presbyterian extension board; Dr. George H. Thomas, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church; Dr. Ernest G. Guthrie of the Congregational union, Dr. Herbert Willett of the Disciples of Christ; Dr. Joshuo Oden, pastor of the Irving Park Lutheran church, and Dean Charles Gilkey of the University of Chicago chapel will be the speakers.

Next Sunday morning Dr. Stackhouse will preach the anniversary sermon.

GOLDEN JUBILEE

Golden jubilee will be observed this week by one of the oldest Orthodox Jewish congregations in Chicago with a three day festival. Commencing with the late Friday evening services on Oct. 20 and followed by other special services and events, the fiftieth anniversary of the Agudath Achim North Shore congregation, 5029 Kenmore avenue, will be concluded next Sunday night with a banquet.

The congregation represents the merger of the old Hungarian synagogue membership with that of the newer north shore congregation.

Isadore Liederman is president of the congregation. Max Shulman is chairman of the jubilee committee, and Rabbi I. H. Weisfeld is the spiritual leader of the congregation.

At a special late service Friday evening three leading Chicago rabbis will preach. They are Rabbi David Kominker of the Nusach Sfard congregation, Rabbi Jacob Siegel of the Humboldt Boulevard temple, and Rabbi Solomon Freehof of the K. A. M. temple. Rabbi Weisfeld will officiate at the services, and Cantor Aaron Kritz and a choir will chant the prayers.

The dinner Sunday evening will be kosher and will be served at the Sovereign hotel. More than 400 persons are expected. The dinner will be followed by dancing.

TO GREET BISHOP

Chicago will be host to one of the best known missionaries in the orient the first week in November. He is the Rt. Rev. Logan H. Roots, D. D., bishop of Hankow, China, who has just returned to this country with first hand information about Chinese conditions.

Bishop Roots will address Episcopalians of the city at a dinner the evening of Nov. 6, sponsored by the Church Club of Chicago.

Bishop Roots is a native of Illinois. He spent his early years in New England. Graduating from Harvard university in 1891 and from the Episcopal Theological school in 1896, he entered foreign missionary service immediately and went to China. In 1904 he was elected to the bishopric of Hankow.

INVITES BISHOPS

An invitation to the house of bishops of the Episcopal church to visit Chicago on Nov. 6 has been extended by Bishop George Craig Stewart before a meeting of the national council of the Episcopal church in New York.

Bishop Stewart extended the invitation in the name of The Church Club of Chicago as well as personally. He invited the bishops to be guests of the local organization at dinner that evening.

The house of bishops has been called for a special meeting in Davenport, Ia., starting Tuesday, Nov. and many of the prelates will be passing through Chicago the previous day. Among other matters, the appointment of an assistant presiding bishop of the American church is likely to come before the Davenport meeting.

RE-ENACT WEDDING OF 50 YEARS AGO

MR. AND MRS. FRANK H. WHALEY.

ELOPED!

A wedding ceremony which followed an elopement 50 years ago was reënacted last Monday evening when Judge John J. Lupe of the Municipal court remarried his father-in-law and mother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Whaley. The marriage climaxed the couple's golden wedding anniversary celebration at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Ella Kroening, 1835 West 107th place, with whom they reside. Mr. and Mrs. Whaley were only eighteen when they slipped quietly away from Cromwell, N. Y., and were married. Mr. Whaley was born in New Canaan, Conn., and Mrs. Whaley was a native of Poughkeepsie.

They came to Chicago from the east 35 years ago and have lived on the south side and in Flossmoor. With them for the celebration were their five children, nine grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Other children, besides Mrs. Lupe and Mrs. Kroening, are Mrs. Otto Christ, 6007 Blackstone avenue, David Whaley of Flossmoor and Howard Whaley of Cedar Lake, Ind.

BRIDE-TO-BE

Miss Mary Kathryn Sibb, whose engagement to Henry Jen Kin was announced Tuesday evening at a dinner at Mr. Jen Kin's Pagoda inn, 202 West Cermak road. Miss Sibb is a student nurse at Jackson Park hospital.

James L. Goddard, basso with the Chicago Civic Opera company for several years, will be the featured artist at the harvest musicale which will be given Thursday evening at the Calvary Methodist Episcopal church, 78th and Morgan streets. Pipe organ music by Miss Bessie Scott, who also will accompany Mr. Goddard, and instrumental music, readings, and several numbers by a male quartet also will be included on the program. The young matrons' circle of the church is sponsoring the musicale. Mrs. Florine B. Wood, chairman of the program committee, is working on arrangements with Mrs. Esther Klinglerof, president.

CHURCH SERVICES

Announcements for this column must reach The Tribune by Tuesday evening. Only postcards may be used. Address The Religious Editor, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Please include the time and place of meeting, the name of the pastor, and his sermon subject.

GET TENANTS THIS QUICK WAY!

A Century of Progress still is bringing thousands of visitors to Chicago every day. These visitors want living quarters. A want ad in the Tribune can help you get a good share of this business as soon as they arrive in Chicago.

You can also reach thousands of these visitors before they arrive. A want ad in the Tribune can help you get reservations from out-of-town readers, and at the same time place your offer before far more people in Chicago and suburbs than read any other Chicago newspaper. Call Superior 0100—Want A-Viser!

● Auto repairing, awning and tent making, furniture coverers, beverage makers, golf courses, camera stores, landscaping, and similar businesses.

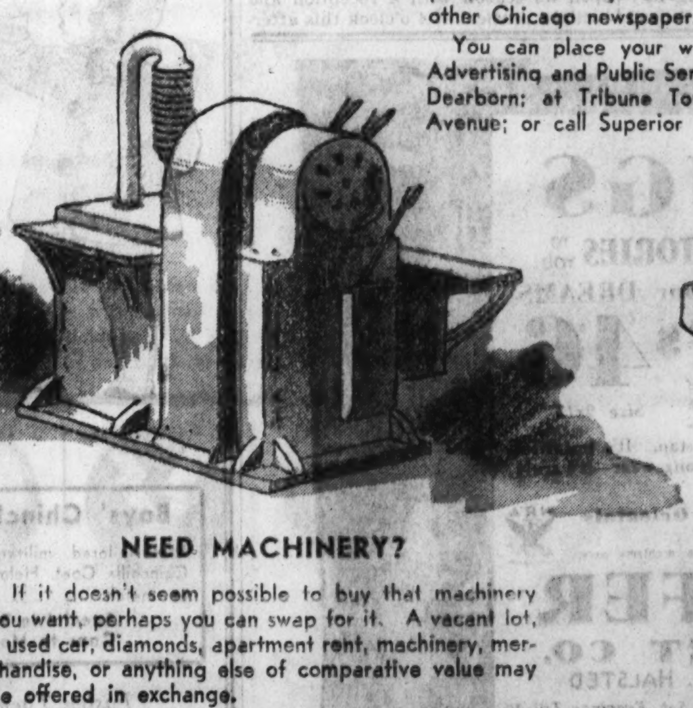
TO VISITORS WHO LOSE VALUABLES

The surest way to find lost valuables is through a want ad in the Tribune LOST & FOUND column.

You can describe the lost article to far more people in Chicago and suburbs than read any other Chicago newspaper.

You can place your want ad at the Tribune Advertising and Public Service Office, One South Dearborn; at Tribune Tower, 435 N. Michigan Avenue; or call Superior 0100—Want Ad-Viser!



NEED MACHINERY?

If it doesn't seem possible to buy that machinery you want, perhaps you can swap for it. A vacant lot, a used car, diamonds, apartment rent, machinery, merchandise, or anything else of comparative value may be offered in exchange.

A want ad in the Tribune BARTER & EXCHANGE column — Chicago's most active market — can place your offer before practically every interested prospect in Chicago. Call Superior 0100—Want-Ad-Viser.

● WANT TO SELL YOUR CAR?

Put it on the market now! There are always thousands of prospects in the market. Many a visitor to A Century of Progress also is interested in picking up a good used car.

What an opportunity to sell your car quickly! Especially if advertised in the Tribune Automobiles-for-Sale want ad columns—Chicago's most popular used car market. Call Superior 0100—Want Ad-Viser!

SOUTHWEST P.-T. COUNCIL TO HOLD ALL DAY PARLEY

Leaders to Gather About Round Table Tuesday.

An educational convention will be held by the Southwest Parent-Teacher council all day Tuesday at the Hope Reformed church, 78th and Lincoln streets. The morning session, beginning at 9:30 o'clock, will be given over to round tables for officers and chairmen with council chairmen in charge.

Luncheon will be served from 12 to 1 o'clock, and in the afternoon Mrs. Edward Jackson, third vice president of the Illinois congress of parents and teachers, will speak on "The Educational Significance of This Parent-Teacher Movement."

Mrs. Laura Gooch, who was made president last week following Mrs. Sandusky Williams' resignation Oct. 4, will conduct the session and one of the round tables. Mrs. Gooch is former recreation and leisure time chairman of the council. Mrs. Williams resigned on the grounds of ill health and a multiplicity of duties.

Other round tables will be taken over by Mrs. W. O. Roessler, vice president; Mrs. Hally Ward Grainger, secretary; Mrs. Nellie Baum, treasurer; Mrs. Sidney I. Berman, publicity; Mrs. C. A. Schilling, child welfare magazine; Mrs. W. F. Lyon, citizenship; Mrs. C. W. Wendelsdorf, home economics; Mrs. Carl Clauter, membership; Mrs. Thomas Thompson, parent education; Mrs. John Brantner, music and art; Mrs. Ray W. Wakeland, student aid; Mrs. H. T. Gabel, summer roundup; Miss [illegible] Cook, better films; Mrs. J. L. Lace, child hygiene; Mrs. Glen Kane, children's reading; Mrs. Frank Wendt, humane education; Mrs. Clarence Cook, ways and means.

C. Weyland Brooks, former assistant state's attorney, will speak at the opening Fathers' night program of the reorganized Parker High School Parent-Teacher association at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening in the east auditorium. The Parker campus mothers' chorus will sing under Mrs. Grace Humphrey's direction and Mrs. Arthur Rice will give readings. Thomas C. Johnson, principal, will welcome the fathers. Mrs. R. S. Houts, president, will conduct the session.

Others of the new board members chosen from the former junior high school and senior high school associations, include Mrs. Henry L. Kellogg, first vice president and program chairman; Mrs. W. T. Willis, recording secretary; Mrs. J. E. McArdle, corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. E. Lidster, membership; Mrs. H. G. Stokes, ways and means; Mrs. John Schlipper, social; Mrs. G. F. Mundt, publicity; Mrs. W. F. Fobes, juvenile protection; Mrs. Olice Winter, service and relief; Mrs. John Titus, band representative.

The Pullman association will hold its first meeting at 1:30 o'clock Friday with Mrs. Grace Kapp presiding. A reception will follow with Mrs. N. Lane in charge.

The Lewis-Champlin association will hold its first meeting at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday. Refreshments will follow a program and introduction of committee heads.

William Hedges, principal of the Eberhart school, will address the parent-teacher association at its first meeting at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow and Mrs. L. A. Krazowski, president, will sing, accompanied by Miss Lillian Thomas. Mrs. R. W. Ludwig, summer roundup chairman, will present certificates to children with perfect health records, and a reception to teachers will follow. Mrs. Sophie Sigele is program chairman.

Mrs. William Bethke, president of the South Side High School Parent-Teacher council, will talk on "Constructive Attitudes and Their Effect Upon the Children in the Home," at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday before the Oglesby association. Mrs. W. F. Gerleman will launch the membership drive, and the mothers' chorus will sing. Mrs. A. H. Hawkinson will preside.

A drive for books will be launched and Miss Adele Barton of the Ogden Park library and Miss Louise Randall, Calumet High school librarian, will speak at the Calumet association's first meeting at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow. Willis E. Tower, principal, will speak and Mrs. J. A. Milligan will present a program. Mrs. Clifford Smith will preside and Mrs. Claude Coombes will conduct the social hour following.

The Barton association at its opening meeting at 1:30 o'clock Thursday will have a talk on "What We Mean by Mental Growth," by Miss Grace Irene Bennett. Leisure time activities of pupils will be displayed and refreshments will follow.

Mrs. J. N. Phelps, principal of the Brownell school, will address the parent-teacher association at its opening meeting at 1:30 o'clock Thursday. School children will give a program and refreshments will follow.

Miss Margaret Kerr of the Washington school, Riverdale, will speak at 7:30 o'clock Friday evening before the Washington association of Harvey. School children will give a book pantomime.

Dr. Margaret L. Davis, medical director of the Women's Municipal home, will speak on "Children's Health" at 1:15 o'clock Friday at the Harvard association's opening meeting. Mrs. James J. Sharpe will preside. Summer roundup certificates will be presented and a social hour will follow in charge of Mrs. A. R. Cunningham. Plans for the year will be discussed at the first business session to be held at 1:15 o'clock tomorrow.

"Citizenship" will be the topic of Mrs. C. B. Smith, assistant district one director, at the Mount Vernon association's first session at 1:30 o'clock Thursday. Summer roundup certificates will be awarded and a reception for Mrs. Arthur Baer, new principal, and teachers, will follow. Mrs. J. W. Luther will preside.

The Marquete association's opening meeting will be held Tuesday afternoon and a reception for fathers is scheduled for Friday evening. Mrs. Rose Alshuler of the Chicago Normal college and the Winnetka Nursery school will address the association Tuesday. Mrs. Louis Johnson, president, will introduce new board members and summer roundup certificates will be presented by Mrs. A. R. Moberg.

The Yale association tomorrow will check over children examined last spring in the summer roundup.

Frank Rieder, new principal of the Fernwood school, will address the parent-teacher association at its first meeting at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow. Campfire girls will give a program and vacation time projects of school children will be exhibited. A reception to teachers will follow. A membership drive was launched last week.

"Know Illinois" will be the topic of a film and lecture to be presented at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday before the Gresham School Mothers' club. Mrs. B. F. Kalk, vice president, will preside and second, third and fourth graders will present three short plays. Mrs. William Hanna has launched a membership drive.

"The Importance of Heredity and Environment" will be among the topics discussed at the opening session of the Cook association's parent-education class at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow. Mrs. W. D. De Vore will preside.

The Fort Dearborn association's child study class will meet tomorrow afternoon at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Earl Gray, 8751 South Throop street. Mrs. E. J. Whitman launched a membership drive last week.

An extension course in Parent-Teacher work will open at 10 o'clock Thursday under the sponsorship of the Ruggles association. It will be conducted by Mrs. Emmanuel Molner and will continue each Thursday morning in the teachers' lunchroom of the school, 78th street and Prairie avenue.

Chief Clearwater of the Pottowatomie tribe will speak on "The Indian Home" at 1:30 o'clock Tuesday to the opening meeting of the Parkside association. There also will be a reception for Miss Cora Caverno, new principal. Mrs. W. S. Anderson will begin her term as president.

The Shakespeare association will hear a speech by Mrs. Laura Hughes Lunde at 2 o'clock Monday in the assembly hall, 46th street and Greenwood avenue. Miss Greta M. Brown, new principal, also will speak.

Mrs. Kenneth E. Newell is this year's president. Other officers: Vice president, Mrs. Reginald E. Baker; honorary vice president, Miss Ida M. Anderson; secretary, Mrs. Roy H. Manning; treasurer, Mrs. Andrew G. Nelson. Committee heads: Program, Mrs. John Le Valley; membership, Mrs. Baker; ways and means, Mrs. Benjamin Bartenstein; publicity, Mrs. John S. Burns; welfare, Mrs. Armand B. Sternberger; citizenship, Mrs. John Burns; parent education, Mrs. William H. Dial.

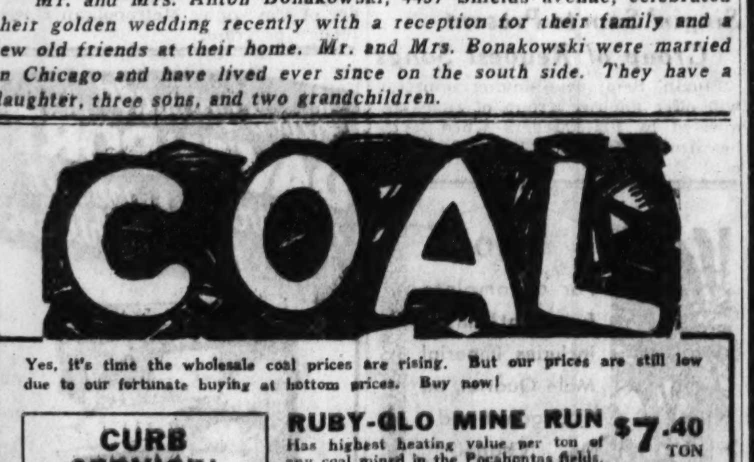
DREXEL CHURCH TO HOLD BIG CONCERT ON TUESDAY EVENING

FRED FARRELL.

A concert featuring Dorothy Boller, mezzo soprano, William Forbes, baritone, and Fred Farrell, organist and pianist, will be presented Tuesday evening at Drexel Park Presbyterian church, 64th street and Marshfield avenue. Songs of both the classical and modern schools will be included on the program. Miss Boller is a student of Richard De Young and a graduate of the Bush Conservatory of Music. Mr. Forbes is a pupil of Theodore Barg and Mr. Farrell is organist of the church.

GOLDEN WEDDING DAY



Mr. and Mrs. Anton Bonakowski, 4437 Shields avenue, celebrated their golden wedding recently with a reception for their family and a few old friends at their home. Mr. and Mrs. Bonakowski were married in Chicago and have lived ever since on the south side. They have a daughter, three sons, and two grandchildren.

PLAN FOOTBALL TESTS FOR BOYS IN SOUTH PARKS

20 Playgrounds Will Be Scene Saturday.

Football tests for boys 10 to 18 years old will be held in all 20 playgrounds of the south park system at 2:30 o'clock Saturday. Each park director will conduct his own trials, and will report the four best records in each event to the central office.

The four events in the individual tests are all distance efforts—punting, drop kicking, place kicking, and forward passing.

Four Puppet Shows.

The last four of the puppet shows will be staged this week as community entertainments. Four were given last week.

Hamilton park girls will manipulate their mannikins at 8 o'clock and Ogden park girls at 9 o'clock Tuesday evening in a show at Hamilton park, 72d street and Normal avenue.

Tuley park fieldhouse, 90th street and St. Lawrence avenue, will be the scene of shows Wednesday evening. Tuley girls will perform at 8 o'clock and Palmer's show will be an hour later.

Three on Thursday.

Three performances will be given Thursday evening at Grand Crossing park, 76th street and Ingleside avenue. The home park show will be at 7 o'clock. Calumet girls will give their performance an hour later and Russell square's puppets will do their stuff at 9 o'clock.

Friday evening will see hourly performances by Trumbull, Mann, and Bessemer park girls at Trumbull park, 103d street and Bensely avenue. The host park will open the entertainment at 7 o'clock.

All puppets were made by the girls and are manipulated by youngsters under 17 years of age. The scenery also is home made.

Heads Alumni.

VOICE OF THE SOUTHWEST SIDE

WORTHLESS.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—I have been watching your articles in regard to the Bain banks in the SUNDAY TRIBUNE and am sure all who are interested appreciate them. I suppose I am overstepping a privilege when I write you for information, but I know of no other way of receiving it. I am a working girl who deposited all her savings in the Lews Stock company, of which Bain was the head. I would greatly appreciate hearing from you as to whether there is ever a chance of receiving any of that money back. I understand the company is out of existence.

MABEL LEVEROOS.
1353 East 47th place.

[While technically still in existence, the Lews company has nothing of value from which investors might receive a return. Its only remaining assets are capital stock shares in the defunct Bain banks. This stock, far from being an asset, is a liability since suit is pending for assessments on the stock in an effort to obtain dividend money for depositors in the Bain chain.]

IT WILL.

Chicago, Oct. 8.—I have been reading with much interest your articles analyzing the condition of closed banks on the south side for the last few Sundays and am hoping that the series will include an article on the Depositors State bank, 47th street and Ashland avenue, which closed its doors Jan. 18, 1932, and to date no dividend payment has been paid to its depositors. I shall follow each article with interest.

EMMA BOCKELMAN.
6625 Drexel avenue.

Dr. Houghton to Describe Medical Work in China

Dr. Henry O. Houghton, director of the University of Chicago clinics and assistant dean of the biological division, will speak on "Medical Work in Peking, China," at the first meeting this season of the Jackson Park branch of the Woman's auxiliary of the Chicago Medical society. The session will be at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday at the home of the president, Mrs. Meyer Solomon, 5426 East View park. Miss Mingsin Tang of International house, a student of social service administration, will speak on "The Chinese Family."

Now for the grand climax to our 64th Anniversary Celebration!

WARING TROUPE TO APPEAR WITH GARBER 'FLYERS'

Many Stars Slated for Midnight Tomorrow.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A gala broadcast is in store for W-G-N listeners at midnight tomorrow. Jan Garber will have as his guests on "The Midnight Flyers" hour Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians and all of the members of his Columbia show, one of the best on the air. Waring is appearing at the Chicago theater this week. A flock of other radio notables will join in this broadcast.

FRED WARING.

Jan Garber and Fred Waring have been close friends for more than a decade, and as soon as Fred reached town he called Jan and assured him he would be on hand tomorrow evening. With Waring and his new bride will be his entire "glee club"—Tom Waring, Poley McClintock, the frog voiced singer; the Lane Sisters, Babs Ryan, Johnnie Davis and Stuart Churchill.

Comments on Programs.

The outstanding premiere of the week was the Sentinels hour Sunday at 3:30 over NBC. Ever since we first heard Noble Cain conducting the Senn High school chorus we have predicted big things for his choral effects. His a capella choir of 70 voices added something novel, distinctive and fine to Josef Koestner's rendition of Grofe's Mississippi suite. Cain is one person who knows just how to make human voices blend with instrumental music.

Those cotton stocking songs by Johnny Morris on the Sunday night Lopez hour are as good as revivals of "East Lynne."

Young Arthur Wright, Mooseheart tenor, who sings with Leo Reisman on his new Saturday night program as well as his Wednesday night cigaret show, is due for a big following one of these days. His voice resembles that of Donald Novis, who by the way, returns to the air next month. He'll make his bow from local NBC studios.

Jack Pearl ought to go through another season successfully if he doesn't lean too heavily on that "Vass you dere, Sharlie," line. He showed admirable restraint in this respect on his first program.

The Two Ole Olsens.

Secrets will out! "Ole" Olsen of Olsen and Johnson, isn't "Ole" at all. His real name is John Olsen. His kid brother is named Ole, and thereby hangs a tale of embarrassment. Someone who is really someone in this entertainment business phoned the Olsen suite at the Sherman and asked for Ole. Mother Olsen, who with the aforementioned brother shares the suite, answered the phone.

"No," she replied, "Ole isn't in." But while she was taking the message someone knocked at the door.

"Ole," she called to the younger son. "There's someone at the door." Now the "Ole" Olsen of radio and stage fame is trying to convince that someone that he didn't get the "run around." Maybe this will help.

Radio Roundup.

Jimmy Melton leaves The Revelers, after six years with them, next month to join Mme. Jeritza in the new Romberg operetta, "Jerry." He will play the part of an Italian count. Frank Parker will take Melton's place . . . Amos 'n' Andy are broadcasting from New York. The sign "No Visitors" is up, as usual. . . . Dr. Hugo Eckener plans to broadcast from the Graf Zeppelin from mid-Atlantic this week en route to A Century of Progress. . . . Jean Sargent, the torch singer, was a columnist on a Philadelphia newspaper before she went to the musical comedy stage, which served her as a stepping stone to radio.

B. A. Rolfe is the dean of dance maestros. The other evening he was signing autographs when a man came up and said, "I saw your father 20 years ago playing a cornet in vaudeville." Said Rolfe, "Was it the Colonial sextet?" "Yes," he replied. Said B. A.: "That wasn't my father; that was I."

Al Jolson's association with Paul Whiteman is having concrete results. Al has lost ten pounds. But, then Paul lost a cool hundred. . . With John McCormack on the air at 8:30 Wednesday evenings over an NBC net, the competition for Lombardo and Burns and Allen, and Leo Reisman, who are on during the same period, is plenty lively. . . . Emrie Ann Lincoln who sings with Charlie Agnew, spends her leisure time designing and making her gowns. . . Arthur Lake (Harold Teen of the movies) and his sister, Florence, have started a new NBC series titled "Babes in Hollywood." . . . Bing Crosby returns to the air tomorrow night over CBS with Lennie Hayton supplying the orchestral background.

Sara Ann McCabe, one of radio's best sopranos, took time off during the week to sign on a couple of dotted lines. One assured her a new contract with NBC and the other made her soloist at the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, 692 Belmont avenue.

Although Norm Sherr, Columbia pianist, is 28 years old, he has been a musician for nearly 16 years. His profession has taken him around the world twice. He has performed in China, Japan, India, the Philippine islands and many other far away countries. He is heard in a new program with Harriet Cruise, at 5:15 p. m. Mondays over CBS.

More About "Last Roundup."

Billy Hill, the fellow who wrote "The Last Roundup," which you probably have heard over the air, knows his little dogies. He has knocked about a good deal with the ranch hands of the southwest. And he is no neophyte in the song writing business. He turned out "The Old Man of the Mountain," "Louisville Lady," and "They Cut Down the Old Pine Tree." His real name is William J. Hill, despite the fact that his Hollywood bosses asked him to use the name of George Brown lest, because of the tenor of his songs, folks suspect that Billy Hill was merely Hill Billy reversed.

Outstanding features of this song are the instrumental interludes between phrases and the sliding upward of the voice on sustained notes. This is characteristic of many a cowboy song.

Wynn's Radio Activities.

Ed Wynn is back in New York from his west coast picture making activities to watch his new network function and to get ready for his return to NBC on Tuesday evening, Oct. 31. Reports filtering in from the east regarding the Wynn net, Amalgamated Broadcasting system, are not so flattering. The whole network has a combined power of 2,300 watts, only a fraction of W-G-N's strength, for example, and yet ABS time charges are about the same as they are for a major New York or Chicago outlet. At the ABS inaugural executives are reported to have conducted themselves like small boys, ordering a reporter off the premises because he had criticized the new network.

ORPHAN ANNIE UNRAVELS PLOT

Orphan Annie and Joe Corntassel have a new batch of worries. Here are the famous W-G-N children's entertainers talking over the latest developments in the big plot to steal the map to the Chinese mine.

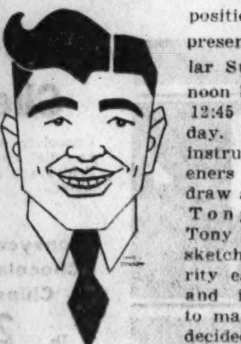
D'ORAZI TO SKETCH HIMSELF TODAY FOR W-G-N AIR CLASS

Tony D'Orazi, W-G-N's cartoonist of the air, will be placed in a unique position when he presents his regular Sunday afternoon broadcast at 12:45 o'clock today. Tony will instruct his listeners on how to draw a cartoon of Tony D'Orazi. Tony has been sketching a celebrity each Sunday and in response to many requests decided this week to make a drawing of himself.



TONY D'ORAZI.

Next Sunday Tony will resume his practice of drawing a radio notable who will appear with him on the broadcast.

VIRGINIA LE RAE ON W-G-N TODAY WITH AL GRANT

Virginia Le Rae, featured on W-G-N last spring and summer in "Opera Miniatures," will be presented with Allan Grant in a special program from 9:30 to 9:45 this morning. Miss Le Rae has a four octave soprano range. Recently she signed a contract to appear at the Hippodrome in New York with Salmaggi's opera company. She will make her debut on Oct. 23 in the title rôle of "Lucia di Lammermoor." For several weeks she has been engaged in concert work on the Pacific coast and the west.

VIRGINIA LE RAE.

CHOPIN WORKS TO BE FEATURED TUESDAY NIGHT

Two high points in the presentation of fine music by the W-G-N Concert orchestra under the direction of Adolphe Dumont will be heard in the Sunday mid-evening concert at 8 o'clock tonight and in Tuesday evening's great composer's program, featuring the music of Frederic Chopin.

Tonight's concert will present Ernest F. Pechin, cornet virtuoso, in Charles Gonoud's "Sing, Smile, Slumber." Sol Nemkovsky, first violinist, will be heard in the solo rôle of Saint-Saëns' "Prelude to the Deluge." The recital will begin with Schubert's "Overture to Rosamunde." It includes the ballet music from "Aida," Chopin's Polonaise in A flat major, and the Scherzo from Carl Maria von Weber's "Second Sonata."

The program at 9:15 Tuesday will include Chopin's famous "Polonaise Militaire," the Nocturne, opus 15, No. 2, with Alexander Aster at the piano; Preludes 6 and 7, opus 28; a Mazurka, opus 50, No. 3, and the "Minute Waltz."

ROOSEVELT TO OPEN DRIVE FOR RELIEF TONIGHT

W-G-N, Networks to Carry Address at 9 P. M.

President Roosevelt will launch the nation's mobilization for human needs for 1933-'34 in a season address over W-G-N and the combined N. B. C. and C. B. S. networks at 9 o'clock tonight.

The program will mark the beginning of a series of outstanding broadcasts in which many of the country's leading statesmen, writers, sportsmen and entertainers, in addition to the finest musical organizations, will take part.

The humanitarian work in behalf of the unemployed, hospitals, orphanages and homes for the aged and infirm will be directed by Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, who also was chairman of the mobilization committee last year. Mr. Baker will also speak on the opening program.

The Philadelphia Symphony orchestra, under the baton of the noted conductor, Leopold Stokowski, will provide the musical portion of the broadcast.

Three W-G-N features will be heard at new times on W-G-N tonight because of the fact that President Roosevelt is to speak during the time these programs regularly occupy.

"Headlines of Other Days" will be heard at 8:35 p. m. The "Headlines" for tonight will relate the story of the lost flyers of the Yukon, a gripping tale of three aviators who were lost for 60 days in the frozen wastes of the far north.

The reading of TRIBUNE news will be heard at 8:30 p. m. Angelo Patri will be presented at 9:30 p. m.

Mayor Kelly will be presented in two talks over W-G-N this week. On Wednesday night the mayor will speak from the studios of W-G-N on "The Citizens' Recovery Administration." On Friday afternoon the mayor will speak from the World's Fair on the occasion of North Side day at A Century of Progress.

A gala broadcast from four cities, including Chicago, and the deck of Admiral Richard E. Byrd's flagship will be heard over W-G-N and Columbia tonight from 7 to 8 o'clock to signalize the departure of Byrd's second antarctic expedition from Norfolk, Va. Admiral Byrd, speaking from Norfolk, will bid the world a formal farewell. Other notables and associates will speak during a colorful hour long broadcast which will include the dedication of the CBS transmitter aboard the flagship S. S. Jacob Ruppert at Norfolk, and a farewell from the crew of Byrd's former ship, the City of New York, now anchored at the World's Fair.

SPORTS REVIEW TO BRING HORSE EXPERTS TO MIKE

This week the W-G-N Sports Review, given nightly by John Harrington, will be featured by the appearance of the leading exhibitors at the World's Fair horse show. They will be guests of Harrington and will be interviewed by him. Thursday night will be horse show night on the sports review when the members of the jumping teams of the Irish Free State, Swedish army, Czechoslavakia and the United States will be interviewed on a dramatized review. Harrington has just signed a contract to continue the sports review for another year.

READY FOR RECITAL

Lawrence Salerno and Allan Grant, W-G-N featured artists, choose the numbers that Lawrence will sing at his recital in Kimball hall at 3 p. m. this afternoon. It's the tenor's first Chicago recital and Mr. Grant will assist as his pianist.

BACK HOME

CLYDE M'COY.
[Bloom Photo.]

Clyde McCoy and his orchestra will return to the Drake hotel and W-G-N next Saturday evening with new melodies and novelties for radio and dance fans. Following a tour through central and eastern states and a vacation in New England and Canada the "Sugar Blues" maestro comes back to work with added enthusiasm for W-G-N. "I do not believe that I ever fully realized just what my broadcasts have meant to me," he said. "Everywhere I played people told me about the many times they heard my broadcasts over W-G-N. That station must reach everywhere. I think that I owe much of the success of my road tour to W-G-N."

W-G-N TO REPORT BEAR-CARDINAL CONTEST TODAY

Nick Kearns to Tell of Famous Games.

When the Chicago Bears and the Cardinals, Chicago's two entrants in the National Professional Football league, clash this afternoon at Wrigley field, W-G-N will present an exclusive broadcast of the game starting at 2:25 p. m.

Bob Elson will detail the game and with him will be Nick Kearns, former De Paul university star and for several years one of the middle west's outstanding collegiate football officials. Kearns was also a member of the famous Navy Pier football team during the world war.

On the broadcast today Mr. Kearns will tell about some of the famous games he has officiated in and also will give the fans some interesting facts and explanations about the rules of the game. The rules of the pro league and collegiate game differ slightly and these differences will be explained.

A special booth has been built in the stands at Wrigley field to accommodate the broadcasters for the pro contests.

INDIANA-N. U. SATURDAY

When Indiana and Northwestern teams clash in a Western conference game at Dyche stadium in Evanston next Saturday Quin Ryan and the W-G-N microphone will be there to present a complete detailed story of the contest.

Indiana and Northwestern are old rivals, and as this is the first game of the season to be played at the stadium in Evanston a great crowd and a great show should result.

The W-G-N broadcast will start at 1:45 p. m. and the complete story of the contest, the picture of the college crowd in attendance, and the music of the rival school bands will be presented.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN AND KATE SMITH TO TALK FOR NRA

Kate Smith and Charles Chaplin, both of whom played active rôles in the Liberty bond campaigns of 1918-'19, will be heard over the nation-wide networks during the next fortnight in behalf of NRA. Miss Smith will talk at 10:45 Thursday, and Chaplin, whose voice seldom has been heard in public since war days, will speak Monday, Oct. 23, at 9:30 p. m.

South Bend Choristers on W-G-N This Afternoon

The South Bend, Ind., choristers, under the direction of Mrs. James H. Greene will give a special program over W-G-N from 1 to 1:15 this afternoon. This is one of the best trained choruses in the middle west and has appeared at A Century of Progress in special concerts, another of which will be heard at the World's Fair grounds this evening. For its air program today the chorus will include: "Bless the Lord, O My Soul," "Shenandoah," "Old Man Noah," and a Negro spiritual, "Keep to the Middle of the Road."

Colonel and Budd Sign 2 Year CBS, Film Contract

Col. Stoopnagle and Budd have signed a new two year contract with the Columbia Broadcasting system and also have been engaged to make a series of six talking motion picture shorts for Educational Pictures, Inc.

Singin' Sam to Present Group of Request Songs

Singin' Sam, deep-singing minstrel, will offer another group of tunes requested by his listeners when he is heard over W-G-N at 7:15 p. m. Tuesday.

'JUST PLAIN BILL,' W-G-N SKETCH, GOES COLUMBIA

Tribune Station Skit Has Rapid Rise.

Another of W-G-N's featured radio sketches has gone network. Announcement was made yesterday that the popular "Just Plain Bill" show which has been heard over W-G-N weekday afternoons at 1 p. m. will be heard over a Columbia network starting tomorrow at the same hour.

The sketch will be produced with the same cast and production crew in the studios of W-G-N and "piped" to the Chicago control of CBS. The network will include all of the major stations of the CBS mid-western network and the Pacific coast.

"Just Plain Bill," broadcast over W-G-N since the middle of August, has had exceptional results. The sketch, which concerns the public and private life of "Plain Bill" Davidson, the town barber of Hartville, and his family and friends, has earned a great listening audience.

The principal characters are Nancy Davidson, played by Mildred Hark; "Plain Bill" Davidson, played by Ralph Juul; Don Briggs, friend of the Davidsons, played by David Ellis and Elmer Eeps, a comedy character, played by Francis Traut Jr. Blair Walliser, chief of the W-G-N production staff, is in charge of the presentation of the sketch.

Other W-G-N productions which have become network shows are "Clara, Lu 'n' Em," "Little Orphan Annie," "The Singing Lady," and "Painted Dreams."

MIDDAY SERVICE GIVES PLANS FOR ITS THIRD YEAR

Through the friendly coöperation of Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish communions the W-G-N Midday Service is entering its fall activities with plans for the winter that will bring to the radio audience many new speakers noted for their religious activities as well as the return of many who have become familiar to the listeners by their frequent radio addresses. Dr John L. Dickson, director of the program, which is now in its third year, reports many letters from people who do not go to church, and from the aged and shut-ins.

Speakers this week: Monday, Dr Sydney B. Snow, president of the Meadville Theological seminary; Tuesday, Dr. Solomon Goldman, rabbi of Congregation Anshe Emet; Wednesday, Bishop Ernest L. Waldorf of the Chicago area, Methodist church; Thursday, Dr. Dickson; Friday, Dr. Alfred Newbery, rector of the Church of the Atonement; Saturday, the Rev Arthur O. Hjelm, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church.

ELMER E. YESS TURNS TABLES ON INSURANCE MAN

Elmer Everett Yess, that demon salesman, starts his second week of amazing episodes over W-G-N and CBS at 7 p. m. Tuesday, Oct. 17. At this point Elmer turns up as breezy as ever after the incarceration imposed upon him by his self-chosen boss, W. T. Jones, to attempt to temper his overexuberant methods. Jones really hires him this time—that is, if he can sell a car to Insurance Salesman Nathanial Sweet, who is regarded as the hardest man in town to sell and the hardest to resist being sold by. Of course, Elmer sells him—but how he does it is the amazing part of it all.

Jeanne de Lee to Present 'King of Bookcase' at Fair

"King of the Bookcase," a one act play by Frances Cavanah, is to be presented by pupils of Jeanne de Lee on the Enchanted island of the Fair at 7 o'clock tonight. In the cast are Betty Chown, Mary Virginia Murphy, Marguerite Johann, Jean Parker, Virginia Fosdyke, Earl Levit, Shirley Levit, Jerry de Lee, Virginia Choate, Ruth Belman, Charlotte Kepner, Joyce Jaffe, Robert de Lee, Dawn Missner, and Sylvia Suckman. Story book characters such as Peter Pan, Wendy, Captain Hook, and Cinderella will be on hand to entertain visitors. Jeanne de Lee is the well known radio actress.

Nino Martini to Sing 'O Promise Me' Tuesday

"O Promise Me," the lovely English melody by De Koven, will be featured by Nino Martini in his recital with Howard Barlow's orchestra from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Tuesday over W-G-N and Columbia. French and Spanish compositions will comprise the remainder of the young Metropolitan Opera tenor's program.

AT HOLLYWOOD

HELEN ORNSTEIN.
[Schupack Photo.]

Proving that "Hollywood at the Fair" isn't all fan dancers and crooners, Helen Ornstein, operatic contralto, will return there this week for her third engagement of the season. Miss Ornstein, who is heard on W-G-N at 10:30 Saturday mornings, will remain at Hollywood until the close of the Fair. She also will be heard in recital Wednesday before the Friends of Music.

Neighborhood Theaters

The rôle of country doctor was made to order for Will Rogers, and so "Doctor Bull" stacks up as just about the best thing he has done. Will's peculiar brand of humor and philosophizing fit perfectly the general practitioner who doctors men and cows and meets success with both. Tragedy, comedy, romance, and adventure are woven into the film, which was adapted from Cozzens' best seller, "The Last Adam," but goes it several better. Louise Dresser, Marion Nixon, Ralph Morgan, Andy Devine, and Rochelle Hudson are outstanding in the excellent supporting cast.

Boys Go a-Gunning.

"This Day and Age," at the Capitol theater today, tells what happens when high school boys take the law into their hands and go a-gunning for gangsters. It all comes about when the old tailor whom they patronize is killed for refusing to join a "protective" association. One of the students goes to the gang leader's home to find evidence and gets his, and then the crowd declares war. Richard Cromwell, Ben Alexander, and a horde of promising youngsters perform under Cecil B. De Mille's direction.

Tale of Two Doctors.

Coming to the Capitol tomorrow for four days is "Mary Stevens, M. D." in which the lovely Kay Francis figures as a capable physician. Lyle Talbot, as the young doctor who graduates from medical school in the class with her and starts in practice next door, introduces the romantic touch. Glenda Farrell, as a politician's designing daughter, is the stumbling block in the path of true love.

Answer to Fans' Prayers.

"Moonlight and Pretzels," at the Peoples and West Englewood theaters today, tomorrow, and Tuesday, and at the Highland theater Friday and Saturday, is the answer to the musical comedy fans' prayers. There's the young song writer who puts on his own show, played by Roger Pryor; his sweetheart, Mary Brian, and a Greek gambler, Leo Carrillo, who plays angel to the show for the sake of the comedienne, Lillian Miles. To insure the proper tunefulness Alexander Gray, Bernice Claire, and Jack Denny's Waldorf-Astoria orchestra are on hand, and 50 of New York's most beautiful show girls add the paprika.

Another Record Breaker.

Another in the same vein which has been breaking attendance records is "Gold Diggers of 1933," at the Colony and Highway theaters today, tomorrow, and Tuesday; at the Marquette theater Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, and at the Cosmo theater Thursday and Friday. Ruby Keeler, the dancer, and "Dick" Powell duplicate their success in "42d Street" as the stars of the show around which revolves the "Gold Diggers" story. Warren William is Dick's prim, plutocratic brother who tries to talk him out of the show and remains to be conquered by Joan Blondell. Aline MacMahon, Guy Kibbee, and Ned Sparks are fun in minor roles.

5 Points of Satisfaction have put in sales of all cars in its price range!

Pontiac First

(First 8 months of 1933)

PONTIAC
ECONOMY STRAIGHT EIGHT

ITS STRAIGHT EIGHT ENGINE develops 77 horsepower—and 78 smooth, effortless, actual miles per hour. At normal "cruising" speeds there is always vast power in reserve.

2

ITS FISHER BODY AND CONTROLLED NO DRAFT VENTILATION assure occupants superior safety and comfort—plus fresh air circulation to the extent each desires, unaffected by rain or snow.

ITS UP-TO-THE-MINUTE STYLE is thrillingly smart—gives you the satisfaction of knowing that your car will be modern and handsome in appearance for many years to come.

ITS AMPLE SIZE AND WEIGHT mean greater safety, steadier roadability. The 4-door Sedan weighs 3265 pounds at the curb. The 115-inch wheelbase means plenty of room, easier riding, smoother performance.

ITS PROVED FUEL ECONOMY provides eight-cylinder performance at low operating cost. The Economy Straight Eight delivers 15 miles and more to the gallon, say Pontiac owners.

2nd CAR
(A SIX)

Not for one month or two months, but for the first eight full months of 1933 total Pontiac sales throughout the United States are greater by a substantial margin than those of the next largest-selling car of comparable price. . . . Do not be confused by claims of leadership based on a temporary showing.

3rd CAR
(A SIX)

Pontiac sales outnumber those of the third car in its price range by nearly 4 to 1.

GET ALL FIVE

Join in the swing to Pontiac and you, too, can enjoy these modern motoring advantages.

Why not have a car that is big and roomy—gracefully streamlined? Why not have the power for smooth, effortless performance—hour after hour—at any speed you want to drive? Why not enjoy Fisher Body comfort and safety—refreshing Fisher Ventilation controlled to the individual desires of driver and passengers?

All these are yours in a Pontiac, at prices that are acceptably low. Don't take our word alone. Drive it and judge for yourself.

2-door Sedan, $635; Standard Coupe, $635; Sport Coupe, $670; 2-door Touring Sedan, $675; 4-door Sedan, $695; Convertible Coupe, $695.

All prices f. o. b. Pontiac. Special equipment extra. Available on G. M. A. C. terms.

THE GUMPS
THAT BLACK BAND— THE MYSTERY OF THESE FEARSOME MASKED RIDERS IS SOLVED AT LAST— THEY ARE NOT FOES BUT FRIENDS LED BY GOOD OLD COUSIN CHARLIE HIMSELF AND WITH HIM IS SHERIFF WATTS— BUT WHILE CHESTER AND JERRY ARE SAFE AT LAST— WHAT OF RED RIGGLES AND HIS DESPERADOES IN THE HANDS OF THE REST OF THE BLACK BAND— WHAT WILL THEIR FATE BE?
SIDNEY SMITH
WELL— NOW THAT WE'VE HAD A GOOD BREAKFAST AND THE BOYS ARE SAFE, LET'S GET BUSY AND LOCATE THAT BURIED LOOT— WHERE'S THE CHART, CHESTER? WE'LL SOON FIND OUT IF THERE REALLY IS GOLD AROUND HERE OR IF THAT MAP IS JUST A FAKE—
HERE IT IS, COUSIN CHARLIE— ALL THE PIECES, AND THEY SHOW THAT THE TREASURE SHOULD BE BURIED RIGHT HERE—
SEE HOW IT SHOWS TO DROP A STONE FROM THE END OF THE LIMB ON THIS TREE— AND THEN DRAW A TWENTY FOOT CIRCLE AROUND THE SPOT— THAT'S JUST WHAT WE DID— AND THEN WE DUG DUE WEST— RIGHT WHERE IT SAID—
WE WERE ALL RIGHT TILL WE GOT HERE—
DUE WEST? HOLD ON A MINUTE! I THINK I SEE WHERE YOU BOYS MADE A MISTAKE—
YOU MADE A MISTAKE RIGHT HERE IN THIS "W" WHEN YOU FITTED THESE TWO PIECES OF THE CHART TOGETHER, THAT LOOKED LIKE A LETTER "W" THERE, WITH THE LEFT ARM RIGHT ON THE TORN PART— BUT IT WASN'T INTENDED AS A "W" AT ALL— THAT'S AN "N" SURE AS SHOOTIN'— YOU'VE HIT IT— CHARLIE— THEY THOUGHT THE RIP WAS PART OF THE LETTER— THEY SHOULDN'T HAVE DUG WEST AT ALL, BUT NORTH—
N
WELL, INSTEAD OF DIGGING WEST AS THE BOYS DID— WE'LL DRAW A LINE NORTH TILL IT CROSSES THE CIRCLE— AND DIG THERE—
LIMB OF TREE
DUE NORTH WHERE COUSIN CHARLIE THINKS THEY SHOULD DIG—WHERE THE STONE DROPPED ← DUE WEST
WHERE THE BOYS DUG
WELL, SHERIFF, THE BOYS HAVE BEEN RIGHT UP TO THIS POINT— I'LL STAKE MY CLAIM RIGHT HERE— AND IF I'M RIGHT THERE OUGHT TO BE A LOT OF BRIGHT SHINY GOLD A FEW FEET DOWN— HOW MUCH DID YOU SAY THE REWARD WAS? BECAUSE THOSE BOYS ARE GOING TO GET EVERY CENT OF IT— THIS'LL BE A BIG CHRISTMAS FOR TWO YOUNG FELLOWS I KNOW—
I HOPE YOU'RE RIGHT— AND IF YOU ARE— IT'LL MEAN THAT THESE TWO BOYS HAVE DONE SOME THING WE'VE BEEN TRYING TO DO FOR MONTHS— TRACKED DOWN THAT GOLD LIKE A PAIR OF BLOOD HOUNDS— ANY TIME I NEED A COUPLE OF MIGHTY SMART DEPUTIES I SURE KNOW WHERE TO LOOK NOW—
THIS IS A REAL BONANZA OR I MISS MY GUESS— BRING YOUR SHOVEL OVER AND DIG RIGHT HERE—
BIG SHERIFF WATTS! WHEN THOSE TWO HUSKY ARMS GRABBED THAT SPADE IT WAS LIKE A STEAM-SHOVEL AT WORK— THE BIG VEINS STAND OUT LIKE ROPES AND THE PERSPIRATION DRIPS FROM HIS BROW AS THE DIRT FLIES— ANY SHOVELFUL MAY TELL THE TALE—
DON'T FORGET, CHESTER— IF WE FIND IT WE SPLIT THE REWARD—
WHAT'S THIS? BOYS— I BELIEVE I HAVE IT— I'VE STRUCK SOMETHING HARD—
BOY! WILL I JUMP OUT OF MY BOOTS IF IT'S THERE—
WHEN THE SHERIFF SLOWS DOWN, COUSIN CHARLIE GRABS THE SHOVEL AND STARTS IN WITH NEW VIGOR—
WHEE!
BOYS YOUR FORTUNE IS MADE
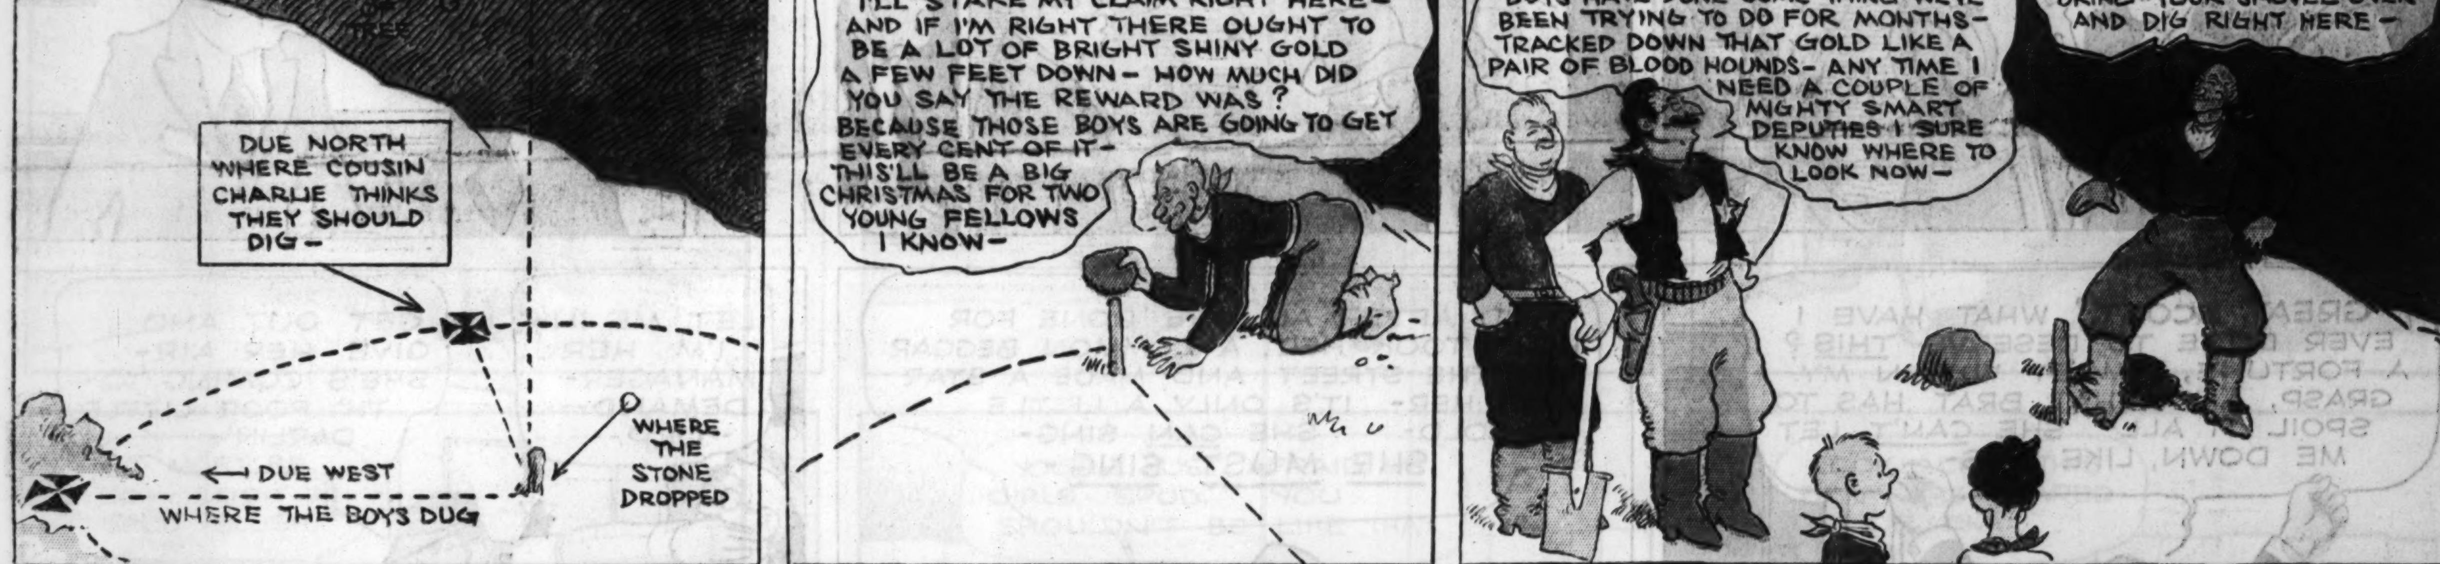
HURRAY!
WE'RE MILLIONAIRES



OLD DOC YAK
I'LL BET YOU I CAN BEAT YOU TO BICKLER CORNERS
HOW WILL WE KNOW WHICH GETS THERE FIRST?
IF I GET THERE FIRST I'LL LAY DOWN AN APPLE—
AND WHAT IF I BEAT YOU?
AND IF YOU GET THERE FIRST— YOU THROW THE APPLE AWAY—
THAT'S FUN!

OUCH! NO! HONEST, MR. CHIZZLER- I'M NOT STALLING- MY THROAT HURTS AWFUL-
YEAH? FORGET IT- YOU'LL BE ALL RIGHT- THERE'S A MAN FROM NEW YORK HERE, TO CATCH YOUR ACT- IF HE LIKES YOU, IT'LL MEAN BROADWAY-
COME ON- GET INTO THAT DRESSING ROOM AND HURRY- YOU'LL SING ALL RIGHT, ONCE YOU GET STARTED-
I'LL TRY, BUT HONEST, MY THROAT IS ALL SWELLED UP TIGHT-
AH- SO THAT'S THE KID, EH? GOT THE LOOKS, ALL RIGHT- SEEMS TO HANDLE HERSELF O.K.- NOW IF SHE CAN SING, HALF AS WELL AS MY SCOUTS SAY SHE CAN, I'LL START HER ON BROADWAY NEXT WEEK-
WHAT TH---
AWK!
WHY, HER VOICE IS GONE- SEE- AND SHE'S TRYING SO HARD- OH, THAT'S A SHAME- LOOK OUT- SHE'S FAINTING- QUICK- RING DOWN THE CURTAIN-
NO-NO- YOU DON'T UNDERSTAND- SHE CAN SING ALL RIGHT, IF SHE WANTS TO- SHE'S JUST STALLING-- WAIT----
HORSEFEATHERS! THAT KID ISN'T STALLING- YOU'VE LET HER RUIN HER VOICE- AS A SINGER, SHE'S THROUGH; FOR A LONG TIME, AT LEAST-
GREAT SCOTT! WHAT HAVE I EVER DONE TO DESERVE THIS? A FORTUNE, ALMOST WITHIN MY GRASP, AND THAT BRAT HAS TO SPOIL IT ALL- SHE CAN'T LET ME DOWN, LIKE THIS-AND AFTER ALL I'VE DONE FOR HER- TOOK HER, A COMMON BEGGAR ON THE STREET AND MADE A STAR OF HER- IT'S ONLY A LITTLE COLD- SHE CAN SING- SHE MUST SING-

AH, I HAVE SOME VERY WONDERFUL BARGAINS, TO-DAY-
NIX- I'M NOT INTERESTED-
I'VE JUST COME FROM MRS. O'TOOL'S, ACROSS TH' STREET-
YEAH? WHAT OF IT?
HER HUSBAND HAS FLOWN TH' COOP- NEVER CAME HOME A-TALL LAST NIGHT- SHE GOT A CARD FROM HIM TO-DAY-
YOU DON'T BE TELLIN' ME-
YEP- SEZ HE'S GONE FOR GOOD- AND DID YOU HEAR ABOUT YOUR NEIGHBOR, MRS. GULP, BEIN' ARRESTED?
NO FOOLIN'-
AND THEM FOLKS, AS LIVES OVER TH' BUTCHER SHOP, HAS TRIPLETS- I WAS JUST THERE- YOU NEVER SAW SUCH EXCITEMENT-
IS THAT A FACT?
AH- SOME WONDERFUL GOODS- AND CHEAP-
OH, GIMME ONE O' THEM FIFTEEN CENT PARIN' KNIVES- PICK OUT A GOOD ONE-
I DON'T NEED THIS NEW PARIN' KNIFE- BUT, AFTER HIM TAKIN' SO MUCH TIME TO TELL ME ALL TH' NEWS I FELT I SHOULD BUY SOMETHIN'-

WAIT, BOY! WHO ARE YOU?
I'M THE BOY THAT LEFT HOME THIS MORNIN' AN' HAVEN'T BEEN SEEN SINCE.
HERE COMES TRIXIE.
AN' THERE'S SPUD AN' SKEEZIX.
OH WELL,— SPU
SPUD LOVES trixie
IF I KNEW WHO DID THAT I'D KNOCK HIS BLOCK OFF.
DON'T YOU CARE, SPUD. SHE PROBABLY DOESN'T AT ALL.
SPUD LOVES trixie
HERE COMES TRIXIE. MAYBE SHE WROTE IT.
I DID NOT WRITE IT.
SPUD LOVES trixie
IT MUST BE SO— LOOK AT SPUD BLUSH.
YOU'RE JUST AFRAID OF GIRLS, SPUD. YOU SHOULDN'T BE LIKE THAT.
LOOK— LIKE THIS! DON'T BE SCARED OF 'EM.
IT'S A GOOD THING FOR HER SHE WASN'T A BOY!
GOOTCH IS ONLY HALF AS AFRAID OF 'EM AS YOU ARE, SPUD. HE'S BLUSHING JUST ON ONE SIDE OF HIS FACE.

I CALLED TO SEE "BIG BOY"
THE GUARD WILL TAKE YOU TO THE VISITING ROOM.
SCENE: THE VISITORS ROOM OF THE PENITENTIARY WHERE "BIG BOY", KING OF GANGSTERS IS SERVING TIME....
LISTEN, BIG BOY-THINGS ARE IN A PLENTY BAD WAY.
YEAH, I KNOW-I READ ALL ABOUT "BOSS" HERROD GETTIN' BUMPED OFF IN THAT SCRAP IN THE MAYOR'S OFFICE - AND "SLIP" BUCKLEY GETTING JUGGED.
YEAH-BUT THAT TIN COP TRACY HAS THE WHOLE DOPE ON THE RACKETS. HE'S PINNED EVERYTHING ON YOU AND HE'S GONNA BRING YOU BACK FOR TRIAL AND MAYBE GET ANOTHER TEN YEARS PUT ON YOUR SENTENCE.
WHAD'YA MEAN? HE CAN'T DO IT.. HE'S GOT NOTHING ON ME... BESIDES I'VE GOT PULL!
NOT ANYMORE YOU DON'T HAVE PULL! THAT DICK'S SPLIT EVERYTHING WIDE OPEN-IT'S THE END!
YEAH? YOU MEAN IT'S HIS END! THAT'S WHOSE END IT IS - HIS END!
YOU TELL THE BOYS MY ORDERS ARE THE DETECTIVE MUST BE RUBBED OUT WITHIN TWENTY FOUR HOURS..... REMEMBER, WITHIN TWENTY FOUR HOURS - AND ONE THOUSAND SMACKERS TO THE BIRD THAT SENDS THE LEAD INTO HIM.
SH - NOT SO LOUD.
TIME'S UP-YOU.
YES SIR.
THAT EVENING - BACK AT HEADQUARTERS - TRACY, THE CHIEF, THE MAYOR, AND STATES-ATTORNEY KING VIEW THE RACKET PRISONERS.
ALL RIGHT-PAT-LOCK 'EM UP.. WE'RE THROUGH.
TRACY, YOU ARE TO BE CONGRATULATED. YOU'VE DONE A WONDERFUL JOB AND THE CITIZENS OF THIS CITY WILL BE GRATEFUL TO YOU FOR YEARS TO COME.
DON'T CONGRATULATE ME TOO SOON, MR. MAYOR. THESE MEN ARE STILL TO BE CONVICTED AND SENTENCED.
PSHAW! YOU CAN BET YOUR LIFE YOU'LL HAVE EVERY COOPERATION OF THE JUDICIARY AND PROSECUTING MACHINERY OF THIS CITY.
I FEEL SURE OF THAT-MISTER PROSECUTOR.
BY THE WAY-HOW ABOUT ALL OF US GOING OUT FOR DINNER AT MY HOME TONIGHT... I FEEL LIKE A LITTLE CELEBRATING
THANKS, MR. KING-BUT COUNT ME OUT.. MISS TRUEHEART AND JUNIOR ARE TO MEET ME IN THE CAR HERE IN ABOUT TEN MINUTES....I'LL RUN ALONG WITH THEM.
WE'RE A LITTLE EARLY, MISS TESS-SHALL WE GO UP TO TRACY'S OFFICE?
NO.. IT'S ONLY A FEW MINUTES.. LET'S JUST WAIT HERE IN THE CAR FOR HIM.
Copyright, 1933.
NOW, HAVE YOU GOT THE DOPE STRAIGHT, CURLEY? YOU'RE TO PUT ON THIS WIG-AND HER HAT AND DRESS.. THEN TAKE HER PLACE IN THE CAR.
I GET YOU! NOW SNAP IT UP-AND BRING 'EM BACK HERE.

YOU KNOW GOOD AND WELL, MY DEAR- THAT WE AGREED SPECIFICALLY. THAT YOU WAS TO WATCH THE ROAD IN FRONT OF US—
AW, QUIT CRABBIN'. WERE OUT FOR A GOOD TIME, AIN'T WE, WILLIAM?
SO THIS IS THE "RED NOSE" AT LAST. LET'S DANCE.
I CAN'T DANCE, DEARIE- MY CORNS IS SIMPLY KILLING ME.
THEN WHY DIDN'T YOU DO SOMETHING FOR THEM?
WHY SHOULD I? THEY NEVER DONE NOTHING FOR ME!
WELL THEN, LET'S EAT!
HONEYBUNCH, WE CAN'T EAT, EITHER.
WHY CAN'T WE EAT?
WELL, TO TELL YOU THE TRUTH, MY TURTLEDOVE, I JUST REMEMBERED THAT I LEFT ME MONEY AT HOME.
THANK HEAVEN IT'S ONLY SEVENTEEN MILES MORE TILL WE GET HOME- AND THEN OH BOY! WOT I'LL DO TO YOU—
FOR THE PRESENT THOUGH, PET, I WISH YOU WOULD KINDLY QUIT WIGGLIN' THEM HANDLE BARS AND PUSH ON THE PEDALS A LITTLE

MIDVILLE 7
YAY STREAKY
WELL THAT OUGHT TO BE SOME PARTY OF YOURS TONIGHT, REGGIE WHERE'S YOUR INVITATION, STREAKY? WE ALL GOT ONE
I DIDN'T GET ANY SAY REGGIE_STREAKY DIDN'T GET AN INVITE TO YOUR PARTY..
AIN'T THAT JUST TOO BAD!
I GOT AN INVITATION TO REGGIE'S PARTY THIS MORNING - WHAT TIME ARE YOU GOING, STREAKY?
LOCKER ROOM
I WON'T BE GOING. I DIDN'T GET A BID..
BYE
S'LONG, JEANIE HAVE A GOOD TIME!
MRS. SARAH STREAK WASHING & IRONING
YOU HARDLY ATE A THING TONIGHT, SON = WHAT'S THE TROUBLE?
HUH? WHAT SAY MOM?
HERE COMES SOME YOUNG FOLKS DOWN THE STREET
YEH - THAT'S WHERE STREAKY LIVES - "WASHING AND IRONING NEATLY DONE" - HA-HA-HA-HA-
YOU SHOULD HAVE INVITED HIM TO YOUR PARTY, REGGIE - THEN HE COULD HAVE COLLECTED OUR LAUNDRY = HEH-
JEANIE! I THOUGHT YOU WERE GOING TO REGGIE'S PARTY-
WELL, I'M NOT!! BUT I HAVE A SURPRISE IN THIS PACKAGE - PARTY HATS - AN' EVERYTHING!
WHAT A LOVELY CAKE, JEANIE
I BAKED IT MYSELF!
THIS IS GREAT FUN!
MAY I HAVE THE PLEASURE OF THIS DANCE, MRS. STREAK?

WHITE BOY
by Garrett Price
CHIEF SAID TO TURN HIM LOOSE, CHICKADEE _ HE CAN'T GET AWAY ANYHOW.
I DON'T SEE WHY THE CHIEF WAS SO EASY ON HIM _
WE'VE GOT TO CROSS THE CREEK _ DO YOU THINK THIS WHITE PAPOOSE CAN JUMP IT; OR WILL WE HAVE TO MAKE A BRIDGE FOR HIM?
I BELIEVE HE UNDERSTANDS OUR TONGUE _ YES. I'M SURE HE DOES!
WHOA — YOU RED GRASSHOPPER!
KI-YI!
I CAN OUTRUN THAT FAT KID WITH MY HANDS TIED — DITCHED 'EM AT LAST!
PHEW — PHEWEY — WHAT A RACE! OH — NOW TO GET THIS ROPE OFF — OW, IT'S ALMOST CUT MY ARMS IN TWO!
THERE, FOOLISH ONE! NO ONE CAN RUN FASTER THAN STARLIGHT SAY!
QUICK, WHITE BOY! WE MUST GO BACK BEFORE THE ALARM IS GIVEN — THE CHIEF WOULD HAVE YOU KILLED OR TORTURED IF HE FOUND YOU RAN AWAY!
GO BACK? DO YOU THINK I'M CRAZY, LITTLE SQUAW!

DO YOU KNOW ANY MAGIC TRICKS, PA?
SURE, SON I'M FULL OF 'EM
I AM SWAMI-WAMI, THE GREAT MAGICIAN OF THE EAST-- I WILL NOW CAUSE THIS COIN TO VANISH INTO THIN AIR!
HOCUS-POCUS-ALAGAZAM--
-AND THE COIN IS GONE!
GEE, THATS A GOOD TRICK, POP
SWAMI-WAMI KNOWS EVERYTHING! IN MY NEXT ACT I WILL USE A FOOTBALL
DO YOU KNOW ANY MORE TRICKS?
I WILL NOW CHANGE THIS FOOTBALL INTO A BASEBALL! NOW WATCH SWAMI-WAMI CAREFULLY--- ALAGAZOOK!-- AND HERE'S THE BASEBALL---
OH!
MY NEXT ACT IS THE GREATEST OF ALL! WATCH CLOSELY--I WILL FIRST STEP BEHIND THE CURTAIN---
WHERE'S YOUR FATHER, JUNIOR?
YOU MEAN SWAMI-WAMI, THE GREAT MAGICIAN?
HE'S DOING HIS DISAPPEARING ACT!

ON THE WING
by ZACK MOSLEY
OH! HERE YOU ARE! I'VE BEEN LOOKING ALL OVER FOR YOU, BUMPY! WHERE'S DART- IS HE STILL BOTHERING YOU?
YEAH- HE'S BEEN RAZZIN' ME PLENTY BUT I DON'T KNOW WHERE HE WENT. I FEEL SO ASHAMED OF MYSELF-
DON'T TAKE IT SO HARD, BUMPY--- THAT CRASH WOULD UPSET ANYBODY. JUST FORGET IT---- TAKE A FEW MORE LESSONS AN' YOU'LL BE OKAY IN A COUPLE OF DAYS.
YEAH, BUT YOU WENT AHEAD AND SOLOED AND I BACKED DOWN-
MEANTIME WE FIND PINFEATHERS IN DART'S HANGAR
HEY, YOU LITTLE SHRIMP WHAT ARE YOU DOIN' IN MY HANGAR?
NOTHIN' MISTER DART. I WAS JUST ADMIRIN' YOUR NEW PLANE.
-AND DON'T LET ME CATCH YOU IN HERE AGAIN!
ALL RIGHT! BUT I BETCHA I'LL HAVE A KEENER PLANE THAN YOURS SOME DAY AN' I WON'T EVEN LET YOU LOOK AT IT!
LATER IN THE DAY WE FIND BUMPY--
MOST OF THESE FLYERS ARE DECENT ENOUGH NOT TO KID ME ABOUT BACKING DOWN ON MY FIRST SOLO, BUT DART AND HIS MECHANIC SURE ARE MAKING LIFE MISERABLE FOR ME!
SH-H-H. THERE'S THAT "YELLOW" KID AGAIN- WANTA SEE SOME FUN? I GOTTA SWELL IDEA!
SURE DART!
HOW ARE YOU TODAY- BUMPY OLD PAL?
AW- LAY OFF THAT PAL STUFF --YOU JUST WANTA KID ME SOME MORE --- I KNOW!
I'M SORRY, BUMPY--- AFTER I THOUGHT OVER THE CIRCUMSTANCES I DON'T BLAME YOU--- I WANT TO APOLOGIZE AND I'D LIKE TO HELP YOU. I'D BE GLAD TO GIVE YOU A FEW LESSONS-
D-DO YOU REALLY MEAN IT?
GEE, DART, THAT'S GREAT! YOU'RE NOT SUCH A BAD FELLOW AFTER ALL!
STEVE'S A FAIR INSTRUCTOR, BUT WHAT YOU NEED NOW IS SOMEBODY LIKE ME WITH PATIENCE TO GIVE YOU CONFIDENCE.
AND WHEN YOU GET THAT EXTRA STICK IN, BRING OUT TWO PARACHUTES
OKAY, BOSS.
BOY, WHAT A SWELL SHIP!
PARACHUTES! THAT'S ODD!--- STEVE NEVER USED ANY WHEN HE'D GIVE A LESSON-
JUST ANOTHER EXAMPLE OF STEVE'S INCOMPETENCE I ALWAYS WEAR ONE.
Y'KNOW, BUMPY, YOU HAVE THE MAKINGS OF A GREAT AVIATOR- I'LL HAVE YOU SOLOING IN NO TIME.
THOUGHT
HEH-HEH BOY, THIS IS GONNA BE GOOD!
GEE! 'AT'LL BE GREAT.
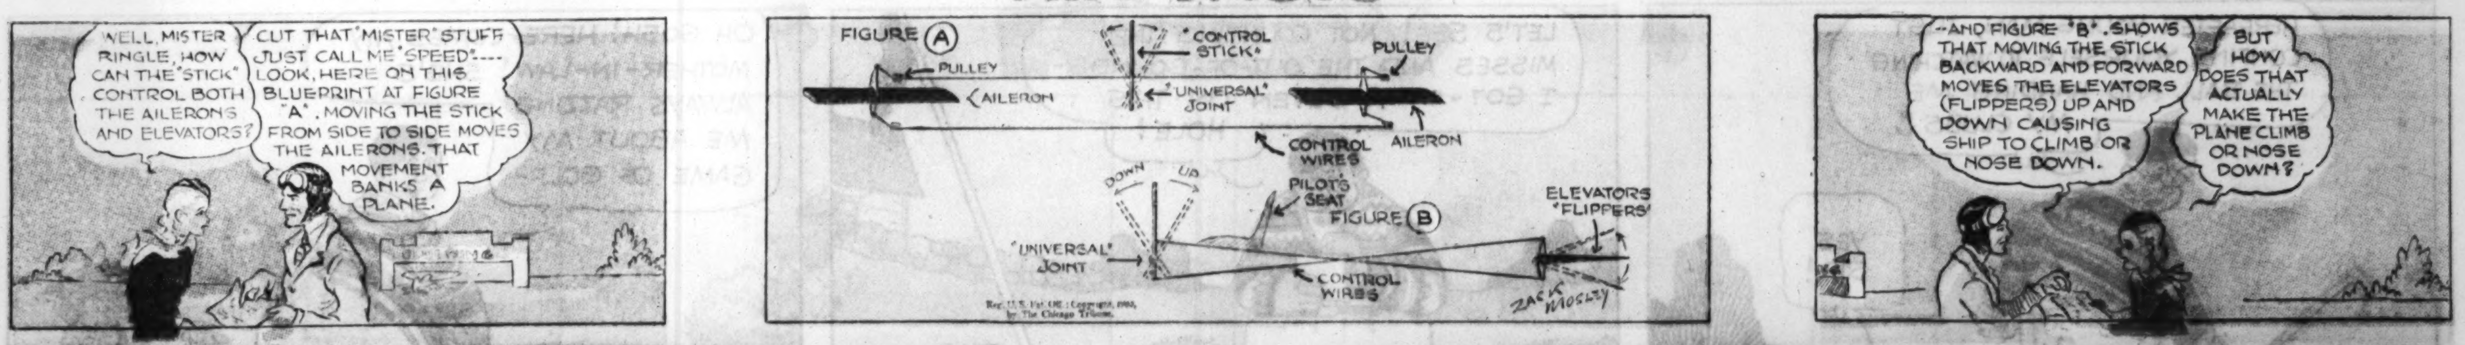
HEY, MACK- BETTER COME QUICK! DART'S UP TO SUMPIN! HE'S GOT BUMPY IN A PARACHUTE
WHAT?
STEP ON IT, MACK! I THINK THEY'RE ABOUT READY TO TAKE OFF!
THANKS, PINFEATHERS! WHAT IN THE WORLD COULD THAT BUZZARD BE UP TO NOW? BUMPY OUGHTA KNOW BETTER'N TO EVEN GO NEAR THAT GUY!
Reg. U.S. Pat. Off.: Copyright, 1933, by The Chicago Tribune.
OH MY GOSH! THERE THEY GO! I CAN'T IMAGINE HOW DART EVER GOT BUMPY IN THAT SHIP--- BUT I'LL BET THERE'S A CATCH TO IT SOMEWHERE!
WHAT IS DART UP TO?

AIR FACTS



WELL, MISTER RINGLE, HOW CAN THE "STICK" CONTROL BOTH THE AILERONS AND ELEVATORS?
CUT THAT "MISTER" STUFF JUST CALL ME "SPEED"--- LOOK, HERE ON THIS BLUEPRINT AT FIGURE "A", MOVING THE STICK FROM SIDE TO SIDE MOVES THE AILERONS. THAT MOVEMENT BANKS A PLANE.

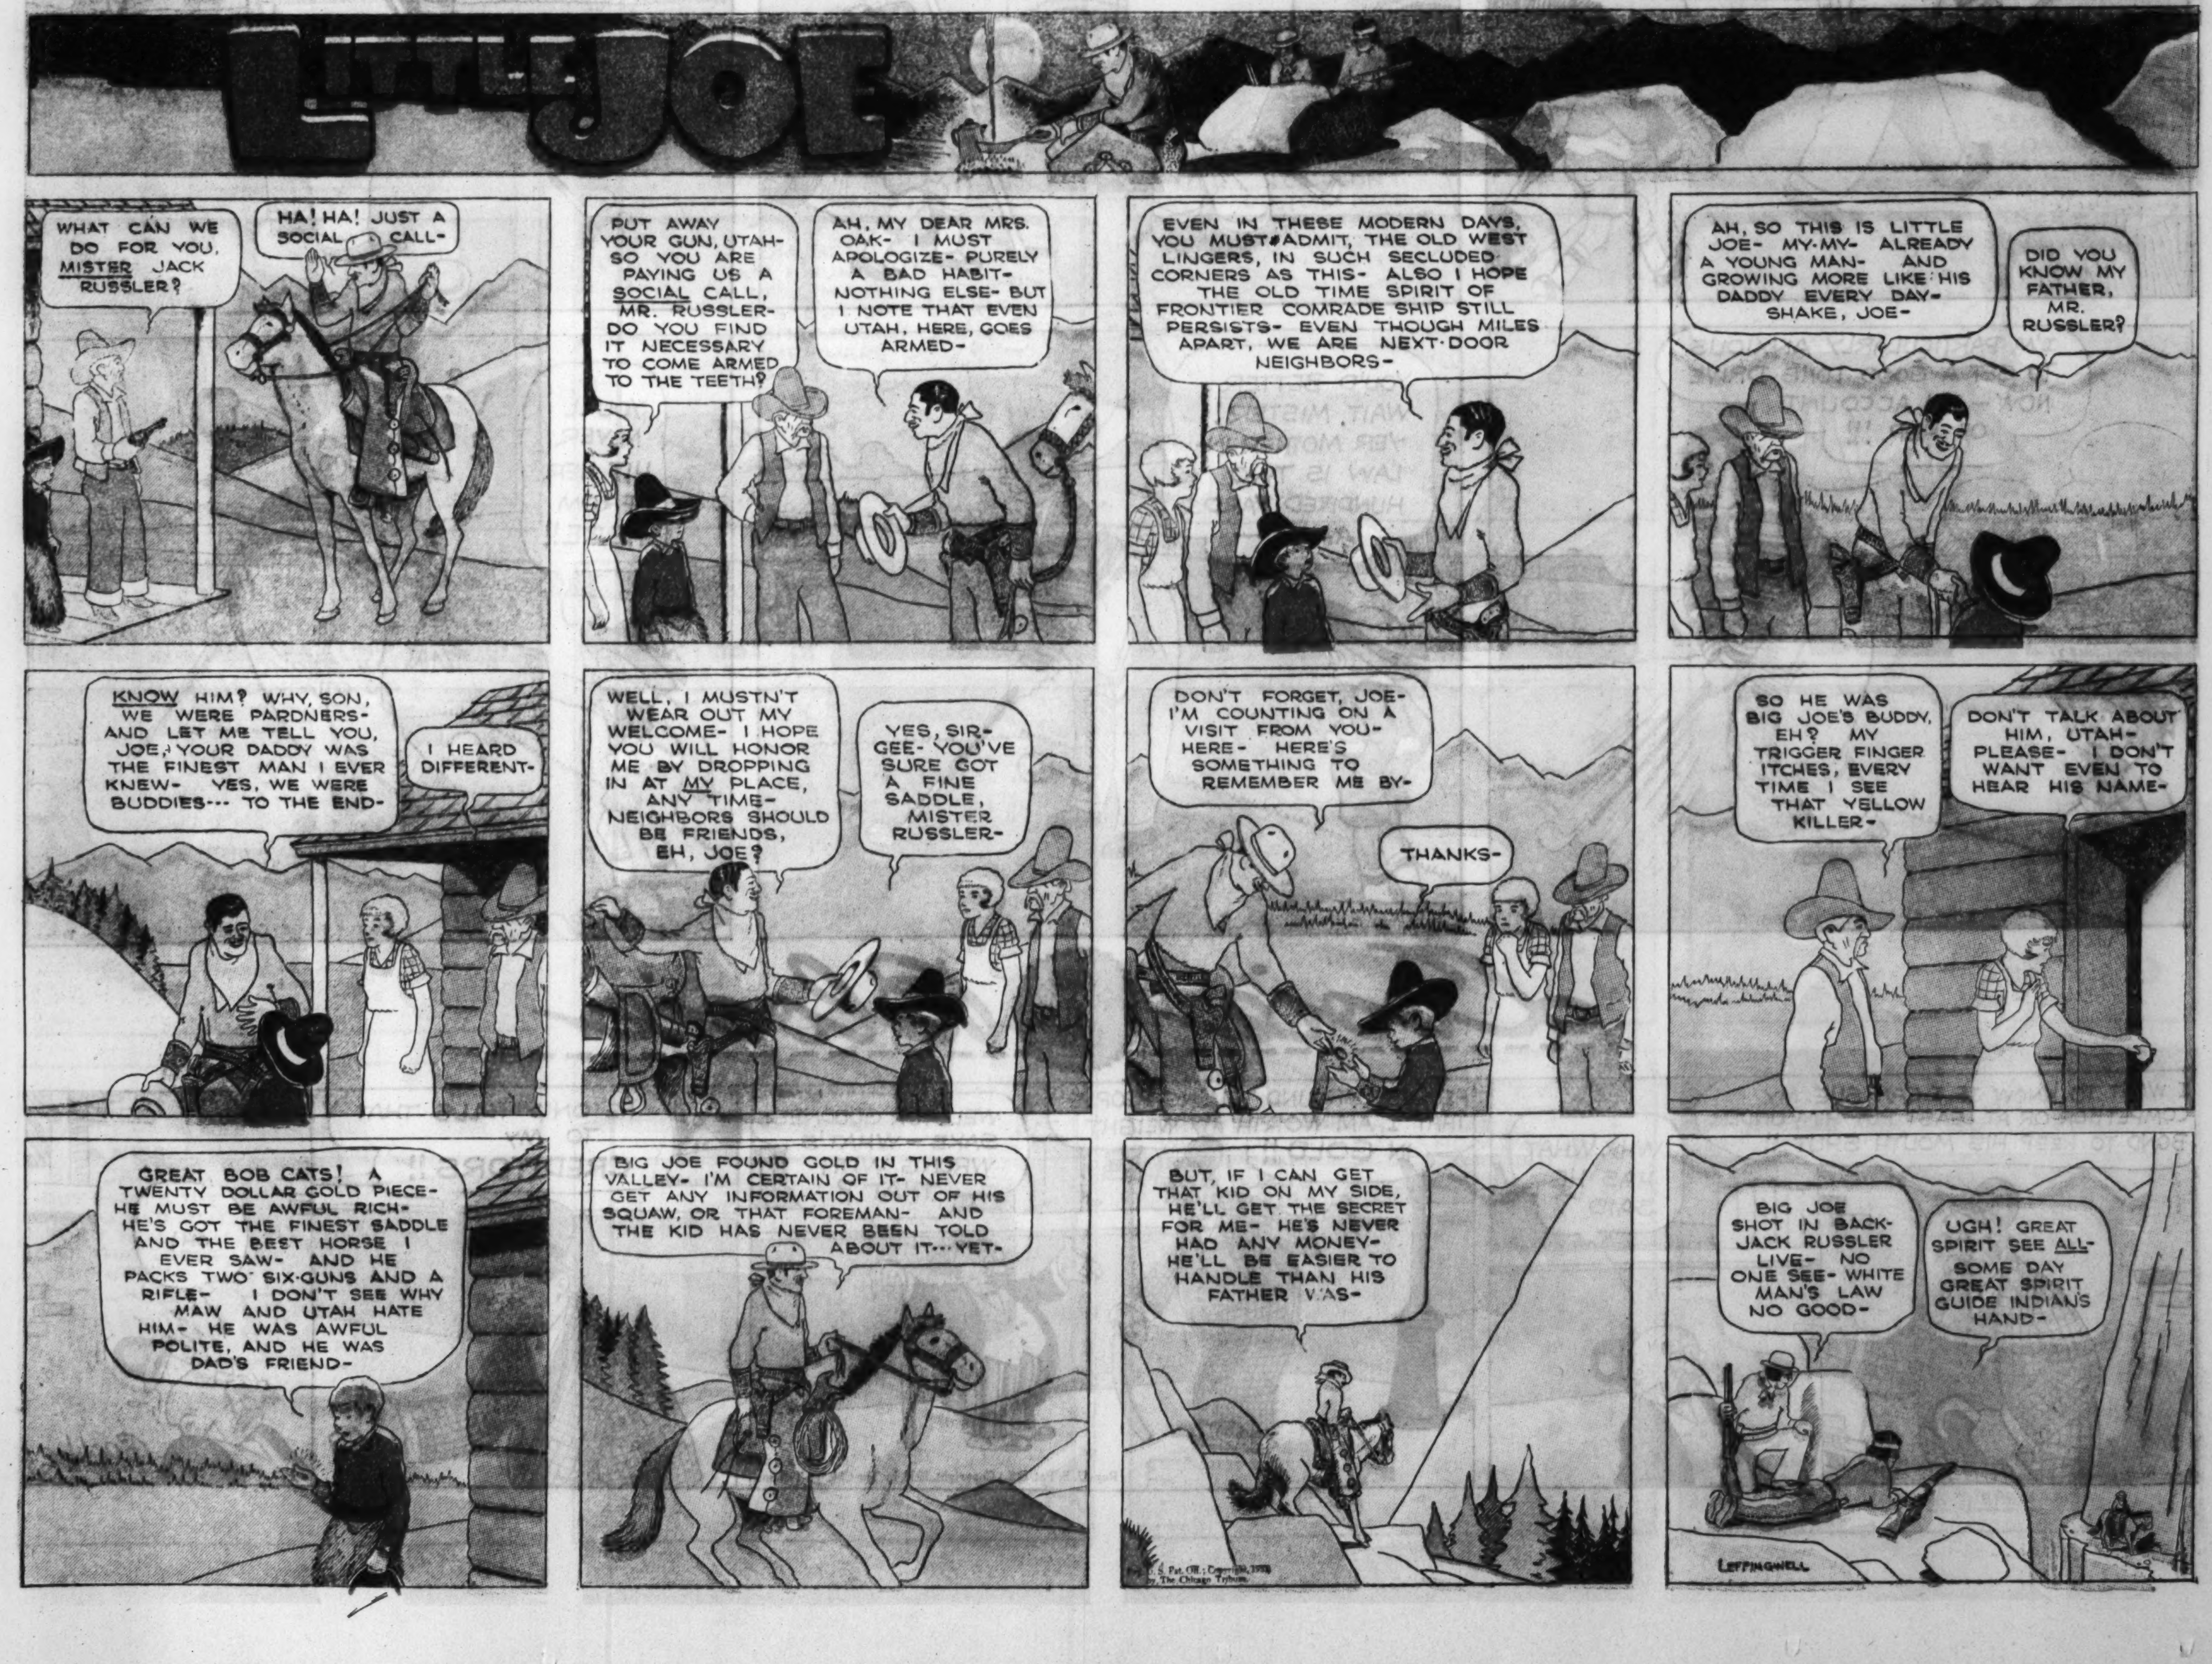
--AND FIGURE "B". SHOWS THAT MOVING THE STICK BACKWARD AND FORWARD MOVES THE ELEVATORS (FLIPPERS) UP AND DOWN CAUSING SHIP TO CLIMB OR NOSE DOWN.
BUT HOW DOES THAT ACTUALLY MAKE THE PLANE CLIMB OR NOSE DOWN?



LITTLE JOE
WHAT CAN WE DO FOR YOU, MISTER JACK RUSSLER?
HA! HA! JUST A SOCIAL CALL-
PUT AWAY YOUR GUN, UTAH- SO YOU ARE PAYING US A SOCIAL CALL, MR. RUSSLER- DO YOU FIND IT NECESSARY TO COME ARMED TO THE TEETH?
AH, MY DEAR MRS. OAK- I MUST APOLOGIZE- PURELY A BAD HABIT- NOTHING ELSE- BUT I NOTE THAT EVEN UTAH, HERE, GOES ARMED-EVEN IN THESE MODERN DAYS, YOU MUST ADMIT, THE OLD WEST LINGERS, IN SUCH SECLUDED CORNERS AS THIS- ALSO I HOPE THE OLD TIME SPIRIT OF FRONTIER COMRADE SHIP STILL PERSISTS- EVEN THOUGH MILES APART, WE ARE NEXT-DOOR NEIGHBORS-
AH, SO THIS IS LITTLE JOE- MY-MY- ALREADY A YOUNG MAN- AND GROWING MORE LIKE HIS DADDY EVERY DAY- SHAKE, JOE-
DID YOU KNOW MY FATHER, MR. RUSSLER?
KNOW HIM? WHY, SON, WE WERE PARDNERS- AND LET ME TELL YOU, JOE, YOUR DADDY WAS THE FINEST MAN I EVER KNEW- YES, WE WERE BUDDIES--- TO THE END-
I HEARD DIFFERENT-
WELL, I MUSTN'T WEAR OUT MY WELCOME- I HOPE YOU WILL HONOR ME BY DROPPING IN AT MY PLACE, ANY TIME- NEIGHBORS SHOULD BE FRIENDS, EH, JOE?
YES, SIR- GEE- YOU'VE SURE GOT A FINE SADDLE, MISTER RUSSLER-
DON'T FORGET, JOE- I'M COUNTING ON A VISIT FROM YOU- HERE- HERE'S SOMETHING TO REMEMBER ME BY-THANKS-
SO HE WAS BIG JOE'S BUDDY, EH? MY TRIGGER FINGER ITCHES, EVERY TIME I SEE THAT YELLOW KILLER-
DON'T TALK ABOUT HIM, UTAH- PLEASE- I DON'T WANT EVEN TO HEAR HIS NAME-
GREAT BOB CATS! A TWENTY DOLLAR GOLD PIECE- HE MUST BE AWFUL RICH- HE'S GOT THE FINEST SADDLE AND THE BEST HORSE I EVER SAW- AND HE PACKS TWO SIX-GUNS AND A RIFLE- I DON'T SEE WHY MAW AND UTAH HATE HIM- HE WAS AWFUL POLITE, AND HE WAS DAD'S FRIEND-
BIG JOE FOUND GOLD IN THIS VALLEY- I'M CERTAIN OF IT- NEVER GET ANY INFORMATION OUT OF HIS SQUAW, OR THAT FOREMAN- AND THE KID HAS NEVER BEEN TOLD ABOUT IT--- YET-
BUT, IF I CAN GET THAT KID ON MY SIDE, HE'LL GET THE SECRET FOR ME- HE'S NEVER HAD ANY MONEY- HE'LL BE EASIER TO HANDLE THAN HIS FATHER WAS-

OH, BOY! AM I HUNGRY! WE'LL HAVE TO SCOUT UP A BREAKFAST SOMEWHERE DOTTY-
YES-TIM- AND WHAT I COULDN'T DO TO A NICE CHOCOLATE CAKE THIS MORNING-
QUICK! SOMEONE'S COMING- WE'LL HIDE BEHIND THIS TREE-
WHO IS IT- TIM?
IT'S A BOY-SIS- AND HE'S GOT A BIG WOODEN BOX UNDER HIS ARM- HE'S SETTING IT DOWN- WONDER WHAT HE'S GOING TO DO?
NOW HE'S LEAVING- BUT HE FORGOT TO TAKE THE BOX-
COME ON-SIS- LET'S HURRY OVER AND SEE WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT-HO! HO! WHAT'S THIS? AN INVITATION TO BREAKFAST!
A NICE BIG CARROT- BUT WHAT'S THE STRING TIED TO IT FOR? WELL, WE'LL GET THAT LOOSE IN A JIFFY-SNAP!
GOLLY- WHAT'S HAPPENED? WE'RE LOCKED IN- I CAN'T EVEN BUDGE THIS DOOR-
OH, TIM- WHAT WILL WE DO? HOW WILL WE GET OUT?
TRAPPED! IF TIM AND DOTTY HAD ONLY KNOWN THAT THE TEMPTING MORSEL WAS A BAIT FOR SOME FURRY ANIMAL- WHAT HOPE IS THERE FOR THEM NOW?

THE TEENIE WEENIES
HEY! COME ON AND SEE THE MYSTERIOUS ANTS.
A TEENIE WEENIE IS TWO INCHES TALL.
ALLIE SAME ME WANT TO SEE FLUNNY LANTS.
THEY'RE RIGHT OVER HERE. YOU SEE 'EM AND THEN YOU DON'T SEE 'EM.
LOOK! RIGHT OVER THERE IN FRONT OF THAT TOAD.
WATCH THAT ANT AND YOU'LL SEE IT DISAPPEAR JUST AS SOON AS IT GETS IN FRONT OF THE TOAD.
ANT ALLIE SAME GONE
THERE'S NOTHING MYSTERIOUS ABOUT THAT ANT DISAPPEARING. THE TOAD ATE IT.
HOW COULD THE TOAD EAT IT - HE NEVER EVEN MOVED!
COME ON AND HELP ME HOLD THIS TOAD AND I'LL SHOW YOU HOW HE CATCHES ANTS.
HE'LL BITE.
A TOAD DOESN'T HAVE TEETH
DON'T LET HIM KICK YOU.
WE'RE NOT GOING TO HURT YOU OLD TOADY - WE JUST WANT TO LOOK AT YOUR TONGUE.
YOU SEE A TOAD'S TONGUE IS FASTENED TO THE FRONT OF HIS MOUTH INSTEAD OF THE BACK, SO HE CAN STICK IT OUT QUITE A DISTANCE. IT'S STICKY ON THE END AND BUGS STICK TO IT. THE TOAD CAN SNAP UP A BUG SO FAST YOU CAN'T SEE HIS TONGUE MOVE. THAT'S WHY THE ANTS DISAPPEAR
JINKS! BUT HE'S GOT A LONG TONGUE.

FOOTBALL STARS get STRENGTH from Wheatena

FREE "FAMOUS FUNNIES"

-a book of popular comics

Hello, boys and girls. Here's a book you'll want. Your old friends from the funny pages . . . Mutt and Jeff, S'matter Pop, The Bungle Family, Nipper, and a lot more. Pages of puzzles and magic tricks. 32 pages of fun. Don't miss it.

Here's how to get this book FREE. Just fill out the coupon and mail it with the top cut from a package of Wheatena. If you haven't a Wheatena package in the pantry . . . ask Mother to get one from the grocer the first thing tomorrow morning.

MOTHERS: Wheatena—of course—won't make strong children out of weak ones in a day—or a week. But you should read the letters we get from mothers telling how strong and healthy their children have grown on this good cereal. That's because it's a hot, brown, wheat cereal . . rich in body building food elements. Cook it according to directions . . . and see how your entire family will enjoy the toasty flavor.

CUT—MAIL with Wheatena Package Top

THE WHEATENA CORPORATION,
185 N. Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Sirs: Enclosed find one top cut from a Wheatena package. Please send me a copy of "Famous Funnies" by return mail.

Marinello

Beauty Culture the Leading Profession for Women

In these days a practical education is most important to girls who are compelled to earn their own living. A general education is a splendid thing, but it may take years for you to get an opportunity to use it. A Marinello graduate is ready to earn the minute she is graduated. She is a professional woman of standing by virtue of her Marinello diploma. She is welcomed by owners of established beauty salons. She is preferred by patrons who insist upon securing the services of Marinello trained beauticians.

A short course of training at Marinello prepares you for your life's work. It opens up a field for you in a respectable, pleasant profession and places you in a position to earn big money immediately.

Marinello offers you a new easy payment plan, earning while learning, free employment service, and many other helpful advantages.

Short Story Writing.
Writers Are Made, Not Born.

Musicians do not leap to fame—Nor do those who write. Writers require:

Teaching by a competent instructor.
Criticism by a successful writer.

This indispensable combination we offer now for those who wish to write and have enough training to establish their fitness to enter this course.

Application must be accompanied by a manuscript by which qualifications are established. Instruction thru personal tutoring. Tuition low and terms arranged if preferable.

EARN MORE MONEY!

Learn Beauty Culture at De LEE

Girls who learn beauty culture and hairdressing at DeLEE, under the personal supervision of MADAME LOUISE, assure themselves good paying, pleasant positions. DeLEE trains you the modern way. You are not herded into a room with a hundred other girls. You receive INDIVIDUAL, personal instruction. You really LEARN. The DeLEE "university type" of schooling is available at tuition fees no greater than those charged elsewhere for ordinary trade school "mass type" of training. Terms can be arranged to suit YOU.

Now Is the Time!

If you enroll now, you will finish your course just at the season when beauty shops are busiest and when the demand for operators is greatest. Why delay? Come in tomorrow and start to prepare yourself for a better position with more income. Previous experience or a high school education is not necessary. If you can't come in, write for the FREE DeLEE Book.

Post Graduate Courses Under Madame Louise

Licensed operators who are ambitious to better themselves can arrange for "brush up" instruction in all lines of beauty culture and hairdressing work under the personal direction of MADAME LOUISE. Inquire for particulars. Arrangements can be made for day or evening instruction.

Come In or Write

Enroll in no beauty school until you learn exactly why DeLEE training is superior. Visit DeLEE in person, or write for FREE, interesting, illustrated book, "Your Career in Beauty Culture." You'll enjoy reading it.

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

MEN LIVING IN AND NEAR AUBURN PARK!

My company has instructed me to make a few selections of men living in or near Auburn Park, without respect to their past sales records. The man who believes that there is a type of selling that actually pays men regularly from $30.00 up to $100.00 a week and is open to undeniable evidence, and is not afraid to go to work and stick at it permanently, will find something of deep interest here.

I am not here to find out if what we have is salable. It led the world last year in its field—and has done the same thing in increasing volume for several years. But it takes more than a gesture, or satisfaction that past performances in boom days can be repeated today by a snap of the finger or a wave of the hand. This means that we want men who know that WORK is spelled in capital letters, and who want to see MONEY that can be spent wherever there is a price tag. Such men will call for a serious interview in Room 310 McNally Bldg., 79th and Halsted-sts., Monday, Oct. 16, from 9:30 a. m. to 1 p. m. Ask for P. W. Smith.

MEN LIVING IN GARY, IND. HARBOR, Hammond and nearby towns will find an exceptional opportunity if they call for interview in Room 456 Indiana hotel, Hammond, Monday, Oct. 16, at 9:30 a. m. to 1:00 p. m. Good references demanded, as men accepted will handle considerable money. No floaters or part-time men need apply. This is a branch of a great world-wide business, and men in this work make money if they stay. We want no other kind. If you have real working power you can keep on improving until you make a good many thousands yearly. We will furnish every opportunity and all the cash your work demands. Note the time, date and place and if in dead earnest, be there!

IMMEDIATE INCOME PERMANENT SUCCESS!

If many others have successfully taken the step before YOU, and proved that there is nothing hazardous or experimental about it, then the situation ought to look more favorable for you. These men had no more experience in this business than you would have coming in as they did. They depended upon the character they had, their ability to work, and the sort of training we gave them so as to qualify them to go right out and make money. We have many records of men who made more in the same time, but these current examples are very significant, because at least one of these men is probably a good deal like YOU—about your age, temperament and of similar experience.

A. L. recently joined us. He did not make a fortune right away, but remember that for a long time he had made little or nothing. His old position was no longer available. His first week he made $20.00, and he did a little better his second week, while his third week meant $50.00 to him. Now, where else are you likely to increase your income 150% net in one week? B. F. made $21.00 his first week, and in the past 4½ days of his second week has made $38.00. J. R., another new man, made about $22.00 his first day out of training. C. M. did as well, but it took L. M., another new man, his first week to make that much. Some men click fast—others a little slower—but in the long run they generally earn on about the same basis, with here and there a real money-maker setting new records, at least for his territory, because this is a great international company, with vast resources and with a world-wide reputation as being a maker of men!

E. G. left training about 5 o'clock the other evening, and that same evening made $20.00. F. P. took a little longer to score. His first week was a blank, but his second week brought him $42.00. M. H. made $21.00 his first week and $42.50 his second week. B. M., another new man, made $25.00 his first week and $40.00 his second week.

E. T., who has been in this business longer, but who started without experience, just made $42.00 in one day. He has made as high as $100.00 in a single day. In the past 3 days W. J. H. made $43.00, and the previous week $60.00. T. D. made $40.00 in 1 day, and J. D. $70.00 the past week; he has made twice that in a week. H. S. left class last Wednesday night and the next day made $21.50. V. J. C. just made $15.00 in 1 day and has made over $200.00 in a single day.

You come in under the same terms that these and many other men have entered this work: On your character. You do not buy anything, invest or deposit a penny. We give you the best we have and it is the best of its class in the world. In return we expect the best you have. All men who have succeeded here have not been big money-makers in the past. But they have tried. You might try, under present conditions or those of the immediate future, in many kinds of business with all your might and mind and not succeed, because it takes the proposition as well as the man—the opportunity and the company as well as the effort. And it takes the effort, intelligently applied, to get out of things the riches they hold. There are men in this business nationally who have made fortunes out of exactly the start they offered to you. Invariably they have been men with family responsibilities, in good health, and of honest appearance. Some have been highly educated and others have never had educational advantages. It makes no difference if you are willing and are not a snap-hunter. This is not a gift. We expect as much of you as you have a right to expect of us, and you make your own "raises" here. No layoffs or seasons. No part-time. Not a tide-over. This is for earnest men who wish to connect with something good "for keeps," where they can write their own tickets and control their own prosperity.

We think enough of your interest to grant you a personal interview, and you may call any time between 9 a. m. and 1 noon, in Room 910 at 205 West Wacker drive, Monday, Oct. 16.

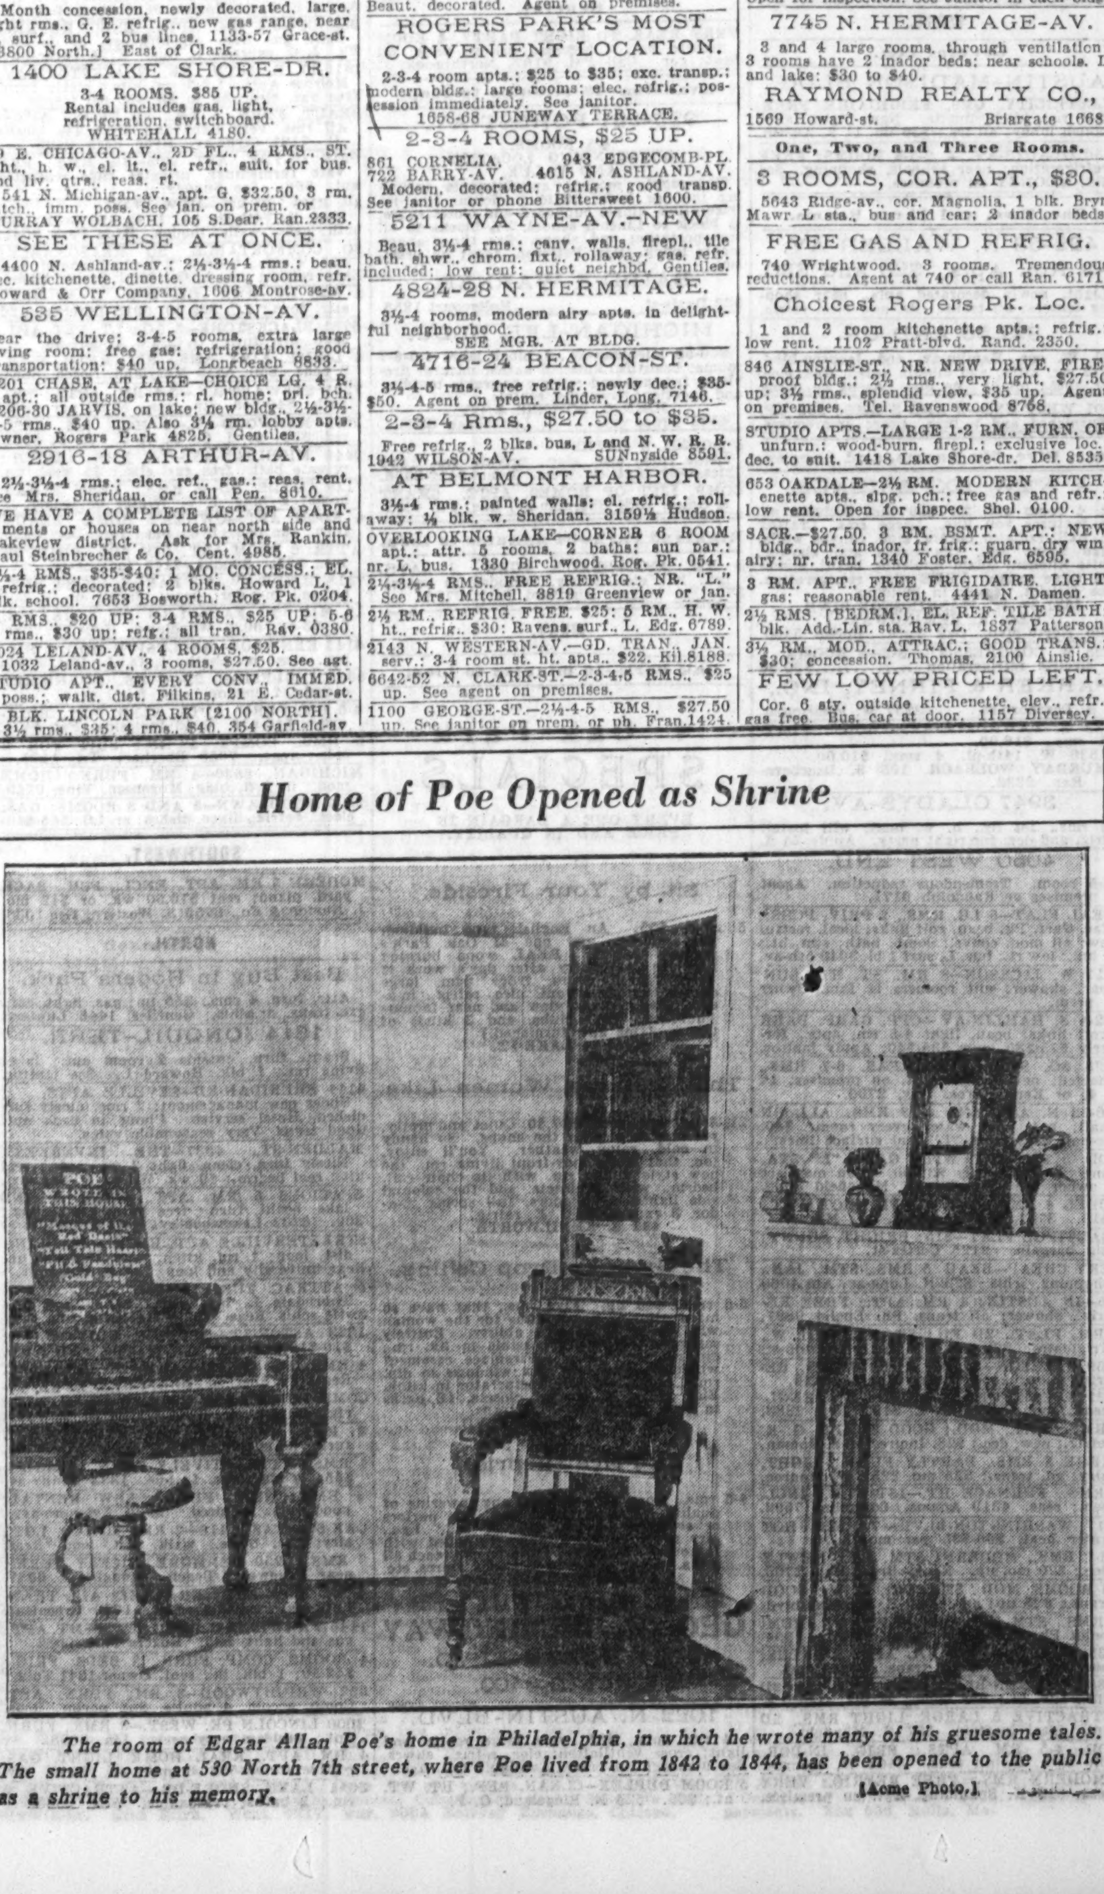
Home of Poe Opened as Shrine



The room of Edgar Allan Poe's home in Philadelphia, in which he wrote many of his gruesome tales. The small home at 530 North 7th street, where Poe lived from 1842 to 1844, has been opened to the public as a shrine to his memory.

Arkansas.

GOOD 40 A. FARM; GOOD TEAM MULES, $400. Joseph Rogers, Malvern, Ark.

California.

IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA SMALL farm homes near established communities yield good income; ideal climate for fruit and poultry; moderate priced lands; easy terms; paved roads and good schools. Only ten years ago life on the farm meant an almost primitive existence. Today wide spread distribution of modern conveniences make pleasant and profitable the hours that used to be tedious and difficult. The Santa Fe railway has no land to sell, but offers free information service to help you get right location. Low fares to California. Write for illustrated Southern California folder and our farm paper "The Earth" free for six months. C. L. SEAGRAVES, General Colonization Agent, Santa Fe Railway, 900A Railway Exchange, Chicago.

$150 Buys This Complete Business

I have a complete business, something good that any man or woman or husband and wife working together can set up in their kitchen at home on which you can make up to $25 to $30 a day. For $150 you get absolutely everything you need to start out and make a good profit the first week. This is no "scheme" or "slick proposition," but a legitimate staple business. You manufacture at home an absolutely new food product. Looks and tastes like nothing you ever saw or heard of. Put it up in sacks and leave it with grocers, delicatessens, beer taverns, etc. They sell it for you at a big profit per dozen and it sells like wild fire. Derry now selling 600 dozen a week. Lambert sold 1,896 dozen first 6 weeks. Took in $1,011.20 in cash. No experience needed, as I show you how and start you off right. Call in person at Room 812 Boyce Bldg., 54 W. Illinois-st., or write. Ask for Mr. Archer.

HAPPY DAYS HAVE ARRIVED FOR STUDEBAKER

The 1934 Studebaker line has been greeted with real enthusiasm. Orders, orders, and more orders have poured in and the old cash register has been working overtime.

THAT MEANS

our used car stock is growing again due to the number of "trade-ins" accepted. But we do not intend to become married to these cars, and we will move them out at once. There's one sure way of accomplishing this, and that's by down to where people will recognize our used auto selections as outstanding values. That's just what we've done, so come on over and get a REAL BARGAIN!

'32 CHEVROLET SEDAN. 6 wire wheels. Actually driven for only a very short time. Now every detail of the interior and exterior appears like new, and the engine will satisfy the most exacting motorist. Special at..........$395

'31 ESSEX COACH. Here's a car that was in storage for almost a year. We checked it over carefully in our shops, and now we recommend it as a very outstanding buy $275

'32 STUDEBAKER 6 CONV. SEDAN. It's de luxe throughout, with wire wheels, side mounts, etc. Has all the latest features, including Advanced Free Wheeling, automatic starting, etc. Here is a truly gorgeous car that was just driven enough to be properly broken in. Offered at only a fraction of its original cost. Now........................$625

'30 NASH ROADSTER. It looks and runs better than many autos priced at $500. The finish is bright and shiny and the upholstery appears unworn. Has a sweet running motor. Reduced to $275

'31 STUDEBAKER SEDAN. Commander 8 that was owned by an official of this company who gave it the most scrupulous care. We can certainly recommend that this Studebaker will give new car satisfaction today. Has Free Wheeling and a wealth of extras. A super-bargain at $395

'30 PACKARD 8 SEDAN. A 7 passenger that was chauffeur driven. It was in the garage most of the time, as it was owned in conjunction with two other expensive cars. The finish glistens like a new dollar and the upholstery is luxurious. Motor is 100%. Many valuable extras. Only....................$395

'29 FRANKLIN SEDAN. It's a real beauty and the motor performs smoothly and quietly. Extras galore. This car was priced recently at $385, but we just reduced it to....................$245

'29 LA SALLE SPORT COUPE. A snappy looking car with a world of power and pep. Roomy rumble seat, and many extras. For quick sale.$345

'30 PEERLESS SEDAN. A dandy car that never left the Chicago blvds. The finish, upholstery, tires and motor are A1, and there are many nice extras. Don't miss it at only....................$145

SERVING left-overs BUT FORGETTING THIS GREATER ECONOMY?

● Why not shop as carefully to save dollars on apartment values as you do to save pennies on groceries and other purchases?

● Previewing apartments can save you many weary steps in climbing stairs day after day to look at apartments that could never interest you.

● The place to look for the most desirable apartments available is in the Tribune Apartments-to-rent want ad columns.

WHAT is the use of buying carefully at the stores, practicing old-fashioned thrift at home, if you wipe out the savings you have made by renting a hastily selected apartment?

If you are planning to move soon, it will be worth many dollars to you to select your apartment most carefully this year. Apartment values are high. Rents are still low. But present conditions may send them up soon.

To be sure that you have not overlooked any offer of desirable apartments, keep in touch with the apartment market through the apartments-to-rent want ad columns in the Tribune.

They contain comprehensive lists of apartments in practically all desirable neighborhoods. By reading the descriptions, you can have a pretty good idea before you visit an apartment what it is like—its size, location, nearness to transportation, conveniences, and rent. This saves your time and energy.

Try this easier, more satisfactory way of finding an apartment with the help of the Tribune Want Ad Section. Read the want ads today and every day.

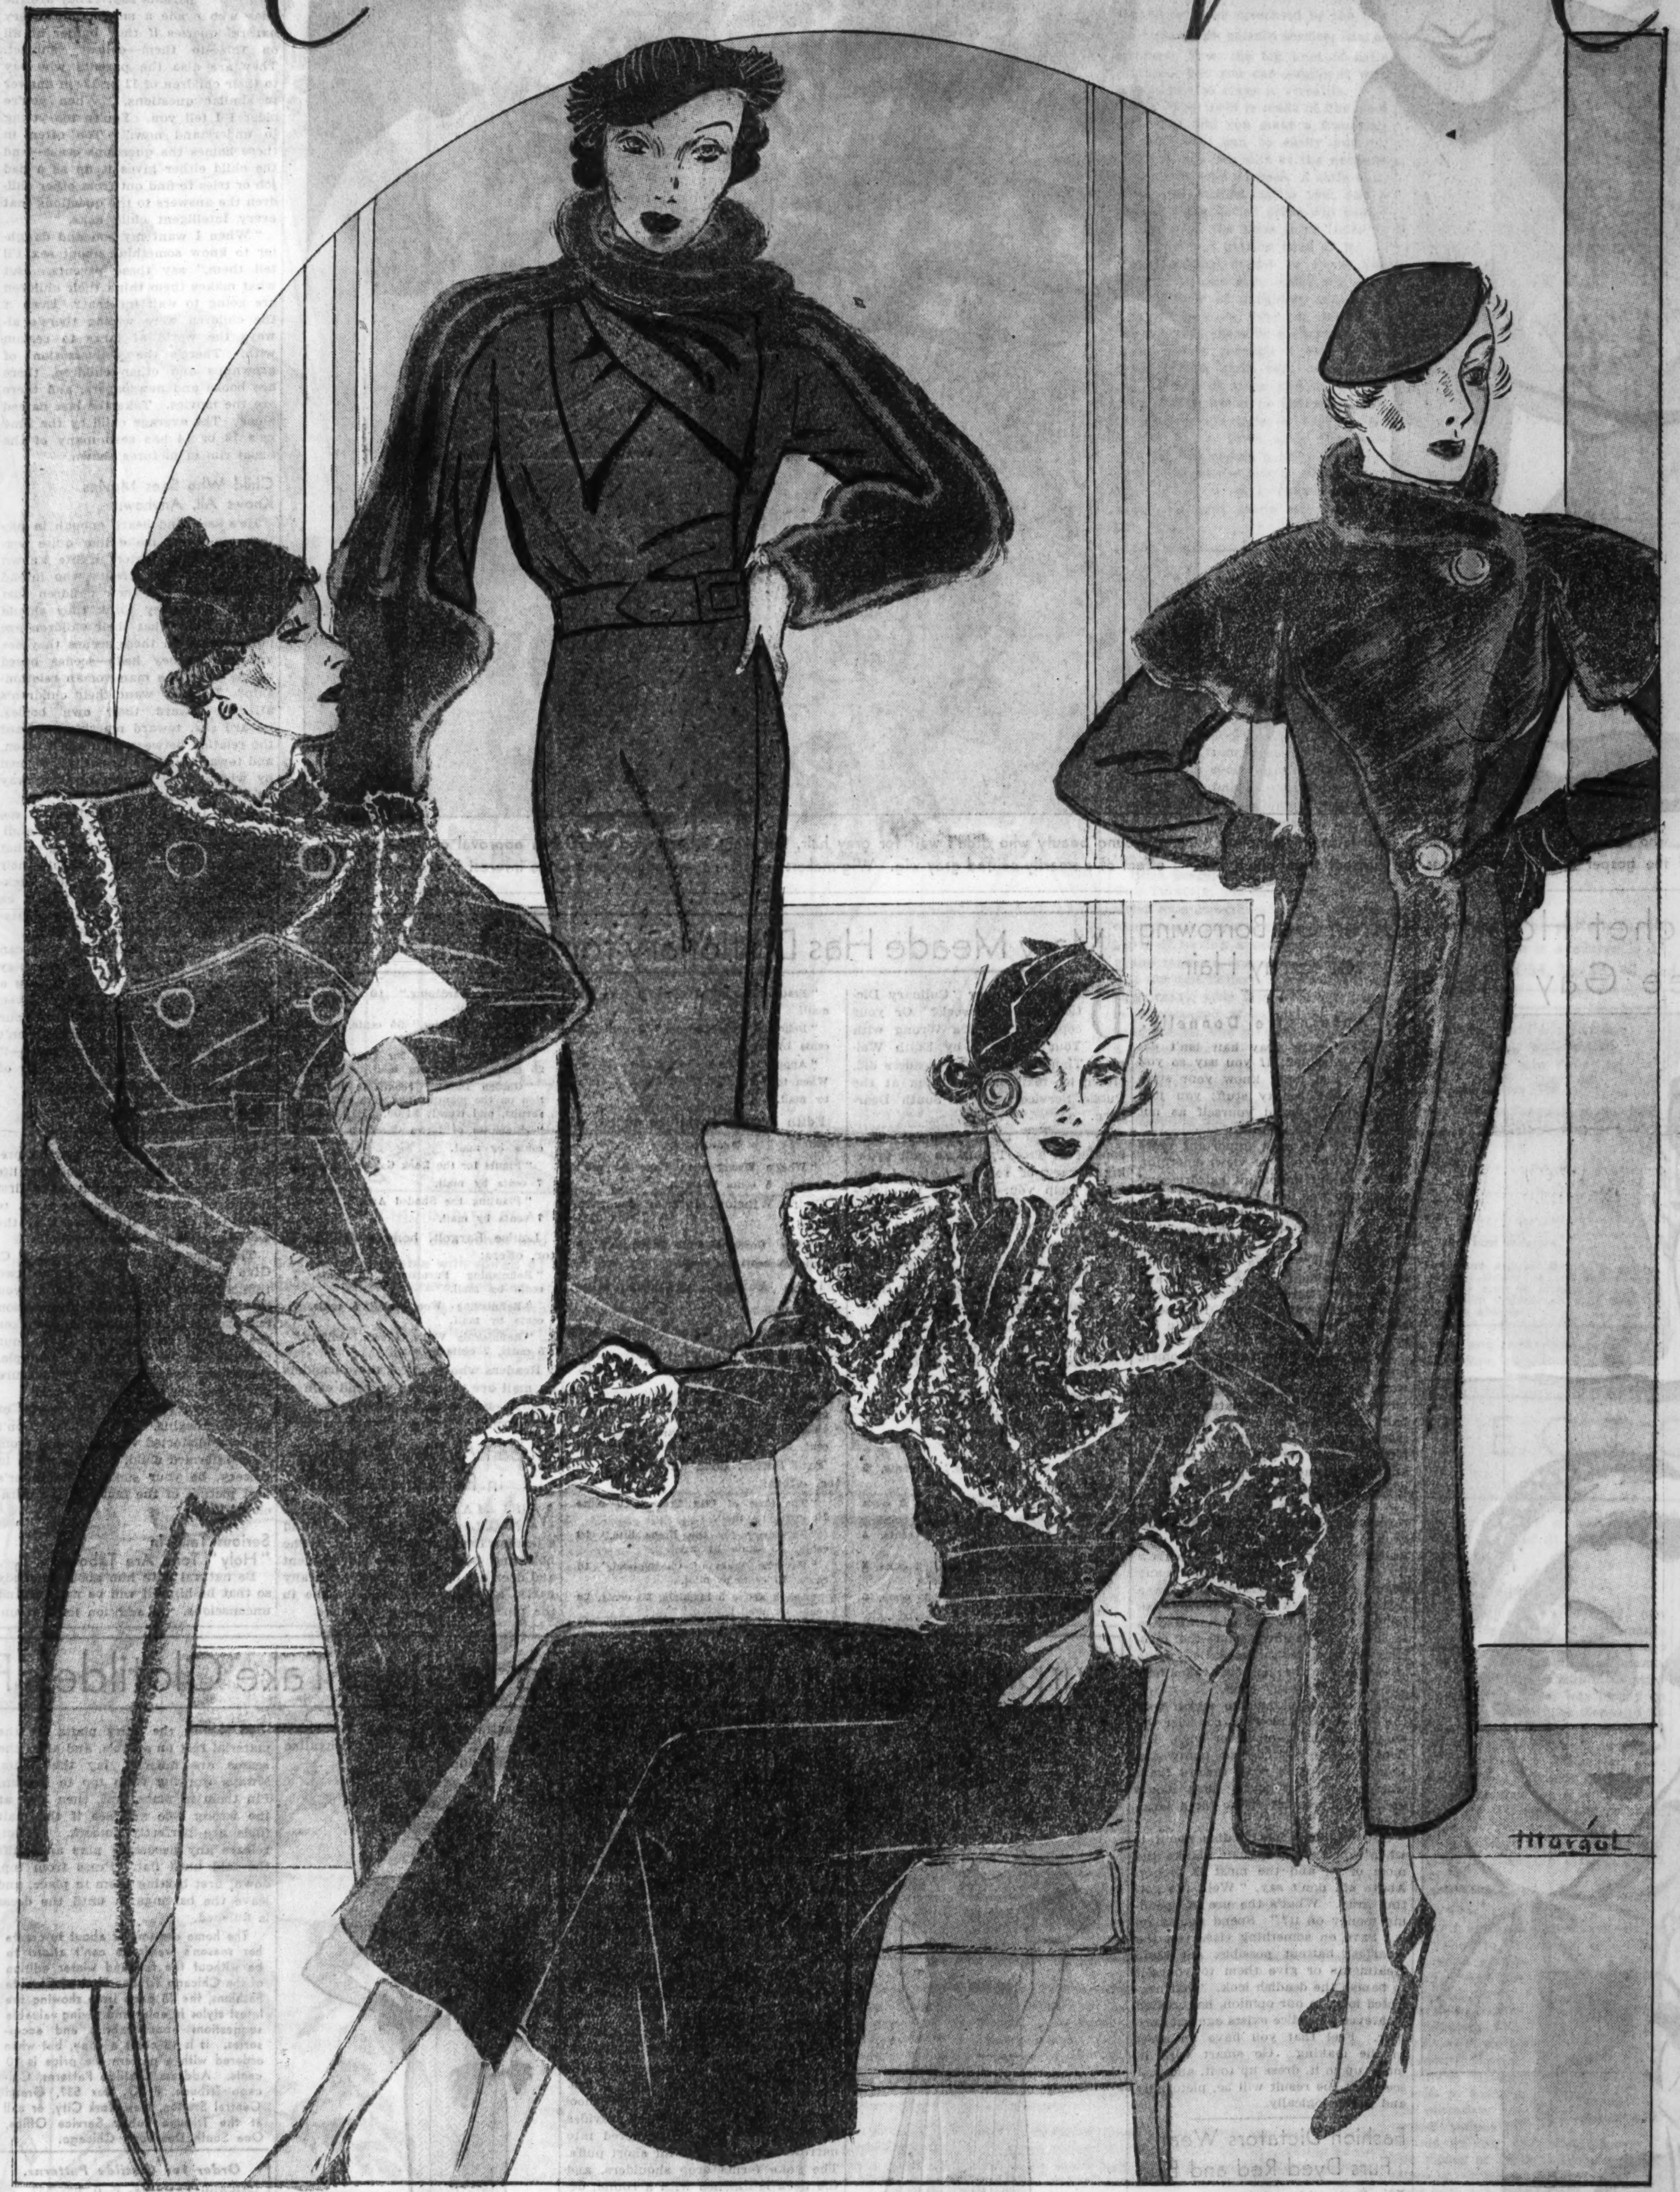
Winter Coats Flaunt Vivid Colors



SKETCHED IN CHICAGO BY A TRIBUNE STAFF ARTIST.

Oysters Here, Teasing Cooks to Try Tasties

Not Only Ultra-Delicious, but Rich in Minerals Necessary to Health.

By MARY MEADE.

"OYSTERS are in season"—magic words! Four months these plump, self-contained rascals have been vacationing, but now they're back in fine fettle, teasing us with thoughts of oysters on the half shell, oysters bubbling elusively in creamy soup, oysters crusty with crackers, oysters fried, toasted, broiled, baked, and panned.

What's more, if you corner an oyster and start investigating his private life, you're delighted to discover he has lots beside gustatory goodness to his credit. Scientific probers have found him rich in iron, the same substance that made liver famous and that protects us from anemia. Add to that the fact that oysters boast copper, manganese, and other minerals important to our own inner regions, and you have a good excuse for welcoming His Lusciousness into meals every now and then.

Its Home Life.

But, by the way, are you properly posted on the home life of an oyster? It would be just the thing for you if you crave adventure. For of all the little oysters starting in as eggs, few live to a ripe old age, and those who do can thank their lucky stars for it. If it isn't a school of hungry fish gobbling up the eggs before they sink to the bottom of the sea to get anchored, then it's a storm which whips them as youngsters from their moorings, or some low down mussels who move in and smother them all.

Shells for Safety.

But once the oyster youngsters have built themselves a shell they're a bit safer. They're ready for marketing, we're told, at from two to five years of age, though some of the really husky ones live to be as grown up as fifteen. You can tell the age of your oyster by counting the rings on his shell.

PERFECTION OYSTER STEW

So let's first of all do an oyster stew, for this bowl of goodness is so often done wrong by. We're too likely to cook the oysters too long, leaving them tough and indigestible. Instead, cook them in their own liquor, slowly over a low fire. At the same time scald the milk in a separate saucepan. As soon as Master Oyster ever so slightly curls up his toes, combine the milk and oysters and season with salt, pepper and a dash of Worcestershire sauce. Serve piping hot with a teaspoon of butter afloat and plenty of crunchy oysters crackers in bowls along with.

A Creamed Dish.

Then there should be mentioned the "just for you" look of crisp—

OYSTER CROUSTADES.

Trim the crusts from a loaf of sandwich bread and then cut it into 2 inch slices. Better estimate the size of your family first and trim only what will be needed. Now dig the crumbs out of the center of each square piece, cutting even walls with a sharp paring knife, leaving walls and bottom. This gives you a square box made out of each slice of bread. Brush these lightly with melted butter and brown delicately in a quick oven. Fill with creamed oysters, sprinkle each with minced parsley and serve.

To serve six oyster lovers each with six Oysters à l'Ancienne, you will need 3 dozen of the large fellows. Here is the recipe:

BAKED OYSTERS A L'ANCIENNE.

3 dozen large oysters.
18 strips bacon.
Lemon.
Minced parsley.

Open the oysters and place on the half shell in a wide baking pan. Over each oyster lay a half strip (cut across) of bacon. Bake for 12 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Serve hot with lemon and a dash of minced parsley.

ROASTED OYSTERS.

Some of the most toothsome ways of serving oysters are the most simple. Oysters for roasting should be bought with their shells uncracked. Scrub them well with a brush, cook in a hot oven in a pan until the shells part, then open and season with salt and pepper to serve.

BROILED OYSTERS.

These should be large fellows, taken from the shell, cleaned and dried with a clean cloth. Dip them in melted butter, then in seasoned cracker crumbs and finally broil in a buttered broiler. Serve with tartar sauce or Maitre d'Hotel butter.

Greens, Blues, Crimsons Dot the Avenues

Fabrics Heavy but Cut to Accent Willowy Silhouette; Shades Startle.

By RHEA SEEGER.

COLORED coats that will stir your imagination! New high shades dramatically contrasted with flat furs that will keep a silhouette slim and willowy, even though the woolen fabrics are thick, sometimes fuzzily textured and of casual loose weaves. Vivid greens, bright blues, crimsons, old golds, and a flattering assortment of dull though interesting shades of green are available in one outstanding collection featured in a smart Chicago boulevard shop.

A Color Rebellion.

They are especially designed for the shoppers who are weary of the traditional black or dark brown winter coat, and there must be thousands of rebellious souls, for colored coats are streaking up and down the best boulevards with a delightful abandon. The ingenious manner of using the finest of flat furs as epaulet shoulders, as high face framing collars, as bands that twist intricately to widen shoulder seams or accent the clever cut of a sleeve endow these new numbers with almost an uncopyable chic. Flat furs achieve a slinky distinction that thick, fluffy furs can never attain . . . high colored coats are dismal flops with anything but a contrast of sleek, smooth, short furs.

Close Harmonies.

The clever thing to do with any of the bold colored models is to wear clinging dresses of dull crêpe in dark plain colors . . . for instance, you might steal a bit of Mussolini's craft by wearing a dull black frock under the crimson or scarlet folds of a coat trimmed with sleek, shiny sealskin . . . or stop traffic almost literally with a glowing old gold dress under a bottle-green wool trimmed with spicy brown nutria or beaver. And, of course, you can reverse that formula with a hunter's green dress under an old gold or mustard green-gold fur trimmed coat.

If you want to startle the world you can risk the right shade of red under one of these yellowy gold coats and really earn a reputation for doing things a bit differently. Old gold or a brighter shade of yellow is perfect under a bright blue coat, especially if the coat is fastened with glittering gold or brass buttons, for then you knowingly take the devastating glitter and dress parade lure of a uniform.

Waistlines Willowy.

Epaulets, a comparatively small roll over collar of fur and unusual V-shaped sections of the wool achieve a military swank for the coat pictured at the extreme left. Four huge buttons hold it securely in place and a belt accents the trim slim waistline.

Four new coats have been illustrated . . . bright green wool may fashion the coat at top center. It is trimmed with bands of beaver fur that wind around the snugly fitted neckline, streak down the sleeves in two bands, and then into deep flared cuffs. Sections of the green wool form lapels and the belt is also of matching wool of the coat.

Eye-filling scarlet wool is an audacious fabric for the coat shown at the extreme right center.

The Fashion Wise Welcome Silvery Locks as Definitely Coveted Style Asset

Billie Dove of Follies and film fame, who has made of her prematurely gray locks a distinctive style asset, personifies the truth of the gospel that gray hair does not detract from beauty.

A young beauty who didn't wait for gray hair, but went a-borrowing, looks with approval on the flattering effect of a smartly coiffed gray wig. Wig makers report a tremendous fashionable interest in chic white wigs.

Parents Should Not Be Timid in Discussing Sex

Delay Often Costs Them Opportunity to Give First Explanations.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

"WHEN I want m⁻ child to know something about sex, I'll tell him," I've heard parents say. They are the ones who evade a smal: child's very natural queries if they border at all on this—to them—delicat subject. They are also the parents who say to their children of 11 or 13, in answer to similar questions, "When you're older I'll tell you. You're too young to understand now." Too often in these homes the questions cease—and the child either gives it up as a bad job or tries to find out from other children the answers to the questions that every intelligent child asks.

"When I want my son and daughter to know something about sex I'll tell them," say these parents. But what makes them think their children are going to wait for that? Even if the children were willing there's always the world at large to reckon with. There's the conversation of grownups and other children, there are books and newspapers, and there are the movies. Take the last named alone. The average child by the time he's 13 or 14 has seen many of the usual run of pictures shown.

Child Who Sees Movies Knows All, Anyhow.

He's seen and heard enough in picture houses to make him quite cognizant of that factor in life known as sex. Do the parents who intend some day to tell their children just as much as they think they should know imagine that their children are not drinking in these scenes they see and words they hear—scenes based chiefly upon the man-woman relationship? Do they want their children's attitude toward their own bodies, toward sex, toward marriage, toward the relation between men and women, and toward birth to be entirely formed by whatever is thrown in their way by circumstance?

When I go to the movies and see young people and children in the audience I can't help wondering what ideas some of the films build into their lives—whether they have any background of natural simple truths as an anchorage when these presentations buffet their standards about.

Now you may think that you can choose the influences that will play upon your children. But there are a great many you couldn't fend off, even if you did actually want to wrap your children in cotton-wool. Things aren't that way in this world any more—if they ever were. This is the age of frankness and knowledge.

First Knowledge Makes Deepest, Firmest Impression.

What then is the best way to prepare your children to look at life with wide open eyes that have first looked on truth—to prepare them to meet the diverse influences that the world outside of home represents?

The answer is as simple as A B C. Give them early in the game two things—ideas and ideals. Or, if you like to put it differently—information and standards. First, knowledge makes the deepest impression. Give your children, by word and by example, something against which to measure what they see and hear and read.

Get there first with the story of how life begins, for instance. Don't let some distorted version gained from a misinformed child, perhaps given in secrecy, be your son's or daughter's first picture of the fact and the miracle of birth.

Serious Talks in "Holy" Tone Are Taboo.

Be natural with him about his body so that he himself will be natural and unconscious. In addition let him understand it so that he will respect it as the wonderful creation that it is.

When your child is old enough try to give him a more mature understanding of the things he knew only as physical facts when he was much younger.

Now, according to my idea, none of these things is accomplished by sitting down and having a long and seriout talk on the subject. Nor do I believe in the "holy" tone that some people assume when they tell how a baby is born or discuss anything that has to do with sex.

Neither Should Sex Be Mentioned with Bated Breath.

In the first place, I believe that these things should be learned little by little from young childhood on up through the years. Answering simple questions truthfully and naturally is the ideal way. Of course you only give a child as much as he can understand at the time, just as you do when he asks you about any other subject. Given gradually and simply his knowledge about sex does not stand out as something apart and different. It takes its place with other matters in all the great mass of knowledge that he amasses during his early years.

At no time do I think we should use a tone that makes him feel that these things should be mentioned with bated breath. Children have plenty of natural reserve, but there is not the slightest reason why they shouldn't talk about these things if they want to. False modesty and secrecy and taboos have caused too much trouble already.

"So far so good," you may say. "I believe what you say. But I don't know how to go about it," or, "I would if I had some clear ideas myself. My thoughts are vague and there's a lot I don't know that I'd like to know to be able to answer my child's questions intelligently. What can I do about it?"

Booklets Gradate Sex Education According to Age.

It was the very great need for advice in the sex education of children that led me to prepare the booklet we have on that subject. I could not write one full booklet on the subject, as each age has to be handled differently—the littlest children, the fives to eight, the eights to twelves, and the adolescents. Therefore I compiled a list of authoritative booklets. Each one is described in full so that the reader knows exactly which one to send for. The booklets were carefully selected to cover all ages—from early childhood up to and through late adolescence. In one or two cases there are books which can be read by the children themselves, though I think this sort of knowledge comes best indirectly when the occasion arises.

In case you are not at all convinced of the need of sex education, there is also a booklet named "Why Sex Education?" that I think you should read.

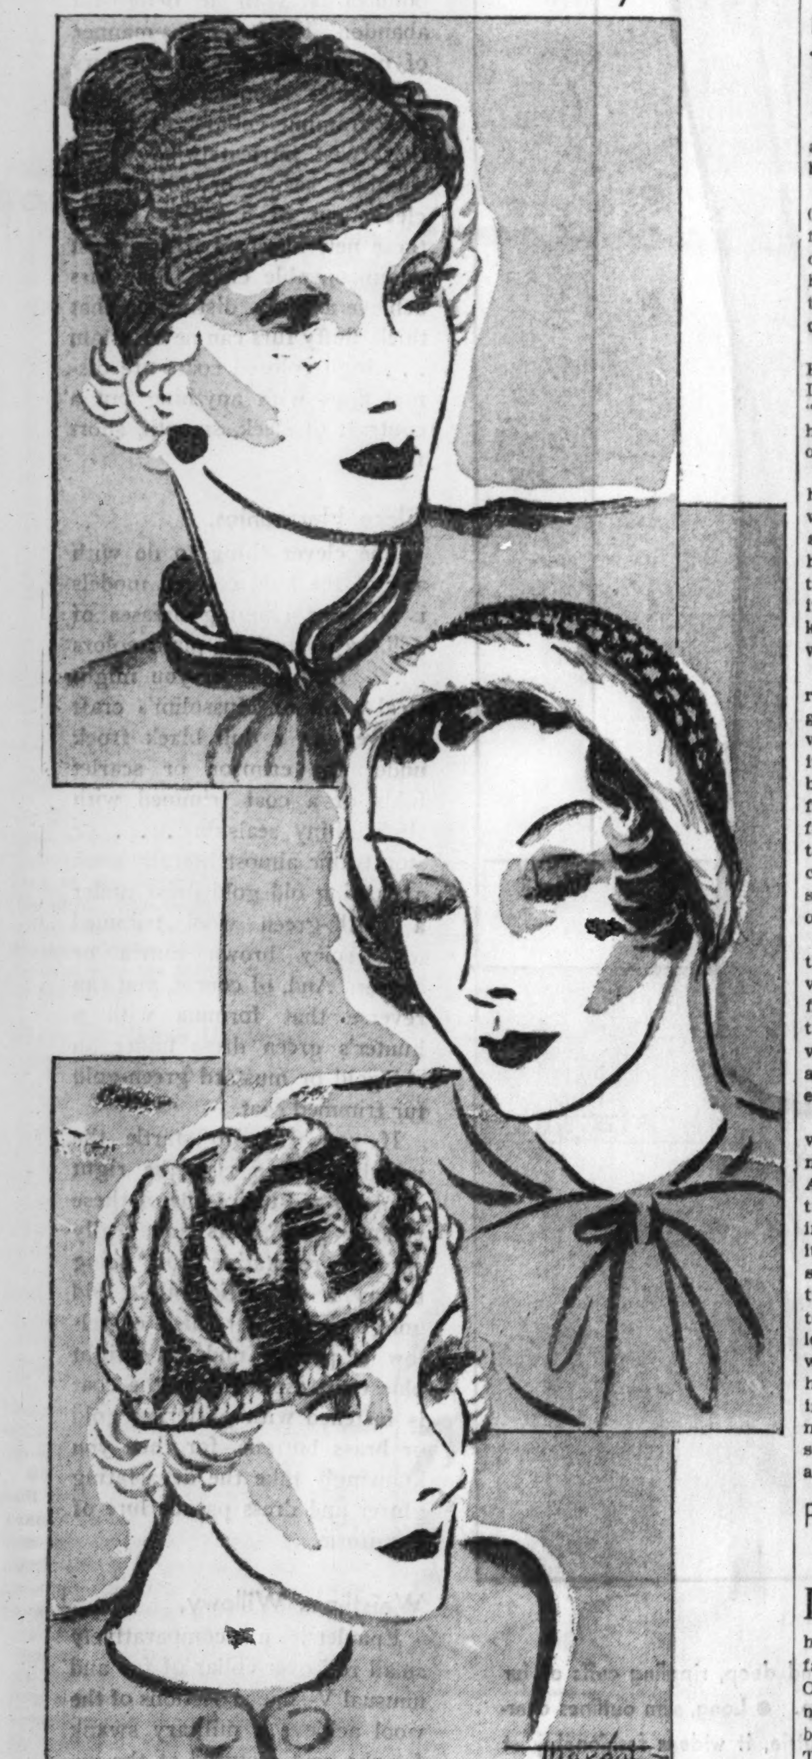
Amateur's Crochet Hook Fashions Three Gay Hats



By Jean Macdonald.

FOR the novice, making a hat is one of the best ways to learn to produce attractive results without great outlay or unduly expensive materials.

Illustrated at the top today is the fashionable Mallorca, or Mediterranean blue hat made with that new halo effect at the back.

The most expensive hat in the group is that made of chenille in mixed colors, dark green and white, with a ball of white angora used for trimming, show in the center.

The black and white hat at the bottom of the sketch is one that will be a good old stand-by. Made of boucle or fine wool and decorated with a skein of ball of heavy 8-ply Germantown, rug wool or angora, it is as becoming a hat as a woman can wear.

HOW TO ORDER.

If you wish instructions for making the three hats illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

Often Go Borrowing for Gray Hair

By Antoinette Donnelly.

WHO says gray hair isn't desirable? If you say so you just don't know your style and beauty stuff; you just automatically brand yourself as not being up to the minute.

A bit of the most important news (from a style point of view) emerging from a recent important hairdressers' convention was to the effect that gray hair is now held a style asset rather than a liability—and a distinguished one at that.

"Gray hair," in the words of Max Hoefer, president of the Chicago and Illinois Hairdressers' association, "lends dignity and charm. It is not a handicap to the woman in public life or in the business world."

He cites many distinguished women, holding responsible positions in the world of business and society, whose silvery white or prematurely gray hair has added to, rather than detracted from, their individual attractiveness. Also he speaks of the well known movie actresses and stage stars whose gray hair is much admired.

A survey of the gray hair situation reveals that women with an ear to the ground for fashion fancies not only welcome gray hair, but even borrow it. It isn't astounding, in many beauty salons nowadays, to have a fashionable, dark haired patron ask for a finishing touch of white mascara to a cleverly coiffed head—the mascara to give that dramatic white streak or two that so often takes hair out of the ordinary class.

As a straw to indicate which way the style wind is blowing, consider the vogue for white and silver wigs. Reflect on the attitude so many distinguished women have toward them when they want to be ultra smart and just a wee bit exotic for a large evening.

So-o-o—, don't be childish about it when you spot gray hair. Make the most of it, and the most is plenty. Above all, don't say, "Well, it's getting gray. What's the use of spending money on it?" Spend money on it. Save on something else. Get the smartest haircut possible; get scalp treatments or give them to yourself to banish the deadish look. That neglected look, in our opinion, has created whatever prejudice exists against gray hair. Feel that you have an asset in the making. Go smart with it; make up to it, dress up to it, and just see what the result will be, pictorially and psychologically.

Fashion Dictators Wear Furs Dyed Red and Blue

IN Paris this winter two women whose clothes sound style notes heard around the world set a startling fashion with furs dyed red and blue. One wears a straight lined coat of navy blue wool with foxes dyed navy blue swirling around the shoulders. The other chose a coat in the ever popular eel gray lined with lapin dyed a bright reddish orange.

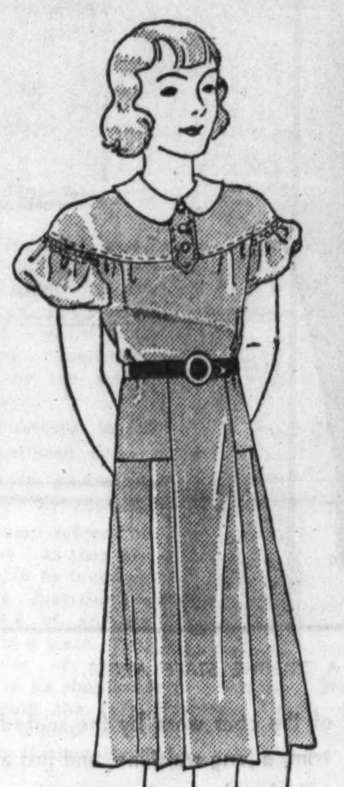
Surprise Plaits and Pucker Suggestions Take Clotilde's Fashion Fancy



2604—Girl's dress. Sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 12 requires 2⅞ yards of 39 inch material with ¼ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

By Clotilde.

EVEN the amateur at sewing could scarcely ask for anything quicker to make than this darling dress, pattern 3407. It's just the thing for the college or business miss, and equally delightful for the woman's afternoon frock.

When made up in a novelty woolen, with the dainty jabot edged with crisp white pleating, it is an exceptionally young and smart looking model. Tremendously chic and a bit more dressy is black faille crêpe silk with the white jabot lending smart contrast.

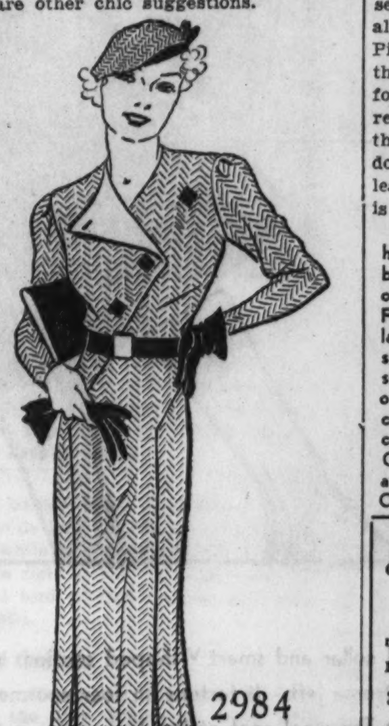
Sleeves Set in Yoke Form Dropped Line.

A darling dress that every girl will surely like is seen in the pattern, No. 2604, and it's just the thing for school or home wear. The pattern provides for full length sleeves gathered into narrow wristbands, or for short puffs. The yoke forms drop shoulders, and the neck is finished with a round, detachable collar. The panel at the center front of the skirt is joined to a deep round yoke at the top.

A yellow and brown checked woolen will be smart and practical for general wear, when finished with a removable collar of white pique. A soft linen-finished cotton fabric in red and white made this dress, and the collar was made of white piqué. Wool challis is a satisfactory fabric for cool days.

Hourly Uses for Woolens.

Pattern 2984 is for a smart sports suit, and of course was made of woolen. Woolen for every hour of the day is the thing now, and there are lovely ones from which to choose. A vivid green woolen with a black patent leather belt and white bengaline for contrast would be chic, while schemes of black sheer wool and white satin crêpe, or bright rust hairy woolen mixture with white bengaline are other chic suggestions.



2984—Woman's and misses' sport dress. Sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20 years, and 36, 38 and 40 inches bust measure.

In laying the skirt plaits let the material rest on a table, and after the seams are finisehd, lay the plaits, always working from top to bottom. Pin them in place first, then look at the wrong side and see if the plait folds are perfectly smooth. If not, release any necessary pins and shift the fold until flat. Press from top, down, first basting them in place, and leave the bastings in until the dress is finished.

The home dressmaker about to create her season's wardrobe can't afford to be without the fall and winter edition of the Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions, the 48 page issue showing the latest styles in color and giving valuable suggestions about fabrics and accessories. It is 15 cents a copy, but when ordered with a pattern the price is 10 cents. Address Clotilde Patterns, Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, New York City, or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn, Chicago.

Furs Laden the Fall Ensemble in Paris' Smartest Salons

Coats of Richest Fabrics Cut on Simple Lines

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—In these "furrin'" parts the styles that have a big customer appeal for the coming winter are those with a load of fur and lots of rich fabric. Smart Parisiennes, now engaged in their quarterly haggle with their pet dressmakers over the matter of clothes, are firm on the subject. They refuse to get all of a dither over fancy silhouettes. What they want are plain, well cut garments and no stinting on the quality of the material nor on the fur.

Parisiennes have at last abandoned that group of flat furs headed by the priceless broadtail. This winter the furs that every woman wants are longer haired and richer looking, even though they cost less.

Fox Leads Preferred List; Trimmings Reach New Highs.

Fox is, as you guessed, at the top of the list. Fox scarfs, separate from the jacket, aren't included, that is, in the super chic class. Fox has to be sewed on to the jacket, or at least be a cape or something equally extravagant looking to get in this category. Mink is quite as smart and is used in the same way. So is winter ermine and so is Alaskan seal. For the woman who cannot make the grade there are the beavers, Persian lambs, and the gay and sparkling leopard, ocelot and others.

The crême of the fur trimming rises to the top of the ensemble. That is to say, furs are applied high on the silhouette with the single exception of the fur hem on occasional suit or dress skirts. Fur trimmed jackets, worn by the most fashionable, come in several lengths and shapes.

Jackets and Skirts Are Fashioned of Softest Wool.

Jacket and dress or jacket and skirt are made of the most beautiful wool. Camel's hair wool, but finer than we've had, all the downy woolens, Chatillon's wool cut velvet, and Rodier's rabbit hair woolens are all used for such ensembles.

The dress of the smart jacket is of a simplicity. It's often just a bias cut sheath with things happening on the sleeves or at the neck line. Sleeve events run to shirred bishop sleeves, wing flared leg o' mutton and such. Neck lines are tied in bows, jabot, and ribbed. They're often draped high in front and pulled down to a V in the back.

Toque, Beret or Sailor, the Chic Hat Must Be Small.

Compiling the jacket ensemble with lots of fur, women pay close attention to the hat and the muff. Toques and caps of fur to match the trimming of the ensemble are being worn a lot, and so are velvet hats with fur trimming. Hats that are befeathered are worn with the dressy jacket ensemble. Most of these match the ensemble or the fur in color and most of them are small. Berets are going strong, so are toques and so are small velvet sailors with practical suits of this kind. The visored cap of fur or felt is in the style news, but it's an article that calls aloud for a young face under it.

The fully compiled jacket ensemble as worn by the élite of style in Paris is amply illustrated. All around the town such fur trimmed suits are taking the air of smart society.

Right in the center is a drawing of one of Molyneux's best and one with all the first class features of the mode. There is the frock, which is a perfectly plain, bias cut dress of dark gray downy woolen. It has raglan cut three-quarters length sleeves and a bow of the material is placed under the chin. The jacket is a hip length loose affair of gray wool with deep kimono sleeves which are practically covered with the darkest and brownest of beaver fur.

Silver Fox Spirals Up Sleeve of Ensemble in Angora Wool.

Just as appetizing is the second Molyneux ensemble pictured upper right. This one is made of black angora woolen. The loose jacket has silver fox spirals on the three-quarters length sleeves, spirals that cleverly stop under the arms and save the wear and tear. The black frock is bias cut and very plain, with three-quarters length loose sleeves slit to the elbows at the inside seam. The high V-shaped neck line buttons part way down the back. The sash at the waistline is made of light and dark gray panne velvet and the gloves are of light gray panne velvet.

Below on the right is a Jean Patou suit made of green wool velvet with a basque jacket having a leopard peplum and collar that is a shawl on the right side and draped to the under arm on the left. The plain sleeves have standing bands above the elbows. The straight green skirt is straight with an inverted box plait in front, and there is a plain green satin blouse with a jabot.

Opposite, on the left, is a practical fur trimmed suit from Heim. The three-quarters length jacket and skirt are made of pale gray hairy woolen and there is a black caracul vest with gray wool sleeves and turnover collar and black caracul cuffs. A cravat of black caracul buttons on the lapels of the jacket and the visored cap is of black caracul.

Upper left is a jacket ensemble from Yvonne Dangel with a fitted dark blue velvet jacket having a vest of leopard that passes under the bands down the front. The sleeves are puffed above the elbows and shirred on to a bias band up the outside. The velvet skirt has two box plaits at the center front.

SKETCHED IN PARIS BY A TRIBUNE STAFF ARTIST.

Prizes Offered for Dresses Made from These Original Paris Models

Today's Pattern For a Versatile Gown

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The versatile dress has become a necessity of life to the smart Parisienne, and in the new French fashions there are many versions. The one chosen for the Paris pattern offered today, the second of those presented by the new TRIBUNE Paris pattern service, has, as a steady bow, the big knot of satin pictured, but you can supply it with other bows to make it versatile.

The dress itself is made of fine wool or of silk and you make a trousseau of bows that can be easily put on, as there are two slits at the neckline in front for this purpose. A satin bow, a plaid or striped taffeta bow, and a bow of polka dotted crêpe will enable you to wear the dress three times as often, without getting tired of it.

The original model in Paris was made of smoky gray crêpe silk with the big bow of burgundy red satin. One end is slung over the left shoulder and held there by a snapper. The other passes through a slit in the front of the cloth belt, so it stays put. A bow of green and brown and gray taffeta would be charming with the gray of the dress, or equally nice with a brown frock made the same way. If you choose a light shade for your dress let the bow be dark, and if you choose a dark color select a bright or light shade for the satin bow.

$250 in Cash for Women Who Sew

WITH the presentation today of the second pattern for an original Paris gown the unique $250 contest for the woman who sews gets well under way. As announced last Sunday, women who make gowns from these Paris patterns are asked to send snapshots of themselves in the finished costume to THE TRIBUNE and in this simple fashion to compete for cash awards, which will be based only on the style success of the Paris patterned gown.

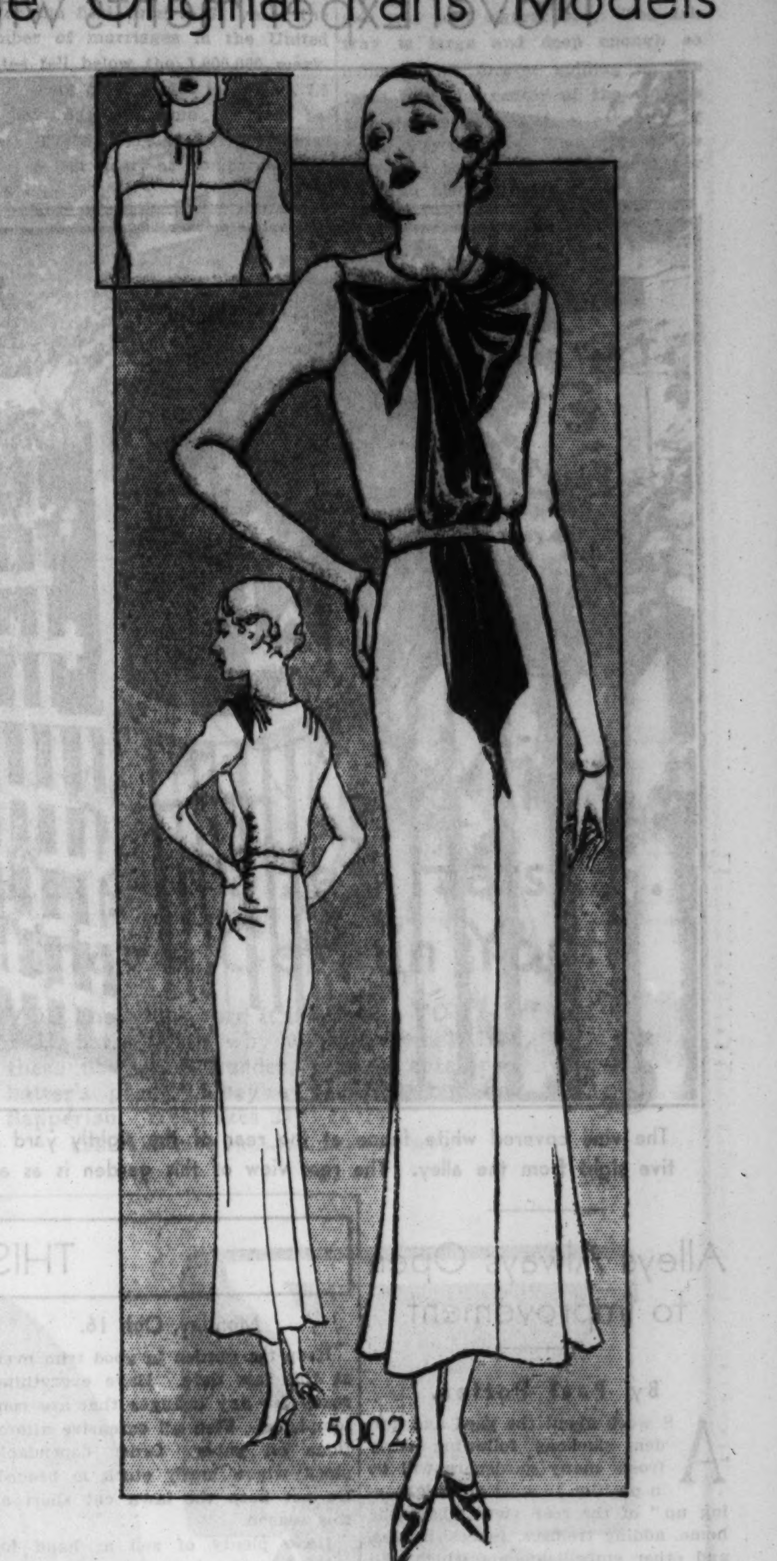
Rhea Seeger, local fashion editor of THE TRIBUNE, will do the judging, assisted by a committee of style experts. Readers are urged not to go to the expense of having a professional photograph made; a snapshot is preferred.

If the first pattern, offered last Sunday, wasn't your type of dress, don't be discouraged of competing for the prize money. You may choose to make a gown from any one or all of the Paris patterns presented in these columns each Sunday in October.

When the gown is made you'll have a stunning garment. Then have a snapshot taken wearing it, submit the little picture to Miss Seeger, and you may win more than enough to pay for your time, effort, and materials.

To the home dressmaker whose gown is superlatively smart and becoming will be awarded the first prize of $50. Second prize will be $30 and $20 will be awarded to the third prize winner. In addition there will be seven awards of $10 each and 16 comforting little prizes of $5 each.

Snapshots cannot be returned. Address them to Rhea Seeger, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and mail them before midnight of Nov. 19.



5002—The pattern for this Paris model of a daytime costume is available in 14, 16, 18, and 20 year sizes, and 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inch bust measure.

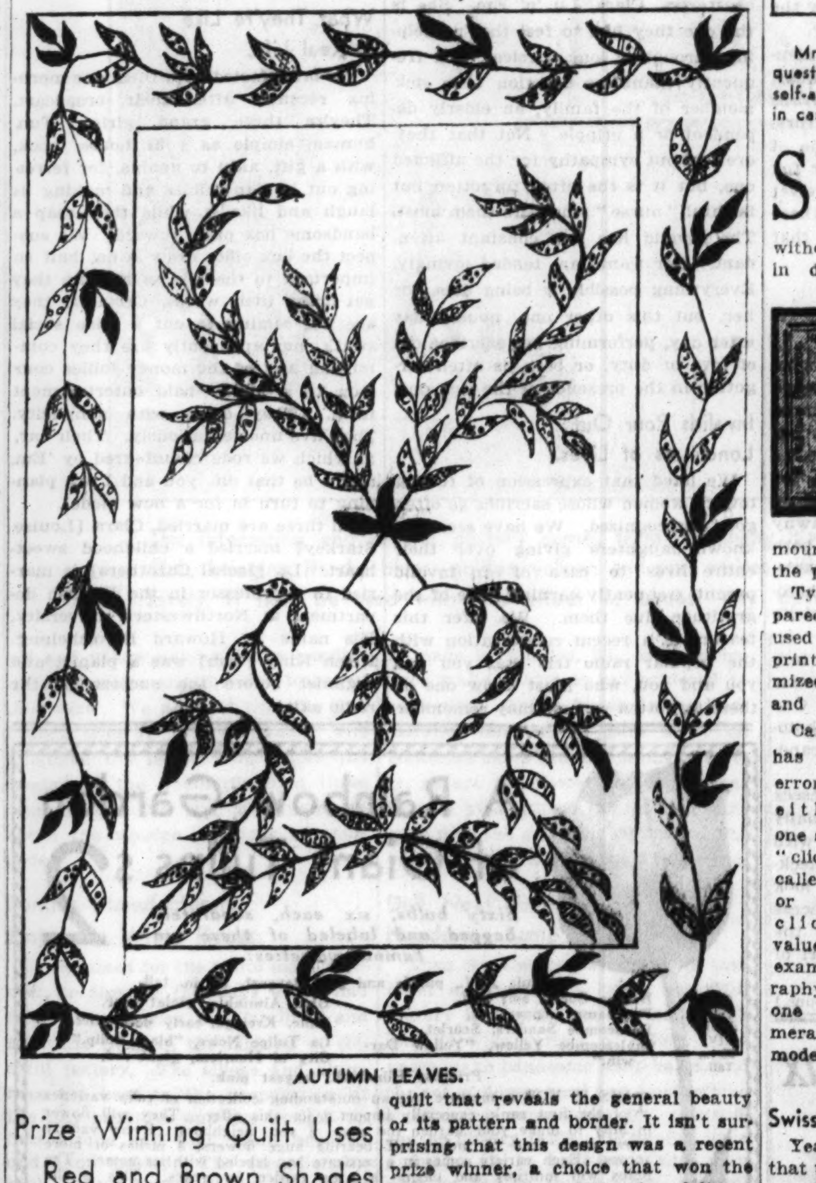
New Waste Baskets in Light Finishes

WASTE baskets are taking a new lease on life. They are blossoming out as decorative assets to any room. In antique white with gold decorations, in pastel colors and in the new wall papers they slip neatly into the place waiting for them by writing desk, table, or vanity.

Quite the smartest ones are made of white wire and bear an ornamental piece of white tôle about the top, decorated in green, in yellow, or in other light colors. They are so good looking and so different that they are sure to win the approval of the most fastidious buyer. They're on sale in a State street store.

Delicately Filigreed Leaves Put Autumn Beauty in Coverlet



AUTUMN LEAVES.

Prize Winning Quilt Uses Red and Brown Shades in Developing Design of Exquisite Pattern.

By Nancy Cabot.

THIS season of tumbling brown and red leaves seems the appropriate one in which to introduce the unusually decorative quilt pattern named "Autumn Leaves," shown above. It is so attractive that we are picturing not one block to show the detail, but the completed quilt that reveals the general beauty of its pattern and border. It isn't surprising that this design was a recent prize winner, a choice that won the greatest approval. There is a delicacy about the design that takes it far out of the ordinary class, and when executed with vari-colored bits it is remarkably beautiful.

The pattern of this prize winning quilt design is offered at the regular price of five cents, including instructions for making the border as well as the block design. Send five cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing the name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will be glad to answer questions concerning stamps. A stamped, self-addressed envelope should be inclosed in case a personal reply is desired.

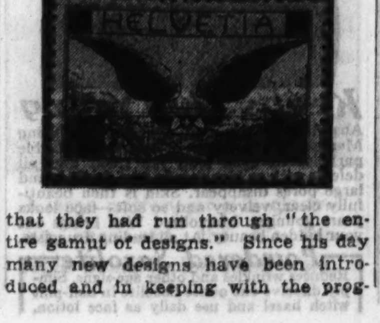
STAMP collectors consider the word typography as a general term embracing all printing done from type and designs in relief without regard for the method used in duplicating the stamp subjects which make up the printing plate. The individual designs may be typeset, stereotyped, electrotyped, or even stamped out in a coining press and are usually soldered to each other or to a mounting block in order that none of the parts may loosen in the printing.

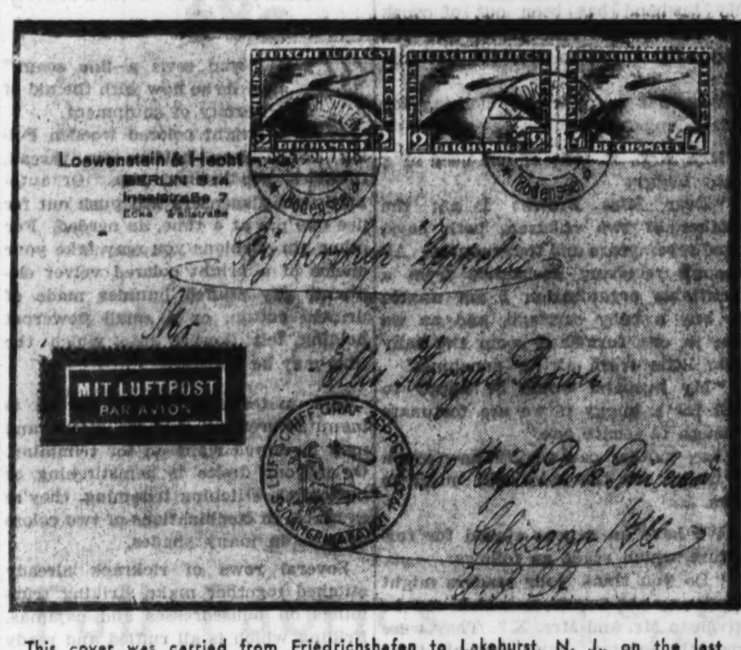
Typography is cheap when compared to intaglio engraving, and is used by many countries for stamp printing, counterfeiting being minimized by the use of special papers and inks.

Carelessness in assembling plates has produced some of the greatest errors in stamps either by allowing one stamp subject, or "cliche" as they are called, to be inverted, or by inserting a cliche of another value in a plate. Two examples of typography in its simplest form are shown, one being the rare Hawaiian "numeral" stamp of 1859, the other a modern Lithuanian stamp of 1918.

Swiss Airmail Stamp.

Years ago some collector remarked that there was nothing new in stamps, that they had run through "the entire gamut of designs." Since his day many new designs have been introduced and in keeping with the progress in aviation have been the novelties in airmail stamps. This Swiss stamp shows a letter on wings, while below are birds flying over the Alpine glaciers.

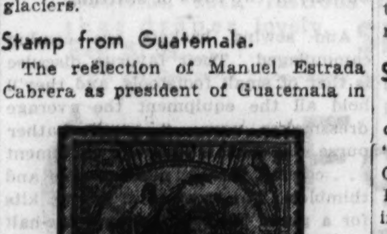




This cover was carried from Friedrichshafen to Lakehurst, N. J., on the last previous flight of the Graf Zeppelin to the United States. It was postmarked in Germany on May 18 and backstamped at Lakehurst on May 31, 1930. The cachet on the face is red and reads, "Airship Graf Zeppelin—South American Voyage." The green backstamp reads, "Graf Zeppelin—Europe Pan American—Round Flight." It was on the occasion of this voyage that the United States issued a series of three special Zeppelin stamps.

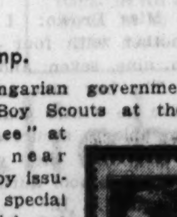
Stamp from Guatemala.

The reelection of Manuel Estrada Cabrera as president of Guatemala in 1917 was the occasion for this stamp. It is hardly a commemorative issue but rather a stamp of triumph or victory and must have been distasteful to the losing candidate and his supporters. It is printed in blue and brown and in the central design shows a medallion of Estrada Cabrera, above which Victory holds the laurel branch. The blue border gives the date "15 de Marzo de 1917" in the spandrel at the left, while in a corresponding position at the right is the "quetzal," the national bird of this Central American republic.



Scout Stamp.

The Hungarian government honored the Boy Scouts at their 1933 "Jamboree" at Godalla, near Budapest, by issuing a set of special stamps which are among the most interesting and beautiful in this year's crop of "collectors' stamps." Without entering a discussion concerning the origin of the motifs used in the design, about which a discussion has taken place in the newspapers, the stamps appear to symbolize the uplifting power of the Boy Scout movement. An eight point buck is shown coolly bounding over the Magyar mountains on the central peak of which is the crown and cross of St. Stephen, first king of Hungary.



New U. S. Stamps.

This week sees the third new United States stamp of the month placed in use. It is the Kosciusko 5 cent stamp. The 3 cent Byrd stamp, which cannot be used without a service charge of 50 cents, was placed on sale last week, and the Zeppelin 50 cent stamps were issued early in the month. The Graf Zeppelin is due to arrive in Chicago in about ten days with its cargo of philatelic mail, which will be exchanged for a similar load to be carried to Germany and returned by steamer. The first covers are expected in Chicago on Oct. 24, or within 24 hours after the airship moors at Miami.

Surcharges.

When a stamp is surcharged with a new value to relieve a temporary shortage a stamp of higher face value is usually selected to receive the overprint. This is effective in preventing counterfeits of the surcharge to defraud the postoffice, for crooks believe in raising values, not lowering them. The stamp of Chile, illustrated here, shows a 30 centavos stamp of 1899 made into a 5 centavos value in 1900 by means of a surcharge that cannot be mistaken.

Your Questions.

I. R. J.—While the envelope was used to a limited extent in France and perhaps other countries as early as the middle of the 18th century, it never came into general use until weight was made the basis of postal rates. So long as rates were based on single sheets of paper the use of an envelope added a sheet and doubled the rate, and with such rates as 12½, 25, 40 cents, etc., only a spendthrift could afford them.

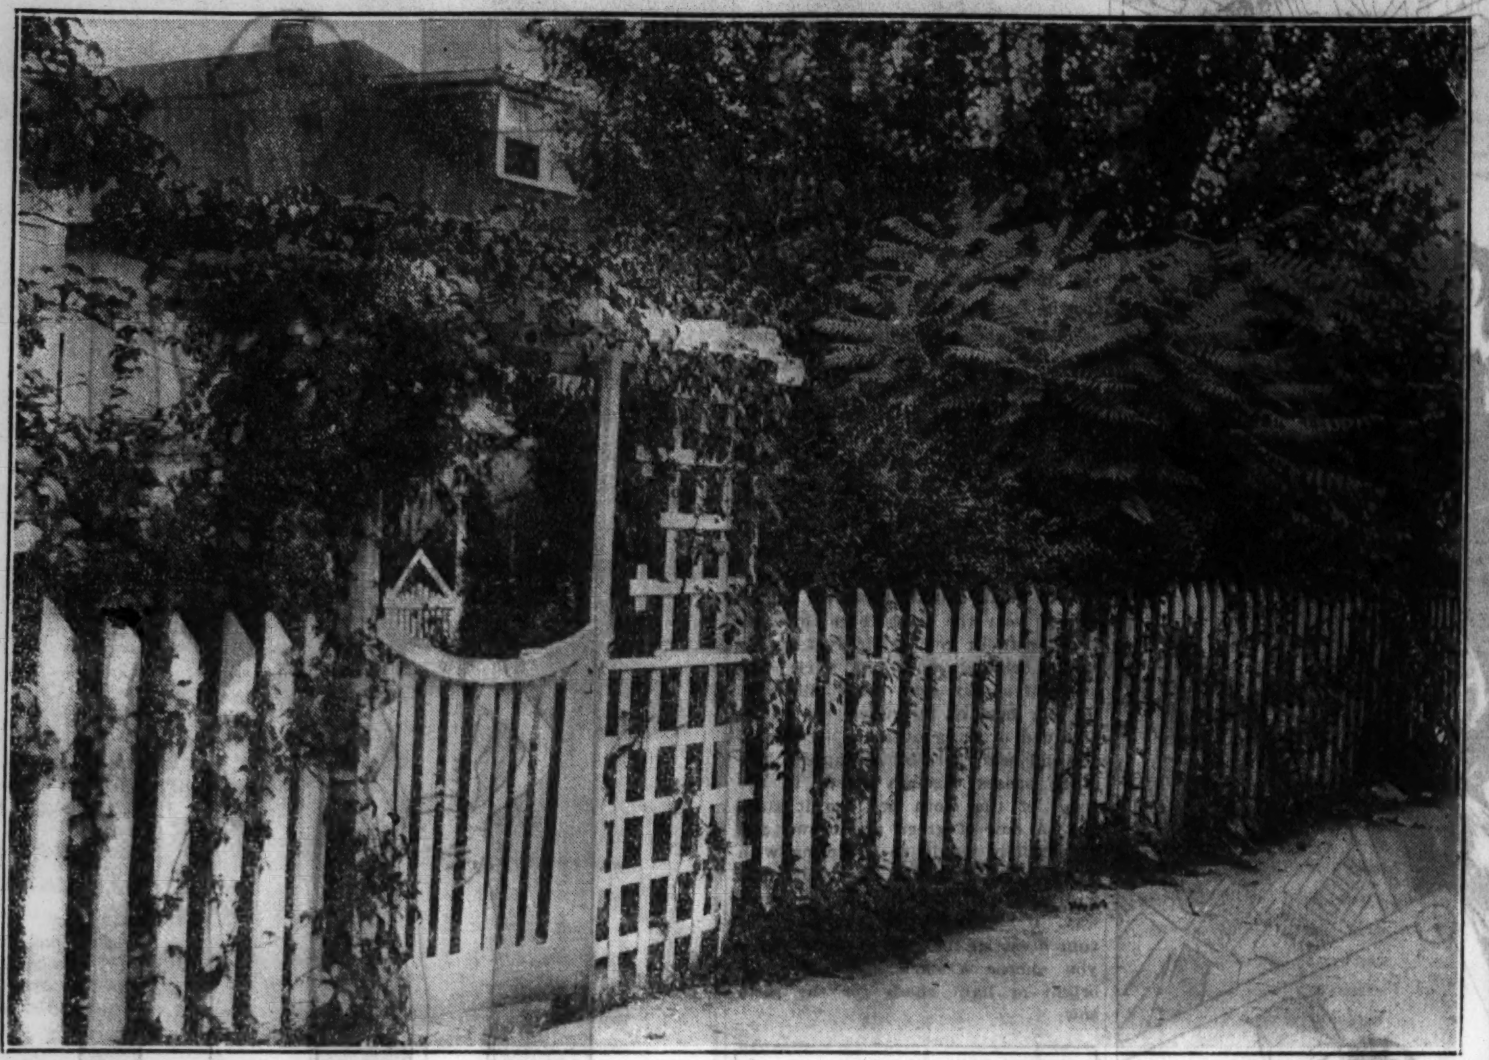
Backyards Challenge the Clever Gardener to Novel Experiments with Trellis, Fence, and Hedge



The vine covered white fence at the rear of the sightly yard of Mr. and Mrs. John Riva, 4306 Ainslee avenue, presents an attractive sight from the alley. The rear view of this garden is as appealing as the front, a point often overlooked by home owners.

Alleys Always Open to Improvement

By Paul Potter.

AS work about the yard and garden slackens following early frosts many gardeners will be in position to start a "brightening up" of the rear views about the home, adding trellises, fences, hedges, and other embellishments which will beautify the utility areas of the place next season.

Too little attention is given the rear fence, the alleyway and the garage. These can be improved by inexpensive yet strikingly attractive plantings and woodwork. The rear gate can becomes as inviting as the front entrance with a little extra attention from the man about the yard.

Plants for high hedges should be set out when small, buckthorn plants 18 inches apart and hawthorn 20 to 24 inches apart. Lombardy poplars when newly planted may well be supported against heavy winter winds if they exceed six feet in height and until they are thoroughly rooted in the new location.

It is possible, where the rear exposure of the yard is to the north and west, to gain much additional protection from fall and spring winds by enclosing walls, lattices and shrubs. They afford appropriate backgrounds for the garden also, shielding the bare walls of the garage and successfully hiding the incinerator, compost heap or other utility features at the alleyway.

As vines become rooted and cover these taller background effects the garden picture becomes more complete. Some of the small ornamental trees may be planted now, including the flowering dogwoods and flowering cherries. Lilacs and sumac, where not too thickly planted, will fill in corners and bare spots at the rear of the lot.

"Buffet Supper and Dutch Lunches," in Tribune Booklet

BUFFET service is easy on the hostess, kind to the pocketbook, and fun for the guests who enjoy spooning into the food as the spirit directs. No maid to be hired to serve the guests—not so tall a stack of dirty dishes to be washed—service for a large number in the smallest of apartments—all these are points in its favor. Directions for informal, semi-formal, and formal buffet service menus and recipes are given in Mary Meade's new booklet, "Buffet Suppers and Dutch Lunches." The booklet also gives directions for entertaining at Dutch lunches, with many suggestions, menus, and recipes. The price of the booklet is 3 cents at the Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street. To order by mail, send 5 cents, stamps or coin, with your name and address, to Mary Meade, Tribune tower, Chicago.

THIS WEEK IN THE GARDEN

Monday, Oct. 16.

Keep the garden in good trim even at this late date. Have everything ready for any changes that are contemplated. Plan all extensive alterations on paper. Order dependable stock where hardy stock is needed. Do not keep the lawn cut short at this season.

Have plenty of soil at hand for potting house plants. Use clean pots for house plants and given plenty of drainage.

Tuesday, Oct. 17.

There is still time to set out hedges. One of the best materials for a high clipped hedge is glossy buckthorn (Rhamnus frangula). This hardy shrub shears to a fine dense hedge with glossy foliage and can be trained to a height of six or eight feet if desired.

English hawthorn (Cratægus oxyacantha) in several excellent varieties is equally good. Native scarlet thorn (Cratægus coccinea) and the cockspur thorn (Cratægus crusgalli) are excellent.

Wednesday, Oct. 18.

Pot up a few of the best annuals that are now growing in the yard, for they make showy material, temporarily at least. Change containers occasionally to fit special occasions, for they lend variety. A few novelties are very interesting and inexpensive.

Buy a few garden books or consult garden books in the public library.

Thursday, Oct. 19.

Prepare for the planting of a tall hedge by thorough soil preparation. In poor soil a trench three feet wide should be dug to a depth of 18 to 24 inches and this should be filled with good loamy soil. A basketful of well rotted compost in each three feet of trench may well be worked into the soil in which the hedge is to be planted. This will insure the desirable vigorous early growth which is so important in forming a fine hedge.

Friday, Oct. 20.

If the philodendron has grown too long it may be shortened and new plants propagated by the simple method of cutting off the stems and rooting them in soil or water. This is one of the best plants for indoor baskets, window boxes, or for any of the numerous uses to which a viny plant may be put for interior decoration. It requires minimum light and stands adverse conditions with impunity.

Saturday, Oct. 21.

Order shrubs and trees for fall planting. Prepare to give the stock every necessary attention when received. If it cannot be planted immediately remove it from the box or bundle and "heel" it in in the garden until wanted. Water well to insure a good healthy condition.

Remember that thick planting must be revised at some future time, so that it is wise to plant larger stock at permanent distances.

Do not plant magnolia, the tulip tree, and sassafras in the fall. These do better when planted in springtime.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Laundry Presents Difficult Problem for Delicate Mother of Big Family; Other Homes Need Warm Clothes, Furniture

By Sally Joy Brown.

RUBBING on a washboard and bending over an ironing board are not generally considered as two of the joys of this life, although in most homes a medium amount of laundry work can be handled with comparative ease and dispatch. But such is not the case in the K. family.

In small crowded quarters live several children, their father who has been unemployed for some time, a weary mother, and the grandfather badly crippled and confined to his bed. Owing to his advanced age and the nature of his illness, it is necessary that his bedding be changed several times a day. Consequently, laundry is an ever present problem. While a relief agency is making a great effort to assist them in every way within its means, it is unable to provide any method of easing the laundry work.

Mrs. K., according to the case worker who brought the family to my attention, is not strong enough to spend her entire day, every day, rubbing and scrubbing in hot suds. They are trying desperately for cleanliness in the face of rather stiff odds, and if any of our readers has a washing machine to dispose of, their battle will be won.

Another of the relief organizations has appealed to this department for furniture for the A. family. There are seven children ranging in ages from 19 to seven. Their mother is dead and the oldest girl is keeping house for the family. The house is barely furnished, and some of the few pieces they have are broken and not fit for use. The family especially needs beds, mattresses, kitchen chairs, bureaus, and a kitchen table. Their home is on the west side of the city, and a few pieces of discarded furniture will make life more comfortable for these motherless children.

"Dear Miss Brown: Could you please help me secure some clothing for my two year old son? He wears clothing size five and shoes size nine. My husband has been out of work for the last several years, and it's impossible for me to purchase clothing. Mrs. S. C."

Who has some winter clothing for this youngster?

Mrs. J. L. R. tells of her need of a baby buggy:

"Dear Miss Brown: I am the mother of two children, both boys, aged seven years and four months. Although receiving assistance from a charitable organization I am unable to buy a baby carriage, and as we live in one furnished room the baby gets little fresh air or sunshine.

"My husband would be happy to call for a buggy if we are fortunate enough to secure one."

Any mother can realize how much a buggy for the baby will mean to Mrs. R.

We have an urgent appeal for furniture which reads as follows:

"Do you think your readers might have any old furniture which can be given to Mr. and Mrs. X.? They were recently evicted, have lost all their possessions, and for several nights were forced to sleep in an old car parked in an alley. They are now living in a basement furnished only to the extent of an old, broken down bed. Mr. X. worked until last May, when he had to give up his job because he suffered so severely from arthritis."

Have you anything to offer to assist in furnishing this inadequate dwelling?

"Dear Miss Brown: I am a deserted mother with four small children, ten, nine, seven, and five years of age. The boy nine and the girl seven have no winter coats, and unless I am able to secure some outer clothing for them they will be unable to attend school during the cold weather. Mrs. L. R."

Surely some of our mothers have discovered that their young sons and daughters have outgrown last year's winter coats and are willing to pass them on to these two less fortunate youngsters.

"SHE who sews a fine seam" may do so now with the aid of a variety of equipment.

Bright colored wooden Polish dishes have holders for thread, thimbles, needles and pins. Or automatic pin dispensers will push out for use one pin at a time, as needed. For other pin cushions you may take your choice of a bright colored velvet elephant, gay stuffed bunnies made of printed cotton, or a small flowerpot holding felt flowers into which the pins may be inserted.

Silk material all ready corded is manufactured in various colors and may be sewed right on for trimming. Or if your desire is hemstitching or buttonhole stitching trimming, they're available in combinations of two colors of tape in many shades.

Several rows of rickrack already stitched together make striking trimmings on housedresses and pajamas. Frilling which is all ruffled and ready to sew on may be purchased in silk, cotton and daintily printed organdies.

Another time-saver is that of small sized rickrack initials fastened on paper. The piece of paper is to be pinned to your cloth, the initial stitched on, and the paper removed. These come in assorted colors. Also available are snaps, hooks and eyes, and weights fastened securely on tape, ready to be inserted in dresses with but one or two rows of stitching.

And sewing baskets are coming camouflaged. Their favorite disguise is that of small footstools, and they'll hold all the equipment the average dressmaker uses. A small leather purse also reveals complete equipment . . . colored thread, needles, pins and thimbles. The smallest of sewing kits for a purse is about one and one-half inches long and is shaped like a tiny cocktail shaker. In it are needles and ten colors of thread.

DIFFICULTIES OF BABYHOOD—is the title of one chapter in "Building the Baby," a new, modern handbook on the care of infants. Other chapter headings are: "Birth Registration"; "Additional Foods That Babies Need"; "The Baby in the World of Grown-Ups." The book is written in plain English—and is a real help to the young mother. Send for your copy. Price, 50 cents; by mail, 65 cents. Bright Colors Splatter Every Paris Fashion Women at Last O. K. the Vivid Rembrandt Shades of the French Designers.

By Bettina Bedwell.

(Pictures in rotogravure section.)

PARIS.—[Special.]—It may be a truism to psychologists that color is the most important single factor in personal decoration, but women have been acting as if this was merely a dubious, unproved statement. It is only in the last several years that women who follow styles in the modern way have shown any appreciation of color in clothes. I don't mean the dull neutral shades, but color of the strong and even crude kind nature loves. Lately we have come out of our beiges, dull browns, and neutral grays and blacks and have reveled in strong and brilliant colors, wearing them for whole frocks, where a few years ago nobody would have dared.

This season women, choosing their clothes, show a more profound awakening to color. They have grown beyond the lusty, crude reds and greens, and blues that delighted them so short a while ago, and the colors that are getting their O. K. today are shades that a Rembrandt or a Tintoretto might have loved. We've become discriminating in our feeling for color—one might say artistic—as distinct from arty.

Practicality No Longer Demands Somber Black, Browns.

Time after time in past seasons the great colorists of the Paris coutoure, Jean Patou, Vionnet, Molyneux, and others have tried to launch Rembrandt and other master colors, but, except with a few women, these colors were never successful. The masses kept on wearing the sober, rather dull, shades mostly, with occasional orgies of billiard green or flame red.

Autumn 1933 shows a big change in the woman's choice of shades that she will wear. When she wants to be practical she doesn't feel obliged to go around in funereal black or darkest brown. She will wear Patou's wild blackberry or Schiaparelli's dark red, Augustabernard's green, or Vionnet's lovely tawny brown. She satisfies her instinctive hunger for beauty and doesn't outrage her practical sense any more than with black, because these colors are quite as practical and not as tiresome in the long run.

When she wears some neutral shade like the fashionable smoky gray of the autumn style chart she wears a scarf of splendid golden yellow, or some other rich color, and thus gets entirely away from the drab uniformity of past years.

Evening Gowns Are in the Vivid Mode.

Women are so delighted with the new colors they have almost entirely abandoned the twin color monopolies of evening—black and white. Evening colors are similar to those worn for the daytime. Never have there been so many dark evening dresses seen, but all are in rich and luscious tones, dyed into rich and luscious materials that do them justice. Orange, tawny red, brilliant chartreuse green, old gold, pink, Chinese blue, and petunia are some of the livelier shades of the night.

The gowns look much handsomer in the new gorgeous materials of evening fashions, like the panne velvets and rich brocades, materials that show the color at its best and most masterly.

The evening silhouette is long, slender, and the skirt, for formal wear, usually has a train. Evening wraps tend to splendor, and the finest furs, like sable and ermine, make some of the best capes and coats. Silver fox capes are much worn, and velvet cloaks or capes trimmed with these furs come in the same rich colors that are popular for evening dresses.

Jewels Are Massive and Have an Oriental Air.

The Paris models in the color photographs demonstrate the awakened feeling of Paris for color, in its more rich and subtle phases. Patou's ensembles of green panne velvet are beloved of the elegantè and worn for grand soirées. They are enhanced by sable. Women who don the tawny red that is so fashionable for both day and evening wear it with sable, too. The Patou frock that is photographed is worn with his exquisite sable cape for a wrap.

Indoor jackets made of rich brocades are fashionable, and women wear them throughout the evening. One of Maggy Rouff's, which is photographed, resembles faintly its grandmother, the basque.

Jewels worn with evening dresses this winter are massive and usually made of gold or platinum set with precious stones. Bracelets and necklaces and earrings of this kind look like the jewels of an oriental princess and help along the splendor of the color scheme that is the real heart of Paris styles.

EFFICIENT INSULATION

Even if one lives in a rented house a fleecy, blanket type of insulation, water-proof and fire resistant, can be tucked into every nook and corner of an unfinished attic, and then taken away when one moves, like any other household accessory.

Here a fine spun insulation made from rock and other minerals is being blown tightly into the side walls of a frame house.

Clara, Lu 'n' Em Enliven Lonely Hours of "Forgotten Women"

Believe Really Needy Ones Are Not the Sick, but Their Tied Attendants.

By Doris Blake.

THE real "forgotten woman" is not the invalid, or the so-called shut-in, but the one who must attend the sick and crippled. She is the one who needs the cheering, needs contact with what's going on in the world, needs amusement.

At least, she is the one who earns the sympathy of those famous radio chatterers, Clara, Lu 'n' Em. She is the one they like to feel they're helping through a long, tireless, and frequently thankless devotion to a sick member of the family, an elderly dependent or a cripple. Not that they are without sympathy for the afflicted one, but it is the often forgotten but faithful "nurse" who stirs them most. The invalid has her constant attendant. Her wants are tended lovingly. Everything possible is being done for her, but this other one, housed day after day, performing her sacrifice out of love or duty, or both, is often forgotten in the presence of the sick one.

Invalids Pour Out Loneliness of Lives.

We liked that expression of feeling toward women whose sacrifice so often goes unrecognized. We have seen and known daughters giving over their entire lives to care of an invalid parent, frequently earning little of the gratitude due them. We offer this feature of a recent conversation with the popular radio trio that you and you and you, who must know one of these forgotten women, may remember her once in a while with a cheering word.

So many letters of gratitude come to Clara, Lu, 'n' Em from such women, active, eager, healthy, but housebound women chained temporarily to an invalid's side.

And many letters, of course, come from the invalids, grateful for the cheer these three human, humorous and clever gossipers of the air bring them. Life histories are poured out, domestic tragedies, revealed. Tender domestic situations, too. Loneliness, that universal curse on humanity, is presented in countless phases.

What are they like, these three young women, who make their listening world forget troubles while they listen?

What They're Like in Real Life.

We breakfasted with them one morning recently after their broadcast. They're three grand girls. Fun, human, simple as your house frock, with a gift, akin to genius, for ferreting out human foibles and making us laugh and like it while they reap a handsome box office reward. We suspect the box office draw is not half so important to the trio as the fun they get doing their work. Certainly they are not aiming to cut a wide social swath, nor apparently are they committing any of the money follies common to a highly paid entertainment team. They dress with simplicity. They live unostentatiously. Their car, in which we rode chauffeured by 'Em, might be that of you and I are planning to turn in for a new model.

All three are married. Clara [Louise Starkey] married a childhood sweetheart. Lu [Isobel Carothers] is married to a professor in the English department at Northwestern university. His name is Howard Berolzheimer. Helen King ['Em] was a pianist and organist before the success of the radio skit.

A Rainbow Garden of Giant Tulips $2

New Portable Insulation Is Boon to Renters

Nonconductors, Like Furniture, May Be Moved from House to House.

By Louise Bargelt.

NOTHING in life ought to depress us very much as long as there is something we can really do about it.

A letter came into this department a short while ago:

"We have rented a house and we want to insulate the attic. It is unfinished and we would like to know if there is any insulation we can install—and take away with us when we move. There are a lot of folks renting these days who would like to make their houses a little warmer, but they don't like the idea of installing something permanent which they have no chance of removing in a year or two."

There is a well known blanket type of insulation which can be placed between the attic floor joists and rafters for winter fuel saving and summer coolness. "Renters," moreover, can take this type of insulation away with them when they leave, the same as any other household accessory.

Mineral Non-Conductor Is Blown Into Place.

For already built houses, whether they are ten years old or forty years old or even older, there are outstanding methods of modern insulation by which fireproof lightweight mineral substances are literally blown into the hollow space of the side walls of a house as well as into its attic floor and roof. Once these spaces are packed tight and full they offer no opportunity for the lively circulation of gusty, chilling air currents.

Here some one may say: "But there is insulation in dead air spaces."

In dead air spaces—yes. Minute, confined air spaces make splendid insulation. But the hollow areas within walls and roofs are not confined dead air spaces; the air in them is very much alive, constantly changing and continuously circulating, around roof rafters and attic floor beams and the large areas of the home's side walls.

One type of this "fill" insulation which can be blown into a home's inner parts is made from rock. Limestone, blended with other materials, is melted under terrific heat, blown by steam into tiny, shredlike particles, and emerges finally, light and fluffy and as fireproof as it is rotproof and vermin-proof.

Brick Houses Can Also Be Made Draft-Proof.

Where an attic is open, without flooring, the material is packed between the joists on the top floor ceiling. With an open attic it is blown into the attic slopes. Where one has finished rooms overhead, the same insulation process is applied to ceiling and walls.

If one does not wish the entire house insulated one can have only his attic made weather tight by this process.

Heat losses in a house are greatest through the walls and roofs.

Clocks Mark the Rise of Western Civilization

Timepieces We Take for Granted Would Make a Doughty Roman Gape.

"What's Wrong with Your Rooms?" a booklet by Edith Weigle, giving simple solutions to complicated problems of furniture arrangement, is now on sale at The Tribune Public Service office, One South Dearborn, for three cents. Five cents by mail.

By Edith Weigle.

HOW many times a day we glance at the clock, our minds on something else—the next appointment, catching a train, that luncheon engagement, time to prepare the baby's formula. We take the clock as much for granted as we do the wall it hangs on.

Yet, if the ancient Romans had seen our modern clock I venture to say the sight would have been startling enough to stop a gladiatorial combat. Not that Greece, Rome, and Egypt had no way of telling time; they had the sun dial. But on a rainy day it was about as useful as a wagon without wheels. Also, it had its own little code and refused to work after the sun went down.

Water Clock Used by the Ancients.

Another handsome contraption for marking the flight of time, used in the days of the Chaldeans, Egyptians, Phoenicians, Greeks, and Romans, was the clepsydra, or water clock. "Reduced to its simplest terms," says one authority, "this was a bucket with a hole in the bottom, through which water leaked at a more or less regular rate of speed. If you filled the bucket at 6 a. m. you would know that it was somewhere near supper time when the last drop fell." The clepsydra, however, would freeze in cold weather, and it was inaccurate at best.

Caesar is said to have measured the summer nights in Britain by such a clock, and Pompey limited the eloquence of the Roman senators by one.

The Chinese used a smoldering rope, knotted at regular intervals, to tell time. King Alfred of England had special candles made that would burn exactly 12 hours. The sand or hour glass, however, was the only clock of the common people.

Not until the 17th century was there such a thing as an accurate timepiece. Utilizing the principle of the pendulum, discovered by Galileo some 75 years before, Christian Huygens, a noted Dutch mathematician, made or had made a clock of his own designing in the year 1657, and presented it to the States General of Holland. About five years later another Dutchman introduced the pendulum clock to England, where the work of several learned scientists greatly improved upon it, adding the cylinder escapement and the rack strike.

In this country clock making began years before the revolution. American craftsmen did not add new gadgets to the English clock, but they did make one valuable contribution. They reduced the cost; they brought the clock out of the rich man's manor and put it into the house of the person of average means. Before this a clock had been considered as valuable a possession as a rare musical instrument.

Many Changes with Passage of Time.

Eli Terry is called "the father of American clock making" because he was the first to go into the business on a fairly large scale. He made thousands of clocks during his lifetime. Others quickly followed his lead, among them the famous Seth Thomas, whose name continued for four generations in this work, a remarkable thing in any industry. Connecticut, then as now, was the center of the clock manufacturing business.

With the passage of time many changes have been brought about. Wooden works were discontinued by 1837, brass ones taking their place. At first only grandfather clocks were made. Then shelf timepieces appeared, having large, bulky cases, corresponding to the enormous rooms then found in most houses. Today small city apartments have no room for a grandfather clock. Even shelf clocks must be small, and their cases must follow the fashion in furniture. Thus, we have the modern clock for a room of modern decor; the colonial reproduction, following models of the famous Terry and Seth Thomas clocks, for the home furnished in colonial style, etc.

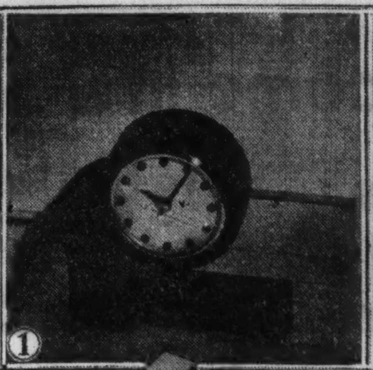
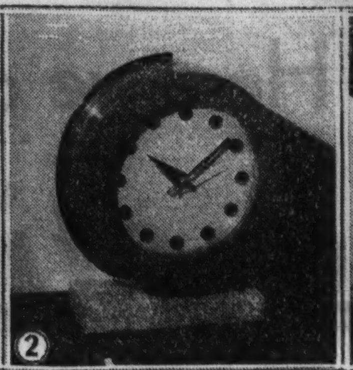
Pictures Show Old and Modern Clocks.

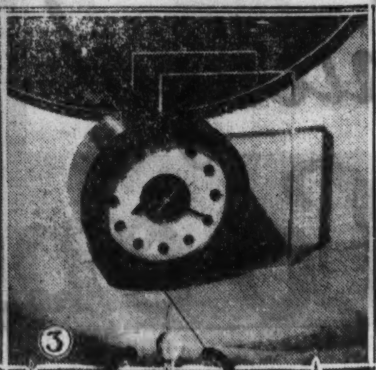
Picture No. 1 shows a timepiece of hardwood with an assymetrical bar on one side of chromium. Dots supplant the Roman numerals we now all know by heart. No. 2 is made of rare wood burls combined with harewood and has a half-circle ornament of polished chromium. As in No. 1 and No. 3, the ordinary figures are done away with, dots taking their place. Black maple with a glass square on the right side dramatize clock No. 3. It is 8½ inches in height and 9¼ in width.

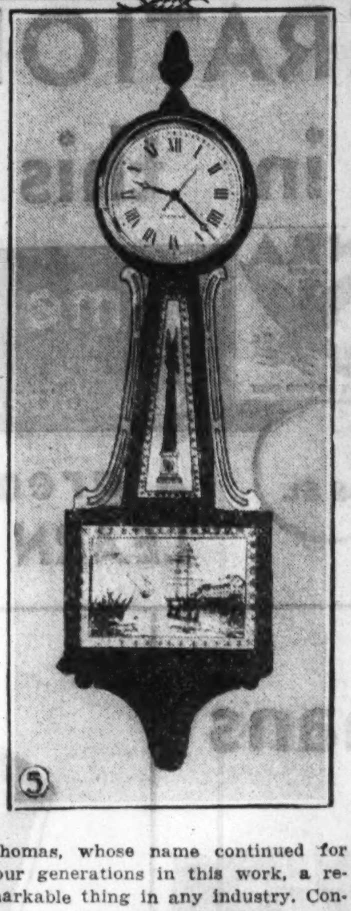
No. 4 is a simple model, familiar to thousands of people the country over. It is a copy of an antique Seth Thomas, as are Nos. 5 and 6. The ever popular banjo clock is shown next. It is an excellent time keeper. And last, a handsome reproduction of an old Seth Thomas shelf clock, with a colored panel picture of Mount Vernon as decoration. All the clocks shown are for sale in Chicago stores and elsewhere throughout the country.

A CENTURY OF AMERICAN CLOCKS









Pictures Nos. 1, 2 and 3 show modern clocks designed by Gilbert Rohde. They are planned for the contemporary interior, No. 1, being of black dyed maple, and having an aluminum dial and an alarm movement. No. 2 is a combination of wood and metal, black dots marking the hours, and No. 3 unites wood with plain glass in an assymetrical design.

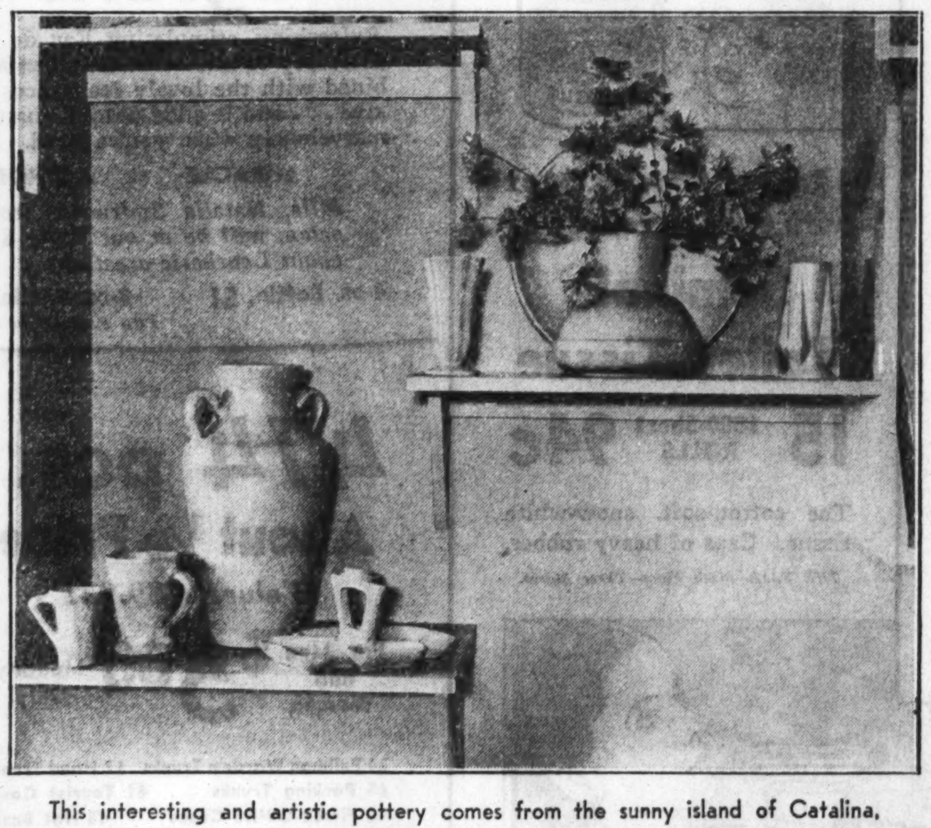
Nos. 4, 5 and 6 are modern copies of fine old Seth Thomas clocks, the central one being the ever-popular banjo type, and No. 6 following the lines of an exceptionally beautiful 18th century shelf clock of rich mahogany.

Blithe Pottery from Distant Catalina or Nearby Dundee Is a Gracious Accessory in Any Home

Mrs. Roosevelt Has a Red Set

Miss Winslow will be glad to answer problems of interior decoration. If a personal reply is desired, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

By Claire Winslow.



This interesting and artistic pottery comes from the sunny island of Catalina, Cal., bringing its sky blues, golden yellows and pure whites with it. Simple and lovely, it may be used with fine effect in almost any decorative scheme.

THERE'S nothing like a bit of color, or glossy black or gleaming white, for that matter, to put a sparkle of life in a dull room. Ever try it? It's surprising to see how much it can do for your decorative scheme. Especially if the color is gained by means of a charming piece of pottery.

There are several types of this artistic ware in the shops now, and they are as easy on the pocketbook as they are on the eye. Look, for instance, at the perfectly delectable pieces of pottery that are made on the sunny island of Catalina, Cal. In soft shades of green, daffodil yellow and blue, and in brighter tones of red and henna they are delightful additions to almost any interior. Because of their simplicity of line and beauty of workmanship they may be used with a great variety of funiture styles

A tea set of stunning henna-red is doubly artistic when seen on a long, narrow refectory table of oak or walnut. The squatty little creamer and sugar, the shallow, absolutely unadorned plates, the nicely shaped cups and saucers are ideal for the informal meal and, what's more, they are that something new so many women crave.

Tile Top Bridge Table Is of Catalina Ware.

Mrs. Roosevelt was so charmed with the red pottery that she ordered the company's complete line in that color for the White House. The exquisite powder blue shade appealed to us because of its rarity. One seldom finds this tone in pottery, for it is subtle and hard to achieve. Of course, the pure white pieces are popular. That goes without saying.

We saw a most attractive tile top bridge table, the tiles being of this same ware. In a checkerboard design the colors were the unusual red already mentioned and obsidian black with a high glaze.

Mineral oxides, native to Catalina, red and yellow ochres, make possible the rich colors and metallic luster of this ware. We are told that the prehistoric tribe of "white Indians" who inhabited the island long before the coming of the Spaniards used these same oxides for war paint and to adorn the wooden anatomy of their gods.

Dundee Manufacturers Emphasize White Pieces.

It remained for the white man, however, to discover the clays which had lain for centuries on Catalina, and to utilize them in the making of colorful pottery. The silicas and aluminas are used in the preparation of the clay mixtures and are worked up into bisque and then hand kneaded and hand molded. The exceptionally high fusing point of the clays produces a pottery of unusual hardness. Indeed, if a piece is tapped it will ring as clear as a bell, a test usually given only to glass.

This interesting line includes vases, tall and short, slender and rotund; nut and candy compartment dishes; ash trays [some in the form of little sombreros]; lamps; ornamental, hand decorated plates and trays; cake dishes; cups and mugs; a complete tea service, etc.

Another beautiful variety of pottery is made in Dundee, Ill., and emphasizes white, which it has achieved to perfection. Italian heads, in the Renaissance manner, in pure white on teakwood bases are exceptionally lovely, as are the flower pots and vases in pale pink with a bit of blue running into the color for contrast. The yellow in this ware is also very good.

Dull, Neat Finish Makes Handsome Lamp Bases.

Then we always have with us that other expensive but rarely beautiful pottery known for its dull mat finish and its wide variety of colors. The vases make handsome lamp bases, and the set of flower bowl and candlesticks a stunning centerpiece for a luncheon or library table. Intriguing little animals, all in lustrous white, may now be had in this pottery, as well as the Italian heads similar to the ones found in the Illinois ware. Bowls lined in contrasting shades—pure white with turquoise blue, for example—are also luscious bits of color.

The pictures today show articles in the ware from Catalina. The larger illustration shows a group of various pieces: vases, mugs, a jar, and an ornamental plate. The other view shows a large vase in the stunning, glossy, henna-red on a tile-top card table.

A large pottery jar is in gleaming henna-red, the tile top table being in the same ware.

Fall Gloves, Footwear Fashioned of Satin

THE deluge of satin has brought out some successful satin gloves and revived the interest in sleek, slender satin footwear. Stunning street oxfords of dull satin are tremendously smart and flattering to any foot, and the opera pumps of satin are perfect for any occasion. Lovely filmy stockings of an off black shade are particularly stressed for black satin costumes.

Kitchen Front Utilizes Waste Space Under Sink

Number of Marriages in U. S. Lowest in 21 Years

For the first time in 21 years the number of marriages in the United States fell below the 1,000,000 mark. There were only 981,759 in 1932, a 7.5 per cent decrease from the year before. There were 160,329 divorces granted last year, as compared with 183,664 in 1931.

Chromium Holders Beautify Highball Glasses

LOW priced and quite attractive is the chromium plated combination ash tray and cigaret box. The ash tray is large and deep enough so ashes aren't forever spilling on the table. In the center of the tray is the cigaret box, with a capacity of about fifty cigarets. The edges of the tray and box are trimmed in either white or black enamel.

Eugene O'Neill Startles Critics with Naive Comedy

In "Ah, Wilderness!" He Forsakes the Tragic Muse and Trots Out a Virtuous, Time-Worn Drama of an Average Family in a Typical Town.

By BURNS MANTLE.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—This Broadway of ours, which is quite as naïvely human as any of the lesser Main streets, has suddenly discovered that it has a new Eugene O'Neill in its midst and is measurably excited.

It was, until the production of "Ah, Wilderness!" at the Guild theater last week, fairly inconceivable that the author of "Mourning Becomes Electra" and "Strange Interlude," not to mention "The Great God Brown" and "The Hairy Ape," could possibly write a simple American family comedy having to do with paternal confusion and rebellious adolescence. O'Neill, they reasoned, might go native in any country, but he could never go naïve on Broadway.

Characters Are Stenciled.

But here it is. Not only a simple family comedy, but one making frank use of most of the familiar character stencils of such a comedy—the simple and loyal parents, the acidulous aunt, the bibulous brother-in-law, the unhappy adolescent suffering through his first attack of puppy love, the village flint heart, and so on. And the sophisticates love it, or pretend to.

The changeable, human O'Neill has therefore been the popular discussion of the week. It is not a new rôle for the playwright. As a prelude to the O'Neill chapter in a book called "American Playwrights of Today" [Dodd-Mead Co.], composed in 1929, your correspondent wrote:

"There are literally dozens of Eugene O'Neills sprung from the life of this leader of American dramatists. I find myself, in reducing them to such a number as may be most satisfactorily included in this brief biography, particularly interested in two of them.

O'Neill Early Had Dual Personality.

"The son born to Ellen Quinlan O'Neill and James O'Neill, actor, Oct. 16, 1888, at the Barrett house, New York, who was duly christened Eugene Gladstone O'Neill, and who lived twenty-seven tempestuous years before they told him his lungs were touched and he would have to go into a sanitarium.

"And the Eugene O'Neill who a year later came out of that

Showboat Dixiana Comes to Rescue of Drama—Maybe

By CHARLES COLLINS.

ON July 19, 1931, which was a dull Sunday in a duller summer, the dramatic editor of The Tribune broke loose with an article bearing the caption, "Ol' Man Drama in Dire Need of Showboats." After commenting upon the fact that the Chicago stage was almost vacant of entertainment, he expressed a yearning to see a theatrical barge moored to the river bank, close to the Rialto, where hoary melodramas would be revived in the gold old Mississippi valley style. He intimated that even "The Royal Nonesuch," as described in the famous memoirs of Huckleberry Finn, would be welcome.

Inspired by this suggestion, many good men and true got busy in endeavors to make the dream come true. The welkin began to ring with talk about showboats for Chicago. Captains of hulks that have been carrying mummers up and down the Ohio and Mississippi for decades began to study the inland water routes to see if there wasn't a way to work their arks into this port.

Remember Billy Bryant?

Billy Bryant, smart young scion of a family that has kept the mudbank drama alive for three generations, was undaunted by his failure to find navigable water from Cairo, Ill., into Chicago. So he put his troupe of amphibian actors on a train and came here to give "Ten Nights in a Barroom" in showboat style. He had some luck, so he returned the next fall with a burlesque of "Hamlet" to find that he had worn out his welcome.

The Bryant adventure was a decidedly synthetic affair, and a group of Chicagoans with some money to spare decided to give Chicago a showboat worthy of the name. They found a lake barge 200 feet long for sale on the coast of the Green Bay peninsula. They bought it, assembled a fancy collection of architects' drawings for the superstructure, and called it the Dixiana.

The Dixiana was due here a full year ago, but she failed to arrive. Mayor Cermak, thinking that he was doing the theater owners of the city a favor, issued an embargo against the craft. A large section of the population arose in indignation to announce that they had been pining for showboats all their landlocked lives, and to tell the mayor he had spoken out of turn. Whenever he had important municipal duties to perform some dauntless lover of the drama would pluck him by the sleeve to say, "Now, Mr. Mayor, about that showboat——." He finally changed his mind and rescinded the order.

A Mystery Ship.

But the Dixiana did not respond to the opportunity. She was frozen into the ice at Sturgeon bay. There was also some talk about frozen assets among its owners. The craft becomes a myth, a legend, a folk-tale like that of the Flying Dutchman. She was a mystery ship of the inland seas. Some skeptics maintained that she was a pure fantasy, comparable to Poe's balloon hoax.

The fantasy finally turned into fact and the Dixiana has become visible to the naked eye at her moorings by the Navy pier. She reached port last Monday night, ready to move to a berth on the river bank between Dearborn and Clark and begin performances whenever the city authorities grant permission.

But the course of showboats never does run smooth, especially when they seek to enter big towns. They then become afflicted with a political ailment that might be called "ye olde showboat trouble." The Dixiana ran into a case of this woe as soon as she got her nose inside the harbor, and as I write these lines all is confusion. To say when the performances will begin would be like predicting the score of a football game.

More than two years ago I wished for a showboat. The Dixiana is trying to become my long delayed answer.

Japanese both on the stage and off

A native Japanese and an accomplished singer, Hizi Koyke is best known in this country for her performance of two Japanese characters conceived by occidentals. One of them is comic; the other is tragic. The first is Yum-Yum in "The Mikado"; the second is Cho-Cho-San in "Mme. Butterfly," which she is singing with the San Carlo company in its engagement at the Auditorium.

'My Woman': Add Husbands Who Do Their Wives Wrong

Helen Twelvetrees Offers Yet One More Picture of Girl Carving Out Career for Her Man, and the Film Summed Up Is Essentially Mediocre.

"MY WOMAN."

Produced by Columbia.
Directed by Victor Schertzinger.
Presented at the Palace theater.

THE CAST.

By MAE TINEE.

GOOD MORNING!

"My Woman" has the "My Man" motif.

It's all about a sweet, self-sacrificing and SMART blonde whose blockhead vaudevillian husband does her wrong.

The film opens in Panama, where Connie Riley's father keeps a dance hall. Here Connie sings and dances, just to "fill in." Also entertaining is Chick Rollins, her husband, whom she loves—my, my, whom she LOVES . . . !

The head of a famous radio station in the United States, accompanied by his secretary, a dry and wary soul, stops in one evening, en route to some place or other.

Fame Is Too Much for Chick.

With an eye to her husband's future Connie demands that she be introduced as Miss Riley. . . .

"Come up and see me some time," says Bradley, and goes on his way.

Our heroine takes the careless invitation literally and lugs hubby off to the States—luring him away from the Panama-ic case he hates to quit by telling him his skit had bowled over the great radio man.

To make a long story short—Chick wins fame through his wife's delicate machinations. His constitutional Big Head swells and swells. He drinks and allows a smirking society bud to make a compleat ass of him. Not that he had far to go.

Finale is back in Panama. . . .

Radio Magnate Too Self-Sacrificing?

Wallace Ford does a clever job as Rollins. Miss Twelvetrees shows life at intervals and, upon occasion, is picturesque. Victor Jory is nice as the noble radio man who gives all and asks nothing—only, is there such an animal? Hobart Cavanaugh qualifies as the secretary. Claire Dodd as the society dame is an unlovable cat.

The picture has several amusing situations and one fair tune.

There's no chance that you'll go gaga over "My Woman," but neither will you strenuously object to it.

See you tomorrow.

Mae West Declares Love Affairs Are Waste of Time

BY ROSALIND SHAFFER.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—(Special.)—Mae West, now that her last picture, "I'm No Angel," is completed, is her own snappy self again, talking to interviewers and expanding herself in wisecracks and her shoulders in a beautiful sable scarf.

She talked about love and how easy it was for a woman in Hollywood to waste a lot of time having affairs of the heart. "Why, I could be having love affairs all the time—there's lots of good looking young fellahs around. But what would it get me? I wouldn't get the story written for my next picture and the young fellah wouldn't feel like working, either."

At this point Georgie Raft, immaculate in white serge suit, white serge cap, and vivid blue shirt, leaned in the office window and said: "I bet he wouldn't feel like working." And Mae cracked: "I'll positively guarantee he wouldn't feel like working." George had a few remarks of his own to make. He said to the interviewer (which is me): "You know Miss West lives in the same apartment building I do. She says: 'Come up some time.' Well, I been up three times and nobody never was home." Which should prove something about Mae's contention that she argues herself out of love affairs before they ever get under way.

- Marlene Dietrich may have gone feminine in Europe and on her trip home, but now she's in Hollywood and at the studio again she's back in trousers. She was lunching with Josef von Sternberg at the Paramount commissary this week, demurely clad in a French blue wool suit of trousers with a pea jacket to match, and a small visored cap with a tiny string bow of yellow ribbon on the visor.

Von Sternberg is a pretty good parlor athlete himself these days. He can do all the steps danced by the three little pigs in the cartoon comedy and sing the song "Who's Afraid of the Big Bad Wolf?" much to the admiration and despair of other Hollywood blades less agile and less tuneful.

- Dorothea Wieck, German picture star, has gone away on a short vacation following completion of "Cradle Song." The last couple of days she worked she was getting a bad case of flu, so that the moment she could she dashed away to Del Monte for a rest. She hated to go while the search was still on for the handsome bracelet her husband, Ernst von Der Decken, sent her from Berlin as a first wedding anniversary present.

Of that first year, eight months have been spent in America away from the new husband, who has an editorial post in Berlin which he cannot leave at this time.

Stage Season Booms in New York, London

Second Company of B'way Hit for Chicago; Cast for "Mary of Scotland."

By Charles Collins.

THE sudden revival of the legitimate stage in New York is paralleled by a similar phenomenon in London. Most of the new plays there seem to be hits, all the theaters are occupied, and theatergoing is becoming an epidemic. So say the cable dispatches. . . . Charles Laughton, returned from American triumphs on the stage and in the films, figures on the London playbills in the cast of Chekov's "The Cherry Orchard," recently staged at Old Vic.

● The turn of the theatrical tide in New York has brought out one management at least that has ambitions to show its wares in Chicago. A second company of "Sailor, Beware," a jovial and suggestive marine farce, is being projected for a Chicago engagement, probably at the Harris or the Selwyn, fine playhouses that have been much neglected of late. Buster Collier and Mary Brian have been mentioned as likely choices for the leading rôles in this troupe.

● Katharine Cornell, now near the end of her summer in Bavaria, will sail from Bremen on the S. S. Europa Oct. 21.

● The Theater Guild is rehearsing an impressive cast for "Mary of Scotland," Maxwell Anderson's new historical drama. Helen Hayes of the stage and films will be Mary; Philip Merivale, ditto, will be Bothwell, and among others are Fritz Leiber, former leader of the Chicago Civic Shakespeare company, in the rôle of John Knox; Ernest Cossart, Philip Leigh, Stanley Ridges, Charles Dalton [last seen here with Ethel Barrymore in the vaudeville revival of "The Ten Pound Look"], Anthony Kemble Cooper, and Cynthia Rogers. The New York première is set for Nov. 13.

● "Die Fledermaus," lovely Viennese operetta by Johann Strauss, has borne many other titles during its long career. The latest is "Champagne Sec." Dwight Deere Wiman gave it this name shortly before the New York première of his modernized revival, which happened last night. The last time "Fledermaus" was seen in Chicago, some two years ago, it was called "One Wonderful Night."

● Sigmund Romberg is ready to contribute a new operetta to the theatrical season. "The Lavender Lady" is its title and the score, as well as Otto Harbach's libretto, is completed. The composer returned recently from Paris, where one of his operettas called "Rose of France" will be staged this week.

● Comings and goings: Fred Astaire has gone to London to appear in the English production of "Gay Divorce." . . . E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe, veteran Shakespearean stars now in retirement, have arrived in New York for a few interviews with their investment counselors.

● Roland Young and Laura Hope Crews, who have been coaxed away from Hollywood to act in Clare Kummer's latest play, are now appearing in Philadelphia. The title of the comedy is "Her Master's Voice." It is on the Broadway schedule for a première Oct. 23.

● Members of the "Dinner at Eight" and "Her Majesty the Widow" companies are having a fling before the movie camera at the World's Fair. They are working in a scenario written by Winifred Lenihan, ex-Theater Guild actress who has been the stage director at the A. & P. carnival during the summer. The film will tell a World's Fair story and the crowd scenes will be the real stuff. Jane Wyatt of "Dinner at Eight" and Frederick Bell of "Her Majesty the Widow" have the leading rôles.

● E. H. Newman, the travel lecturer, sends word that his next Chicago engagement will take place in the spring of 1934 instead of this autumn. He will appear in Orchestra hall for five weeks, beginning March 28. His titles will be "Rome in Holy Year," "Beautiful Italy," "Paris Day and Night," "The South Seas," and "The Cannibal Islands."

CINEMATIC SMILES

Just three smiling little faces! Hal Wait till you see 'em in "My Woman," at the Palace theater. Before you—Wallace Ford, Helen Twelvetrees, and Victor Jory.

IN "S. O. S. ICEBERG"

Something wild, seeking, forlorn, gallant, about the striding figure of Leni Riefenstahl. She's in "S. O. S. Iceberg," at the World Playhouse.

Richman-Lopez Show at Chez Paree; Cabaret News

THE night club called Chez Paree is finding the last weeks of the World's Fair period a veritable harvest time. Capacity crowds, with overflow, are the rule every night. The answer, of course, is the return of Harry Richman as master of ceremonies and chief entertainer, with Vincent Lopez, suave and popular band leader and fine musician, as his co-star.

Mathea Merryfield, who is featured in the floor show, is the handsomest girl in the night club galaxy at present. She is a tall and graceful graduate of the Albertina Rasch ballets, with burned caramel hair and a lovely face.

The other entertainers are lively little Rosemary Deering, ballet dancer; Ina Ray, jazz dancer; Frances Langford, brunette crooner; and the Aber sisters, who are a pretty team of twins.

● The date of Buddy Rogers' departure from the Casino at the Fair has been fixed for Oct. 28. An elaborate going-away party is being planned for the debonair young bandmaster and his crew. Meanwhile Ted Gilmore has been added to the floor show program as a soloist.

● Harry Sosnik and his orchestra of seventeen musicians appeared at the Edgewater Beach hotel last night to mark the formal opening of the indoor dancing season in the Marine dining room.

● Mildred Harris Chaplin began an engagement in the Club Alabam last night. She is the star of a floor show troupe that gives four performances every night.

● Phil Harris, the new maestro of the College inn's orchestra, comes from Hollywood, but his show has a strong southern tone. The accents of Dixieland are frequently heard around the inn these nights. Leah Ray, 18 year old prima donna, hails from Norfolk, Va., and the ballroom dancers, Harriette Caperton and Vernon Biddle, belong to Richmond families.

● The dance team of Gagnon and Broughton (Irving and Ruth by first names) has returned to the Boulevard room of the Hotel Stevens. Their repertory includes a European tango, a "silver moon" waltz, and a "paso doble"—the Spanish one step.

WINE CUP DANCER

Mathea Merryfield, a new entertainer in the cabaret show at Chez Paree, celebrates the passing of prohibition with a bacchanale in which she flourishes a crimson wine cup.

"ALICE IN WONDERLAND" IN PLAY FORM

"ALICE in Wonderland" will be staged at the Punch and Judy theater tomorrow night for a two weeks' run. This version of Lewis Carroll's classic was made by Alice Gerstenberg and will be presented by the Playwrights' theater with a cast of professionals, little theater players and radio performers. The costumes, settings, properties and posters were designed by Chicago artists.

"Alice in Wonderland" is planned as the first offering in a series of plays. Tony Gilman, a child radio actress, will have the title rôle. Judith Lowry will play the Duchess and Sara Hinde the White Queen.

BALLROOM DANCERS

Charles Baron and Joan Blair are now the featured dancers in the floor show offered by the Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel. They are widely known in the city of Chicago.

A Parable for All Lovers of Symphony Music

Wherein Our Critic Discloses How Stamps Affect Radio Programs.

By Edward Moore.

THIS is a parable concerning the radio. That it happens to be a true story may have something to do with the lesson involved, or it may not. Anyway, the lesson is there.

Once upon a time, not so many years ago, in a large city, not so far from the geographical and financial center of the country, an important commercial firm engaged one of the foremost symphony orchestras of the land to play a series of Sunday afternoon radio concerts under its sponsorship. There is reason to believe that this course was dictated, at least in part, by an altruistic desire to put good music on the air. Naturally there was also a desire to increase the sale of the company's product, but the action showed that there was a little idealism mixed up in it as well.

At First the Series Seemed Exceedingly Popular.

At first all seemed to go well. The concerts were first class, so was the technic of broadcasting. People began to talk about the series. There was at least one story to the effect that a small town several hundred miles from the broadcasting station, being in the possession of a large assembly hall, installed a receiving set therein, and that the hall was filled to capacity every Sunday afternoon by people who had driven in from a radius of fifty miles around.

The series was continued and continued again. Finally, for reasons that have nothing to do with this narrative, the directors determined to try and find out how much they were getting in terms of their product for the cost of the concerts. They, therefore, decreed that blank cards containing spaces for names, addresses, and expressions of opinion should be sent to their group of local dealers, and that patrons should be invited to fill them out and leave them. Observe that all it came to was the time to write a few words, omitting the trouble of putting them into the mail and the cost of postage.

But When Votes Were Counted, King Jazz Won.

Then came the bad news. A great many cards were never filled out at all. Of those that were, at least 90 per cent disapproved the symphony programs. They wanted jazz; they wanted this and that, almost anything so long as it was not symphony. So in the subsequent meeting the directors of the company regretfully decreed that the series should come to an end.

It sounds discouraging, doesn't it? It is, but for a different reason than is apparent on the surface. The point is not that 90 per cent of the public are definitely against symphony music, but that in all probability 90 per cent of those who prefer it will not take the trouble to express their preference. Apparently they save up all their energy for purposes of kicking about the radio programs as at present provided.

Fan Mail Only Guide of Studio Managers, Advertisers.

There can be no argument about it. Almost any radio station will tell you that practically all the fan mail that comes in is on the subject of popular programs. Even some of the directors of the company just mentioned admitted when questioned later that they had never in all their lives written a letter to an advertiser or a radio station about programs.

Of course this leaves the advertisers and studio managers with only a hazy idea of what to do. All the acumen and thought in the world can only result in a guess as to what will please the patrons. A theater can check on its attendance, a newspaper on its circulation, but in radio there is only the switch-off of the set and subsequent silence, except on the side of popular programs. There the patrons are voluble. Nowhere else.

Symphony Enthusiasts Urged to Be Articulate.

The answer is so simple as to be laughable, yet it seems one of the most difficult matters on earth to get started. All that there is to it is the time to dictate a letter and the cost of a postage stamp. There are no persons in all the earth more anxious to please their patrons than advertising managers and studio directors. It is their business to be. All they need is to be shown how to please their patrons. Even a hint is enough to get them started.

There is an ancient apothegm of political science to the effect that nations are governed exactly as well as they deserve to be. One comes to the conclusion that the same thing is true of radio programs.

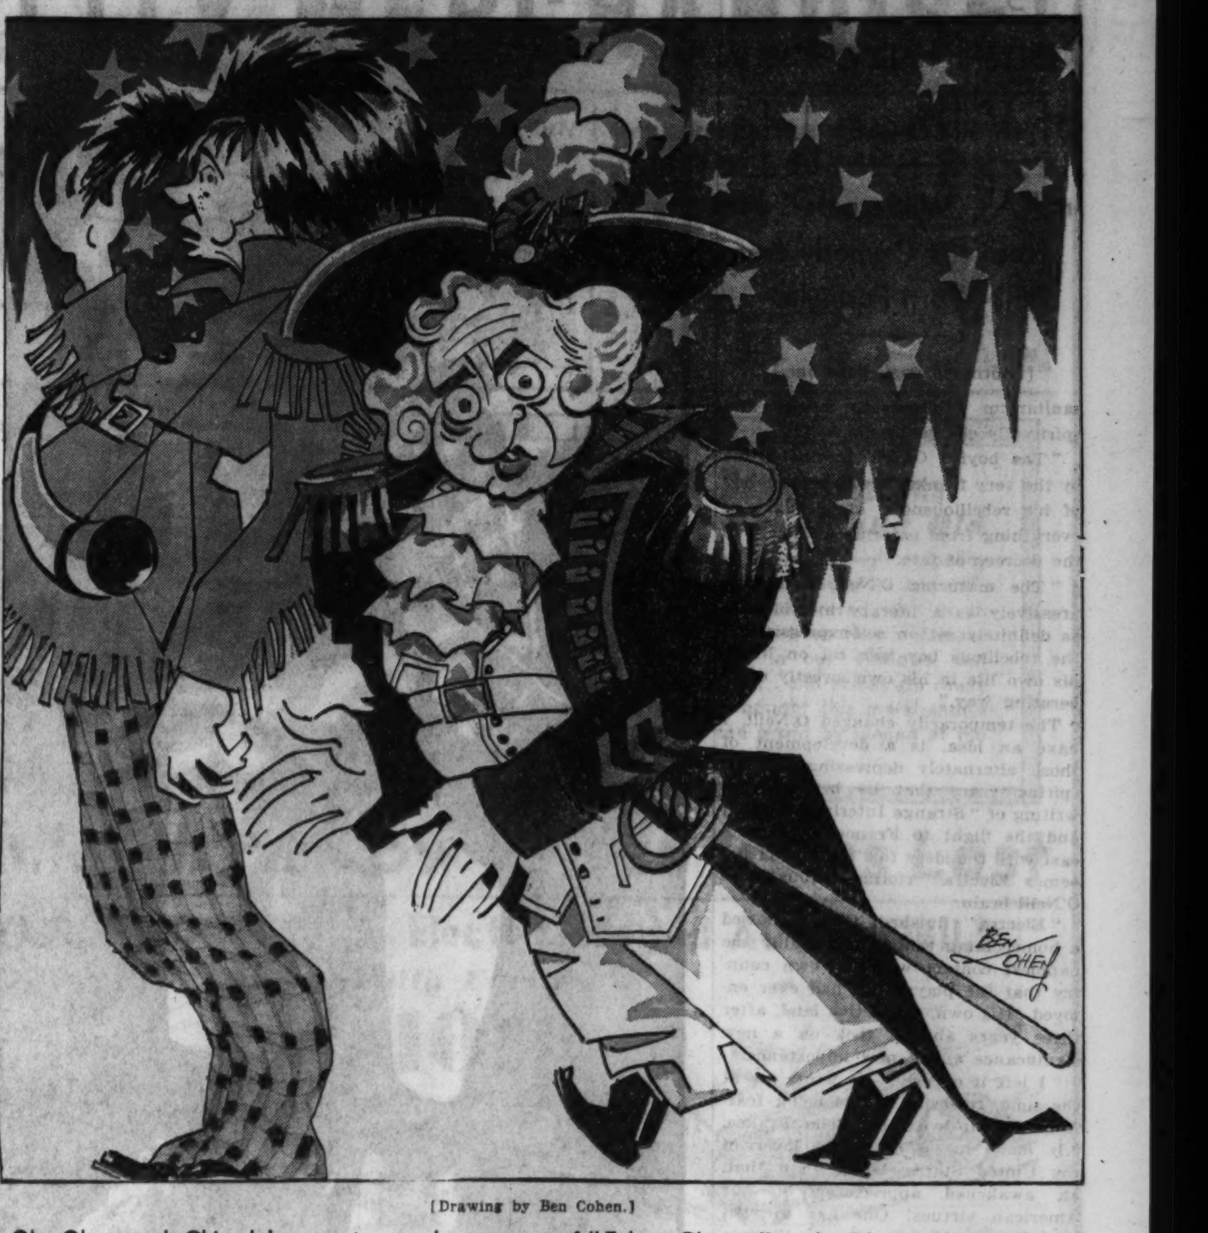
Just eight days more and the San Carlo Grand Opera company will have finished its season at the Auditorium and will be going on its way, in all probability to other scenes of prosperity and interest. Certainly the Chicago engagement has been something in which to take pride. Even now they are talking about the possibility of returning in the spring, not to say the promise of next fall, when the company will move to Chicago and make its permanent headquarters here.

This would seem to have been an engagement of more than local interest. Word from the Auditorium tells that mail orders have show patrons coming from twenty-seven states since the opening on Sept. 18. Furthermore, the patronage through tonight is estimated at something more than 100,000 in number.

Three More Operas to Be Sung.

Fifteen different operas have been presented, and there will be three more during the final week, "Lucia di Lammermoor," "La Forza del Destino," and "Martha." Thirty-three principals have sung, and there will be three more this week, Sidney Rayner, tenor; Lucia Diana, soprano, and Irene Pavloska, mezzo-soprano. Incidentally the company, principals, ballet, chorus, orchestra, technical staff, stage hands, electricians, and house staff numbers 350, all taking employment because Mr. Gallo is able to give opera at dollar prices.

"HERE COMES DANIEL BOONE NOW!"



[Drawing by Ben Cohen.]

Ole Olsen and Chic Johnson, stars and managers of "Take a Chance," at the Erlanger theater, have been the chief laugh-makers of the legitimate stage during the Fair period. This caricature shows them in their Daniel Boone sketch—Olsen as the pioneersman, and Johnson as Gen. Duquesne.

Music Notes

ONE of the important engagements of the season will be the three chamber music concerts by the Pro Arte quartet of Belgium at Orchestra hall on Wednesday and Friday evenings and next Sunday afternoon. They are being brought here through the good offices of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge and will be presented under the auspices of the Chicago Friends of Music.

This quartet is rated as one of the foremost chamber music organizations in the world. It came to this country in 1926 and was presented in the music room of the Library of Congress, Washington, by Mrs. Coolidge after she had previously presented them in the American academy at Rome.

Their programs are interesting and will cover a wide range. On Wednesday they will play quartets by Beethoven in F, George W. Chadwick in G, and Brahms in C minor. On Friday the list will be Franck in D, John Alden Carenter in A minor, and Debussy in G minor. The final concert will be modern, consisting of Schoenberg's second, Ray Harris' second, and Hindemith's third.

WHY HOSPITALS USE A LIQUID LAXATIVE

The dose can be measured to the drop, and the action controlled. Pills and tablets containing drugs of violent action are hard on the bowels, and frequently habit-forming.

Hospitals and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. And the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. Do you know why?

A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to take "a double dose" a day or two later.

The wrong cathartic may keep you constipated as long as you keep on using it.

Can Constipation be Overcome?

"Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say thousands who have followed this sensible medical advice: 1. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Take the dose you find suited to your system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until the bowels are moving regularly without aid.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, used in this way, has the average person's bowels as regular as clockwork in a few weeks' time. Why not try it? Some pill or tablet may be more convenient to carry. But there is no "convenience" in any cathartic taken so frequently that you must carry it wherever you go!

How to Choose a Laxative

In buying any laxative, read the label. If it contains one doubtful drug, don't take it. If you don't know anything about a preparation, ask some physician about it. The temporary relief you get from a synthetic, habit-forming cathartic is apt to irritate the kidneys.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescriptional preparation with nothing to conceal. Its ingredients are stated on the label. By using it, you may avoid all danger of bowel strain. You may keep the bowels regular, and comfortable. You may make constipated spells as rare as colds.

How many dimes and quarters are spent on "popular" laxatives! How quickly they count up, as you use more and more of these habit-forming helps! A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin would save you money—and bring you real relief. It's perfectly harmless, perfectly safe.

NRA

A FRANK STATEMENT
by the Makers of
Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

We believe the unwise choice of laxatives is the most common cause of chronic constipation.

We believe the use of crude salts, and powerful drugs in the form of pills or tablets is rapidly giving way to gentle regulation of the bowels with a liquid laxative.

We believe Dr. Caldwell's original prescription of fresh herbs, pure pepsin, and active senna is the ideal family laxative.

And we know it is a safe laxative for children or expectant mothers because it does not cause strain.

Eugene O'Neill Pens Naive Play of Village Life

In "Ah, Wilderness" He Produces Comedy from Time-Worn Formula.

sanitarium a physically healed and spiritually changed man.

"The boyish O'Neill fascinates me by the very frankness and consistency of his rebelliousness, his defiance of everything from paternal authority to the decrees of fate.

"The maturing O'Neill looms impressively as a literary individualist as definitely set on self-expression as the rebellious boy was set on living his own life in his own sweetly exasperating way."

The temporarily changed O'Neill, I have an idea, is a development of those alternately depressing and inspiring years that lie between the writing of "Strange Interlude" [1927] and the flight to France and points east with the ideas for "Mourning Becomes Electra" rioting through the O'Neill brain.

"Electra" finished, there followed a homecoming that was probably the happiest contact with his own country that the playwright had ever enjoyed. His own, his native land, after three years abroad, took on a new significance and a new importance.

"I left it eagerly," he wrote me at the time, referring to his being fearfully fed up with La Belle France. "It made me a confirmed lover of the United States—better than that, an awakened appreciator of our American virtues! One has to visit a lot, I guess, before one can liberate one's home from the blindly taken-for-granted class."

And so, finding what he insists are ideal living conditions down Georgia way, he sat down and wrote this story of a pleasantly virtuous American family. And probably enjoyed a virtuous thrill doing it.

Title Taken from the Rubaiyat.

"Ah, Wilderness!" which, I submit, is the worst play title of the decade, takes its name from the Rubaiat quotation, "A jug of wine, a loaf of bread and thou beside me singing in the wilderness—O, wilderness were paradise enow!"

It is a verse that adolescent Richard Miller likes to misquote to his somewhat startled parents [the line is "Oh, wilderness," not "Ah, wilderness"] the time he has decided the world is all wrong and that until mankind is able to appreciate the intellectual superiorities of such men as Bernard Shaw and Henrik Ibsen and know the subtle beauties of the poetry of Swinburne and Oscar Wilde, and adopt the individualistic freedom of Omar Khayyam it cannot hope to progress.

Muddled Adolescence Is Storm-Center of Play.

An amusing rebel is Richard Miller in his senior high school year and terribly in love with his neighbor, 16 year old Muriel McComber. It is a letter from Muriel telling him that all is over between them [which her father forced her to write when he discovered the sort of poetry Richard was copying and sending to Muriel] that sends Richard on the adventure which is the chief story incident of the play.

Thinking Muriel's letter is self-composed, Richard decides to go out and do terrible things to be even. With the connivance of his brother's chum from Yale he makes a date with a town girl in the backroom of a saloon, drinks beer with her and carries on scandalously until she proposes that they take a room upstairs and stay out the evening. Then Richard is disgusted with everything. He suffers further humiliation when the saloonkeeper tosses him into the street and he arrives home, quite drunk, at the unforgivable late hour of 11.

George Cohan Deftly Interprets the Sensitive Father.

Richard's mother is emotionally upset, as all mothers are on the occasion of the fledgling's first flight. She doesn't know what to do about it and turns helplessly to her husband. He is the father. Let him correct his son. Let him be severe with Richard—but, please, not too severe. After all, Richard is just a boy.

And so it devolves upon gentle Nathaniel Miller, a modern copy of Nathaniel Berry of whom James A. Herne wrote so understandingly in "Shore Acres" and Joshua Whitcomb Denman Thompson knew so well in "The Old Homestead," to take his son aside and tell him the facts of life. . . .

This scene, beautifully, sympathetically, understandingly played by George Cohan, gives "Ah, Wilderness!" its most persuasive scene. Nat, fiddling helplessly, sensitively fearful that Richard's mother is listening in the next room, tries to approach the subject naturally. There are, so Richard knows, women—and w o m e n. There comes a time in a man's life, etc. Finally, as thousands of fathers have done before him, he has to give up. "Oh, heck!" he concludes lamely, "you probably know as much about these things as I do."

Critic Predicts Long, Long Life for "Ah, Wilderness!"

I think it is greatly to the credit of New York's playgoers and the New York critics that they have risen to this fine, simple, American family comedy. I think it is inspiringly to the credit of Eugene O'Neill that he felt the urge to write it, and to the Theater Guild, in spite of its fundamental impulses favoring the modern and the exotic drama, that it had the farsightedness and the courage to produce it. I hope the chance will come, as it surely will, for you to see "Ah, Wilderness!" played either on stage or screen, and that you will take advantage of the chance when it comes. It is a play, I believe, that will live a long, long time.

There are fine performances given in the play in addition to that of George Cohan, who has suddenly been discovered as a great actor of native types by his New York critics. One of them is that of Essie Miller, Richard's loyal mother, by Marjorie Marquis, wife of the well loved Don Marquis. One is Elisha Cook Jr.'s Richard, a restrained and thoughtful study of adolescense.

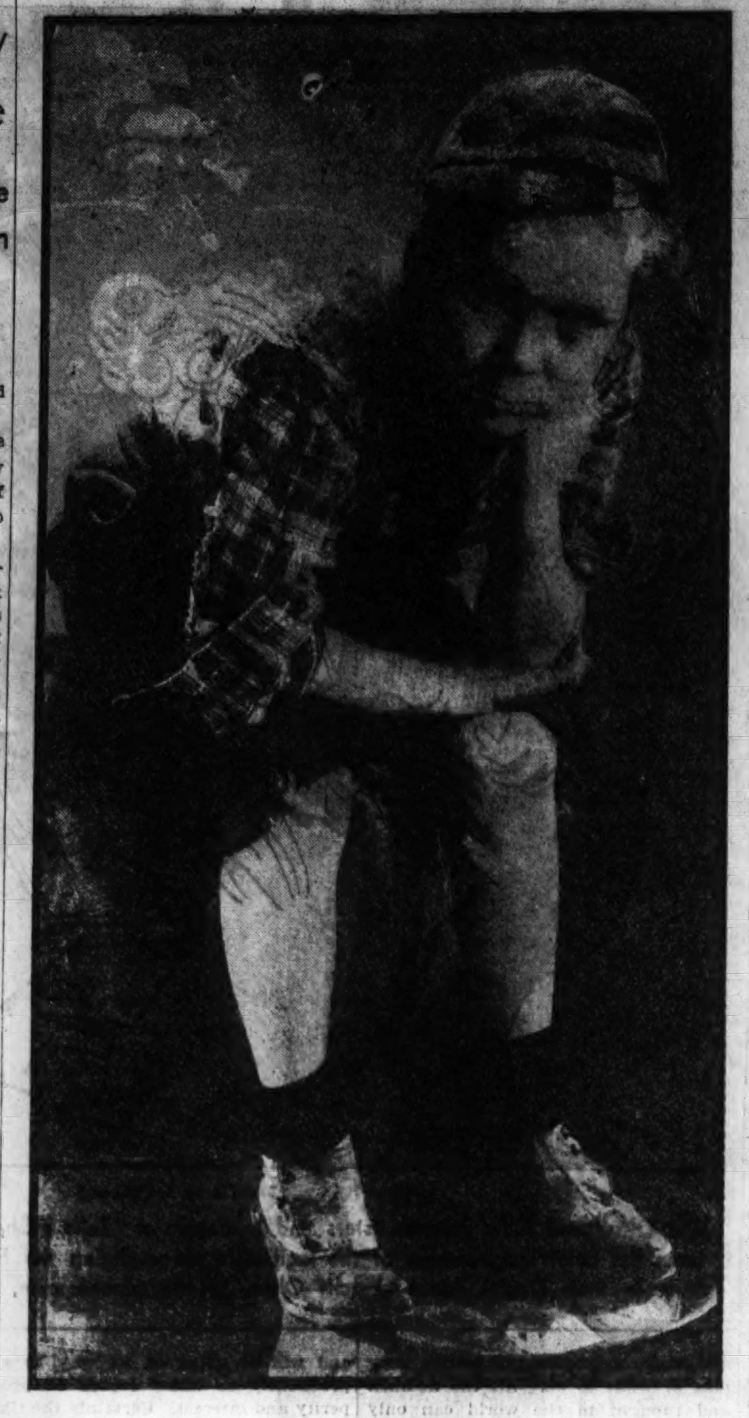
Movie Shows What Hollywood Can Do—With Lots of Money.

I did not see much else last week that will interest you. The new picture, "Footlights on Parade," is a stupendous building up of the screen's idea of musical comedy, an effort to top the success the Warners earned with "42d Street" and "Gold Diggers."

"Footlights on Parade" marvelously illustrates the expansiveness and the grandeur the screen can produce in black and white picture studies of those scenes the stage creates in miniature. In place of a ballet of, at the most, a hundred coryphees, the picture presents two, three hundred. In place of an imitation underwater ballet here is the creation itself—beautiful ladies gracefully posed in the water, on the water, under the water. Here is the whole technique of spectacular stage production exposed and reexposed half a dozen times.

But of story value there is none. And from the gala première there popped one fearfully discouraging line. Busby Berkeley, the genius who directed the ensembles, responded to the cheers of the audience with a modest speech. The water ballet alone, I understood him to say, cost $98,000. Gawd! The wonderful plays that $98,000 would produce! Forgive me while I weep a bit.

HE'S BACK WITH BEERY



O my! O my! What's the world been doing to our little Jackie Cooper! He's playing in "The Bowery" with Wallace Beery.

Vaudeville Bills

THE new vaudeville portion of the program at the Palace theater includes: Guy Lombardo and His Royal Canadian band; Richy Craig Jr., comedian; Walter Dare, athlete, assisted by Emmett Oldfield; and "Talent for Sale," a revue with Lynn Burno, Madge Whiteside, Mollie Dodd, Frances Peper, and Jean Clayton as players.

The State-Lake theater offers on the vaudeville part of its entertainment, beginning today, the following acts: Sylvia Clark, of Broadway musical comedies; Charley Kaley, motion picture player and master of ceremonies; the Norman Thomas quintet, colored musicians and dancers; "A Treat in Travesty," given by Herman Hyde and Miss Mona; Dave Jones and company in "The Bridge Game"; songs and patter by Frank Donia, and Gwynne and company, magicians.

Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians, a well-known group of musicians and entertainers, are the chief feature on the new stage program at the Chicago theater.

BitsaBOUTem

GEORGE ARLISS will return from England early next month to start work on a United Artists picture, "The House of Rothschild," based on the history of the European money barons. Later he will make "Sentenced" from the stage play by Harold Simpson, successfully produced in London . . . DID YOU KNOW that Hollywood is not a town but a borough and was thus named in 1885 by Mrs. Daelda Wilcox, who thus called her husband's ranch? That: Motion picture rouge is not red, but brown. Hollywood has the largest municipal park in the United States, Griffith park, a preserve of 3,751 acres. An average soundproof stage as used for film production would hold ten average two story houses, with room between for the children to play. George Arliss rehearses with his cast for four weeks before starting a new picture. No motion picture studio buys original stories sent in by mail. Such manuscripts, when detected, are returned unopened. A hard rain over Hollywood stops all motion picture production, for no practical way has been found to silence the patter of the drops on those huge stage roofs. Next to a rainstorm an airplane overhead makes the most noise. . . . IRENE DUNNE has signed a new two year contract with RKO. So has COLLEEN MOORE . . . ELISSA LANDI—now working for Universal—has completed her third novel. Its title is "The Ancestor." . . . When Paramount sent out a call for Shipwreck Kelly to come to Hollywood and train twenty girls as flagpole sitters, Shipwreck Kellys replied from all over the country.

Says BARBARA STANWYCK in the New Movie magazine: "The gossips can't bear the thought of a man and woman living together in lawful wedlock—and actually being happy," she continues. "Themselves having made a mess of it, it's as if they're determined no one else shall make a success of it.

"I have to smile when I read published reports of the great sadness that overshadows Hollywood because of the Pickford-Fairbanks split, but Hollywood isn't sorry. It hasn't time to be sorry. It's too busy telling all that will listen that I-told-you-so line. Now that their predictions have been fulfilled, they're gloating. That job has been done. Now they can turn their destructive attention to some other noted couple.

"Had Carole Lombard and Bill Powell lived anywhere else in the world—except in Hollywood—they'd have been gloriously happy together until death did them part. As it is, the gossips drove Carole off to Reno."

HISTORIETTE

MAY ROBSON, famous stage and screen actress, was born in Melbourne, Australia, April 19, 1865, and is the daughter of the late Capt. Henry Robinson of the royal navy and his wife, Julia. As a child she traveled with her parents. She received her education in Brussels, Paris, and London. Her husband was the late Dr. A. H. Brown.

Miss Robson's first stage appearance was in Brooklyn in 1884 as Tilly in "The Hoop of Gold." Later she made a hit in "Called Back" at the Madison Square theater. Other stage appearances in which she was famous are "Jim the Penman," "Elaine," "Partners," "The Charity Ball," "Lord and Lady Algy," "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," "Mothers' Millions," "Tish," "The Making Over of Mrs. Matt," and "The Three Lights." She has appeared in London and in every important city in America.

Her motion picture debut was made in the screen adaptation of "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," and she is still being talked about for the portrayal she gave in "Mothers' Millions." She has had small parts in many screen successes and recently set the country agog by her marvelous characterization of the leading rôle in "Lady for a Day."

INAUGURATING Demonstration Week

Hundreds of Demonstrations of Interest to Young and Old

Again we demonstrate the great value-giving policy of the Boston Store—again manufacturers and mills from coast to coast have co-operated with us to furnish displays and demonstrations that will make you marvel . . . not only in our windows, but throughout the entire store . . . and prices are really unusual, too, because we bought this merchandise before the rise and you can profit by buying at the old price levels.

The NRA Has Assisted One Class, Anyway

Washington Bootleggers Come Into Their Own at the Code Hearings.

By Genevieve Forbes Herrick.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 14. — (Special.) — The NRA has certainly helped the Washington bootlegger.

We recently had quite a talk—purely for the sake of academic research, you understand—with one of the capital's most famous bootleggers. He listed his woes; plenty of them. Then his face brightened, his eyes danced as he said:

"But I certainly am grateful to the NRA."

He went on to paint a picture. The hotels are crowded with big executives, down here to fight the good fight over a code. Their hotel rooms look like school rooms. Charts all over the walls. Textbooks on economics all over the tables. A blackboard in the middle of the floor. High powered executives in shirt sleeves, rumpling their hair as they struggle, like schoolboys, over a knotty problem. Lights burning all night as the tutor coaches the lads for the morning session before Gen. Johnson or one of his deputies.

But through the night of turmoil there must be refreshment. That's where the bootlegger comes in. To hear him tell it, he comes in often and heavily laden.

He thought it was going to be a tough summer, with so many of his best customers defeated in the election and no longer in Washington. But the NRA came along, he rejoices, and made Washington the mecca of many. He seeks to make it also an oasis. And succeeds right well.

● Marie Dressler was an overnight guest recently at the White House. In the morning she said she wondered if it would please the help if she went out to speak to them. Mrs. Roosevelt said she thought it would please them greatly. So the merry Marie went into the kitchen, and the laundry and the pantry, and shook hands with every employe. Had a word with each, too—and left them laughing when she said good-by.

● The Washington monument is about to have a facial; an expensive one that will run up into the thousands of dollars. Along with it goes a general health examination, to see if there are any cracks in the tall shaft.

● Mrs. Harold Ickes, wife of the secretary of the interior, was driving this summer through one of the national parks out west. The park official who was her guide was driving a motor car which bore a strange license—the initials "D. I."

Mrs. Ickes couldn't imagine what province or foreign country these letters stood for. She puzzled over it for several hours. Finally she couldn't stand it any longer and asked: "What country does this automobile come from that it has the initials 'D. I.'?"

The guide smiled.

"Madam," he explained, "those initials stand for 'department of interior.' You see, your husband is the boss of these parks."

● Did you know that, informally, of course, the President refers to Mrs. Roosevelt as "the missus." He calls his mother "mamma"—accent on the second syllable, if you please.

Sauce for the Goose

By D—— D——.

"I THINK her modiste taught her singing and her singing teacher made her gown," was the way one clever music critic described a certain society woman's attempt to sing in concert not so long ago. But the lady in question still is ambitious to succeed.

● Apropos singers whose ambition is greater than their vocal excellence, the same witty music critic remarked, after hearing an opera singer who has been much in the public print lately: "The only time she is on pitch is when she crosses it."

● "What did you enjoy the most?" asked a fond mother of her son, who had spent the entire day seeing the exhibits at the Fair with his father. (Father knew better than mother, of course, what things a boy should see and would like.) "Washington's false teeth," was the prompt reply.

The wife of one of Toronto's well known attorneys, when told the above, said she agreed with the youngster and that she had remarked to her husband that the false teeth of the Father of Our Country was to her the most interesting exhibit at the Fair.

● Some people have such bad dispositions that they are amusing, at least to those who don't have to live with them. For example: The man with the sullen face who rode up several floors in the Wrigley building, got out with several other passengers, and turned to the lift boy and snapped in an angry tone, "Which way?" When the laughter of those left in the elevator made him realize the unreasonableness of his question he stamped off, still glaring.

● Young Mr. Weisert was demonstrating a Capehart to two young ladies in his father's musical emporium. He explained that it could play twenty records without stopping, but that he also could make it play only the one particular one they wanted to hear. Stretching one arm forward to turn some dials, he said: "Now I have it under manual control." "I see," murmured one young woman, "right under your thumb, as it were," and both sweet young things laughed behind their gloves. The young man, attractive but shy, who hadn't caught the remark but who had heard the giggling, turned deep red and pulled down his coat sleeve. "The button just came off the cuff this morning," he explained.

● Bob Purchas is convinced that he is psychic. Visiting a local spirit medium on an evening not so long ago, he complained during the seance of a draught on the back of his neck.

"Be still, be still," objected the medium. "It's the spirits entering your soul."

Mr. Purchas endured the draught for another two hours and a half.

● It was at the popular Joe Lamy's bachelor dinner last Monday night at the Chicago Athletic association that "Ted" Adams revealed himself a baritone of no little note. Whether he can do anything besides the artillery song remains to be seen, but he was so good on that his fellow warblers let him make it a solo.

● "I bought a paper so we can find the radio programs for tonight," gleefully reported a young English visitor to her hostess about 8 o'clock one evening. Her surprise and disgust with American up-to-the-minuteness came when she discovered it was tomorrow's paper.

● Thorne Donnelley is planning to take a trip to Kansas some of these days to see a Catholic priest with whom he visits every time he goes on the air with his amateur broadcasting radio equipment. The priest also is an ardent amateur radio broadcaster—he and 39,998 others. Mr. Donnelley says there are 40,000 amateurs taking the air regularly. As the Kansas father cannot afford to come to Chicago to visit A Century of Progress, Mr. Donnelley is sending him literature and pictures galore so that he can enjoy the Fair by mail.

● A well known matron hasn't yet recovered from the shock she suffered during the recent meeting of the Legionnaires in Chicago. Walking up Michigan avenue past the Medinah Michigan Avenue club she was accosted by a member of the Legion with the question:

"Pardon me, madame, but can I interest you in a 1933 pussycat?"

With that he produced a long pole, a poor little skunk tied to the end of it.

Gen. Balbo and Miss Donnelly Alike Acclaim Glamour of Mrs. Harold Strotz

By Antoinette Donnelly.

REMINISCENT in beauty acclaim of an earlier Maxine is Mrs. Harold Strotz, the former Maxine Stresenreuter. We refer to Maxine Elliot as the renowned beauty of an earlier day. Mrs. Strotz is of the same gorgeous brunette coloring and popular beauty appeal. Only in this modern Maxine we see many of the pictorial advantages denied an earlier age—the tall, slim figure kept beautifully slim; the clever makeup at which Mrs. Strotz is acknowledged so skilled an artist there is question as to whether she uses makeup or not. And finally—our modern dress. In this decorative feature, too, Mrs. Strotz is known for her talent, and recognized as one of the very best dressed women in Chicago.

She has great beauty and is the target of cameras wherever she appears in public.

White in Striking Contrast to Brunette.

A subtle compliment was paid her by Gen. Italo Balbo on his visit to Chicago. As chairman of the dinner dance given in honor of the Italian air force Mrs. Strotz was first to greet the general when he arrived at the ballroom—four hours overdue.

"So you are Mrs. Strotz," he said, wonderingly.

Then, in an aside, "Why didn't some one tell me?"

In evening clothes her rich brunette coloring against the white she usually affects creates a superb picture. Dead white crêpe or satin, usually, with diamonds. Unquestionably she is the answer to a designer's prayer that beauty shall inhabit his creations. For day wear Mrs. Strotz chooses dashing colors with smart, svelte line. Navy blue with red or cerise is one of her favorite combinations.

With formal dress and jewels Mrs. Strotz believes that one should wear a heavy perfume. She blends her own from several fascinating odors. With street clothes the preference is for a light scent, and for sports things a faint, unsophisticated odor. Until recently she imported all her cosmetics, but at her suggestion a Chicago store now carries them. It is rumored that some of her friends have taken to buying them—hopefully.

Doesn't Make Exercise a Fetish.

No exercise of the premeditated variety is on the day's program. "I'm very lazy," she says, "and I never walk a block if there is any way of riding." But she rides horseback, of course, plays tennis and, since she and Mr. Strotz have a winter home in Palm Beach, naturally she swims a lot. But all these things she does for pleasure — not from a sense of obligation to herself. That she doesn't have to "daily-dozen" is just a part of her good luck. Her eyes are very dark brown and long lashed. Her hair the same shade with copper glints. Dark as it is, however, Mrs. Strotz would like it darker and and uses brilliantine to help the illusion.

Legends, which people like to attach to glamorous beauty, have not escaped Mrs. Strotz. One she scotches immediately on hearing is that, as a debutante, she was called the most beautiful girl in America by the king of Spain. We claim it was just the king's bad luck that he didn't see her—and say it!

Chicagoans in West Turn to Football

SANTA BARBARA, Cal. — (Special.) — With the beach cabanas taking their dying bow after a few lively days during Indian summer, members of the Chicago colony here and in Montecito turned toward the golf courses and football stadiums, together with a round of gala social events for their entertainment this week.

Many of them journeyed to Los Angeles to see the Trojans of U. S. C. clash with their old arch rivals, Saint Mary's, on the gridiron, while others enjoyed some lively rounds on the links.

Topping the events of the week was the usual ball given at the Montecito supper club, attended by many Chicagoans and featured by costumes of 2100 A. D.

Mrs. Charles D. Dabney Jr. and Mrs. Peggy Neville, in men's dinner clothes, top hats and white mesh jackets, and Lloyd Pantages, son of the former vaudeville king, in a suit of striped silk and a futuristic blond curly wig, were judged to be the best examples of men and women of the future by Gerald Adrian and Orrin Kelly, noted moving picture designers, and John Colton, author of "Hain."

Among those Chicagoans and others well known in Chicago turning to the links were Mrs. Nathaniel Brush, Col. and Mrs. Joseph H. Barnard, Miss Mirian Deerham, Mr. and Mrs. Walcott Tuckerman, Maj. Max C. Fleischmann, Kenneth Watters and Charles P. Greenough, who participated in a Valley club tournament.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence B. Mitchell, prominent members of the Chicago colony, have left for a trip to Lake Tahoe.

Society Opens Season Slimly but Bravely

St. Luke's Fashion Show Will Bring Leaders Out to Watch Debs Parade.

By Cousin Eve.

A CURRENT saying in Lake Forest: "Anybody will lend you a horse if you'll promise not to eat him for dinner." In spite of this the season is opening with many small and early parties and important large matters which one rather looks forward to.

On Oct. 19 St. Luke's Fashion show in the Stevens ballroom, where society turns out in force either at the tea time or more elaborately at night for dinner.

Here one meets new, dashing styles. Also pretty deb mannikins and those handsome married belles corralled for charity's sake, whose charm is proverbial.

Jewel Styles Secret.

I don't quite know why it is all so vastly entertaining, but it is. The scene this year is modern, silver and black, a huge pillar where the models enter for their parade. Some unique details.

An impenetrable secret is the very newest idea in jewels. Not a hint of what it is from anybody.

The young matrons modeling are Mrs. Philip Maher, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, Mrs. George Sensenley, Mrs. McCormick Adams, Mrs. Scott Bromwell, Mrs. Louis Sudler, Mrs. Willard Boyden, Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr., Mrs. Howard Peabody, Mrs. Arthur Bissell Jr., and Dorothy Dewes, Lydia Swift, Anne Smith, Jean Wingfield, Helen Castle, Honore White, Dorothy Rainey, Margaret Chapman, Jane Schuttler, and Fleury Leonard, lovely young bud of this season.

Town Hall Opens.

Daily luncheons at the Casino mature these plans, Mrs. John W. Gary, Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, Mrs. John Pitcher, Mrs. Kersey Reed, Mrs. Cyrus Adams, Mrs. William Hodgkins, and a dozen others being on the steering committee.

Next Saturday morning Town Hall opens its season in the Drake ballroom, with Prof. William Lyon Phelps of Yale, most popular of speakers, on "Contemporary Books Worth Reading."

Miss Grace Denton, director of the Town Hall series, has associated the Society of Shut-Ins with her lectures. Last year the Eli Bates women were her coadjutors. The program this year is varied and most interesting, including handsome French Mme. de Gramont, formerly Duchess de Clermont-Tonnerre, and a scientific ghost hunter from England, Elliot O'Donnell. The duchess' topic is "Châteaux and Château Life in France."

Vivid "First Night."

The "youngs" of the Alliance Française are to have a charming tea for the duchess when she discusses the great dressmakers of France, and the alliance itself is to have a large luncheon at the Casino on a Sunday for the distinguished Frenchwoman.

A lively social event when Alice Gerstenberg opens the Punch and Judy theater tomorrow night with a revival of her remarkable version of Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland."

production in 1921, which started the Junior League Children's theater on its mad career. Now she is the White Chess queen.

Tony Gillman to Star in "Alice in Wonderland."

Alice is being played by a marvelous 10 year old radio star, Tony Gillman. Back of this production is the Playwright's theater, all set to start something dramatic, new, and amusing outside of New York. "Alice in Wonderland" will run for a fortnight and then comes "Headlines," an intimate musical revue, and still others, very dashing.

Sir Wilmott Lewis was the guest of honor asked to open the English Speaking union's season in the Blackstone ballroom Friday night. Nobody quite as brilliant as the Washington correspondent of the London Times has been along for months. But then the English Speaking union has taken on life and animation with its new and distinguished president, Victor Elting.

Sir Wilmott Lewis married some time ago a fascinating, handsome daughter of the Frank B. Noyeses of Washington. Mrs. Thomas Blagden, who was Ethel Noyes, born and partly brought up in Chicago. They have a house in Massachusetts avenue, a popular rendezvous for the great world; also a place at Bar Harbor called the Log Cabin. Lady Lewis is a rollicking wit, full of verve and gayety. She said once of her husband that he had done what ever God could not do, "Make a lady out of her."

Goodman-Dewey Nuptials Are Gracefully Achieved.

The large social event of last week was the wedding at St. Chrysostom's of Marjorie Goodman and Charles S. Dewey Jr. Many people have said since it was the loveliest wedding they ever remembered. The bride made most of the arrangements herself, her mother being abroad.

Outstanding details as I saw and admired them were the lovely flowers in the chancel, waving pale ferns and high massed bouquets of lilies, much candlelight, an organ program with love music from "Tristan." The ten bridesmaids in early Victorian frocks of a rich, coppery yellow satin, with narrow skirts to the floor like little Noah's ark women, and deeply cut necks, both back and front. Bouquets of brown chrysanthemums, brown felt berets, brown elbow gloves.

Bride Wore Her Grandmother's Gown, Fashioned by Worth.

She was a radiant vision and her white satin gown was individual. It had a front panel patterned heavily in pearls, a treasure of other days from Worth's in Paris, worn by her grandmother and laid away in an old chest. A hoop of pearls held the tulle veil on her sleek, dark head.

Again the bride. Leaving the chancel with her handsome, rosy cheeked, young husband, she dashes quickly and kisses her mother standing in the front pew. Young Kay Goodman, still a school girl, is maid of honor, most demure. With the Dewey family sits Noble B. Judah, close family friend. It is dusk as the several hundred friends swarm over to the hotel particulier after the French style, where Mr. and Mrs. Goodman live in Astor street. In this splendid house, its walls lined with a fine collection of modern paintings, the bridal reception is held.

A long queue of guests stand four deep for words of well wishing. First, Mrs. Goodman in marron velvet, and Mr. Goodman; Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey, the latter in a quaint costume of uncut velvet with sable cape, and then the bridal couple, happy and gay and looking perfectly charming. An innovation was the absence of bridesmaids and ushers from the line. They were scattered happily all about the reception rooms.

Many former Prairie avenue people met here who had not seen each other since the depression, such has been the lack of parties. So it was a sort of "Reunion in Vienna," the old aristocrats of the town stepping out for an important occasion.

One has a few words with that handsome bridesmaid, Jean Wilhelm, who looks much like her mother. Tall and dark, with flashing, luminous eyes and a vivid color, she was a picture in the shining copper dress. Young men surrounded her two deep, quick to recognize one of the belles of the coming winter.

Honeymoon Will Be Spent in France, England.

Wedding refreshments were served from a buffet. The cake, quite tailored looking, was extremely smart if one may say that of the bride's cake, smooth and white in many layers with calla lilies of sugar on its several terraces. The wedding gifts were not shown. They were lovely and unique and will be installed next month in the modern house at South Bend which awaits the junior Deweys. They sailed for a fortnight at the Dewey's recently acquired manoir in Normandy, but Vincent Bendix cabled them to come at once to Paris for the automobile show, after which there is another in London that may delay their return.

A nice sentimental feature of this wedding was the scores of cablegrams of good wishes which arrived from Poland, where the bridegroom lived as a laddie.

Turkish Ambassador Gives a Gracious Dinner Party.

A World's Fair dinner of interest and importance in honor of his excellency Moukhtar Ahmet Bey, Turkish ambassador at Washington. The hosts were Consul General and Mrs. Berthold Singer, who entertained at the Belden-Stratford hotel, which was hung for the ambassadorial visit with the star and crescent and Stars and Stripes. Moukhtar Bey has the usual Turkish air of pensive melancholy and most agreeable manners. His stay in Chicago had something to do with the 29th of October celebration, the tenth birthday of the young Turkish republic.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Dawes were also guests of honor at this handsome dinner, others being members of the consular corps, a score of consuls and their wives, including Mr. Castruccio, who is now, I believe, the dean of the corps; Mr. and Mrs. Weiller, Mr. and Mrs. Muto and Herman Waldeck, the most ubiquitous diner-out in Chicago and the only friend I have who keeps up to the minute in books of the hour. How does he do it?

There were speeches, alas! Some day they will be banned, but Rufus Dawes gave utterance to an interesting fact which few knew: that the Turkish republic offered to send the tomb of Alexander the Great to A Century of Progress. This generous offer was not accepted, according to President Dawes, because it involved too heavy a risk to one of the world's greatest treasures.

Frederick Ehlert and his charming wife, daughter of the house and successful playwright, assisted at this interesting diplomatic party.

Symphony Orchestra Does Itself Proud.

The Symphony concert opened two weeks earlier than usual, with a Thursday night performance very well attended. Dr. Frederick Stock appeared in excellent form and so did the musicians, and, it being warm and balmy weather, no bronchitis or laryngitis seemed to develop among those present. In fact, to use an old slogan, "There wasn't a cough in a houseful." All of which was auspicious.

Ex-Chicagoan Excites London with New Ideas

House of Selfridge Offers Reward for Discovery of Ad Misstatement.

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON.—[Special.]—H. Gordon Selfridge has amused England with a new game. Recently he announced he would pay $50 to anyone who could point out a misstatement or exaggeration in any advertisement of the "House of Selfridge." The offer holds good for three months, and at the end of the first month Mr. Selfridge said he had paid the reward to seven successful and lynx eyed readers.

In one case the store advertised a raincoat "with seams taped." Whereupon a customer pointed out that, although the outside seams were taped, the inside ones were not. This was a new one on Mr. Selfridge, and he handed over the $50. In another case the firm had stated that the postage on a certain pair of stockings was the equivalent of 4 cents, and on 3 pairs 12 cents. Whereupon a postoffice expert pointed out that the postage on 3 pairs was only 6 cents, and he got $50. The other five instances were even less important than these two.

In a sense this is nothing new, for the one-time Chicago merchant is always bobbing up with new ideas upsetting to his easy-going British competitors.

One of his sensational innovations was that of refunding cash for goods returned as unsatisfactory.

Merchants Keep Customers' Money.

The English practice has always been, and still is largely, to hang on to the customer's money, giving him or her merely a credit for the purchase of other goods. Even today the British shopper who is a little doubtful about a purchase must inquire specifically whether she can recover her money if she returns the goods. If she fails to do this, nine times out of ten she has to buy something else in the shop equal in value to her original purchase.

Mr. Selfridge's innovation made him extremely unpopular with the other London shops, and it speaks volumes for English stubbornness that they have largely resisted the idea. But it has certainly appealed strongly to shoppers. Today the favorite feminine jest in the London suburbs runs something like this: First lady, "I have bought these shoes from Brown & Brown, but I don't like them." Second lady, "Take them back to Selfridge's, my dear."

Whether Mr. Selfridge actually hands over cash for goods bought at other shops is probably doubtful, but it is a popular saying that he does so without a murmur.

Buchmanites Hold Religious Meeting.

We have been all stirred up over "Buchmanism" this month. The "Oxford group," led by the imperturbable American, Frank Buchman, took St. Paul's cathedral for a "mass attack" upon the religious life of London.

Even before that fur had begun to fly, with the Bishop of Durham denouncing the "Buchmanites" for their "spiritual exhibitionism." Specifically the redoubtable Dr. Henson charged:

"The movement's teachings are gravely suspect and its much vaunted religious achievements are denied.

"Scandals are hushed up.

"The movement is organized with typical American business skill and advertised with unparalleled audacity.

"Spiritual exhibitionism plays a large part.

"The religious excitement quickly dies down.

"The darkest shadow on the movement is the trail of moral and intellectual wrecks which its progress leaves behind."

Mr. Buchman has created great uneasiness within the Church of England and in Nonconformist circles as well. Nothing could be more "un-English than getting up in public and disclosing part of one's private life," but the American has certainly succeeded in the last 12 years in making headway with the "introvert" Englishman.

Male Tennis Club Celebrates Birthday.

There is only one tennis club in England which is exclusively male; that is the Branding club at Newcastle-on-Tyne, which boasts 100 members, not one of whom is a woman. And it works well, apparently, for this autumn the club celebrates its 50th anniversary.

London hates to see any of its historic old buildings look "brand new," which is why the dean and chapter of Westminster Abbey have been reluctant to give that beautiful old edifice the washing it deserves.

However, it appears to be imperative to do something to preserve the stone from the corrosion of the acids in the London air, and so Westminster Abbey is slowly turning a creamy white. Outside it is getting a scrubbing with limewash and inside it is getting a bath of skimmed milk.

Limewash and Milk Clean Westminster Abbey.

Limewash is being used for the first time since the 16th century. The pinnacles of the north transept have been scrubbed this summer and are now a rich creamy white. The skimmed milk used for the interior is put on with a brush and worked into the stone, forming a glossy skin which keeps the dust out of the stone.

By next summer the work should have proceeded far enough to provide a flood of indignant letters to the Times, but thus far the authorities, touching wood, have escaped the inevitable English charge of "downright vandalism."

Princess Elizabeth has outgrown "Peggy," her Shetland pony, and has handed it over to her baby sister, Princess Margaret Rose. She herself has now received two new ponies. One is a jet black Welsh pony called "Taffy" and the other a small bay mare which she has not yet named.

Hunting Clan at Height of Power in N. Y. Society

Devotees of Race and Chase Are Cream of Gotham's Younger Set.

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—This having been a week of divine Indian summer it was only right and proper that society turn to the great and colorful outdoors. With the autumn meeting of the United Hunts on Columbus day and the annual meet of the West Hills Racing association yesterday the fall season was socially ushered in and the outdoor equine season ushered out.

One thing the United Hunts brought closely to view and that is that whereas society itself is a rather moribund proposition, that portion of it which goes in for racing and hunting is at the very height of its power. Furthermore, the social horse loving clan is entirely a youthful one; far from a snooty one and a most enterprising collection of the best young names in Gotham.

Love of Horses Seems Insurance Against Divorce.

Indicative of this was the novel steeplechase for women riders, in which such lights were entered as Mrs. John Hay Whitney, the former Elizabeth Altemus; Mrs. Cornelius V. Whitney, the much admired "Gwladys"; Mrs. Geraldyn L. Redmond of town and Aiken, S. C.; Mrs. Barney Balding, Mrs. Regan McKinney, Polly Potter, and Betty West.

The Hunts is finally settled on the estate of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Murray, who were ardent supporters of the event, and all the notable folk rallied to attend the meeting. Genial Brose Clark, the patron saint of racing, is making no bones about his delight at having the younger folk take charge of things. Neither is Mrs. Payne Whitney, the patron saintess—if I may so distinguish her.

All the big stables are fast getting into the hands of the younger marrieds, and a love of horses seems to be insurance against the divorce courts. Jock and Liz Whitney, Corny and Gladys Whitney, the junior George Atwells; George's sister, Angela, and husband Francis Hitchcock, scion of the one and only Hitchcock clan; the Thomas Welles Durants are only a few of the new notables in racing.

Winter Weddings to Be Many and Smart.

Weddings this fall will be many and smart. One of the notable ones will be that on Oct. 27 in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's of Sybil Whigham and Robert Young. And Robert, since we have been discussing things equine, is one of Pete Bostwick's closest competitors for the title of best gentleman jockey. Recently he won the Meadowbrook cup on Mrs. Thomas H. Somerville's "Trouble Maker" at Westbury, L. I.

The daughter of the Henry J. Whighams only recently returned from the British Isles with her parents. They are now busy with preparations for the wedding. Jean Hollins is to be maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Mrs. John R. Fell, Mrs. George T. Elliman, Mrs. William Van Alen, Virginia Kernochan, Dorothy Fell, Audrey Davies, and Anne Ballantine.

Bob Young, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Percy Young and a nephew of Mrs. William C. Langley, will have Earle Potter as his best man. The ushers will include William and James Van Alen, Crawford Hill, Malcolm McConihe, Henry Robinson, Henry Cram, Stephen Clark Jr., and Hardie Scott.

Grandmother to Attend Eileen Gillespie's Debut.

Of the debutantes, still leaping about readying for their great "winter," there are many outstanding belles to note. One of these is Eileen Gillespie, daughter of the prominent Lawrence Lewis Gillespie, who will make her bow at Pierre's on December 8, and a most important point is that Eileen's grandmother will be in attendance—none other than Mrs. W. Watts Sherman—a power in Newport and town.

Grandma Sherman is one of the wealthiest women in Gotham, with a fortune that originated with the Brown family of Providence, after whom the university is named.

Eileen is one of Mrs. Sherman's heirs, the others being her sister Phyllis and her cousins, Ralph Stonor and Sophia Stonor, the children of Lord and Lady Camoys.

Among other things notables continue to arrive. Viscount Ridley, who has been visiting his sister, the Hon. Mrs. Gordon Ives, at Government house, Ottawa, is here until his departure for London. Mrs. Howard Linn of Chicago is at the Ambassador and Charles D. Frey of Chicago was at the Waldorf this week.

British Political Leader Travels Much in France

Winston Churchill Carries Prestige of Family Famed in Gallic Folklore.

By May Birkhead.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Winston Churchill, the first volume of whose "Marlborough and His Times" is just off the press, is a frequent visitor to France, although he is not seen so often in Paris. In August he is sometimes in Deauville, where he takes a turn at the gaming tables; but he is a great lover of active sports, and pursues wild boar with the duke of Westminster at the latter's extensive property in the Forest of Eu, near Dieppe, and also at his hunts in the vicinity of Arcachon and Biarritz.

It will be remembered that Winston Churchill's mother was the late Lady Randolph Churchill, and by her second marriage, the wife of Maj. Cornwallis-West. She figured, as a young girl, at the gay balls in the Tuileries, where Napoleon III. and the Empress Eugénie received many well known Americans. After marrying Lord Randolph Churchill she liked to mouse around the castle of Blenheim and hear what the tourists had to say when looking over the family portraits. One day she heard this comment: "My, what poppy eyes the Churchills have got!"

Winston Churchill's cousin, the duke of Marlborough, married in 1895 Consuelo Vanderbilt, who is now Mme. Jacques Balsan of Paris, and about ten years ago he took as his second wife Gladys Deacon, whose father, the late Edward Deacon, was a highly picturesque figure in Paris in the mauve decade.

George Henry High of Chicago is represented with several samples of his artistic work at the International Photographic salon, which is held here every October at the Société Française de Photographie. While active, within the last few years, in organizing foreign exhibits for A Century of Progress Exposition, he secured the loan for that great affair of the first photograph made a hundred years ago by the celebrated Daguerre.

Mr. and Mrs. Walcott Blair, who were in Paris early in the summer and later traveled widely, have again reached the French capital from England.

Etching Competition Results in Some Sensitive Portrayals of the Fair; Night Scenes Predominate

Print of Electrical Group Wins Prize

By Eleanor Jewett.

THE Chicago Society of Etchers offered last spring a prize of $500 for the best plate dealing with some subject relevant to A Century of Progress. A number of etchers responded and the competition resulted in a satisfactory group of etchings handling the Fair from various angles. Many of them are night scenes and it is to a night scene that the prize was awarded. The winning print is "Electrical Building at Night," a dry point by Gerald K. Greelings of New Canaan, Conn. This and the other etchings are on view in the Roullier galleries on seventh floor of the Fine Arts building. The exhibit opened last Monday and will continue through Oct. 21.

Several Chicago etchers of note are included among the exhibitors. Charles W. Dahlgreen offers six plates, all of them of interest. Leon Pescheret, a Palette and Chisel club man, presents his interpretation of the Exposition in several clear-cut, penetrating studies of great charm. Ernest Melchert offers one of the most attractive prints in the entire show with his delightful "Belgian Village." Beatrice Levy brings the fountain of the electrical building into focus.

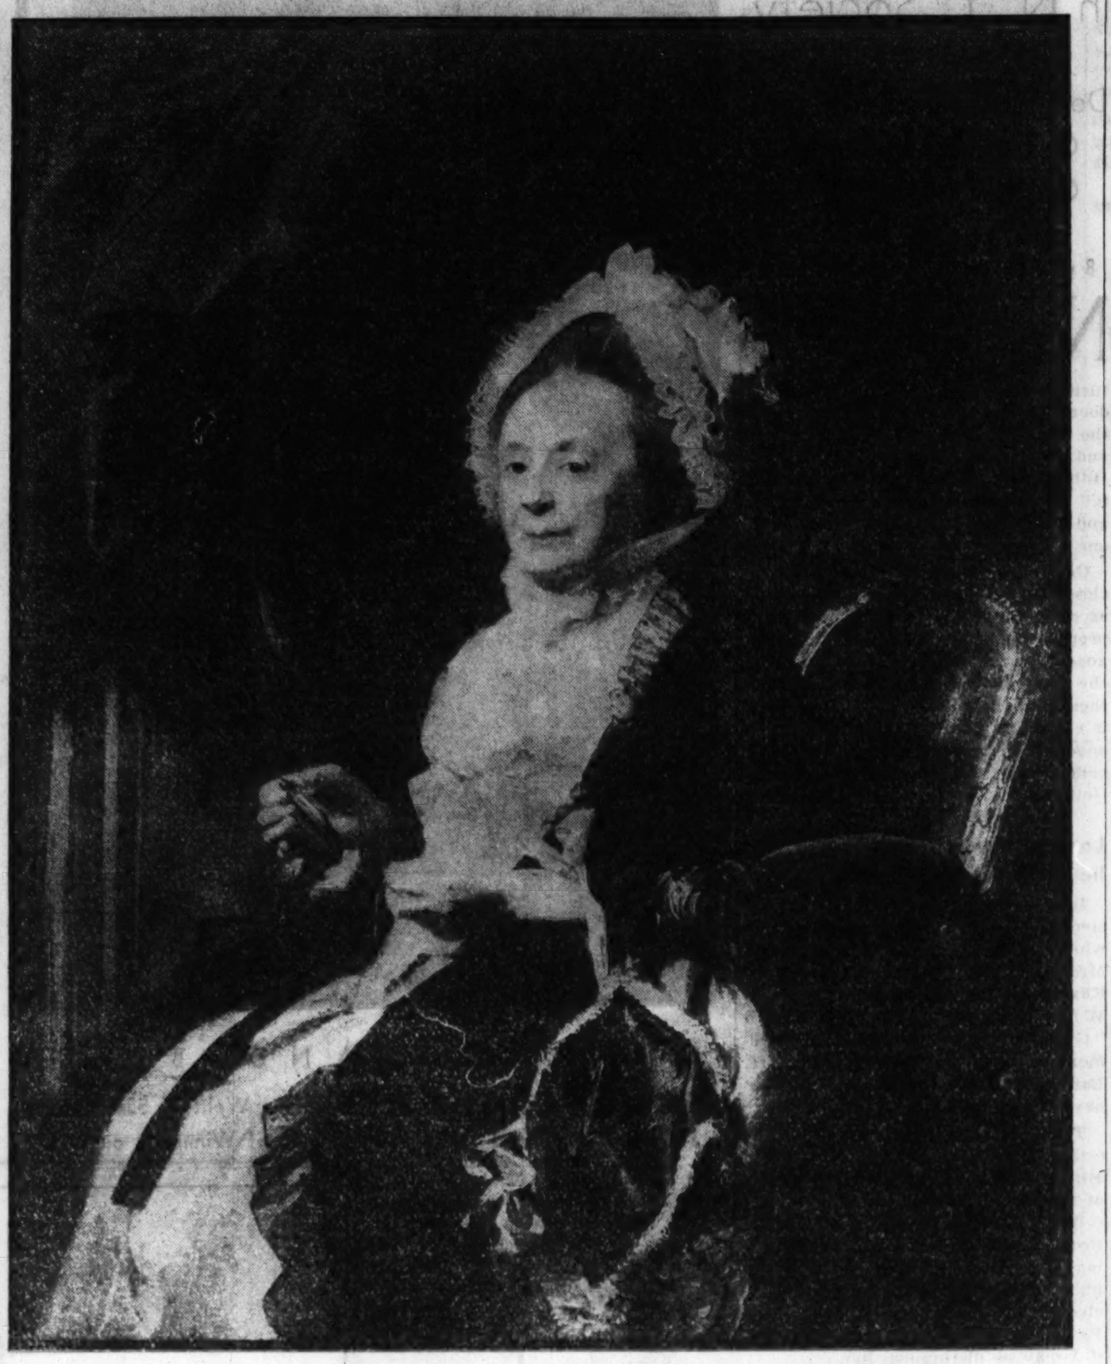
Belgian Village Is Popular Subject.

Charles L. Morgan submits several prints, the night scenes cut by swathes of blinding light. Possibly the finest of Mr. Morgan's group is the broadly handled and picturesque "A Glimpse of Belgium." Eugénie Glaman has an unconvincing scene near the Agriculture building and Frances Foy offers a characteristic and clever print of the totem poles that fringe the Alaskan concession.

Louis Rosenberg shows the Federal building and the lagoon at night, a beautiful print. Morris Hobbs uses the Belgian Village again as his subject with great success and Ernest Roth shows with fine feeling and a sense for romance the adventurous body of Byrd's ship. All in all, this is a good summary of some of the high lights of the Fair and an exhibit well worth seeing.

English Artist Has Charming Exhibit at the Blackstone.

Going south on Michigan avenue last week one could scarcely hope to escape some one or other returning from the Blackstone, where, in the French room, portraits in tinted pencil, water color, and miniatures, by the English painter, Miss F. Enid Stoddard, were on exhibit. Miss Stoddard's art is a delightful one and her skill is beyond argument. She possesses to an unusual extent the ability to read character and transfer that character as a living quality to her canvas, or paper, as the case may be.



"Mrs. Seymour Fort," by John Singleton Copley, was lent by the Wadsworth Atheneum, Hartford, Conn., to A Century of Progress Fine Arts exhibition current in the Chicago Art institute. This, hailed as a stunning piece of characterization, is one of the striking portraits in the exhibit.

The portraits were all delightful in color and pose. The clever return to the Gainsborough period through the medium of the little hat perched on Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams' head was a happy gesture that gave distinction to one of the fascinating portraits in the Chicago group.

Miss Stoddard seems to have little difficulty on the score of age or sex. Her portraits of men and women and children are carefully considered and yet spontaneous work. One senses a true likeness in every case and yet nothing of the mechanical or photographic rears its ugly head to dismay the spectator.

Among the most interesting of the portraits, and the most delightful, were those of Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin's little daughter, the two children of Mrs. Edwin Brashear, Miss Dorothy Marshall, the Duchess of Leinster, Mrs. Hargreaves [as a little girl the inspiration for Lewis Carroll's "Alice"], Mrs. Arthur Farwell's little boy, and the children of Mrs. John Noyes.

Among the fine men's portraits one may count those of Clarence Darrow, Hobart Porter, Robert McC. Adams, Dr. Harvey Kellogg, Col. George Fabyan, and the Hon. Stanley Bruce, premier of Australia.

Chicago Artists Exhibit Delicate Water Colors.

Further south on Michigan avenue one comes to 11th street and turning west confronts the Chicago Woman's club where in the Tudor gallery there hangs an exhibit of water colors by members of the Chicago Society of Artists. It is a colorful exhibit. Frances Strain shows a delicate still life of flowers in a glass and above it Fred Biesel has gone ancestor and presents us with an attractive landscape contrived in the fashion of lithographs of a century ago.

Macena Barton whimsically portrays the lagoon at the World's Fair, a pretty piece of color. Minnie Harms Neebe plays a stronger note in her rich and dramatic western landscape. Frances Foy is her inimitable self, elflike as ever, in her charming study of a wood where mushrooms rear their rosy circumferences, so many foot stools for a fairy frolic.

Flora Schofield Adopts Kindly Views of Women.

A. Raymond Katz offers a subdued and restrained street scene with the houses, a little pathetic, wearing paint that years have dulled to gray. Flora Schofield deals more kindly with her sex than is often her custom, bestowing upon her two nudes physiques of normal proportions and rather attractive contours. Her characteristic bird in one corner is piping an enthusiastic song, apparently egging the artist on to greater and more careful effort.

Tunis Ponsen shows a sturdy composition of Gloucester wharves and harbor. Beatrice Levy offers "Farm Near Bohon," a fresh and breezy landscape. Clara MacGowan shows "Beverley Shores," a study of dunes and water. Josephine L. Reichmann offers a spirited and fresh rendering of the sail dotted sea near the Atlantic coast with her "New Castle by the Sea."

The Chicago galleries, 220 North Michigan avenue, has just opened an attractive exhibit of paintings by Karl C. Brandner, Gaspar J. Ruffolo, and Wilbur Adam, with sculpture by C. Warner Williams completing the show. There are but six water colors by Wilbur Adam to detain us, each, however, a sensitive piece of work.

The portrait of Mrs. Huttner is the most striking of Gaspar J. Ruffolo's contribution, which includes another portrait and half a dozen small sketches, chiefly landscapes. Mr. Brandner really walks away with the exhibit by the excellence and charm of his more generous share in the paintings.

When Chicago Was Young

THROUGH TEN DECADES WITH THE MARTHAS

The Notable Nineties

By Herma Clark

A letter from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York. (Note: Herma Clark interrupts her story of the Eighties to review Chicago's century of social life. Martha Freeman Esmond—the second Martha in Chicago—writes today to Julia Boyd, the "Dear Julia" of the letter usually found in this column.)

Chicago, December 26, 1899.

DEAR JULIA: Will has gone to a meeting of the Municipal Voters' league. It is a bitterly cold night, and I wanted him to stay at home, but he feels that Mr. George E. Cole and others interested in the city's welfare are making a great fight for the purification of political conditions here and he wants to help by his presence, though he feels he must leave the younger men to do the active work. Sometimes I am skeptical of the power of good to overcome the forces of evil in a great city. Will is much more optimistic than I am. "Growing pains" he calls the setbacks in our progress toward the goal we are trying to achieve.

As my pen traces the numerals "1899," I realize how soon not only the Nineties, but the nineteenth century will have passed. The decade has been a notable one in Chicago. The World's Fair will stand out as the chief event of the last ten years, I think. How our great architects—Burnham, Root, Adler, Sullivan, Atwood, Cobb, Jenney, Mundie, and Olmsted—transformed the marshes of Jackson park into the foundation of a dream city you know, of course, since you saw it all that summer. But it never seems less than a miracle to me. The faith of those men was of the sort that moves mountains, only their task was to make a bog into solid ground on which stood lovely buildings.

Too bad that John Root died before he saw it completed, but he had done his part in lighting the fires of enthusiasm and the work went along without him. I hope he saw it, in the spirit. It does seem to me as if God must have let him look over the battlements of Heaven and behold how the design he made had grown into the luminously beautiful creation of 1893. Mr. Harlow N. Higinbotham had much to do with its financial success.

The cause of woman has been benefited by the Fair, I believe. Mrs. Potter Palmer, as president of the board of lady managers, made a name for herself which doesn't grow dim as the years pass. She is very much admired here, as abroad. The parliament of religions was a great triumph, showing that it was possible to bring together on one platform representatives of all nations and creeds. I shall never forget how picturesque the Hindu holy men looked in their orange colored robes. That great convocation has made us more broad-minded and tolerant.

An enchanted summer, all in all! As I close my eyes I seem to hear Sousa's band playing in the Court of Honor; to be floating about the lagoons in a gondola by moonlight, or dining in "Old Vienna," or having tea in the Japanese Tea House on the Wooded Island. That beautiful World's Fair of 1893! There can never be another that will so capture the imagination.

Of course, the founding of the University of Chicago has been another important event of the Nineties. We are so happy to think there is again a "University of Chicago." You may remember that Stephen A. Douglas in the late Fifties gave land for an institution of that name, and this had an honorable career. But it was never adequately financed, and in 1886 it graduated its last class and wound up its affairs. Mr. John D. Rockefeller's large gift has enabled the new university to start off in a highly satisfactory manner, under the presidency of William Rainey Harper.

The Spanish-American war must be listed as another great event of the decade affecting Chicago deeply. We are proud of Sandy's part in the medical work of those strenuous days. By the way, he has just had a letter from Theodore Roosevelt, whom he met in Cuba, and to whom he is devoted. He thinks Roosevelt will one day be President, but Will questions that, as McKinley will of course be given another term.

The Spanish-American war has made our country more respected abroad and more prosperous at home, Will thinks, and besides has done something toward unifying north and south. Our prosperity is quite beyond what might be expected, isn't it? Will was saying this morning, as he read the financial page of THE TRIBUNE, that he wished your father could have lived to see the splendid record of the railroad he worked so hard to build up. All our railroads are doing well, he says, as well as banks and indeed every other organization. People are buying clothing and furniture as never before, and factories are working at top speed, turning out these goods. Being Republicans, we attribute all this to McKinley's election. I am glad free silver didn't win in 1896. (Not that I know anything about money matters, but Will says it would have been disastrous.)

Don't you hope the Boer war will soon be over? It does seem too terrible—all the young men going out from England to die in South Africa. I hear Queen Victoria is in a highly nervous state and is being treated for insomnia.

One of the departments of our Chicago Woman's club has recently had a meeting at which Rudyard Kipling was discussed. The essayist of the day called him a second rate writer. What do you think of him? It seems to me one who could write "Mandalay" and "The Light That Failed" can hardly be dismissed so lightly. Of course "David Harum" came in for severe criticism. It is not literature, I know, but it is amusing. Will never tires of quoting David's aphorism: "A reasonable amount of fleas is good for a dog; keeps him from broodin' on bein' a dog."

How do you like the ragtime music heard everywhere? I don't care for it. Frederick Root, one of our excellent musicians, says it is a craze that will soon pass.

Now I must close the last letter I shall write you in the NOTABLE NINETIES. Your loving friend,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Etiquette Editor Answers to Many Questions

Says Signature Doesn't Carry "Mrs." Title, but Woman's Given Name.

"Planning the Church Wedding," a booklet by Helen Bartlett, for prospective brides, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

VIA the mail bag:

1. "Will you please tell me which signature is correct—Mrs. Howard Browning or Mrs. Mary M. Browning?

2. "Is the groom's or the bride's initial used on linens and silver?

"G. D."

1. Neither is correct as a signature. The signature proper should be "Mary M. Browning," without the title of Mrs. The title, "Mrs. Howard Browning," is never a signature.

2. It has now become optional. Formerly only the girl's maiden initial was used on her linens if they were embroidered before her marriage. Nowadays most brides sensibly use the initial of the name they will bear.

Ask About Correct Seating Arrangement.

1. "My dining room suite has an arm chair. Should the host occupy this?

2. "When giving a dinner are not the hosts seated at opposite ends of the table, one at the head, the other at the foot?

3. "Is it ever proper to place the guest of honor in the arm chair at the head of the table? If so, where would the host sit? L. M."

1. Yes.

2. Yes.

3. The guest of honor, if a woman, is seated at the right of the host. If a man, at the right of the hostess. It is not customary to seat the guest at the head of the table.

"Would it be correct to have the invitations to a formal church wedding hand printed by an experienced artist? If so, would old English Tudor type be correct? A. B."

Hand printed invitations would not be at all suitable, in my opinion. Hand engraving or, if this cannot possibly be afforded, machine engraving, would be the only proper choice. In any case the choice of type is optional.

What Is Attire for Wedding?

1. "What is the correct dress for a gentleman guest at a Sunday afternoon wedding at 4:30?

2. "Would a woman wear a hat and gloves? O. R."

If the wedding is a fashionable one the morning suit is correct for men. This consists of black and gray striped trousers, wing collar, four-in-hand or ascot tie, and black cutaway with waistcoat of the same material. If the wedding is not fashionable, business suits will probably be worn by the majority of the guests.

The women guests wear afternoon frocks with hats and gloves.

1. "Is tomato cocktail taken with a spoon or drunk from the glass?

2. "Does a verbal invitation to a wedding and reception obligate one to send a gift? F. H."

1. It is always drunk from the glass.

2. Strictly speaking, only personal feeling obligates one to send a wedding gift. It is the modern custom however, for persons invited to the reception to send a gift to the bride, no matter what the relationship.

Mutiny.

By Eleanor Jewett.

Instead of buying leggings
And caps and woolen coats
And overshoes and mittens
And mufflers for their throats,

The mother birds in autumn
Make all their children fly
To warmer places where the sun
Shines from a bluer sky.

I wish that I could be a bird
And go south if I choose—
I hate to zip my leggings,
And I loathe my overshoes!

DETOURS

By Frederic Babcock.

THE travel industry in America has caught up with the age of speed.

One can now fly from New York to California in less than 24 hours. Travel by train between the two coasts takes three and a half days, and revolutionizing improvements already under way promise to cut that time materially.

The wagon age's network of dusty and muddy roads has given way to unbroken motor highways from ocean to ocean, with the result that the traveler from Chicagoland can go by auto or bus to either coast for a two weeks' vacation and spend most of his time vacationing, instead of most of it traveling, the way he used to.

Miami is less than 12 hours from Chicago by air. Havana and Nassau are only two hours further on the flying boats. One can breakfast in Miami and dine in Mexico, Jamaica, or Haiti on the same day.

It's small wonder that Americans have become the greatest travelers in the world—greatest in speed, number of trips made, amount of money spent, and amount of distance covered.

- "Give wings to your imagination," the travel agents are advising. Whereupon they proceed to tell tall tales about Singapore, Penang, Colombo, Bombay, Suez, Alexandria, and all the other places of enchantment. Then they spin a few words about the Seychelle islands, where, tradition has it, the Garden of Eden was situated and where everything seems to be about as it was in the days of Adam. All of which makes it increasingly difficult to sit still and do nothing about it.

- In Bali, a favorite stopping place on the world cruises, may be seen a civilization thousands of years old and just as simple as it was twenty centuries ago. The people there, having little use for money, bury it, and dig it up only when it's needed. They produce a year's food supply in four months, leaving eight months for leisure and the pursuit of happiness. There are no beggars, no poverty, little class distinction, and no vices except gaming and cock fighting. Although islanders, the Balinese are not given to swimming or seafaring. They simply don't travel. They consider exile the greatest possible punishment. When a native is about to die he trusts that after a short time in heaven he will be born again in his beloved Bali. When he gets a look at the Americans, on the cruises or in the movies, he is not slow in dubbing them savages. Maybe he has the right idea.

- One of the cruise ships leaving Los Angeles early in the new year will head directly for those south sea island places whose names usually appear only in fiction having a highly romantic tinge. Tahiti, Rarotonga, Nukualofa, Noumea, Suva, Apia, and Pago Pago will be among the ports of call. In between are vast stretches of the coral sea. Also, forty days and forty nights without a mention of NRA codes, Hitlerism, or fan dancers.

- Travelers in the far east get some idea of the vastness of what has been called the world's most important crop. The rice raised annually in the orient often reaches the total of 180 billion pounds. More than 200 million acres are devoted to its culture and it furnishes food for a billion persons. Its yearly value reaches seven billion dollars—three times the value of the world's raw cotton. Grown intensively for more than 7,000 years, it has been developed into a wide variety of shapes and colors; today there are between 5,000 and 7,000 kinds to be found in Japan, China, India, Ceylon, and the Philippines.

- Explorations on the banks of the Dead sea have revealed that the twin cities, Sodom and Gomorrah, had a great deal of wealth and prosperity before their downfall. Maybe that accounts in part for their waywardness. But they also had advanced ideas of culture, as shown by the mural paintings recently unearthed and dating back as far as 2000 B. C. Mediterranean cruises give their passengers a look at these paintings, as well as at other relics of Biblical times. The pillar of solid salt, pointed out to the tourists as Lot's wife, still stands on the slope of Jebel Usdum. The road to Jericho, immortalized by the Good Samaritan, is now a paved highway used in transporting life-giving salts from the sea with the deadly name.

Montmartre's High Rum Prices Drive Away the Tourists

PARIS.—[U. P.]—Where once the popping of sky priced champagne mingled with the cheerful tingle of busy cash registers, the heights of Montmartre contrast sadly with the years of 1929-'30. Or even with last summer.

The below-sidewalk cabarets, French, Russian and Hungarian, are all but deserted, save for a handful of long faced tourists, desperately striving to look gay.

At last, it would appear, Montmartre is realizing that it has itself killed the goose so well remembered for its egg-laying propensities. Although Paris is filled with tourists, in spite of gold standard living costs, they are manifestly staying away from the Butte.

The reason is that Montmartre has refused to recognize, for example, that champagne at 200 francs the bottle, or single drinks, including a short beer, at 35 francs the glass, the prices incongruous with the times.

As a result, the tourist avoidance of Montmartre has aided Montparnasse, on the other side of the Seine. Nightly the terraces of the Dome, Rotonde, Coupule, Select and other left bank cafés are jammed.

While Montmartre always was known to the initiated as a sucker's paradise, because of its fabulous prices, its passing is due in great part to the continuance of dishonest practices, by which unwary patrons have been almost invariably overcharged, short changed or otherwise defrauded.

Europeans Build Roads to Lure U. S. Motorists

WASHINGTON.—[U. P.]—Keen competition among the European countries for the American tourist dollars is reflected in greatly improved motoring conditions on the continent, says the foreign travel division, American Automobile association.

This statement was made by the A. A. A. following a survey which showed that vacationists overseas are finding better roads, more efficient service, more suitable hotel accommodations, and less red tape from year to year. The survey showed that:

The average party spends four months abroad and covers virtually every important country, with preferences to those countries where good roads are available.

Three members compose the average party making a trip abroad with their car.

Approximately 6,950 miles are covered by the average party during the four months' stay—sufficient time to visit all the more generally known points of interest.

The A. A. A. pointed out that late season travelers enjoy the advantages of less crowded steamers and hotels.

On the Famous "Pleasure Planned" Liners QUEEN of BERMUDA MONARCH of BERMUDA (EACH OVER 22,400 GROSS TONS)

Nassau as well as Bermuda on a single Furness trip—with plenty of time to really enjoy both! First, cycling, driving or bathing in Bermuda. Then the Jewel of the Bahamas, with its harbor bustle and buccaneer background so unlike Bermuda—yet so like it in British charm. A day of sightseeing, bathing at Paradise Beach, visiting Fort Charlotte—topped off with a gay Nassau evening, dancing if you like as a guest of the Nassau Yacht Club. Then another two days and three nights of "pleasure-planned" luxury homeward bound.

With stopovers allowed at both ports a variety of vacations may be planned. Meantime, Furness continues its frequent sailings to and from Bermuda, offering trips of almost any duration—at the lowest cost in years.

Whenever you go—whichever trip you choose—you enjoy true Furness hospitality and a period of pleasure at sea that can only be experienced on these "pleasure-planned" liners—the "Queen of Bermuda" or the "Monarch of Bermuda".

"THE 1933 CONQUEST OF THE AIR"

Can You Name the Famous Flyers Represented by These Pictures?

NOTE: Follow the airplane in the picture. Dotted line marks its course. Arrows indicate objects it touches. The first letters of the names of the objects touched by the airplane form the name of a Famous Flyer.

THE PRIZES:

1st Prize	$1,000.00
2nd Prize	500.00
3rd Prize	300.00
Next 2 Prizes, $200 ea.	400.00
Next 10 Prizes, $100 ea.	1,000.00
Next 20 Prizes, $50 ea.	1,000.00
Next 50 Prizes, $25 ea.	1,250.00
Next 200 Prizes, $10 ea.	2,000.00
Next 510 Prizes, $5 ea.	2,550.00
795 Prizes	$10,000.00

THIS is your last chance to start this interesting new game.

For the benefit of those who have not yet started, the first two sets of pictures are reprinted today from previous issues of the Chicago Sunday Tribune. You can start with these. They will count.

All you have to do is to name the famous flyers of 1933 represented by puzzle pictures printed in the Chicago Tribune each Sunday. Note the pictures printed at the right. Can you name the famous flyers of 1933 represented by these pictures?

Follow this interesting new game each Sunday in the Chicago Sunday Tribune until you have the entire series. Then send them in.

The Chicago Tribune will pay $10,000 in cash awards to the persons who submit the best solutions. There are 795 big cash prizes.

No hard work to do—no subscriptions to solicit. Just amuse yourself by solving the puzzle pictures. Start with the first three sets of pictures printed here. Then get Set No. 4 in next Sunday's Tribune.

THE RULES:

WHO CAN ENTER: Every man, woman, boy, and girl is eligible, regardless of residence, excepting employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing.

WHAT TO DO: Solve the series of Puzzle Pictures of Famous Flyers of 1933 appearing each Sunday in the Chicago Sunday Tribune. Follow the course of the airplane in each picture as indicated by dotted line. The first letter of the name of each object touched by the plane's course, as shown by arrows, makes the name of a flyer. Simply write the name of the Flyer, as indicated by the picture, on the line below it. Three pictures will appear each Sunday in the Chicago Sunday Tribune until 42 have appeared.

WHERE TO SEND ENTRIES: DO NOT send in pictures one at a time. Hold all pictures until you have the complete set of 42. Then send them to "Conquest of the Air," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois. All entries must be in by midnight, 15 days after Picture No. 42 has been printed. Send in your entry by first class mail. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Post Office Department.

THE PRIZES: The Chicago Tribune will pay 795 cash prizes totaling $10,000.00 to the persons who send in the nearest correctly solved and neatest complete sets of pictures in accordance with these rules. You do not necessarily have to solve each of the 42 pictures correctly to win. Prizes will be paid to the persons whose entries rank highest. Elaborate entries are not necessary. Just make your entry simple and neat.

JUDGING: Entries will be judged by a Committee appointed by the Chicago Tribune and their decision will be final. Accuracy in naming the pictures will be the first consideration; neatness the next. In case of ties duplicate awards will be paid.

NOTHING TO BUY: This offer is presented for the entertainment and education of Chicago Sunday Tribune readers. However, it is not necessary to buy the Chicago Tribune to compete. You may copy or trace the pictures from the Chicago Tribune. It may be seen at public libraries or at the Tribune offices, free of charge.

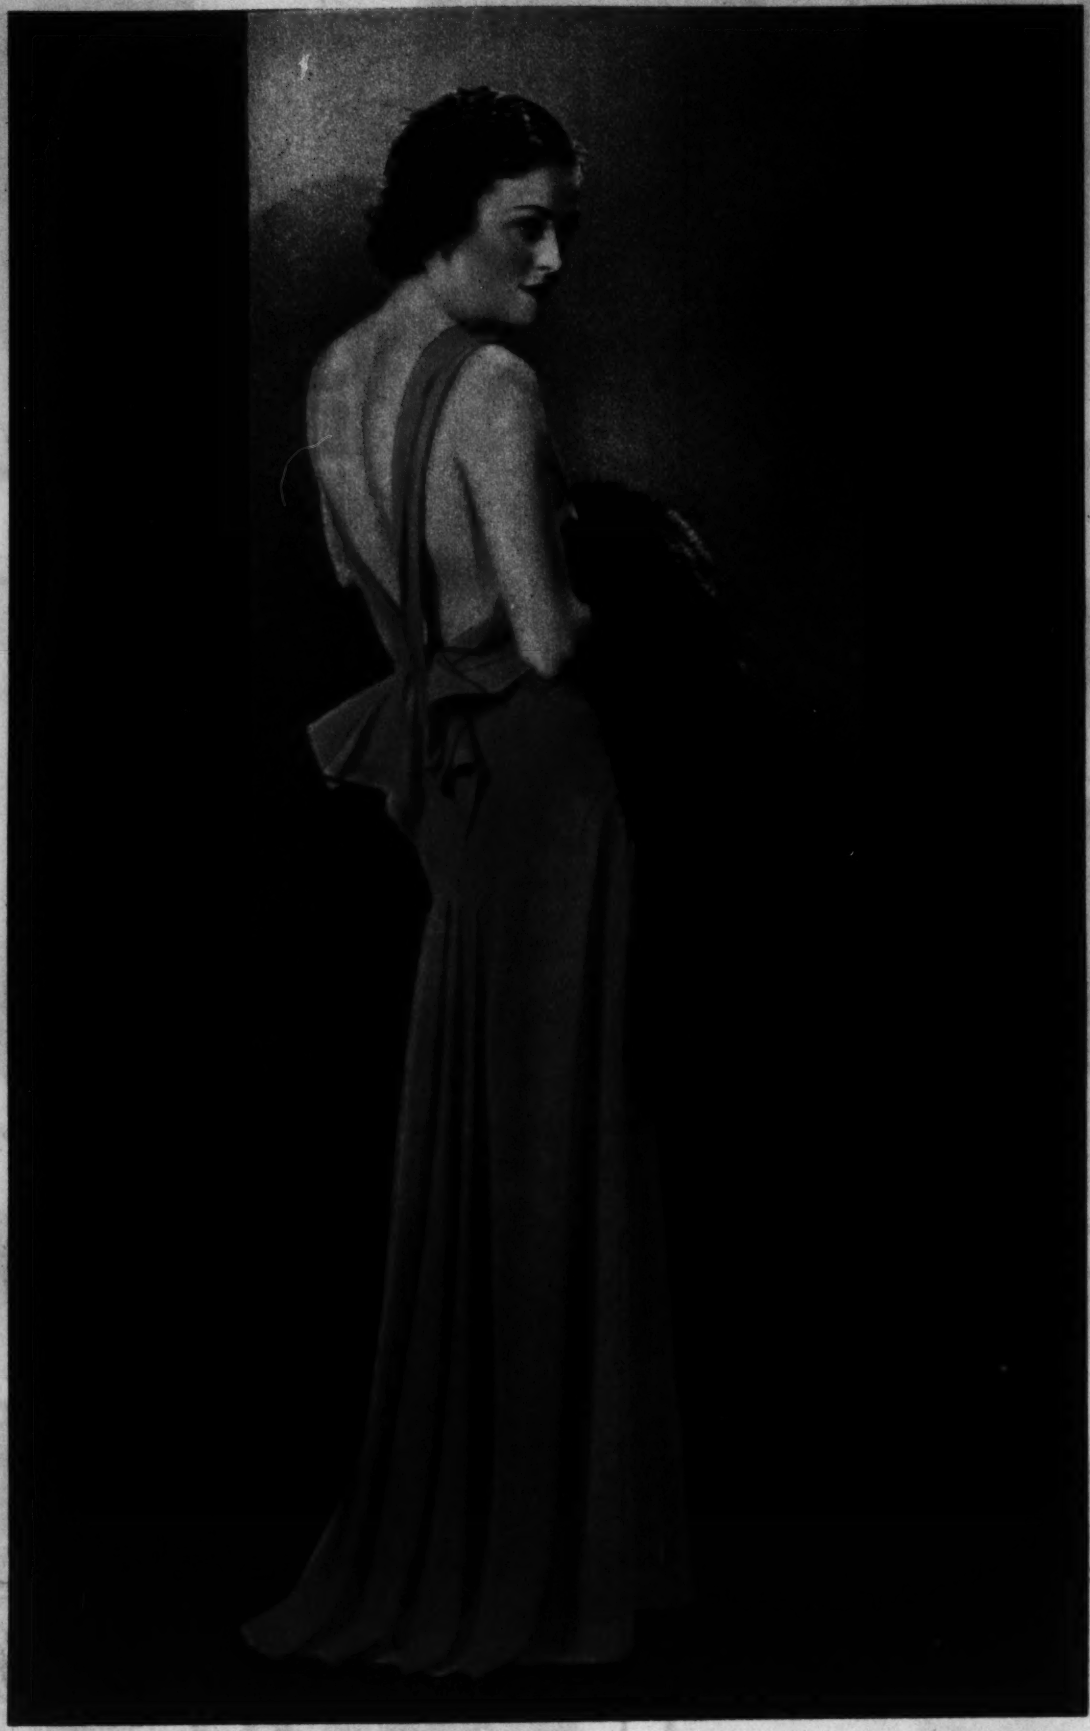
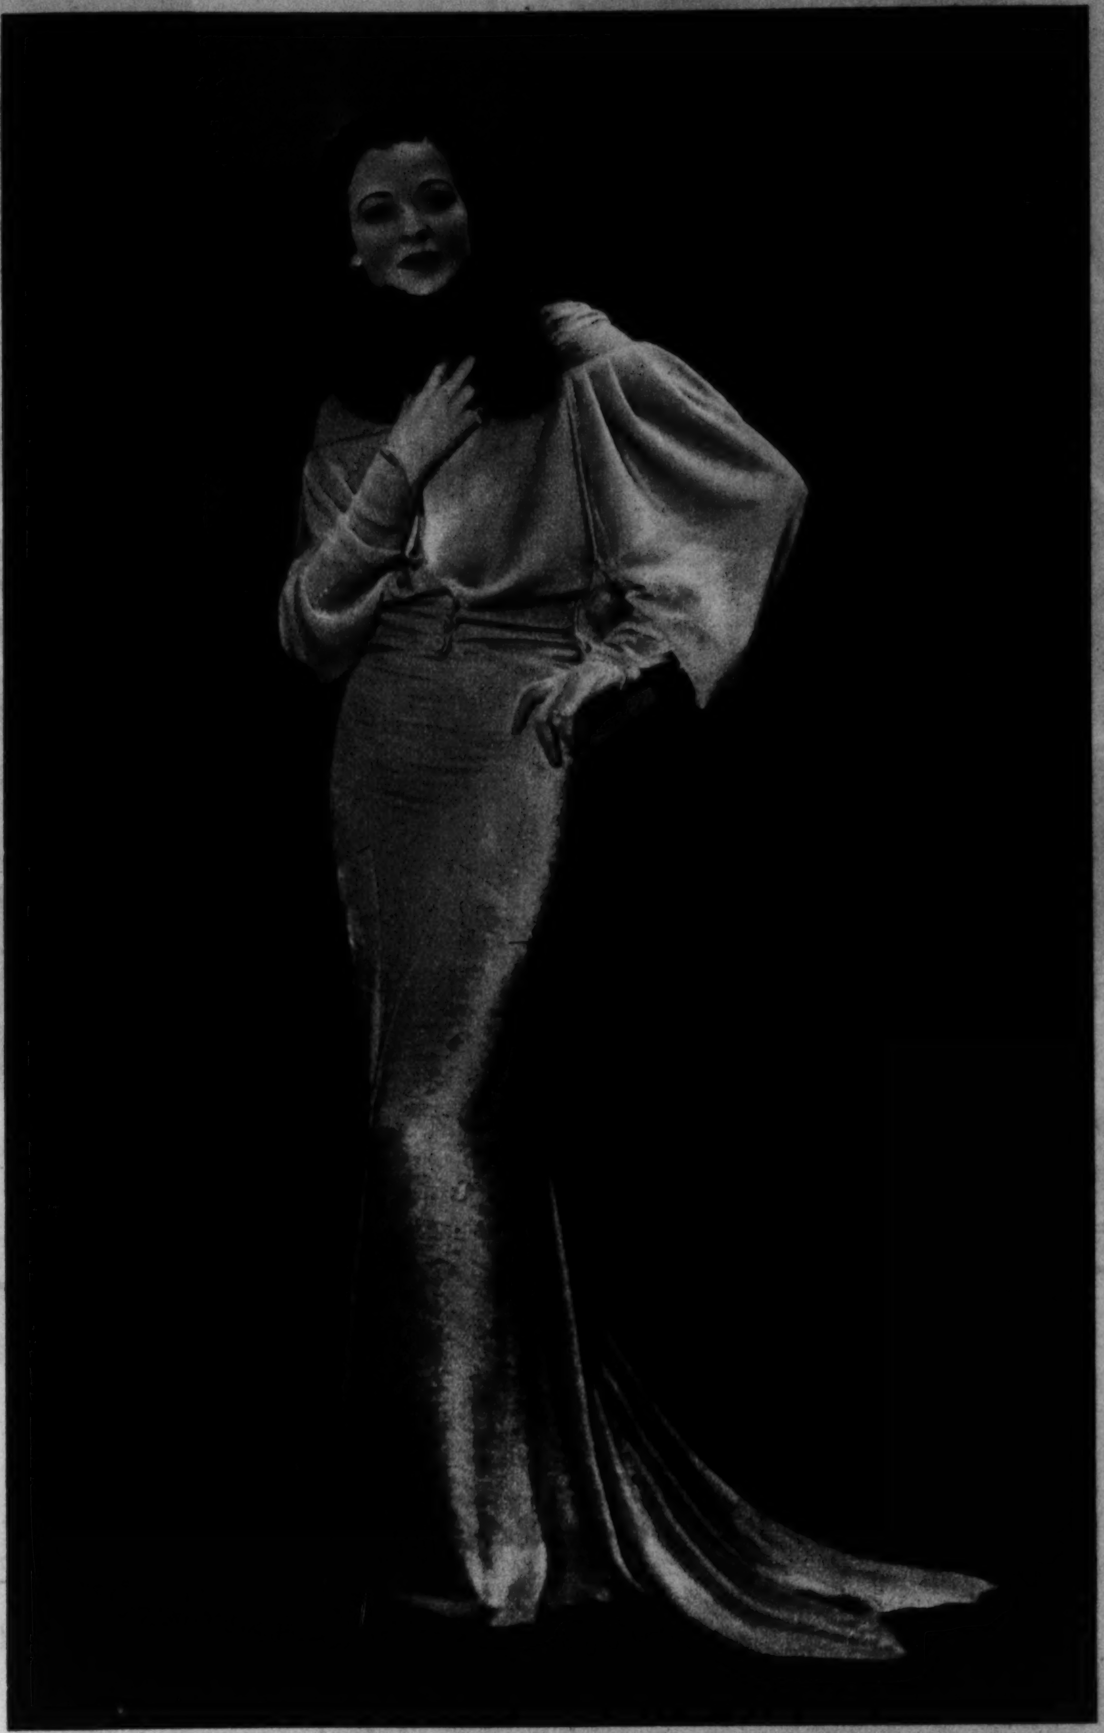
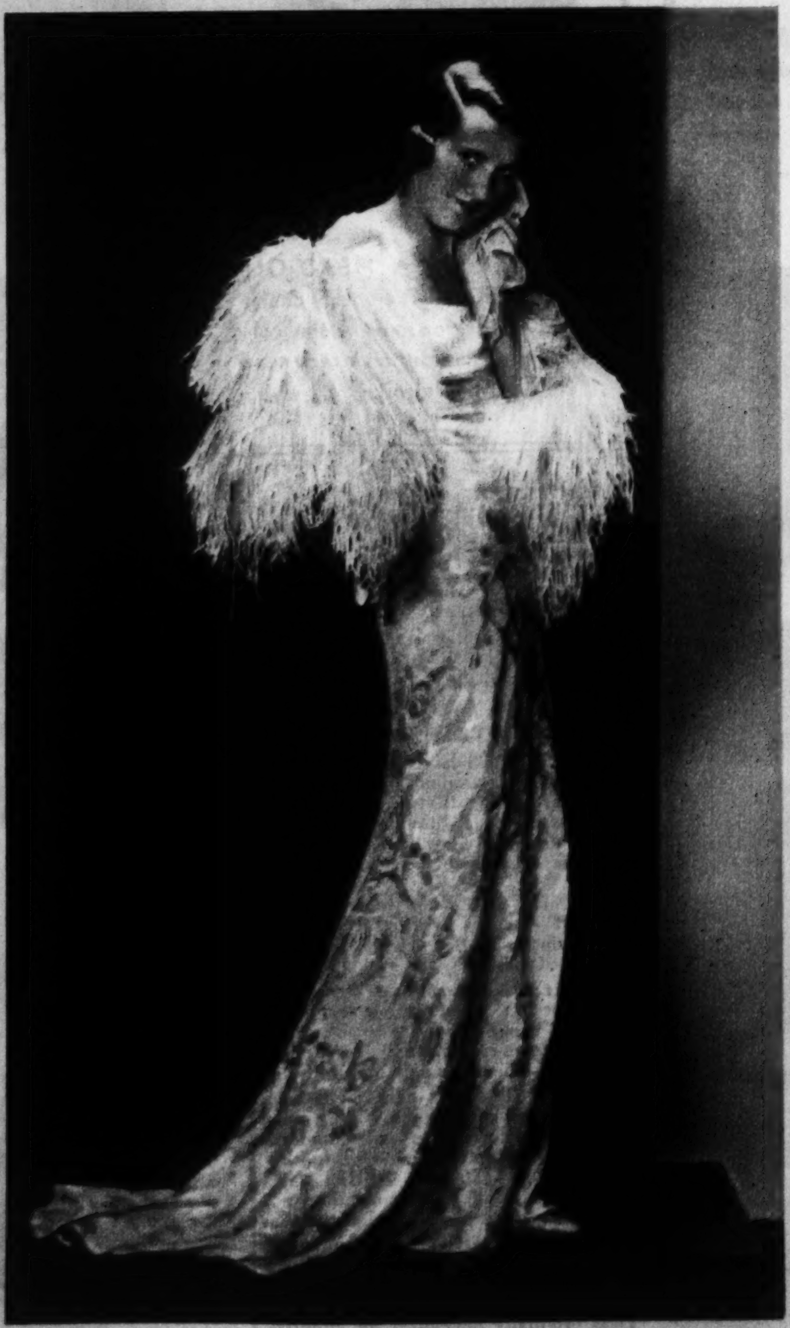
NEW MODES FROM PARIS



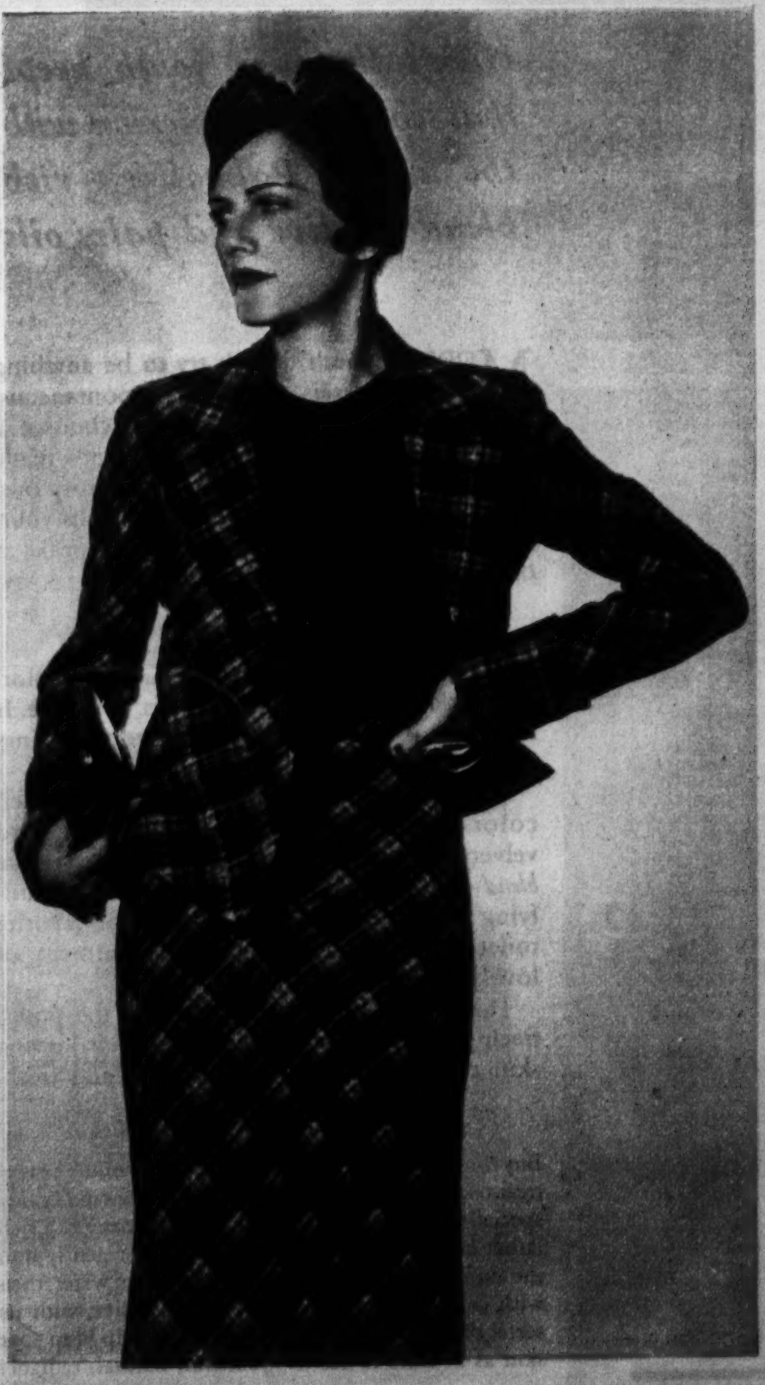
Patou evening frock in the new tawny red for formal winter evenings. The back movement is smart, and achieved by a fan at the waistline and a pleated-top panel in the skirt. The sable cape is hip length.



Panne velvet, in this glorious shade of green, returns to fashion for formal evening. Jean Patou makes the trailing frock, and quaintly yoked evening jacket of it. He adds a sable collar to the neckline.



The green and rose of the opal is caught into the satin brocade of this Molyneux evening frock with opalescent feather cape.



The fashionable sports woman will wear this plaid, downy woolen suit from Molyneux this season. It's all cut on the bias and has square leather buttons. The hat and sweater of darkest taupe supply a sober note, denied by the multicolored feathers on the hat.

[Color photographs by Scaioni, Paris.]

Youth dares to be natural

Here's the way youth keeps that schoolgirl complexion with the aid of Palmolive's rich blend of olive and palm oils

MODERN youth doesn't try to be anything but what it is . . . natural, spontaneous, adorable! Assuredly, then, youth chooses a soap that is nature's own beauty recipe—made from a blend of the finest natural beauty oils, Palmolive—truly, the soap of youth. Help yourself retain that skin loveliness which speaks at once of youth . . . use Palmolive!

Pure, safe, protective

Remember, Palmolive is free of artificial coloring, strong perfumes, harsh alkalis. It is pure. It is safe. It is soothing, softening, youth-giving. Its very olive-green color assures its purity.

Olive oil gives it that soft, natural green color. Olive oil, too, gives it so rich and velvety a lather. And the blend—the exclusive blend of olive and palm oils—gives it beautifying properties that have made it the favorite toilet soap, the chosen beauty treatment of lovely women, the world over.

Palmolive's mild lather penetrates the pores, freeing them of accumulations easily . . . leaving skin soft, smooth, gloriously clear and fresh.

Use this beauty treatment

Buy three cakes today. Then, start this 2-minute beauty treatment recommended by over twenty thousand beauty specialists: every morning and evening, massage a rich lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water gently into the skin with your hands; rinse with warm water, then with cold. Prove to yourself that Palmolive, with its secret blend of olive and palm oils, can help keep your skin as he likes to see it—youthful, natural, radiant!

This much olive oil goes into the making of every cake of Palmolive

PALMOLIVE . . . the soap of Youth

NEW FACTS About PAIN

● SCIENTISTS have discovered important new facts about pain. For years they have known that pressure on sensitive nerve ends is the direct cause of pain. Now at last they have found a new safe way of relieving this pressure by RELAXATION.

● HEXIN—an amazing new scientific formula—relieves pain simply, quickly and properly by this newest and safest approved method.

● AS HEXIN relaxes muscles tense from over-work, (1) blood resumes its normal flow, (2) congestion—the cause of pressure on nerve ends—is removed, (3) pain vanishes—quickly, safely, naturally.

● DON'T TAKE A CHANCE with acid tablets which simply drug your nerves and aggravate acid stomach. HEXIN relieves headaches and other pains the only safe way—by RELAXATION. Its alkaline formula does not injure the heart nor upset the stomach.

● MODERN DOCTORS know the HEXIN formula and endorse it. Buy a box today. Be sure to insist on HEXIN. Nothing else is "just as good". HEXIN was originally developed for children. Its action had to be safe.

No Mother Would Knowingly Take This Chance

Only Lack of Knowledge Would Make Her Do It . . . Take the Chance of Giving Her Child Drugs of Which She Knows Nothing

A CHILD'S health is too precious for experiment; a child's life beyond the price of pennies.

That's something, of course, that every mother's instinct tells her. The protective instinct that makes her value her child's life far beyond her own.

Yet — every day, principally through lack of proper knowledge, thousands of mothers gamble the welfare of their children on unknown drugs.

The road to safety lies along the path of your doctor's orders. And never to go against them.

Doctors Say PHILLIPS' For Your Child

Now, when it comes to the very important — and frequently used — "milk of magnesia," doctors for over fifty years have said "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia . . . the safe remedy for your child."

This is because genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia marks what is known to the medical profession as one of the finest laboratory products the world of science knows.

See That Your Child Gets It

See that your child gets this; the finest that men know; genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Get it for your own peace-of-mind. Get it in protection of your child.

If you are offered a "bargain" substitute for the real Phillips' article, ask your doctor before you buy it. He will tell you that giving your child unknown drugs is one of the most dangerous, most risky things you can do. You can get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia at any drug store, in liquid or tablet form—for a small sum.

SAFETY FOR YOU AND YOURS
IN THIS BOTTLE

You can assist others by refusing to accept anything but the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Do this in the interest of yourself and your children—and in the interest of the public in general.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM:
Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

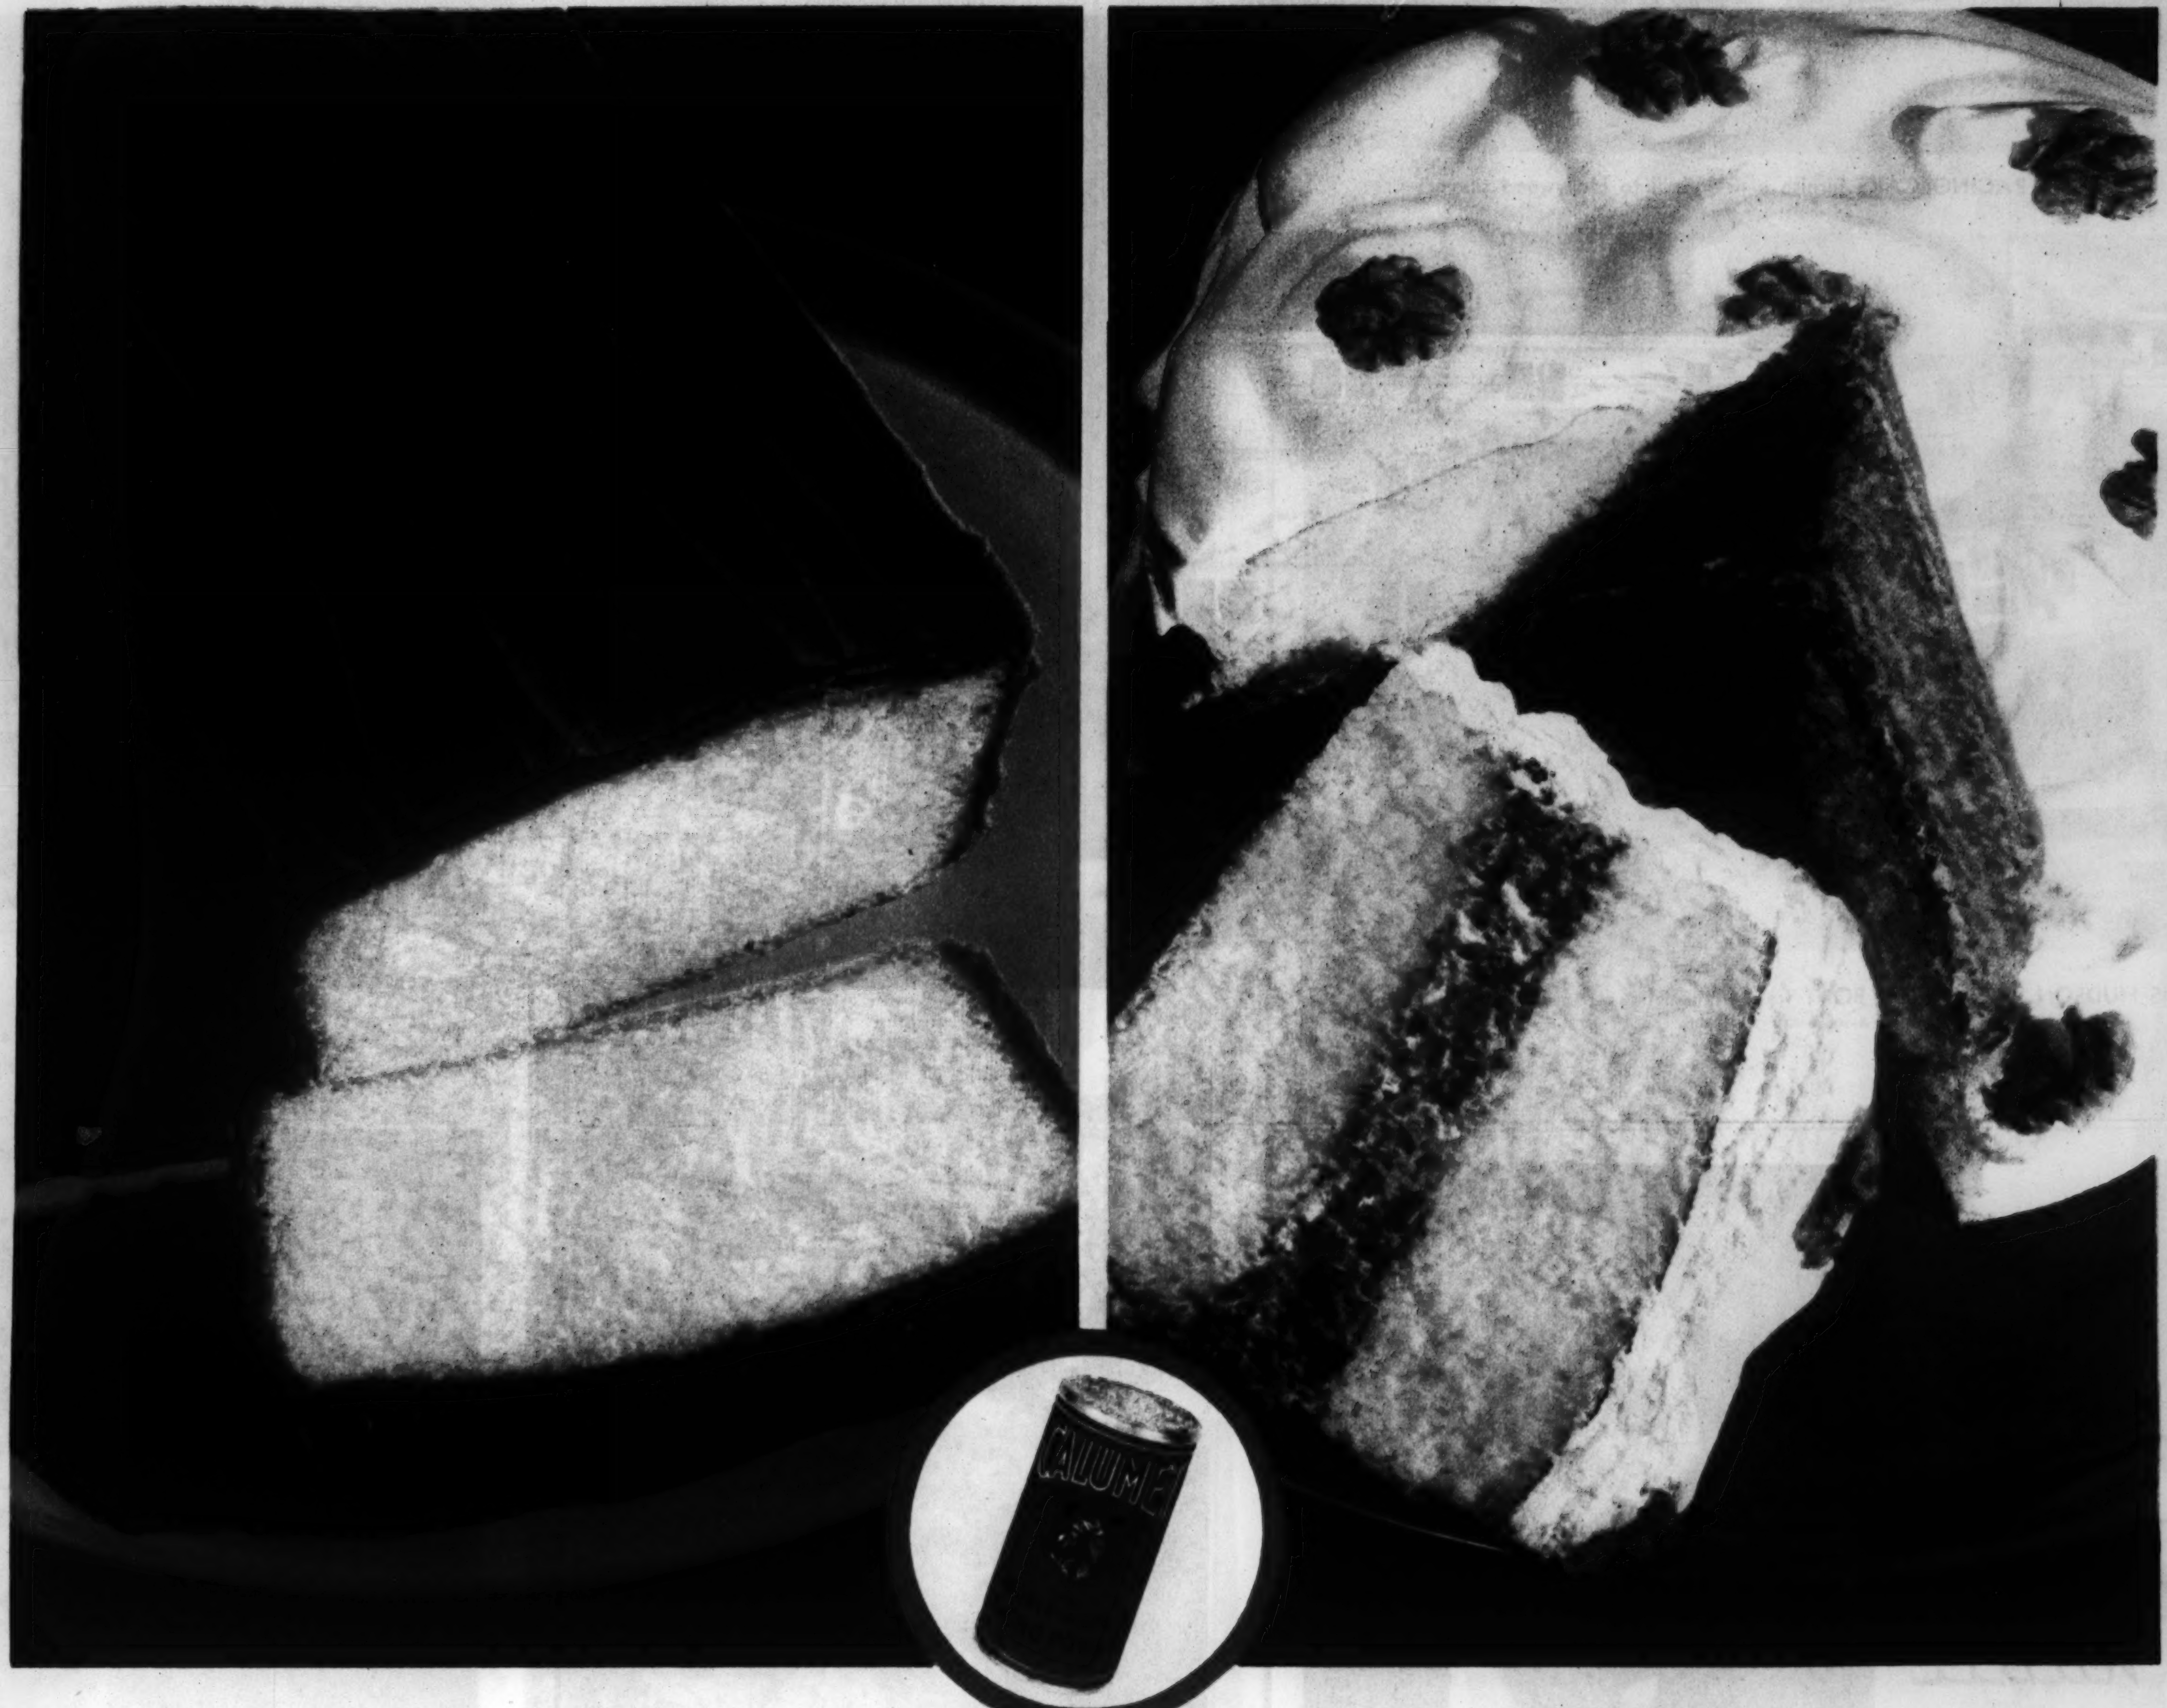
EVERYDAY CAKE — OR PARTY CAKE . . .

Every Calumet Cake has "Velvety Crumb"



FEEL a bit of Calumet cake between your finger and thumb. What word could describe it but "velvety"?

TOUCH the cut surface with your forefinger. How gently it springs back, tenderly resilient and moist!

TASTE it—the soft texture is as exquisite as the delicate flavor. By every test, your Calumet cake has the quality that experts call "Velvety Crumb"!

* * *

"What about the crumb?" cake experts ask in judging cakes. "Fine"—"tender"—these are favorable ratings.

But it is astonishing how often they use a warmer word of praise when Calumet cakes are shown! And nine times out of ten the word is "velvety." Nothing else does justice to the soft, tender richness which is so characteristic of Calumet's perfect leavening. It is evident in every kind of cake made with Calumet.

Why does Calumet leaven all cakes so much more evenly and delicately than other baking powders? Because it acts twice, first in the mixing bowl and then in the oven. The first action begins when liquid is added to the dry ingredients, but the second is held in reserve to act in the heat of the oven. Working together, these two carefully balanced actions protect the batter all through the baking—raising it to light perfection.

This double-action is so efficient that much less Calumet is needed than the amount required with the baking powder you may be using now. Only a level teaspoon to a cup of sifted flour—this is the standard Calumet proportion. And it gives simple one-egg cakes and elaborate party cakes the same wonderful velvety crumb! Economy—added to glorious quality!

Get a can of Calumet from your grocer. Try this easy, inexpensive, one-egg cake—a recipe you'll soon know by heart! Calumet is a product of General Foods.

★ CALUMET ONE-EGG CAKE ★

2 cups sifted Swans Down Cake Flour
2 teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
¼ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg, unbeaten
¾ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat very thoroughly. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in greased pan, 8 x 4 x 3 inches, in moderate oven (350° F.) one hour. Spread chocolate or Mocha frosting over top and sides of cake. May also be baked in two greased 9-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375° F.) 25 minutes. Double recipe for three 10-inch layers.

(All measurements are level)

End the "Puff habit" with this Dull Finish Powder

Some women, poor things, are constantly dabbing at their noses with powder-puffs, in a desperate effort to remove unlovely shine. They don't know Houbigant Dull Finish Face Powder!

This superb powder gives your nose—and your whole complexion—a petal-smooth, flattering Dull Finish; it adheres for hours and hours . . . veiling your oily nose pores as well as your finer-pored cheeks and shoulders. Fluff it on at your boudoir-table—and you can be serenely certain of loveliness that lasts for hours without need of a puff!

Choose Houbigant Dull Finish Face Powder, in the famous odeurs Quelques Fleurs or Le Parfum Ideal, at any department or drug store. Price $1, (or a demi-size at 55 cents). Its six shades comprise the full range of skin tones.

AND THESE ARE WORTHY COMPANIONS!

Houbigant "Lipstick Tenace." An enormous success abroad—and on your lips! Exceptionally indelible and smooth; four entrancing lip-tones; smart gold-finished case. $1.

Quelques Fleurs Skin Lotion—a superbly fragranced powder base; keeps hands and arms smooth and soft. Delightfully creamy, it vanishes without a bit of stickiness. $1.

The distinction that lifts some women above others may be beauty or talent or personality. Most important of all is exquisite taste—a distinction that Springtime in Paris places within your reach.

Springtime in Paris was created for women who seek that indefinable touch that makes them admired. It is a different fragrance ... expressive beyond words of character and success.

Springtime in Paris face powder is caressingly soft of texture, clinging, invisible except for the beauty it gives. See the complete series—perfume, powder and other accessories at the better department and drug stores.

HOW THE WRONG SHADE OF FACE POWDER CAN MAKE YOU LOOK YEARS OLDER

Pavlova's Experience

ANNA PAVLOVA, the great dancer, was giving two concerts in a distant city. The first night she looked gloriously young and vibrant. But the second night she was another woman altogether—she looked old and haggard. Something terrible had happened to cause the transformation. What was it?

Just this: By mistake the wrong colored spotlight was thrown on her. And the effect was that she appeared twenty years older. The audience whispered—"My, how old Pavlova looks." The right light was immediately switched on. But the damage was done! No one in the audience could be convinced that Pavlova hadn't grown old.

Your Face Powder Shade—Aging or Youthifying?

What holds for lighting holds for face powder shades, too. The wrong shade can make you look five to ten years older. Many women choosing their face powder shade on the wrong basis, are victims of a decidedly aging effect. Could it be possible that you, too, are paying the penalty of the wrong shade of face powder? Look at the above illustration. It gives you some idea of the difference the right and wrong shade of face powder makes.

One Way to Tell

There is one way to tell which is the right shade of face powder for you—which shade makes you look young rather than old—and that is to try all the five basic shades. As Lady Esther has demonstrated and, as color specialists confirm, there are five basic shades which supply the needs of all types of women. One of these will prove the most flattering and—youthifying—for you. And Lady Esther offers you the opportunity of finding out that shade at her expense.

At Lady Esther's Expense!

Simply mail your name and address and you will receive a liberal supply of all five shades of Lady Esther Face Powder. Try them all on your face before your mirror and instantly one of these shades will prove the one for you. Mail coupon now for all five shades of Lady Esther Face Powder.

a Few Minutes
.. then SLEEP!

What to do if you SLEEP "POORLY"

A Simple Way to Get Sound Sleep Quickly Tonight, Entirely Without Drugs

No More Tossing And Lying Awake At Night . . . New Energy And Quiet Nerves Tomorrow

HERE'S good news for "poor sleepers"! Important news for those who lie awake and toss at night, only to pay the penalty next day with racing nerves and heavy head, and vitality at low ebb.

For science has discovered a simple way to bring sound sleep at night a few minutes after you go to bed. No medicines are used—no drugs employed. Just a delicious food concentrate you take mixed with warm milk a few minutes before retiring.

You fall asleep as effortlessly as a child. And sleep your full eight hours more peacefully and restfully than you have, probably, in weeks and months.

In the morning you awaken greatly refreshed—brimming with new strength and energy. For this new way does more than bring quick sleep. It rebuilds nerve, brain and body tissues while you are asleep.

As a result you find your vitality and "staying power" greatly increased throughout the day. And new poise replacing those racing nerves so many of us wonder what to do about in these trying modern times.

What It Is—How It Acts

This remarkable food-drink is called Ovaltine, and it acts to combat the 3 most common causes of sleeplessness in 3 different ways—entirely without drugs.

First: Ovaltine, taken as a warm drink at bedtime, tends to draw excess blood away from the brain. Thus inviting mental calm and "conditioning" the mind for sleep.

Second: Ovaltine corrects digestive unrest by gently stimulating and aiding digestive processes.

Third: Ovaltine supplies important food elements, the absence of which, in ordinary diet, leads to irritated nerves and sleeplessness.

Why Physicians Advise It

So surprising are the results achieved by Ovaltine, that it has been approved by more than 20,000 doctors. During the World War, medical authorities made it a standard ration for rebuilding shell-shocked, nerve-shattered soldiers. While today its use has spread to 54 different countries.

In America millions are using it these days. And thousands are voluntarily reporting results which have been surprising.

For example, a trained nurse (Mrs. Letty Lunney, 563 Power Road, Pawtucket, R. I.) writes: "Taken before going to bed, Ovaltine seems to act like magic, soothes tired nerves and brings refreshing sleep. Being a nurse, I am recommending it to patients."

Another woman (Mrs. Eugene F. Allen of Boston) reports: "My husband has been drinking Ovaltine for only three weeks, but the results are wonderful. Previously he had been unable to sleep nights and in the morning was just as tired as when he went to bed—nervous and very irritable. Now he seems to be a different man. He sleeps soundly all night, feels rested and full of energy in the morning, and he has a lot of 'pep' left at night after a hard day's work."

Remarkable Tests

In addition to the enthusiastic reports from users—of which the above excerpts are typical—Ovaltine was recently subjected to severe tests by an Eastern University scientist.

He picked 2,500 people entirely at random without regard for the way they usually slept.

Then this group of 2,500 people was given Ovaltine for 3 consecutive nights. And afterward they were questioned as to how much better they slept.

When results were tabulated it was found that 83 out of every 100 had noted a definite improvement. And when sounder sleep is secured at night, extra energy naturally comes as a result next day.

Particularly illuminating was the fact that many of those who experienced this improvement already classified as "average good sleepers." Yet, despite this fact, they slept even more restfully than before. Thus indicating that this remarkable food concentrate not only brings sound sleep quickly—but tends to improve the quality of sleep.

See For Yourself

Don't judge Ovaltine merely by what users claim for it. Disregard, if you wish, the results of the remarkable tests described above. But try it—and see for yourself exactly what it can do.

Observe how quickly you fall asleep at night—how much fresher you look and feel next day. Note, too, how much greater energy you have—how "staying power" multiplies.

As you continue to take Ovaltine, observe the permanent benefits you obtain. See how it builds up and maintains your natural tendency to sleep soundly every night—how vitality increases.

So once again we say—don't put up with sleepless nights another day. Say goodbye to night-time tossing. 'Phone your druggist or grocer for a tin of Ovaltine now—you'll be glad you did.

NOTE: Thousands of nervous people, men and women, are using Ovaltine to restore vitality when fatigued. It is also highly recommended by physicians for nervous, underweight children—and as a strengthening food for nursing mothers, convalescents, and the aged. 996

Greater Resistance To Fatigue

In addition to inducing sound sleep and improving its quality, Ovaltine has been found to increase resistance to fatigue to a very marked degree. In fact, certain business houses (both in America and abroad) are making a practice of giving Ovaltine to employes every day to combat mid-afternoon fatigue. One reason for this is that Ovaltine has such a high energy value, and that this value is supplied in a form that can be digested and utilised almost at once . . . The photographically recreated scene above shows a subject taking the standard "tapping test" for determining the effect of fatigue on speed and agility. Subjects taking Ovaltine prior to heavy exercise showed much less fatigue by doing 10.6% better in the "tapping test" than when Ovaltine was not previously given.

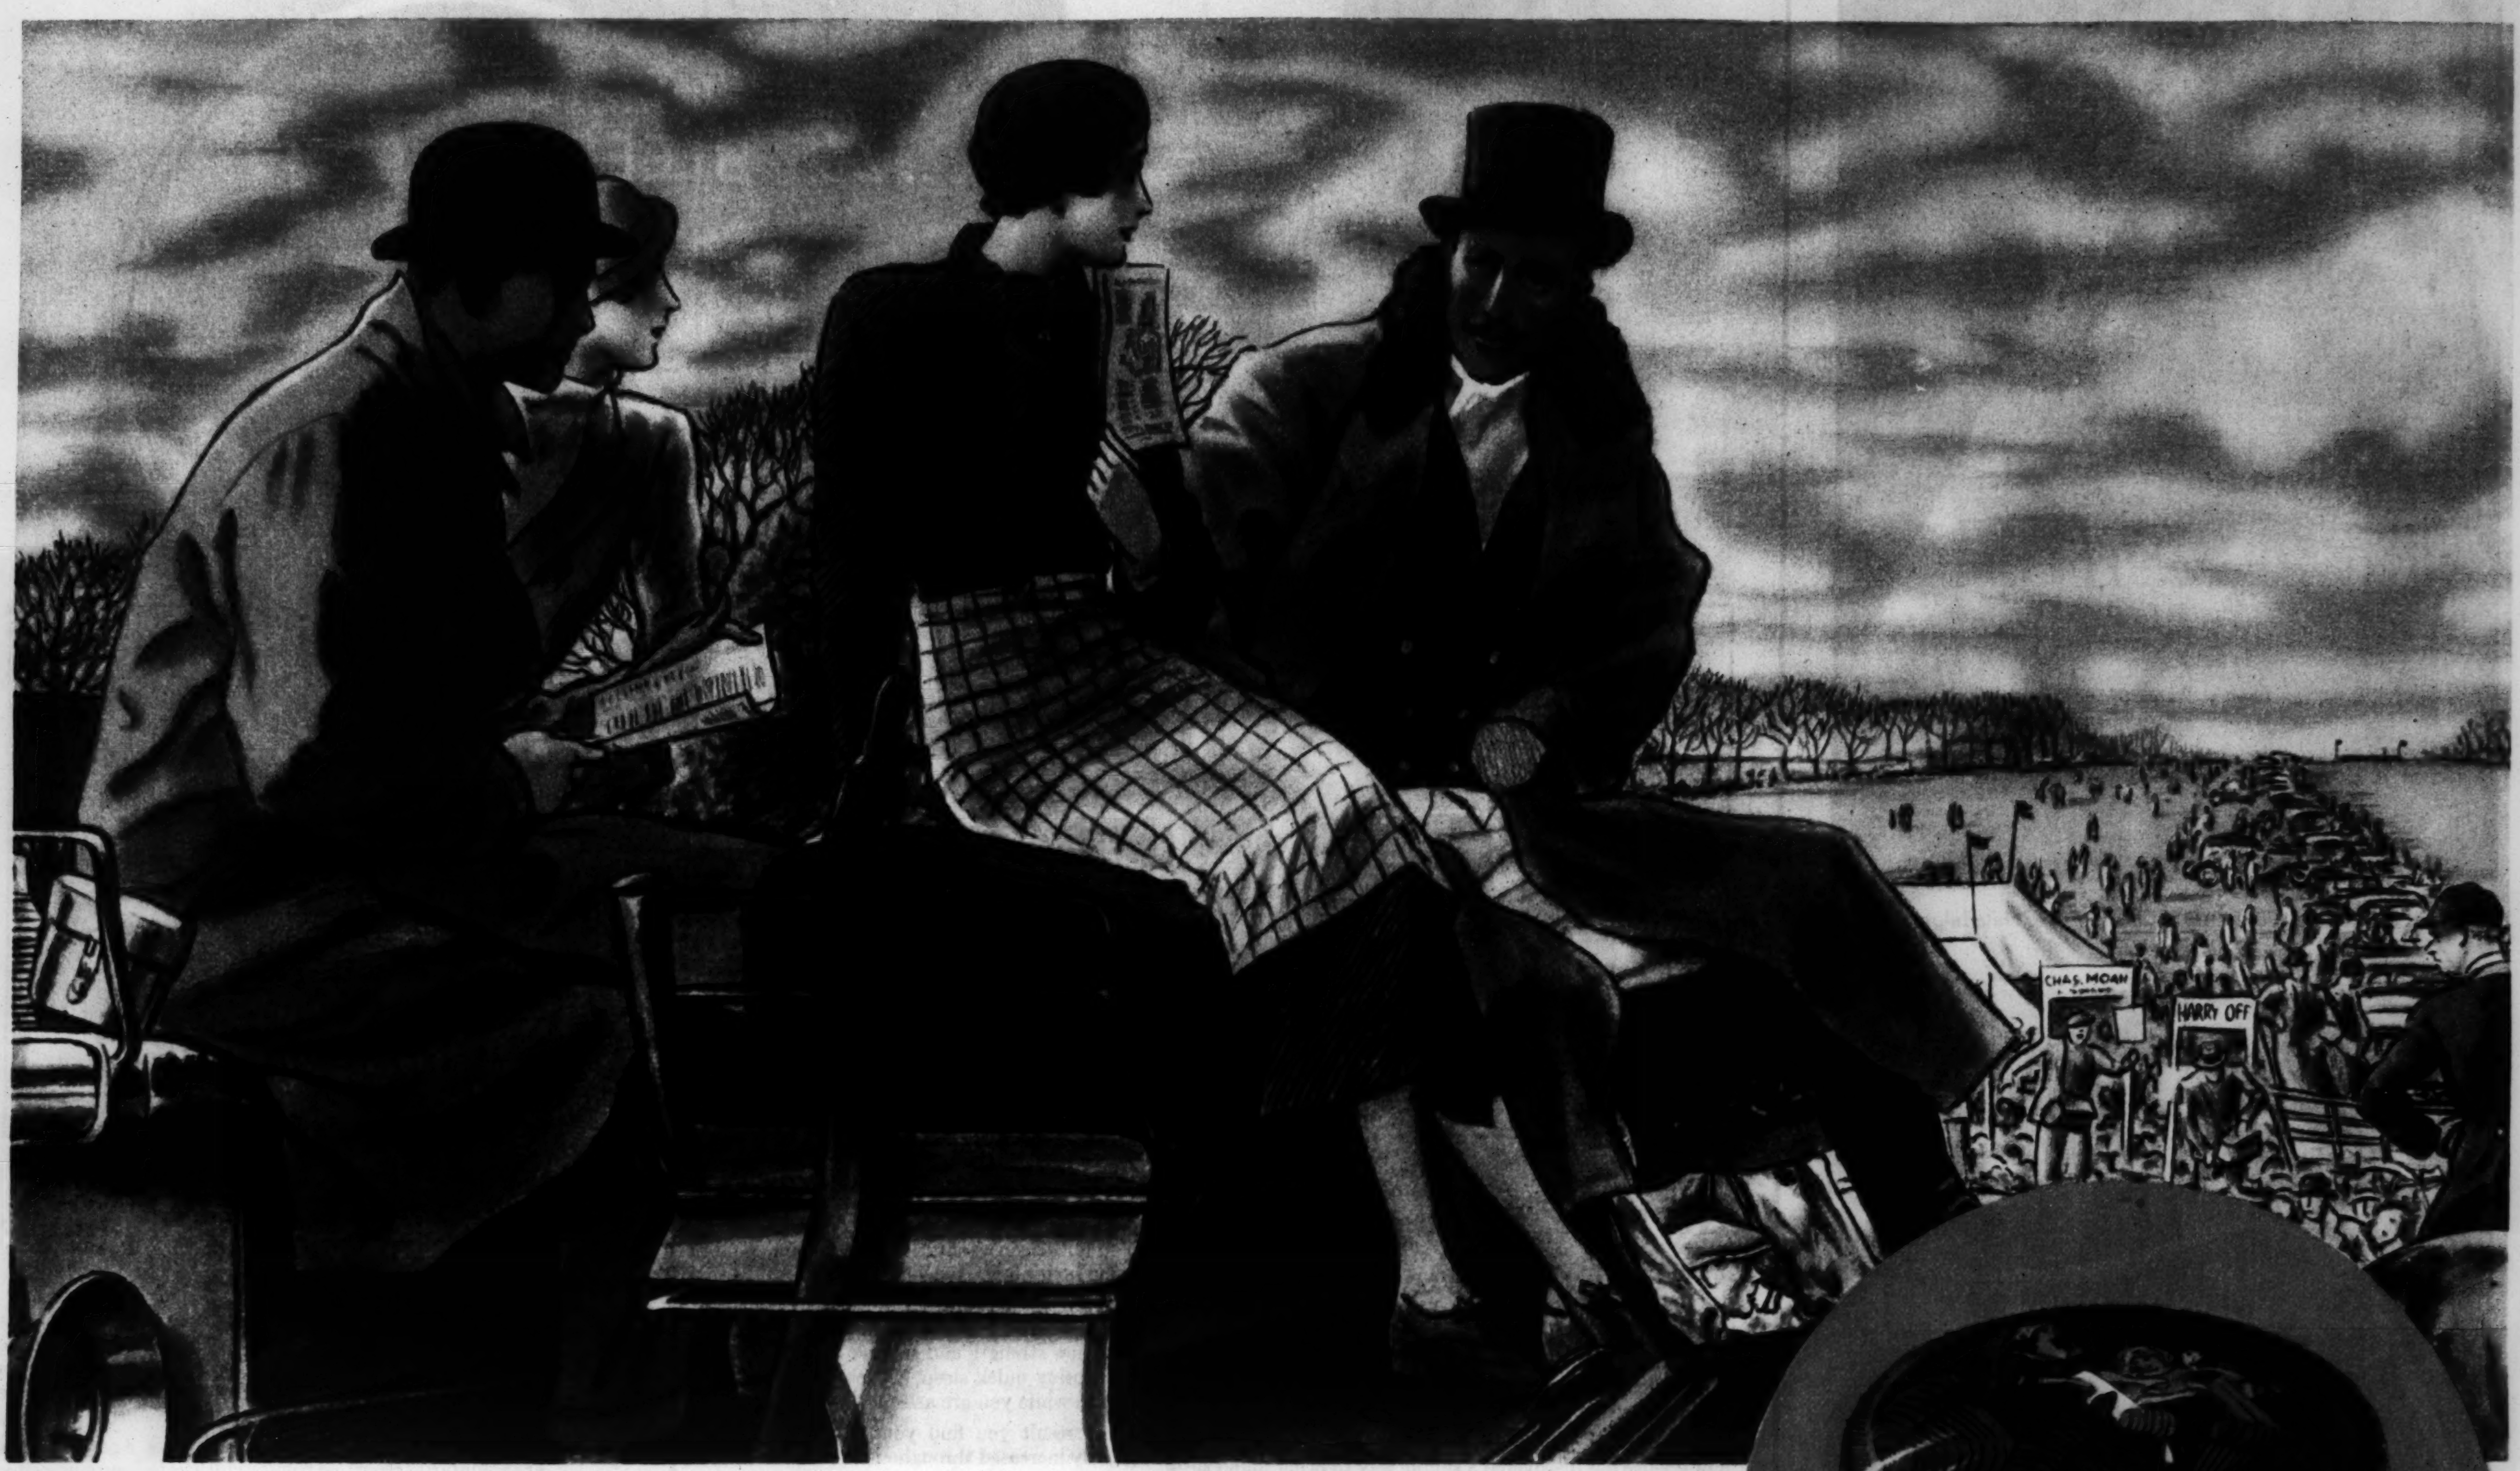
Restful Sleep—Youthful Days

Of all the "beauty treatments" ever devised, nothing else equals sound, restful sleep! Specialists concur in this and common sense bears it out. That is why so many women these days take Ovaltine religiously every night to insure the kind of rest that keeps them young in looks and spirit. And to increase their ability to recover from fatigue—that arch-enemy of nerve poise and of beauty . . . The photograph above shows a subject preparing Ovaltine at bedtime by simply adding 2 to 4 teaspoonfuls of it to a cup of warm milk. (Women who are reducing make a practice of preparing Ovaltine with skim milk—and find that it is invaluable in supplying important, non-fattening elements needed to prevent loss of vitality when dieting strenuously.)

For Convalescent Children, Too

Ovaltine was originally created in Switzerland, pioneer in child welfare research. And today is also used extensively in children's sanitariums all over the world as an aid to convalescence—especially following whooping cough, measles, scarlet fever, and in cases of tuberculosis . . . The photograph at the left shows a group of children undergoing treatment for tuberculosis at the famous sun-school of Dr. Rollier in Cergnat Valley, Ormonts, Switzerland. At this sanitarium-school, which has gained world fame for its phenomenal success in treating tuberculosis, Ovaltine is regarded as an important adjunct to convalescence, and is served to patients as a regular ration several times each day.

Soft as a Winter Snowflake, the English Woman's lovely skin



BY APPOINTMENT TO HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN OF ENGLAND

EVEN in bitter winter, the Englishwoman's skin is soft as drifting snowflakes, her color as fresh and lovely as in June.

The reason is not far to seek. She knows how to care for her complexion . . . she realizes that if the routine is simple, it must also be thorough. If the creams and lotions are few, they must, in consequence, be of the very finest. And so she comes to Yardley (as English gentlewomen have for eight generations) for these three preparations: Yardley's English Lavender Soap, the mildest, most refreshing she has ever found; Yardley's English Complexion Cream . . . a cleanser through the day, a tissue cream at night, and a powder foundation at all hours.

And finally, Yardley's English Face Powder, a barrier, invisible and effective, against the ravages of sun and wind and weather. But so much more than that! A velvety finish for your skin . . . so luxuriously fine that upon your cheek it is wholly imperceptible; so subtly tinted that it adds only a warmth and richness to your natural coloring; so faintly, cleanly fragrant that it brings an enchanting breath of wind-swept English moors in flower.

There are other Yardley preparations, of course. May we not send you booklet TR-10, "Complexions in the Mayfair Manner"? It is free. Yardley & Co., Ltd., British Empire Building, 620 Fifth Avenue, New York; in London, at 33, Old Bond Street; and Paris, Toronto, and Sydney.

YARDLEY'S ENGLISH FACE POWDER IN SIX SUBTLE TINTS

It will leave your skin with the velvety bloom that is the supreme achievement of a really good face powder. For we have tinted it so subtly that it blends indistinguishably with your natural coloring; and we have refined it so completely that not a single particle is perceptible after you have powdered. Yardley powder will cling for longer than you would have believed it possible. It is scented delicately with Yardley's English Lavender. You have only to find your own particular shade, among the six we have created, to realize that here, at last, is a perfect face powder. Our newest color, English Peach, is especially interesting . . . a warm and becoming rachel with an undertint of pink. $1.10 a box.

Yardley's English Lavender, a light and charming fragrance for all occasions. Englishwomen prefer it particularly for morning and sports. In purse-sized flacons or elaborate decanters, from $1.10 to $15. The bottle illustrated sells for $1.10.

English Complexion Cream . . . cleansing cream, skin food, and powder foundation; and English Lavender Soap, to give your skin the mild stimulation that results in a clear and healthy coloring. The cream, formerly $1.50, now $1.10; the soap, 35 cents a cake; bath size, 55 cents; guest size, six in a box, $1.05, or 20 cents singly.

AT THE EXHIBITION . . . A complete Yardley exhibit has been established on the second floor of the General Exhibits Building at A Century of Progress. Here you may see (and sample) "Fragrance" and other Yardley preparations. Yardley extends a cordial invitation to you to inspect the display.

INJUN SUMMER

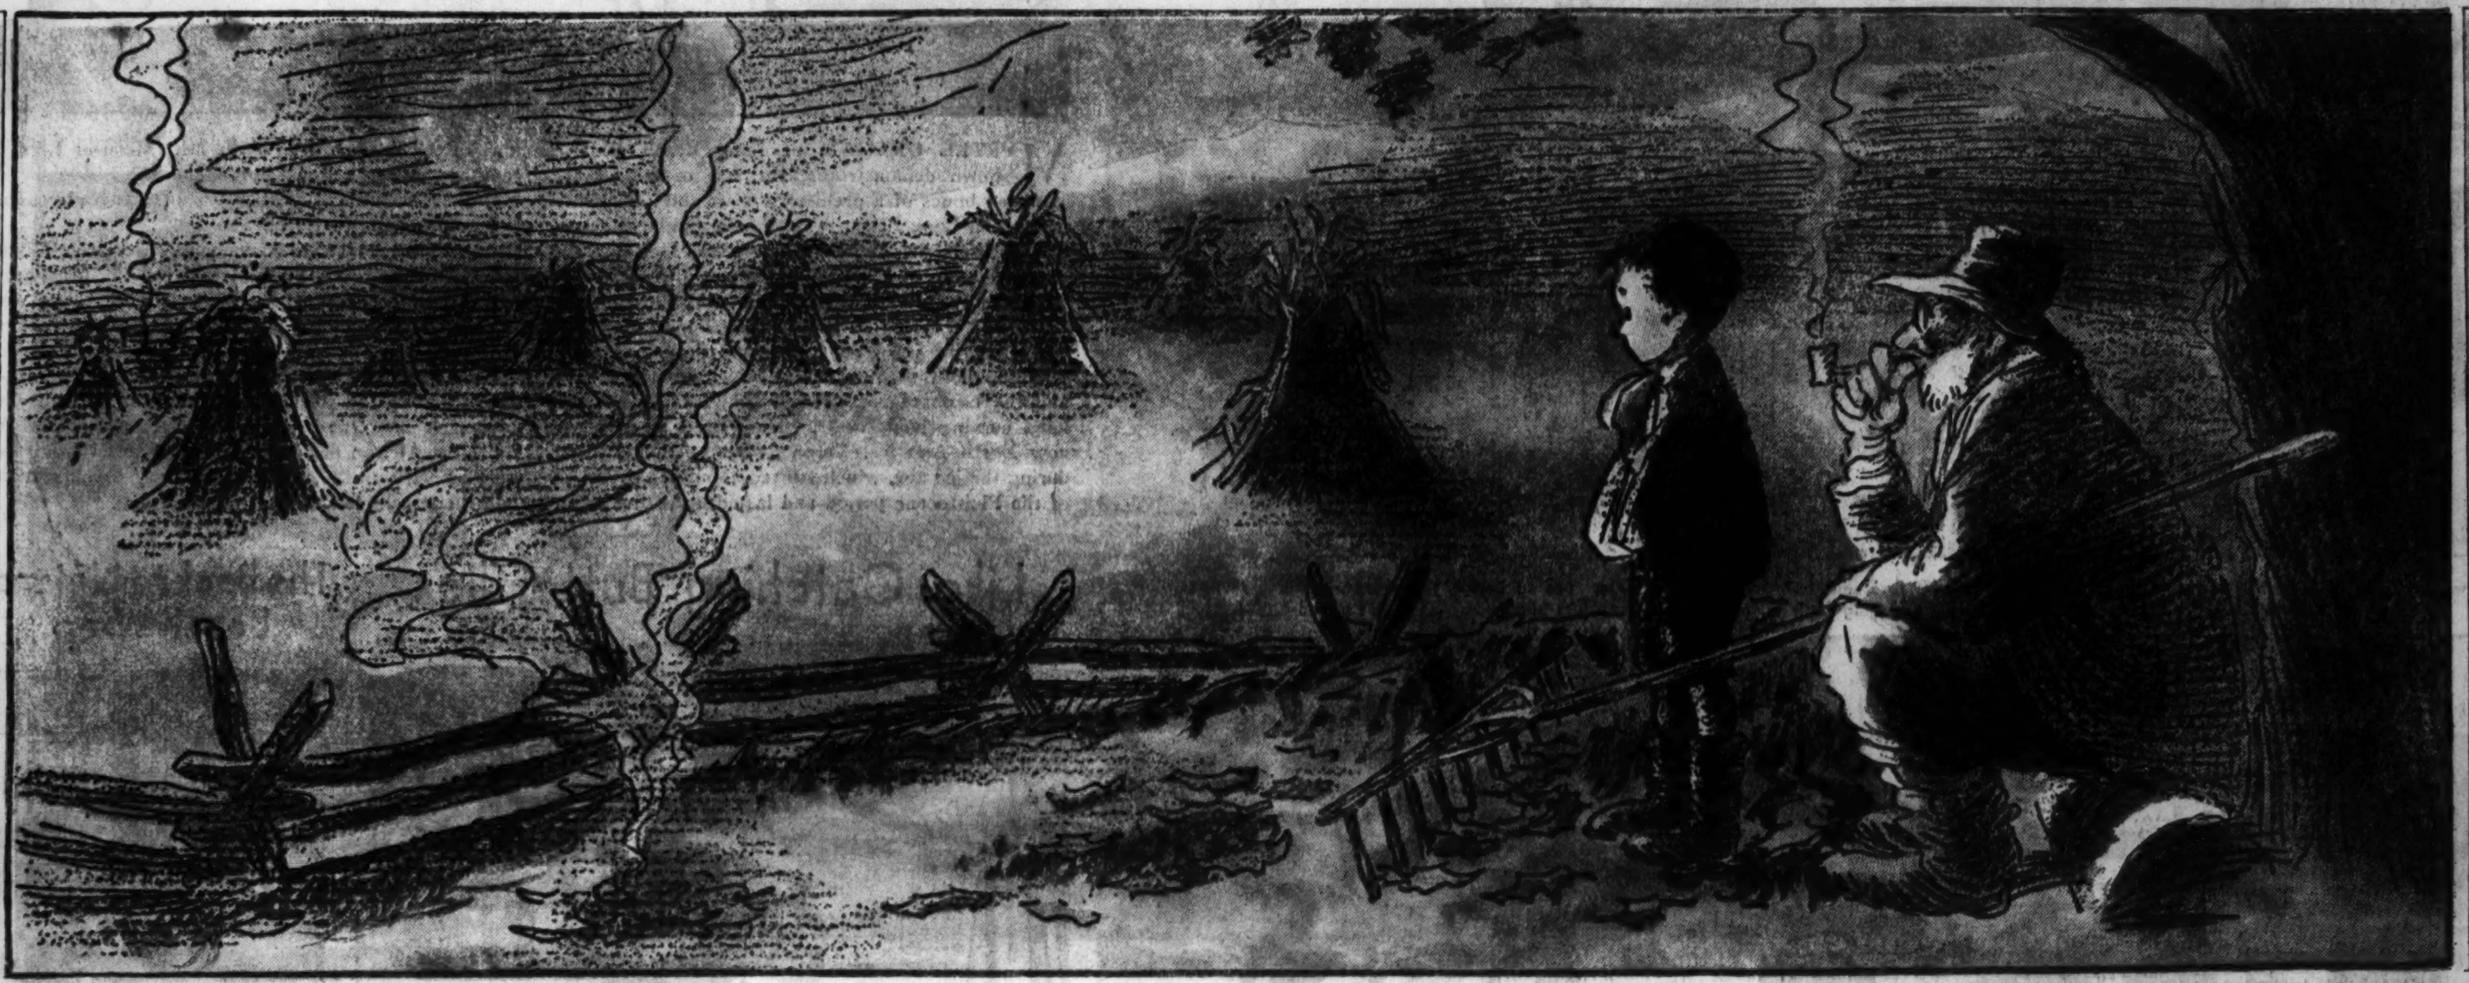
Yep, sonny, this is sure enough Injun summer. Don't know what that is, I reckon, do you?

Well, that's when all the homesick Injuns come back to play. You know, a long time ago, long afore yer granddaddy was born even, there used to be heaps of Injuns around here—thousands—millions, I reckon, far as that's concerned. Reg'lar sure 'nough Injuns—none o' yer cigar store Injuns, not much. They wuz all around here—right here where you're standin'.

Don't be skeered—hain't none around here now, leastways no live ones. They been gone this many a year.

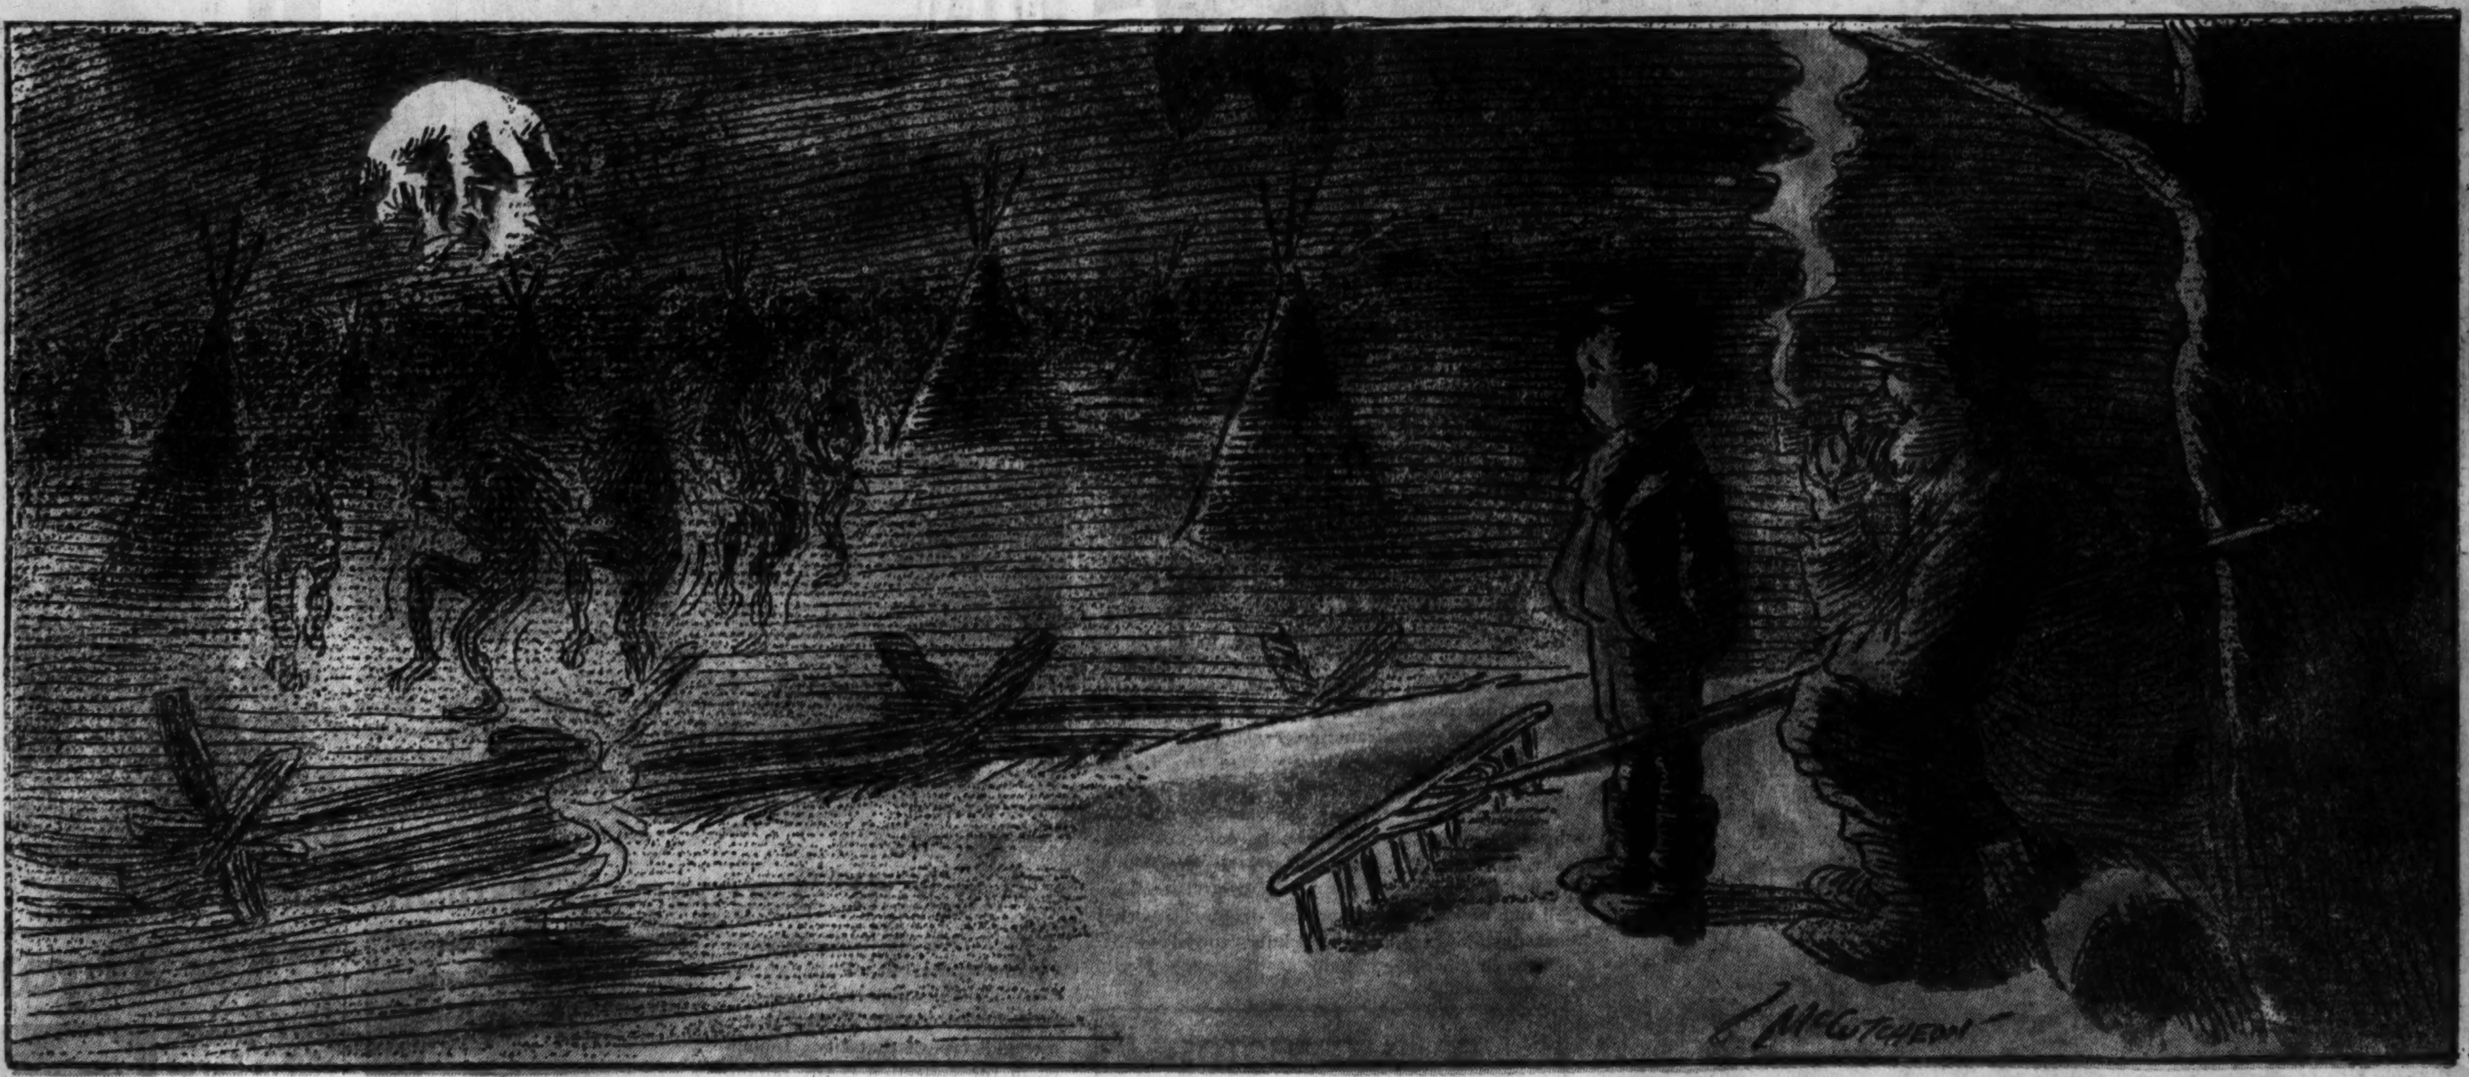
They all went away and died, so they ain't no more left.



But every year, 'long about now, they all come back, leastways their sperrits do. They're here now. You can see 'em off across the fields. Look real hard. See that kind o' hazy, misty look out yonder? Well, them's Injuns—Injun sperrits marchin' along an' dancin' in the sunlight. That's what makes that kind o' haze that's everywhere—it's jest the sperrits of the Injuns all come back. They're all around us now.

See off yonder; see them tepees? They kind o' look like corn shocks from here, but them's Injun tents, sure as you're a foot high. See 'em now? Sure, I knowed you could. Smell that smoky sort o' smell in the air? That's the campfires a-burnin' and their pipes a-goin'.

Lots o' people say it's just leaves burnin', but it ain't. It's the campfires, an' th' Injuns are hoppin' 'round 'em t' beat the old Harry.

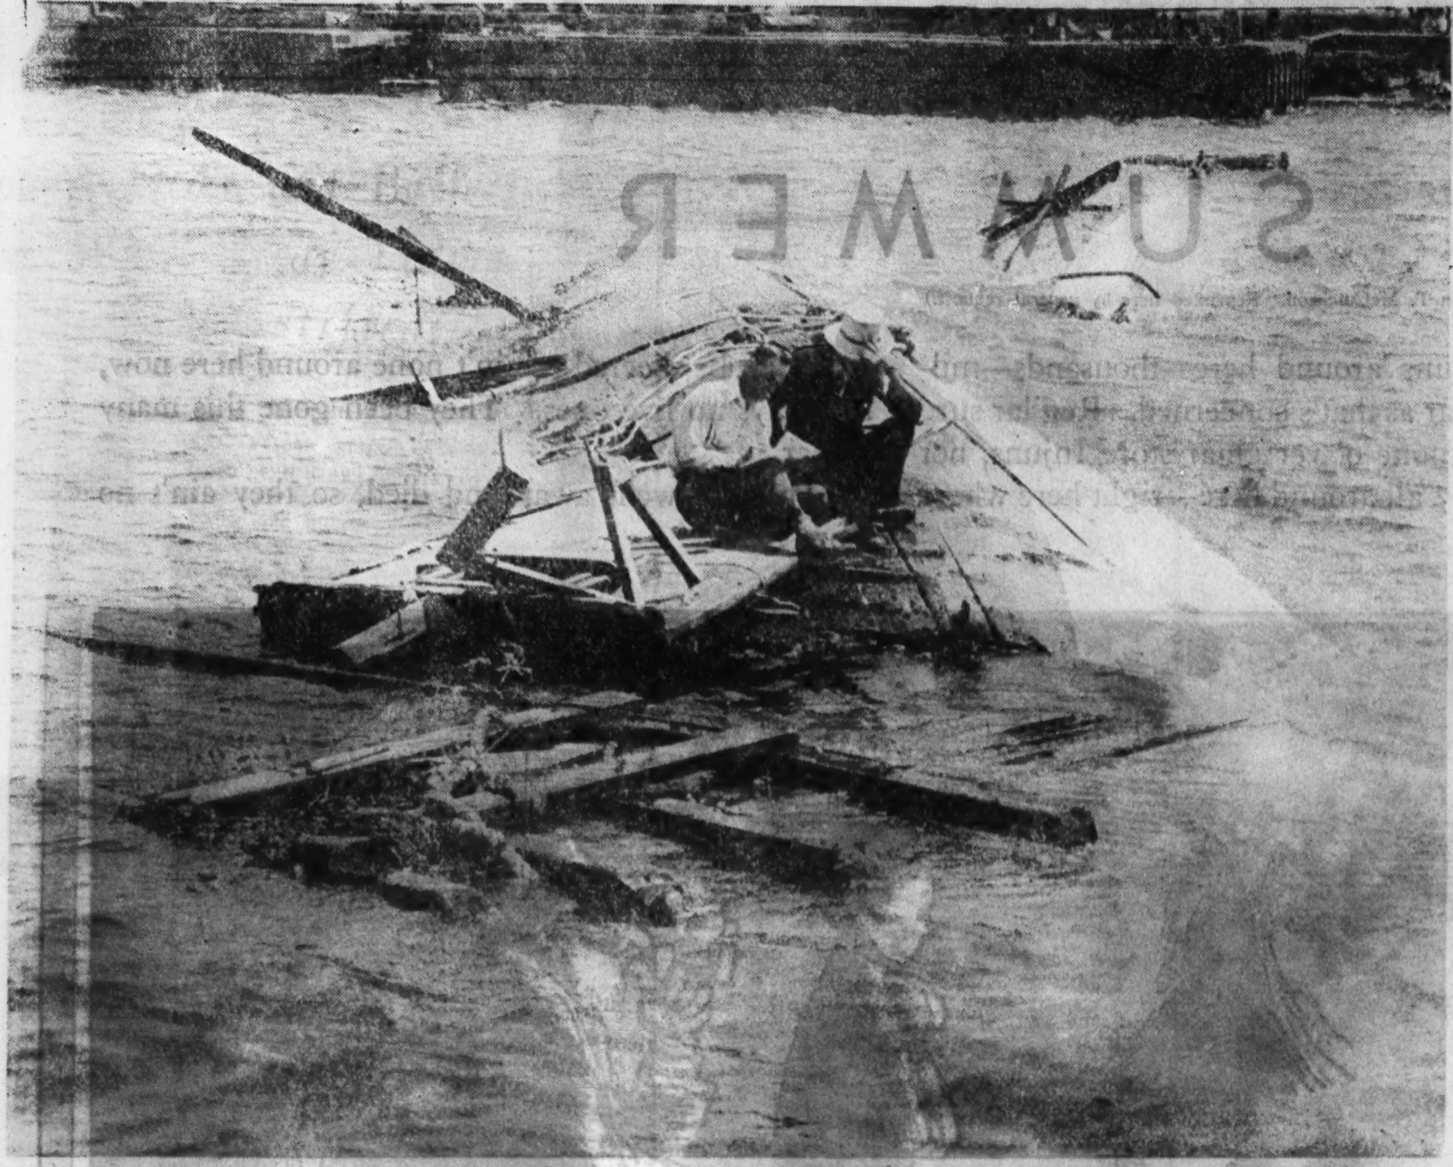


You jest come out here tonight when the moon is hangin' over the hill off yonder an' the harvest fields is all swimmin' in th' moonlight, an' you can see the Injuns and the tepees jest as plain as kin be. You can, eh? I knowed you would after a little while.

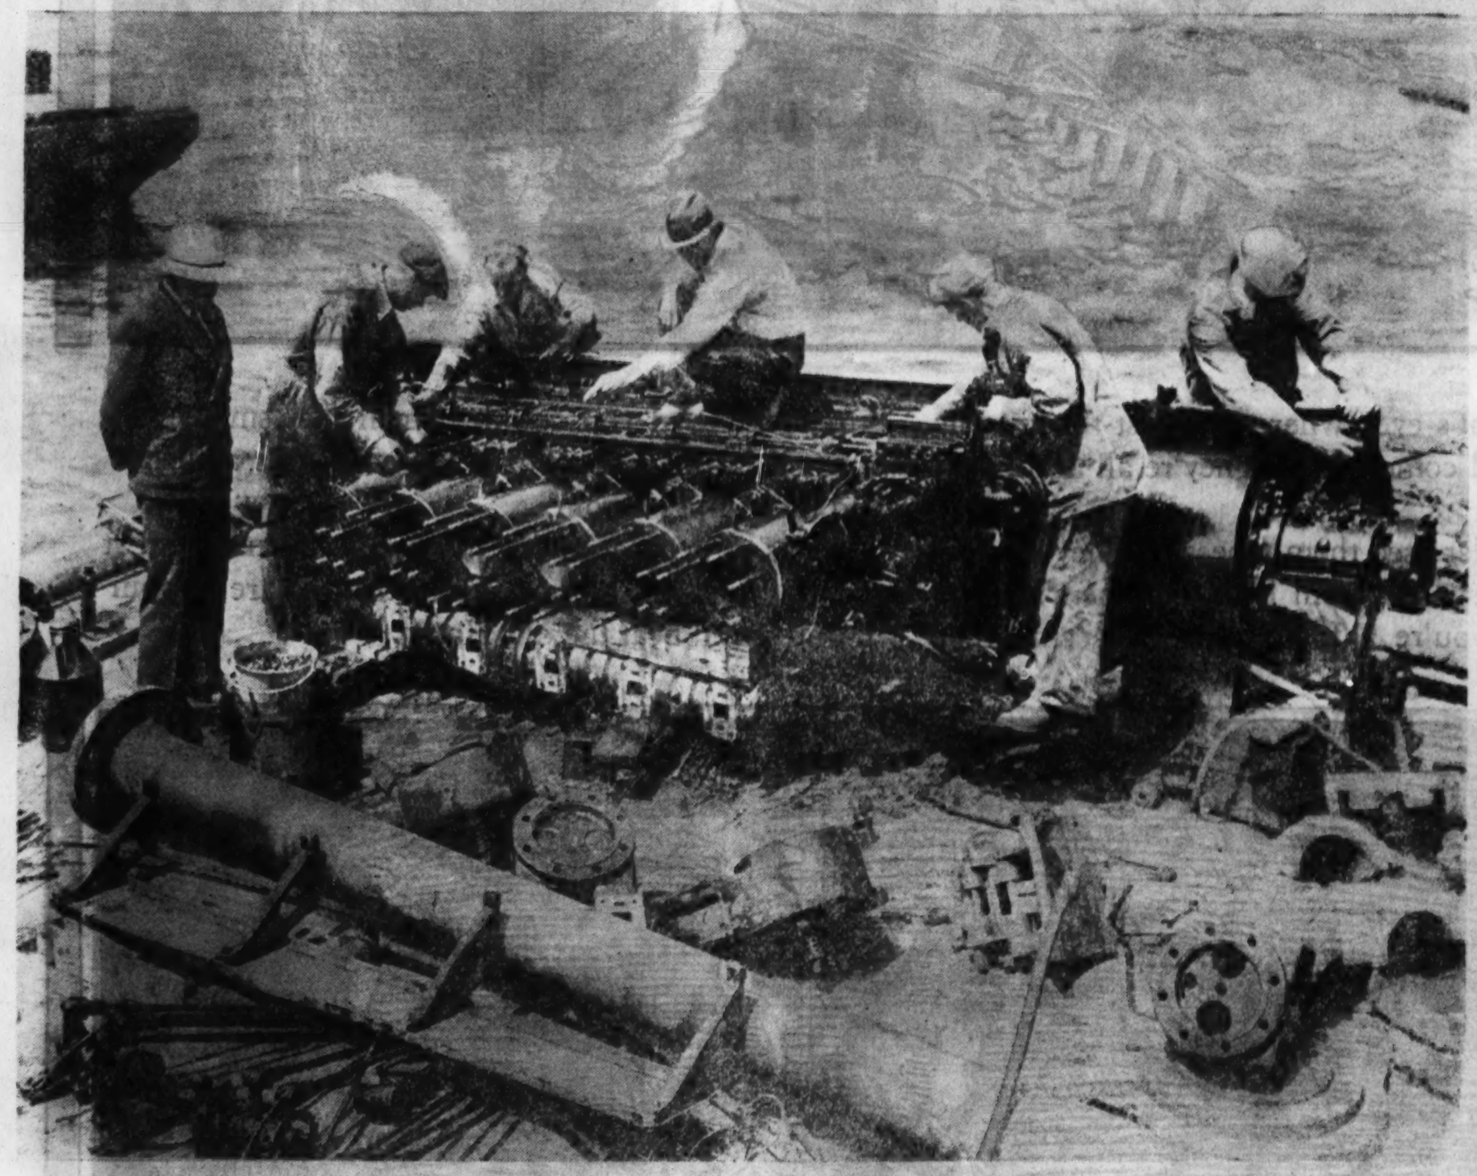
Jever notice how the leaves turn red 'bout this time o' year? That's jest another sign o' redskins. That's when an old Injun sperrit gits tired dancin' an' goes up an' squats on a leaf t' rest. Why, I kin hear 'em rustlin' an' whisperin' an' creepin' 'round among the leaves all the time; an' ever' once 'n a while a leaf gives way under some fat old Injun ghost and comes floatin' down to the ground. See—here's one now. See how red it is? That's the war paint rubbed off'n an Injun ghost, sure's you're born.

Purty soon all the Injuns 'll go marchin' away agin, back to the happy huntin' ground, but next year you'll see 'em troopin' back—th' sky jest hazy with 'em and their campfires smolderin' away jest like they are now.

SAVING a WRECK for PROFIT



The wreck of the power yacht Alma, which crashed on the jagged rocks off Point Vicente, California. Seated beside the wreck are Hugh Neighbors of Redondo Beach, Cal., who conducts a profitable boat salvaging business, and Arthur Ellis. The picture was taken at San Pedro, Cal.



This huge Diesel marine engine fell out of the yacht Alma as the wrecked vessel was being towed off the rocks. The engine is valued at $15,000 and was probably the most valuable part of the salvage.

(Acme photos.)

WRECKED vessels abandoned by their owners, according to maritime law, become the property of the persons who salvage them. Hugh Neighbors of Redondo Beach, Cal., finds the business of salvaging wrecked boats a profitable vocation. Recently the 88-foot power yacht Alma, owned by Willis J. Walker of San Francisco, crashed against the jagged rocks off Point Vicente in the Pacific. Neighbors enlisted the aid of another salvage firm and together the salvagers managed to tow the capsized yacht to safety. In doing so, however, the biggest prize aboard the vessel, its $15,000 Diesel engine, was nearly lost. The engine fell out of the wreck, but by strenuous work it was dragged ashore. The hulk, towed to San Pedro, Cal., will be rebuilt.

MYRTLE GRAHAM of Long Beach, Cal., is shown demonstrating the size of one of the fossilized bones of a prehistoric mammoth, excavated recently in Long Beach by workmen digging a sewer. The picture shows the thigh bone, four feet long and one foot wide and weighing 100 pounds. Scientists estimated the age of the bones at 200,000 years and considered the find of considerable importance.

Mammoths were huge, shaggy-haired beasts, resembling both the mastodons which preceded them and the elephants of today. They had trunks and long, curving ivory tusks. They lived in what are now North America, Europe, and Asia and existed during the ice age, which started about the beginning of the Pleistocene period and lasted up to the beginning of the modern age, or the last fifteen or twenty thousand years. Bones of mammoths have been found by scientific investigators in many places in this country and in Europe.

In Siberia complete specimens have been found frozen in the ground by modern scientific investigators. Ivory from the remains of mammoths for many hundreds of years has been an article of commerce in Siberia. The flesh and hair of the specimens found in frozen ground were in a good state of preservation. Mammoths were larger than the present-day Indian elephants and some of them were larger than the huge African elephants. They differed from the modern elephant in that their ears were much smaller and their tusks longer and more curving.

HERE is the latest thing in beach wraps—a back to nature, desert island effect. It is of rough material with [illegible] fringe to add to the tattered effect. Both the skirt and waist are one piece and wrap around the figure. A halo of flowers and rope sandals complete the ensemble. The model is Miss Norvell Barry, who with a group of other pretty girls is appearing this summer in a fashion show at A Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago. The show includes many advanced and bizarre styles such as the one pictured here. The newest styles in bathing suits, sports dresses, evening gowns, clothes for morning and afternoon, and lingerie are worn by the models, who parade across the stage.

Ancient Saggar on Exhibit

VISITORS to Hull, England, may view one of the world's most valuable collections of pottery, on exhibition in the Mortimer galleries of that city. Included in the collection is the famous Portland vase, valued at almost $500,000. The collection includes both ancient and modern pieces of pottery. Of the first named, many of the pieces are hundreds of years old. The object held in the picture is an ancient saggar, used centuries ago for salt glazing and firing Wedgwood pottery. Many pieces of the Wedgwood in the exhibition were fired and glazed within the ancient saggar shown here. Each piece in the exhibit is highly valued.

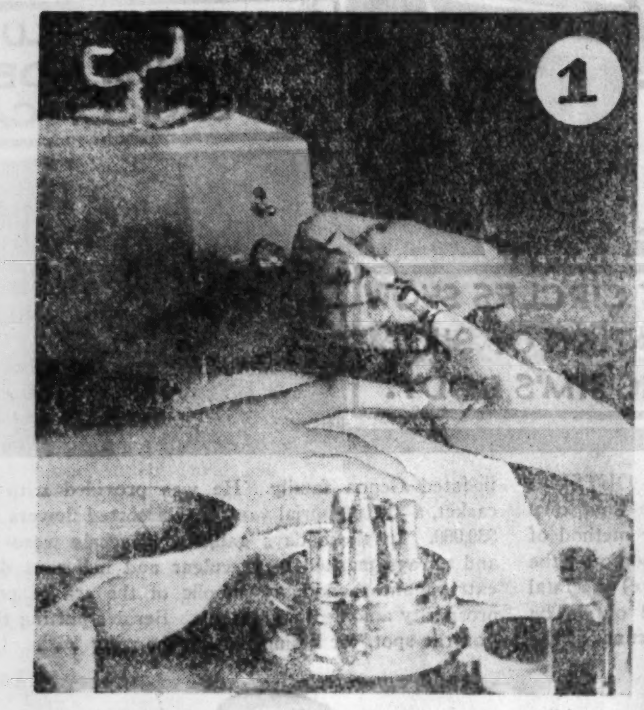
The Manicure Modernized

Motors, Disks, and Buffers Now Whirl Away Tedium of Nail Beautification

By Eleanor Nangle

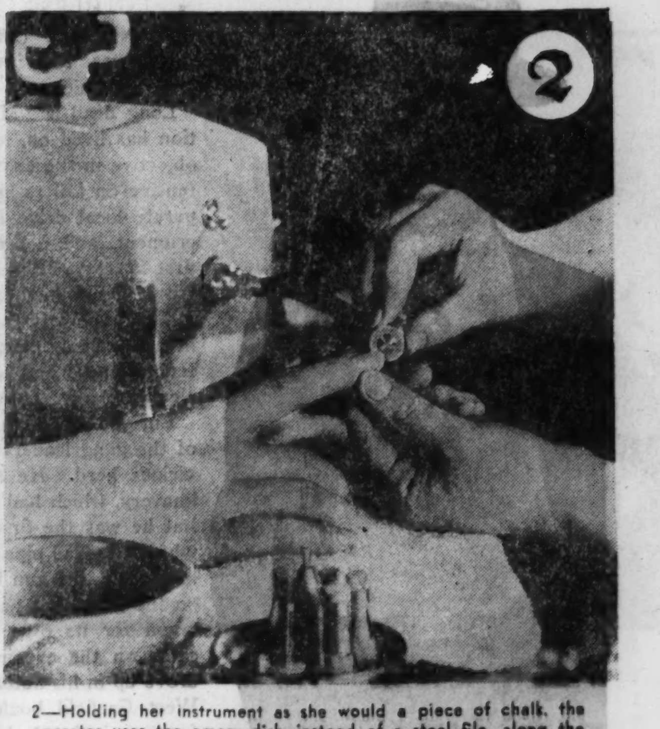
THE MANICURE, that tiresome process whereby a girl keeps cuticle under control and the tips of her fingers as glossy and smooth as a fragile bit of coral, has succumbed to the machine age influence. Until now since the first woman got nail conscious—do you suppose Eve ever trimmed hers down on a bit of rough stone or pushed back the ornery cuticle with a bit of bark?—hand beautifying has had to be done by hand.

Feminine blessings have ever been bestowed on the fertile mind that conceived the file, the orange stick, and the nail polish; but if you thought you were enjoying all modern manicure conveniences when these were employed—well, you haven't seen anything yet, sister.

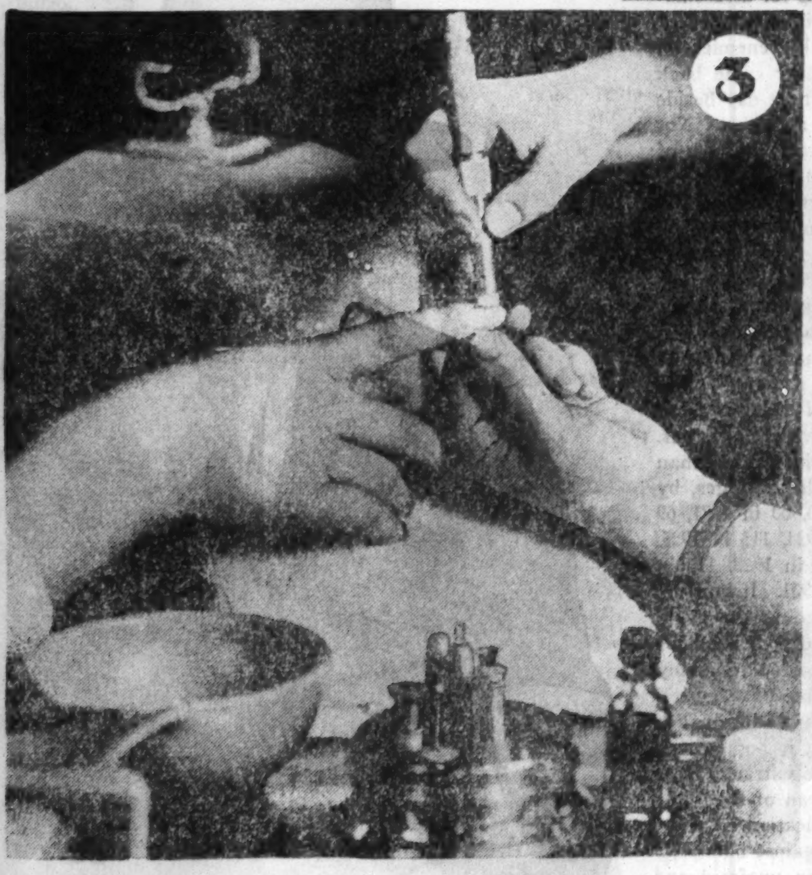


1—Inserting the first needed implement, an emery disk, in the tool holder, which is operated by an electric motor concealed in the small cabinet in the background

Marlene Dietrich, as lovely Lily in "The Song of Songs," clung with fidelity to 19th century dress fashions, but her nails were done very much in the modern manner—beautifully groomed, skillfully lacquered and polished and shaped to the most flattering finger lines.

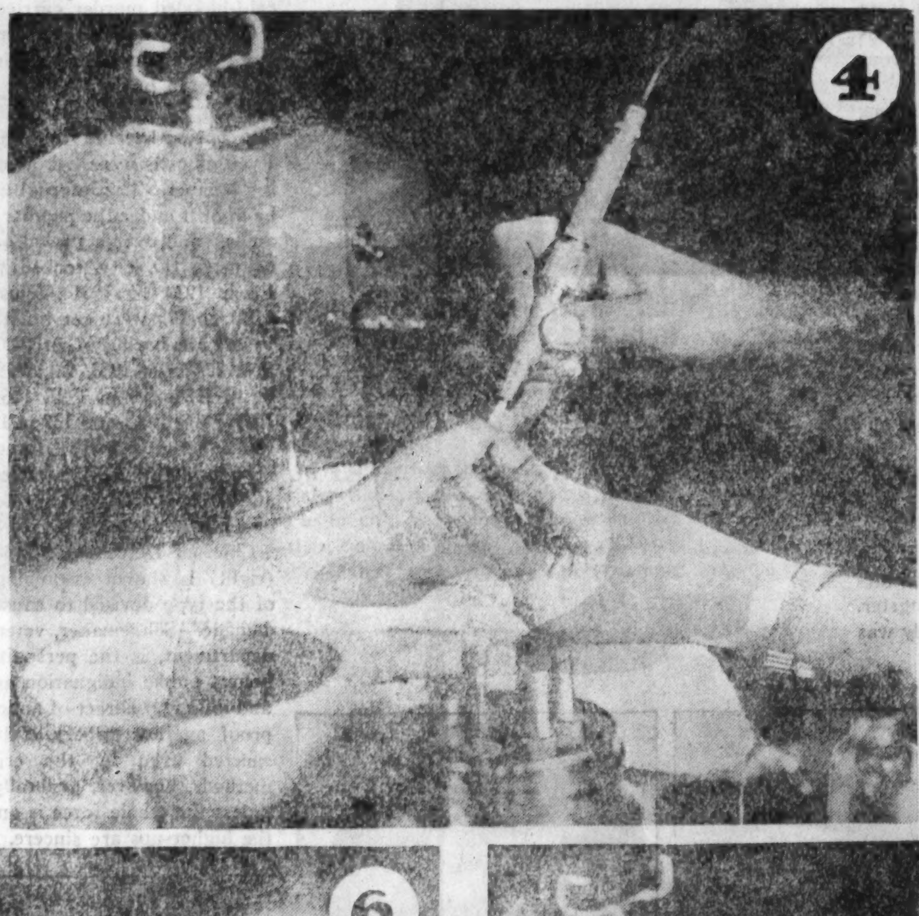


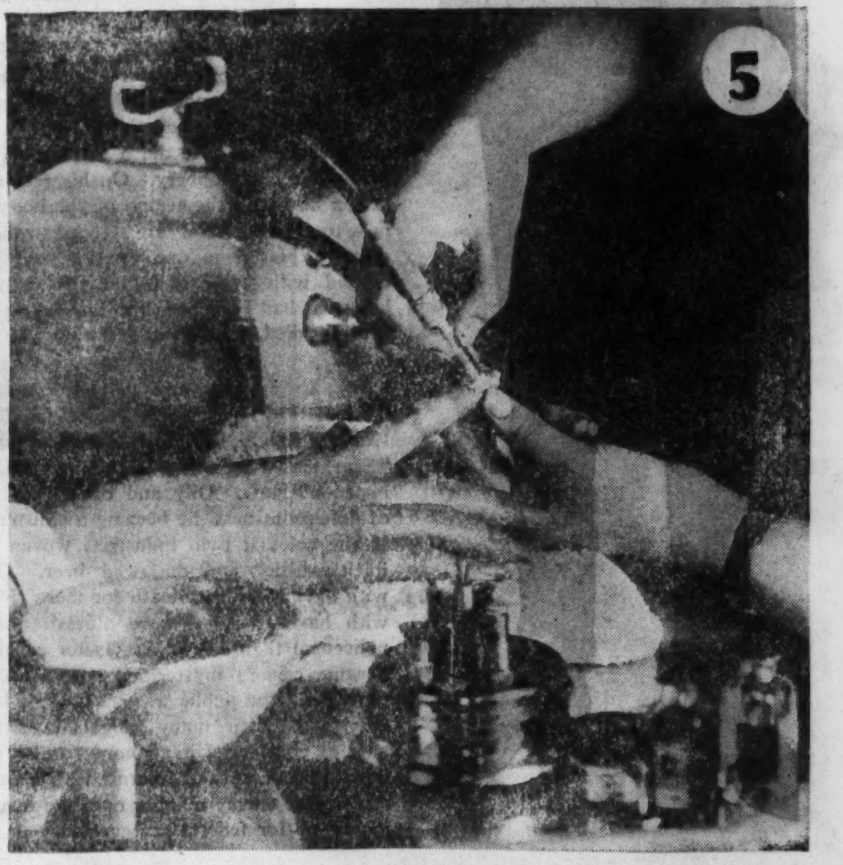
2—Holding her instrument as she would a piece of chalk, the operator uses the emery disk, instead of a steel file, along the edges of the nail, shaping it efficiently.



3—The emery disk is supplanted by a hard felt buff which is guided around under the nail to remove any rough edges left by filing.

4—Without pressure on the delicate nail tissues, the vibrating movement of an electrically driven orangewood pusher then deals gently but firmly with the stubborn cuticle which has just been oiled





5—The cleaning up process. The nails are dipped in the usual warm, soapy water, then thoroughly scrubbed with the revolving brush of sturdy bristles.

The truly modern manicure is by machine, with no offstage noise of a rasping file, and it's over and done with almost before you can say "Hey Hey!"

The machine is a neat little box concealing an electric motor, from which runs a flexible shaft that holds the implements. Picture No. 5 on this page gives an excellent idea of the whole set-up. Matching the motor box in color is a small circular stand in which are placed the actual manicure tools, these to be inserted as needed in the tool holder.

As in every manicure, the first step is filing; in this case an emery disk instead of a steel file is inserted in the tool holder as shown in picture No. 1. Holding her instrument at the top as she would a piece of drawing chalk, the operator turns on the motor and zips away at the nail, first one side and then the other, as shown in picture No. 2. The rapid rotary strokes of the whirling disk shape the nails in almost nothing flat; a metal guard beneath the emery insures against its touching the fingers, thus eliminating the danger of a burn or a callous.

Once the nail is shaped—rounded or pointed as individual taste dictates—the emery is replaced in the holder by a firm felt buff, as shown in picture No. 3. Motor buzzing again and buff whirling at a great rate, this is guided under the nail edge to remove any rough edges left by the filing. Now the operator holds her tool as she would hold a pencil and, the foundation laid, proceeds to beautify the nail in earnest. The fingers are soaked in warm soapy water when filing operations are completed, then they are dried and the nails are carefully oiled. This done, an orangewood pusher is popped into the tool holder and moved gently around the base and side of the nail as in picture No. 4. The vibrating motion loosens the cuticle and, though the pressure is of the slightest, very firmly puts it in its place. No scraping or cutting, you see—a blessed innovation for any woman whose nerves are set on edge by these operations.

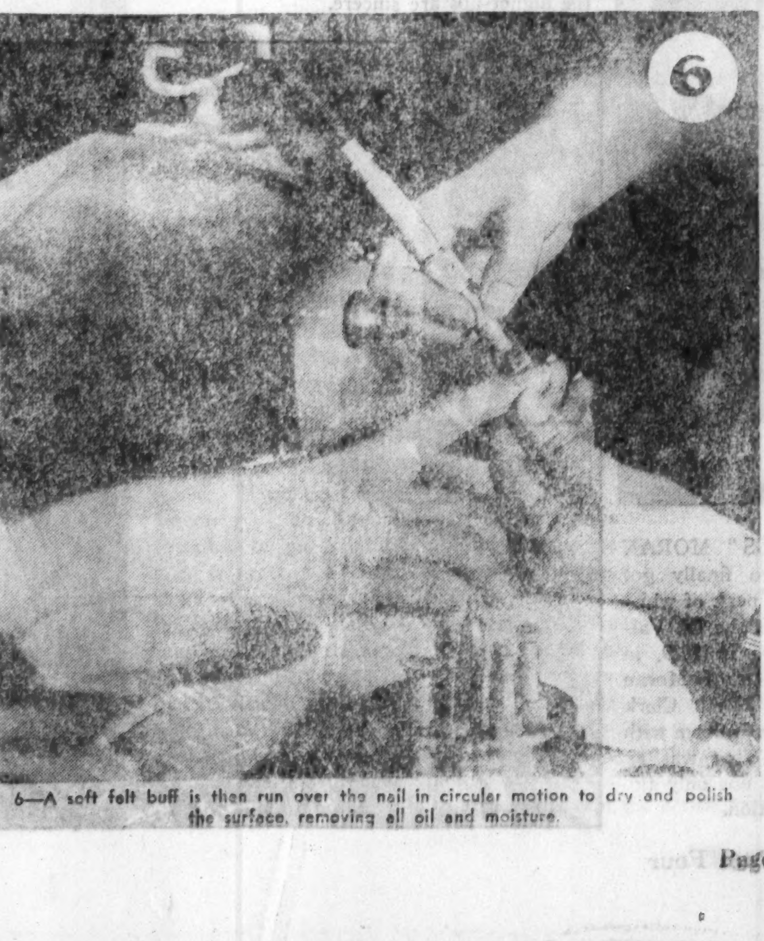
Then follows the clean-up. Into the tool holder goes a cup shaped brush of sturdy bristles that is used all over the surface of the wet nail, well into the cuticle, and worked in a circular movement over the dingy spots on each side where the nail begins to grow away from the finger. This step is shown in Figure No. 5.

Surprisingly few minutes have elapsed when the clean-up is finished. Turning off her motor, the operator inspects the nail for any scraggly uprisings of skin or cuticle. If the surface is as it should be, nail white is applied to the tips and the fingers again dipped in the water and dried. Back to the motor again for step No. 6. This time a felt buff is used, one not unlike that used in picture No. 3, but much, much softer, to dry the surface and remove all traces of oil and moisture. The circular motion of the buff acts as a polishing agent. For women who don't use liquid nail polish this sheen is sufficient, but if it is used this preliminary polishing heightens the gloss of the enamel applied after buffing.

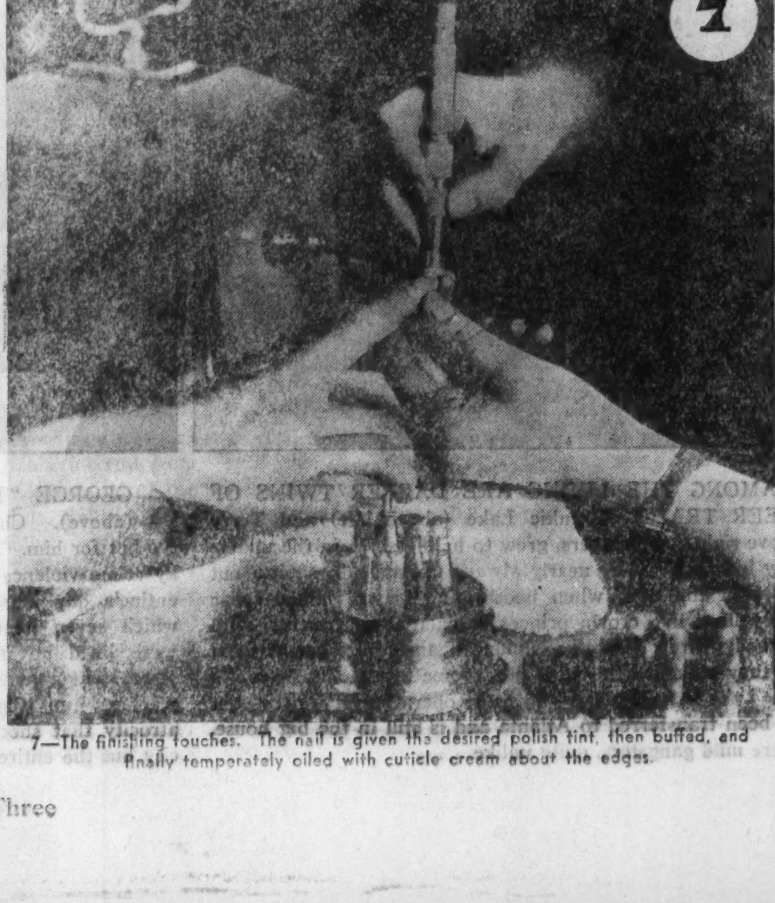
It's at this momentous point the well groomed woman chooses her shade of nail polish. Did you know that, if you really wanted to put some heavy thought into the matter, you could have eighty-six shades from which to choose? These, mind you, are only street shades. Evening shades are something else again—gold, silver, platinum, onyx, jade, turquoise—almost every color of the rainbow, to say nothing of combinations of polka dots for those as like that sort of thing.

The decision made, the polish applied and allowed to harden, the nails are dipped in clear cold water and carefully dried. Then comes the finishing touch as shown in picture No. 7—a discreet dab of cuticle cream worked around the nail edges to keep that tender area soft. This gentle kneading of an emollient into the recently disturbed cuticle is a valuable factor in keeping the nails lovely until the next visit to the beauty shop.

And there you are—ten beautiful fingers manicured in the modern machine manner!

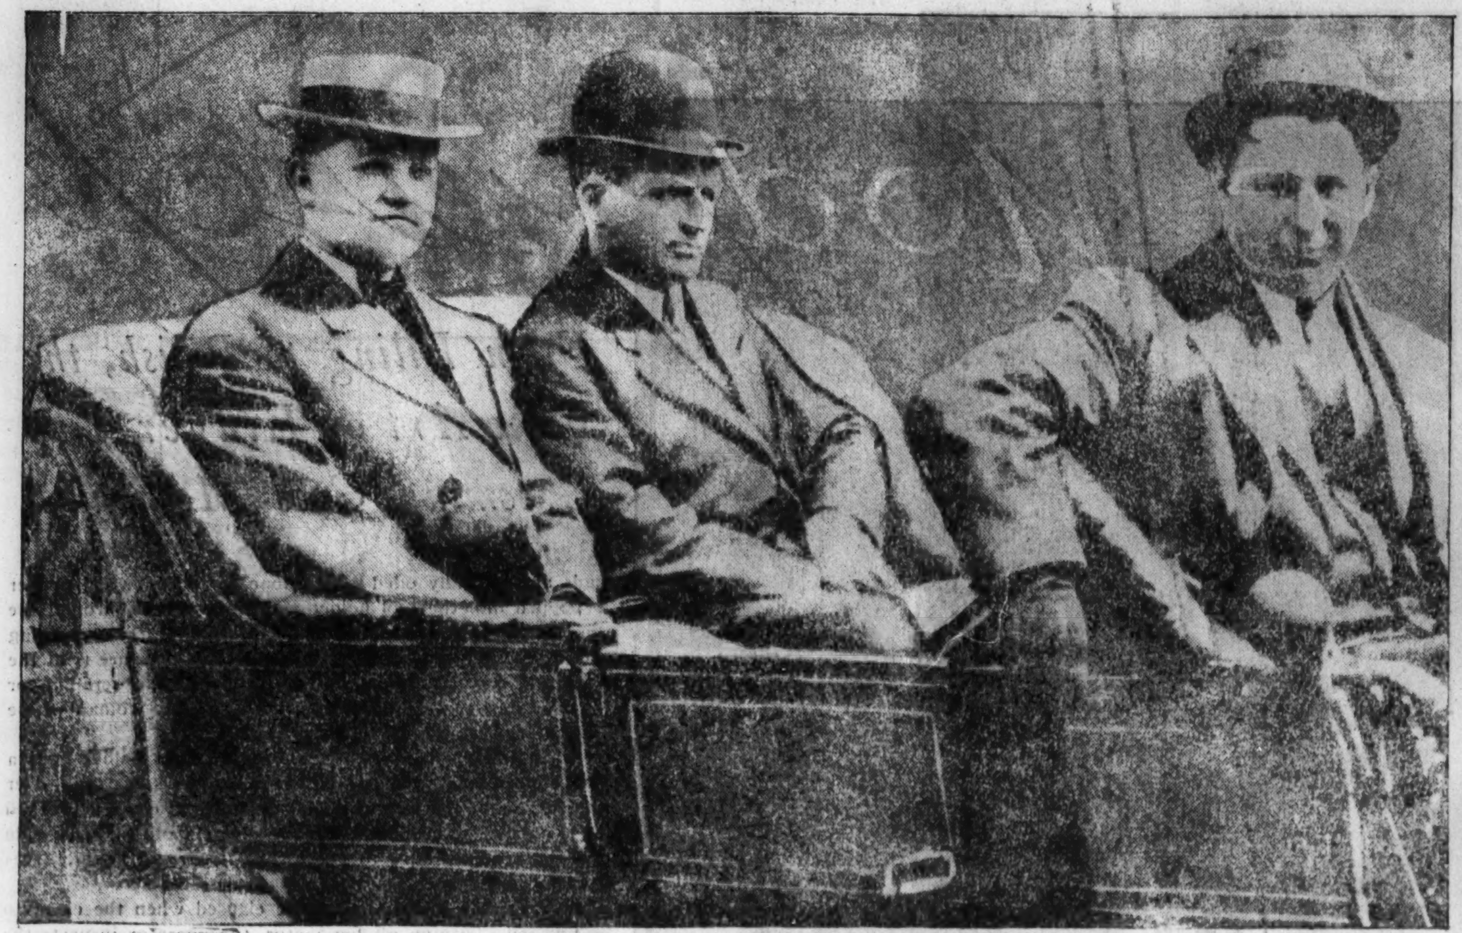


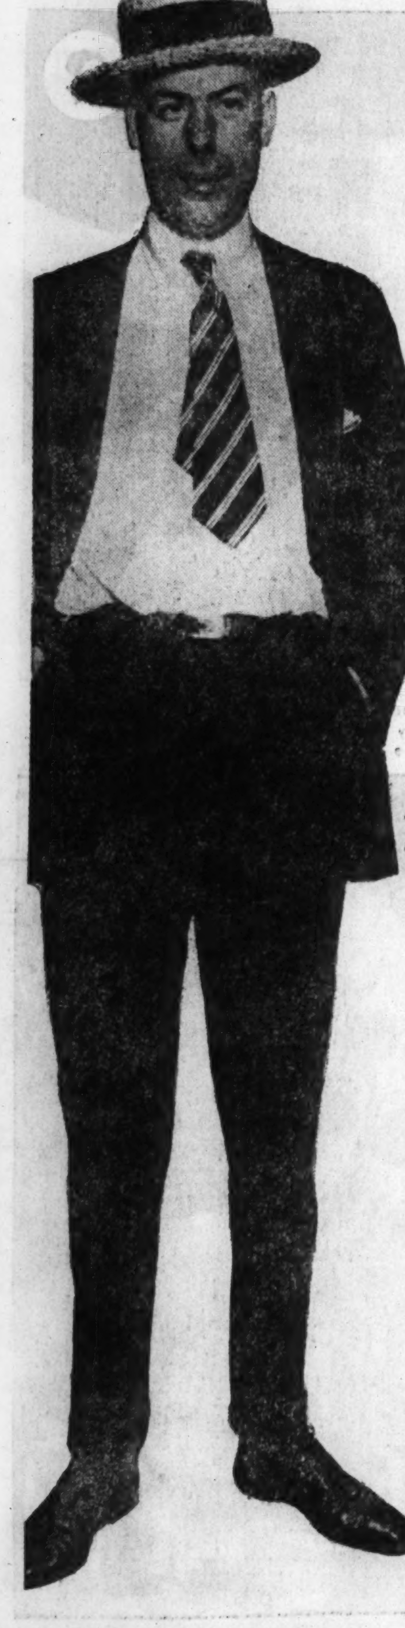
6—A soft felt buff is then run over the nail in circular motion to dry and polish the surface, removing all oil and moisture.



7—The finishing touches. The nail is given the desired polish tint, then buffed, and finally temporately oiled with cuticle cream about the edges.

Chicago Courts Mounting Wav





1 RUTHLESS MAURICE "MOSSY" ENRIGHT (left above with his pals of 1911) was the inventor of commercialized crime in Chicago.

Long dead is "Mossy," but his evil institution has lived on, to become today the major objective in the city's recently inaugurated offensive on killers, gangsters, and hoodlums, a purely local drive in which courts, city government, and police have combined. In the first 59 days of the offensive on the crime war front, begun Aug. 1, the Criminal court, which initiated the drive and which has cut red tape in an amazing manner, imposed prison sentences on 331 and sentenced five killers to the electric chair. The drive on crime goes on.

Enright was of the murderous type, the first of the gang leaders to lift his head above the vicious herd. He specialized in trade union knavery, which had flourished for generations, but he was the first to employ the fatal gun where the lead pipe had ruled before. Finally he died by the gun because he had muscled in on the gang that had picked the gas workers' union for its own exploitation. His demise came on the evening of Feb. 3, 1920, as he drove up in his automobile to his home at 1110 West Garfield boulevard. Held with others for questioning in his murder was . . .

2 BACK-SLAPPING BIG TIM MURPHY (left), who became a super-boss of labor terrorists. Murphy not only indulged in trade union violences, but at times tried his hand at other crimes. He did a stretch in federal prison for mail robbery. On his return from prison he found the tempo of the booze business too fast for him. He stepped to the front door of his home one evening, only to be riddled with bullets. Commercialized crime, however, had been on a rapid rise long before Murphy died, due to the fact that . . .

PROHIBITION HAD PUT THE CRIMINAL INTO A LUCRATIVE BUSINESS. Alphonse "Scarface Al" Capone (right) symbolized the booze business. Oily and obese, the picture of defenselessness, he became a sinister figure in the colossal twin industries woven around illicit whisky and outlawed beer. Credited with having ordered death for more rivals and with having bribed more officials and more policemen than any other master criminal, he became crime's mysterious untouchable at a time when the public was tolerant of bootlegging and when many so-called respectable citizens considered it an honor and a distinction to be on speaking terms with a gangster. As "public enemy number one" he finally was locked up for federal tax evasion. 3

7 UNDER PROHIBITION BOOZE WAS OUTSIDE THE LAW. Therefore gangsters became their own courts and their own executioners. A favorite method of killing called for the machine gun, a war weapon, and the sawed-off shotgun. In the photo-diagram (above) the fatal use of those handy tools of crime is pointed out. The subject of the murder illustrated was Angelo Genna, of the ill-fated Genna family. He was provided with a $6, casket, a $10,000 burial vault, and assorted flowers valued $30,000. In those days gangster funerals were freque and always marked by a vulgar and ludicrous display extravagant spending—symbolic of the era of prohibiti prosperity among the criminals. Besides putting the vict
"on the spot," or killing him on the wing . . .

8 THERE DEVELOPED A NEAT HOMICIDAL OPERATION KNOWN AS "TAKING HIM FOR A RIDE." The gangster marked by his rivals for assassination under that plan was either tricked or forced into accompanying his enemies on an automobile ride. He never came back alive. His body was found next day beside some lonely road or under a culvert. Not once, but scores of times, was this form of cold-blooded murder carried out.

Outrages against property were even more common than slayings. In labor troubles, in booze and beer rivalry, and, in fact, in all sorts of criminal depredations the bomb became an important factor. Even officials were terrorized by the skulking bomber. The infernal machine came to be known under the popular name of "pineapple," and over a period of a dozen years or more the city rocked with explosions. From 1920 to 1931 inclusive more than 1,060 bombs were set off, the outrages, by years, numbering 51 in 1920, 60 in 1921, 69 in 1922, 55 in 1923, 92 in 1924, 113 in 1925, 89 in 1926, 106 in 1927, 116 in 1928, 116 in 1929, 74 in 1930, and 122 in 1931. It must be remembered that the foregoing list takes no consideration of so-called stench bombs and other contrivances intended to annoy or drive away customers of business houses.

Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker (right) is shown examining a bomb of the type devised to cause extreme damage. Schoemaker, veteran of the department, is the personification of honest public indignation against bombings and killings. Direct of action, unafraid, and proof against bribery, Schoemaker is respected even by the criminals. Police methods, however, generally are ineffective unless the whole force is on the square and the higher-ups are sincere.

4 PRODUCT OF PROHIBITION WAS DEAN O'BANNION (above), who rose from a petty hoodlum, notorious in a small way as a safe cracker, to the leadership of a vicious whisky ring. His front was a florist's shop, in which in the end he received three grim visitors who left him dead on the floor.

5 STILL AMONG THE LIVING ARE DAPPER TWINS OF THE BEER TRADE. Frankie Lake (above left) and Terry Druggan (above right), as partners, grew to be big shots in the undercover brewery business. They nearly always managed to squirm out of tight places in the days when bootlegging was a billion-dollar industry. They lived like crown princes in palatial apartments, with servants and bodyguards. Usually immune against punishment from local sources, they took liberties with the income tax law and went to Leavenworth. Lake is free and is said to be operating in Detroit, but Druggan has been transferred to Atlanta and is still in the big house. These two were mild gangsters, quite unlike . . .

6 GEORGE "BUGS" MORAN (above). Chicago finally got too hot for him. The peak of whisky crime violence was the St. Valentine's day massacre in 1929, in which seven henchmen of Moran were lined up in a North Clark street garage and mowed down with machine gun slugs. That was an atrocity that shocked not only the city but the entire nation.

Drive Back the ve of Crime

10 THEN CRIME TOOK A NEW TURN. The booze business collapsed, due to several causes, chief of which was the public's inability to pay fancy prices for doubtful liquor. Still later beer was legalized, to the confusion of the criminal beer runner. Gangsters turned back to robbery and labor racketeering. Also they entered into kidnaping with a gusto never before displayed. A wave of kidnaping swept the country. First and outstanding was the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby, the tragic affair familiar to all newspaper readers. The ladder (right) down which the child was spirited from his nursery was pictured in virtually every newspaper in the land.

(Acme photo.)

11 IN CHICAGO FOLLOWED A DOUBLE KIDNAPING. First Jerome, son of the millionaire speculator, John "Jake the Barber" Factor, was abducted. A ransom of $50,000 brought about his liberty. The reunion of son (extreme right) and father (near right) was followed in two months by the kidnaping of "Jake" himself. What the second victim paid for his release was not made public. The public was not greatly aroused over the Factor cases, because of "Jake's" reputation.

12 A RANSOM OF $200,000 WAS PAID TO KIDNAPERS FOR THE RELEASE OF CHARLES F. URSCHEL, MILLIONAIRE OKLAHOMA OIL MAN. Shown (above) is Urschel pointing out Albert Bates (arrow) as one of his kidnapers at the recent trial growing out of the case. There have been more than a dozen major kidnaping cases since the first of the year, all but two since beer became legal. Big robberies, too, have become common. As an aid to robbery . . .

14 THE KILLING OF POLICEMAN JOHN SEVICK IN A COURTROOM WAS THE SPARK THAT ROUSED OFFICIAL AND PUBLIC INDIGNATION. John Scheck (above), age 20, was sentenced to death in the electric chair for the murder of the policeman, one of the first verdicts in Chicago's war to stamp out all kinds of crime. At the time of the murder Scheck was in court for another killing.

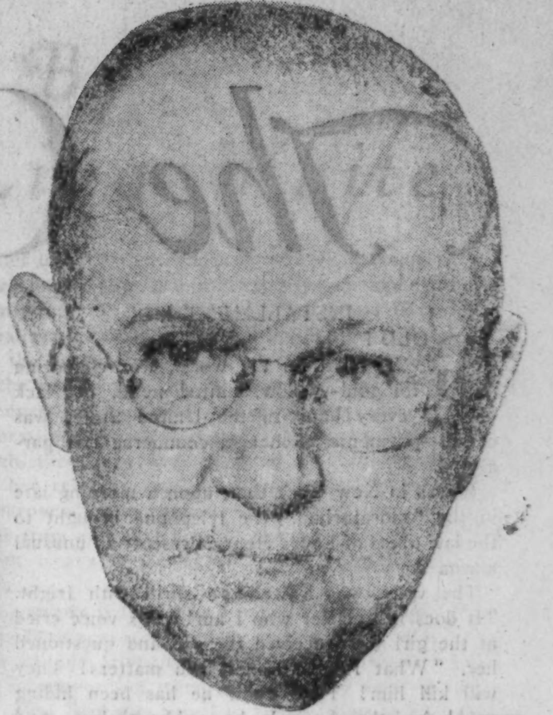
15 THE DRIVE ON CRIME WAS MADE POSSIBLE BY THE MAYOR. Edward J. Kelly (above) without ballyhoo made it plain that he harbored no sympathy for the hoodlum. "No fixing" was the official word when Kelly took office. He put his own stenographers in some of the courts to take notes. With the top of the city government square, the whole becomes square.

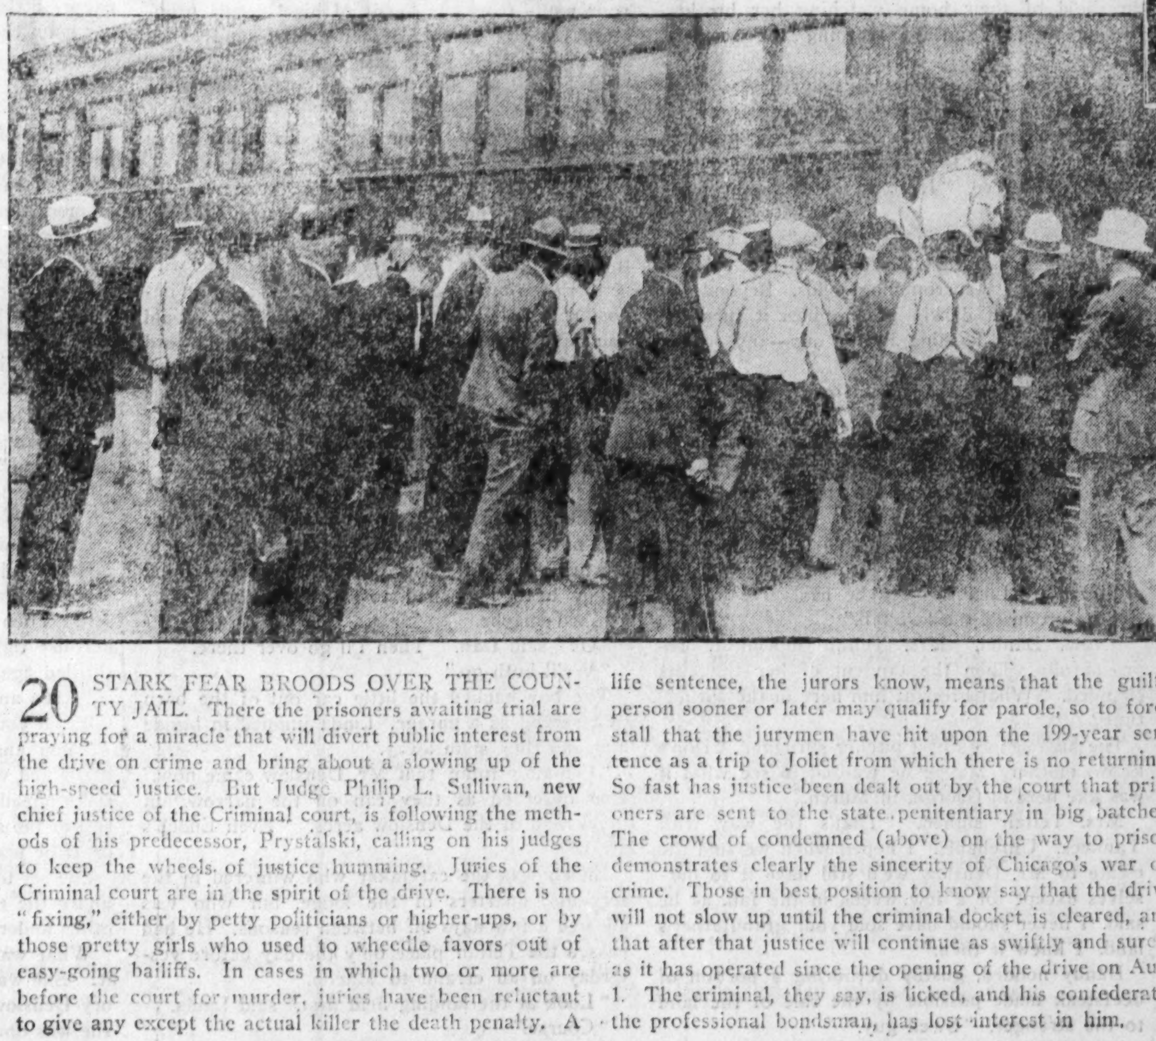


16 DIRECTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR THE CRIMINAL COURT ONSLAUGHT ON CRIME WAS THE CHIEF JUSTICE. Judge John Prystalski (above), who retired recently as chief justice, called in judges from their August vacations, cut red tape, speeded up justice, abolished unreasonable delays, expedited appeals, and put fear into the hearts of those accused of crimes. Other judges duplicated their chief's program.

17 AN EFFICIENT AID TO THE DRIVE ON CRIME IS THE SHOW-UP. Before victims of robberies and other crimes are paraded suspects who have been picked up by the police. The show-up pictured above, however, was before the super-sleuths of the detective bureau.

18 MUNICIPAL COURTS ARE MADE INSTRUMENTS OF THE OFFENSIVE AGAINST THE CRIMINAL. Taking advantage of the "criminal reputation" vagrancy act, which became effective July 10, the city police have been coralling every known gangster who has not skipped out and bringing all before the felony courts for hearings. Under the law the man with a criminal reputation is as much a vagabond as the scummiest ragamuffin that cadges a dime from a passer-by. The extreme penalty for vagrancy, and the most the court can impose, is six months in the city lockup. "Machine Gun Jack" McGurn (arrow above) drew six months in the house of correction because police witnesses identified him as a man with a criminal reputation. Others equally as notorious as "Machine Gun Jack" were sentenced as vagrants, and some very few escaped the penalty. Gangsters generally now are broke, deserted by their former allies of the underworld, and unable to hire high-priced lawyers who know the tricks and technicalities of the law.

19 MRS. ELEANOR JARMAN, THE "BLONDE TIGRESS," GOT 199 YEARS FOR MURDER. Her sweetheart, George Dale, was sentenced to the chair, and his pal, Leo Minnecci, drew 199 years in prison.



20 STARK FEAR BROODS OVER THE COUNTY JAIL. There the prisoners awaiting trial are praying for a miracle that will divert public interest from the drive on crime and bring about a slowing up of the high-speed justice. But Judge Philip L. Sullivan, new chief justice of the Criminal court, is following the methods of his predecessor, Prystalski, calling on his judges to keep the wheels of justice humming. Juries of the Criminal court are in the spirit of the drive. There is no "fixing," either by petty politicians or higher-ups, or by those pretty girls who used to wheedle favors out of easy-going bailiffs. In cases in which two or more are before the court for murder, juries have been reluctant to give any except the actual killer the death penalty. A life sentence, the jurors know, means that the guilty person sooner or later may qualify for parole, so to forestall that the jurymen have hit upon the 199-year sentence as a trip to Joliet from which there is no returning. So fast has justice been dealt out by the court that prisoners are sent to the state penitentiary in big batches. The crowd of condemned (above) on the way to prison demonstrates clearly the sincerity of Chicago's war on crime. Those in best position to know say that the drive will not slow up until the criminal docket is cleared, and that after that justice will continue as swiftly and surely as it has operated since the opening of the drive on Aug. 1. The criminal, they say, is licked, and his confederate, the professional bondsman, has lost interest in him.

The Golden Hoard

By Edwin Balmer and Philip Wylie

INSTALLMENT I.

GOLD!

The nation, the world, was clamoring for gold—yellow, minted metal. For lack of gold every bank in the United States was closed—payments, exchange, commerce was paralyzed.

It was in New York that, upon a morning late in the "moratorium," the telephone brought to the law office of Lewis Henry Prescott an unusual alarm.

The voice was a woman's shrill with fright. "It does not matter who I am!" this voice cried at the girl who received the call and questioned her. "What I have to tell you matters! They will kill him! They know he has been hiding gold! And they know he has gold with him. And they are waiting for him wherever he is bound."

"You mean the government agents are waiting for him?" Prescott's girl inquired.

"No! Robbers and murderers! Or they will be murderers when they catch him. For they'll kill him and rob him. You must stop him. Stop Mr. Denslow, I say!"

"Who are the people who are waiting for Mr. Denslow?"

The woman at the other end of the wire swore in her frantic exasperation. "For God's sake, let me talk to Mr. Prescott or some man in the office!"

Plainly she was used to impressing men and to having her way with them.

The blonde secretary laid the combination receiver transmitter carefully upon her desk and rose. She stepped to the door at her right, opened it and stood framed in the doorway as the man at the large, impressive desk in the center of the big room looked up from the heap of papers before him.

"Yes, Miss Byram?"

"I am sorry to interrupt you. There is a woman—a very excited woman on the phone. She won't give her name, but she says somebody is going to kill Mr. Denslow. That's all I can get from her. She wants to talk to you."

"Kill Mr. Denslow?" he repeated. "Who? Where?"

"That's what she says; she won't say who's killing him or who she is, either."

"She must be mad. A crank, probably."

"She doesn't sound mad—or a crank," Miss Byram replied. Rather surprisingly to herself, she found herself arguing for the unknown woman. "She sounded very excited, that's all. Where has Mr. Denslow gone, Mr. Prescott? And has he taken with him a fortune in gold?"

"Who said that?"

"She did—the woman."

"I don't know what Mr. Denslow is doing, and you are not to repeat that—theory—to any one."

"No, Mr. Prescott."

FOR a moment they looked at each other. Both knew Horace Denslow's great wealth, and both knew that, recently, nothing had agitated him so much as his endeavor to make its possession "safe" for himself.

"I am holding her on the wire, Mr. Prescott."

"I'll talk to her . . Wait a moment. Go back to your desk and take down everything she says to me." Waiting until he was sure that she was at her desk, he said on the wire: "This is Mr. Prescott."

"Mr. Prescott, where's Mr. Denslow gone?"

"Why do you want to know?"

"Can you catch him and stop him? He's going to be killed! He's flying somewhere, isn't he?"

"You mean he'll be killed in the air? There'll be an apparent airplane accident or some such thing?"

"No; it will be on the ground, after he lands. They're waiting for him. Don't let him land! Stop him!"

"Do you know where Mr. Denslow is landing?"

"No, but they do. O, get word to him somehow! . . ."

It was plain that Mr. Prescott now was convinced that the voice was that neither of a mad person nor a crank.

Rather unnecessarily he pressed his buzzer to summon Miss Byram.

Prescott got to his feet. He was a tall man with that interesting and attractive quality which people call "good presence." Fifteen years before when he had been in college he had been a football player and, also, an amateur actor, taking the lead in the college dramas. Before 30 he became public prosecutor for a little city in Ohio, where it happened that he prosecuted a case against a competitor of Horace Denslow. He won it and Denslow sent for him and brought him to New York, where, within five years, he had worked up to a position of chief in charge of Horace Denslow's affairs—in so far as Denslow put his enormous affairs into other hands.

Suppose Denslow were killed: what would it mean to him?

The girl, confronting him, could see that he was thinking that Denslow, tremendous as he was in finance, was a lonely figure. He had no partners or associates in recent years; he no longer had a wife or a son who could step into his affairs. All the world knew that his wife had divorced him and his son had taken the mother's part.

No wonder, thought Madge Byram, that Lewis Henry Prescott was drawing himself up more importantly and impressively than ever before.

"I got it all, Mr. Prescott," she said.

"That's good. She didn't sound crazy—or a crank. You were right."

"Do you know where Mr. Denslow has gone, Mr. Prescott?"

"No."

"He is flying?"

"I believe so."

"With his plane loaded with gold?"

"I do not know," Prescott confessed. "But would it surprise you?"

"No. Mrs. Allen might know," the girl suggested. She meant the wife of Davy Allen, Denslow's pilot. "Shall I call her?"

The phone before them rang and Madge picked up the receiver. "Mrs. Allen's calling us!"

"Give it to me!" Prescott took it from her.

"Mr. Prescott," said a woman's voice, frightened and anxious in an entirely different way from that of the unidentified woman. "Some one just phoned me and wouldn't give her name. She said I must send after Davy and stop him from flying. She said Mr. Denslow and Davy would be murdered when they landed, and they've landed. They left yesterday—in the afternoon—they . . ."

"Yes," said Prescott as kindly as he could. "They left, but do you know where they went?"

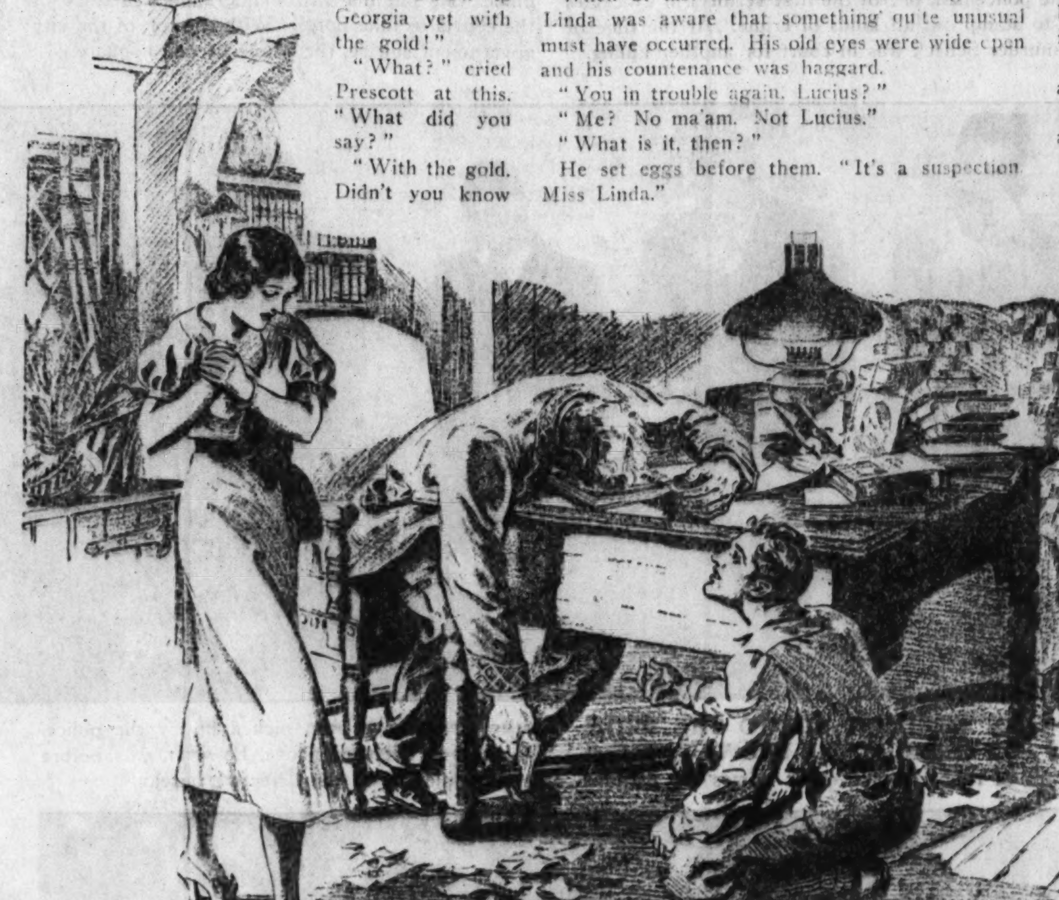
"Davy thought they would be flying south this time. To Georgia, Mr. Prescott."

"Why did he think that?"

"Because they've been making the round of the estates and they hadn't been to Georgia yet with the gold!"

"What?" cried Prescott at this. "What did you say?"

"With the gold. Didn't you know they were carrying gold on these trips?"



"No question he was killed; he couldn't have shot himself."

Madge Byram remained standing a few feet away.

"You heard some of that?" Prescott asked her when at last he hung up.

"Yes, Mr. Prescott."

"Well, it seems to be what we supposed. Davy's told her that Mr. Denslow's been taking out of New York and hiding, in other places, gold.

"Mrs. Allen said Davy thought they'd be flying south this time. So I suppose, Miss Byram, you'd better try to get Mr. Denslow's Georgia hunting lodge on the phone."

Southeastern Georgia was hung with the pastels of lingering sunset.

Daniel Telfair rattled along the state road in his roadster on the way home from baseball practice with the Albemarle High school team. His brother Andy amused himself with a hogshead hoop on the veranda of the faded but still sumptuous mansion. Mrs. Telfair gently consulted white haired, black faced Lucius about the evening meal. Linda, her eldest child, stood on the threshold of their home watching her brother, looking at the sunset breathing the seasonal magic.

An airplane buzzed into the colored sky, moving slowly like a lazy water bug across an oil scummed pond. "That," said 6 year old Andy, definitely, "is Mr. Denslow."

Linda demurred. "He only comes in the fall—to hunt."

"It's Mr. Denslow just the same."

The plane passed directly over the colonial mansion and its surrounding fields. Beyond the second ridge of darkly green pines it turned—one high wing flashing in the sun—and settled earthward like a weary gull.

"I told you so," Andy said insistently.

THE family sat around the table. Long candles glimmered on polished mahogany and silver—heirlooms from dead patricians of an almost forgotten south.

"Mr. Denslow flew down today," Linda said.

"Great!" Daniel helped himself from the dish proffered by Lucius. "Maybe he'll give me the ride he promised me last fall."

"Now, Daniel," Mrs. Telfair murmured reproachfully. Then the tangent of her thoughts changed. "What brought him here in the springtime?"

The high school's best pitcher shrugged. "Don't know, mother. Maybe he wanted to see what it was like here in Georgia in March."

Mrs. Telfair sighed. "That's the way with Yankees. Unreliable. I hoped when we sold the estate to Mr. Denslow we'd still have it to ourselves except for a few weeks in the fall, as he said. I never should have sold your grandfather's land. I knew it then."

Danny nodded, gustily devouring a portion of beefsteak made possible by the sale of the land to the stranger. "Swell guy."

"Daniel!"

"I mean to say, mother, he's a gentleman of refinement. Queer, but kindly disposed. Promised me a ride in his plane. I wonder if Gregg might be back with him now?"

"Gregg?" asked Mrs. Telfair, who had confined her dealing with Mr. Denslow to business matters wholly.

"His son, who came with him first time three years ago. Another swell guy. Ain't he, Linda?"

"He wouldn't come with his father," said Linda quickly. "Mr. and Mrs. Denslow were divorced and Gregg sided with his mother."

What was he like now, Linda wondered. Twenty-two—a young man. Was it possible that this time on this out of season visit he had come with his father?

The morning was bright and sun purged. Breakfast was late, for it was Saturday; Mrs. Telfair had a headache and remained in bed; no school and old Lucius, who always was as dilatory as circumstances allowed, today did not appear until Linda had set about the serving.

When at last he came into the dining room Linda was aware that something quite unusual must have occurred. His old eyes were wide open and his countenance was haggard.

"You in trouble again, Lucius?"

"Me? No ma'am. Not Lucius."

"What is it, then?"

He set eggs before them. "It's a suspection Miss Linda."

"Suspection of what, Lucius?"

"Ah suspicious somebody's daid."

"What makes you think so? What is the matter with you, Lucius?"

"Nothin' makes me think so. I jes' knows. Somebody's daid."

IT was a few moments after this, when nothing more had been gained from Lucius, that the telephone rang. Daniel leaped to answer it.

"It's for mother, Linda. New York's calling!" he shouted. "Somebody in New York wants her."

Linda stood up, astonished. She hurried into the hall and picked up the receiver. "Hello."

"Hello? Mrs. Telfair?" asked a feminine voice.

"This is her daughter. Can I take a message for my mother?"

"Just a minute."

Next Linda heard the voice of a man. "Hello? Miss Telfair? This is Henry Prescott speaking. I'm Horace Denslow's New York lawyer. I got your name from the deeds of his Georgia property. Do you know whether or not he reached Albemarle in his plane last night?"

"I believe he did. I saw his plane land over his way."

"So I thought. How far is his house from yours?"

"Five miles by road."

"I wonder, then, if you would do us a favor?" He did not wait for an answer. "We've been trying to get Mr. Denslow by phone. The wire is all right, but he doesn't answer. It is most important that we get in touch wth him. Would you mind trying to locate him and sending word to him to call us immediately, or else let us know definitely that he is not at his lodge?"

"I'd be glad to," Linda replied.

"What was all that?" Daniel, at her elbow, demanded.

"Mr. Denslow's lawyer in New York," Linda looked up the stairs to make sure that her mother had not been aroused. She explained, almost in a whisper. "He seems to think that something might have happened to Mr. Denslow. They crashed, maybe."

"O!" said Dan. "Then I'll go over there."

"We'll both go."

The boy backed the little car out of the barn that served as a garage. Linda jumped in beside him and they spun away.

"Certainly funny that Mr. Denslow came now," Dan observed as they ran on the narrow but good road of the Denslow acres. "Even Enoch's away."

Enoch was the caretaker who wintered in the servants' quarters of the lodge, but who was allowed a few days off between seasons. He had passed the Telfair place only the day before yesterday on an errand to Macon.

"Look at the landing field first," said Linda.

"Course."

The field itself was clear; if the plane had crashed it had not been upon the field. And the plane had not crashed; it had been rolled intact into the hangar and the wide doors closed upon it.

Whatever had happened had not occurred here.

Linda remembered when, three years ago, Gregory Denslow had invited her in and showed her around and introduced his father to her.

There was the lodge so shaded by the tall pines about it that a light in a lower window glowed yellow.

Dan moved to his left and Linda to her right. She peered in a window upon a dining table where, evidently, two persons had supped and left the dishes they had used. Daniel came to the window wherein the yellow light burned.

SOME one was in this room; some one in a chair with his back to the window. Some one who did not move. He was slumped forward over a table-desk with papers and books upon it.

He was Horace Denslow and he was dead!

Murder, that meant! Somebody down here had murdered Mr. Denslow, and somebody else in New York had known he was going to do it!

Daniel stepped back from the window, shaking a little.

His sister glanced along the front of the house and saw him.

"What's in there, Danny?"

"You go 'way, Linda!" he warned her, but already she was hurrying to him.

"Who'd you see, Dan?"

"Mr. Denslow. I guess he's dead."

Linda looked in.

She stood gasping and staring at Dan, and she forgot the voice from New York for thinking of and feeling for Gregg Denslow.

Dan and she jumped at the same instant and from the same stimulus; a bell shrilly ringing within the house.

"Listen, if anybody'll answer," said Linda.

"Who'd answer?"

"Two had supper, Dan. I saw two plates on the table."

The sister and brother were talking in whispers, all the time the telephone bell intermittently rang. Each time the ringing was interrupted they stood breathless, listening. At last the ringing ceased and did not resume.

"Hear anybody answering, Dan?"

"No; d'you?"

"We ought to go in, Dan."

"Oughtn't we get somebody first?"

"Who'd we get, Dan, Clem Clay?" Clay was the sheriff and both knew him.

Dan shook his head. "Maybe we ought to get Doc Ames."

"Then the quickest way would be to phone him from in there." And Linda, her resolution made, was at the door. It was tight shut and stuck a little, but it was not locked. Dan helped her push it open, and together they stepped in.

Within the house there was no sound or stir. They looked about the big hall and at the doors shut to it, and they glanced up the silent and empty stairs. For a moment more they listened.

"All right, let's go!" said Dan, but it was his sister's hand that grasped the knob of the door to the room with the light inside.

This light evidenced itself even before the knob turned, through a little round hole in the panel. Splinters splayed outward about the hole. Plainly it was a bullet hole freshly made by a bullet fired through the door from within the room.

Linda opened the door.

The figure sprawled over the desk did not move, and the uselessness of calling Dr. Ames was evident at the first view from this side. Mr. Denslow had been shot not once but several times, and it was evident that he had fought back. His right arm, which had been out of sight from the window, hung down beside the desk and the hand held a revolver pointed at the floor.

There was blood on the floor and scraps of paper—little torn scraps of white paper with writing upon them.

Dan now moved forward and bent close to the body.

"No question he was killed; he couldn't have shot himself. No powder marks, Linda. Besides, he was shot three times."

"Yes," said Linda. "And he fired back once—or more times."

"Ought we touch anything, Linda?" Dan asked, staring at that starkly held pistol but not putting his hand on it.

"No, we shouldn't. Not a thing; not a thing." But she stooped, drawn by some instinct, and picked up the scraps of paper that lay at her feet. They bore writing—woman's writing—writing of character and quality. Some of the words meant nothing as she read the scraps in her hand—"deliver to you"—"responsible for this"—"alone and—"

Then Linda read: "Gregory has insisted th" —"he see you this evenin——"

Dan turned to her. "What you got there?"

Her hand closed on the scraps. "Nothing."

He accepted her answer, he was so excited himself. Then they both jumped—but Linda kept her fist tight closed—as the telephone suddenly shrilled again.

"Let's answer it, Dan!" said Linda.

"Will you answer?"

"You answer, then I'll talk to them," Linda bargained with him. She wanted him out of the room ahead of her to give her time to gather the rest of the scraps of paper. Had he noticed them, or, if he had, would he remember them at all?

She set to picking up the torn bits. Some were under the table, one nearly under the pistol, another under the terrible chair.

What was she doing, and why was she doing it? She was getting out of sight proof that Gregory Denslow had visited his father last night, and she was doing it because she knew he had no part in the murder.

She heard her brother calling to her in a queer hoarseness of awe loud in the silent hall. "Linda, Linda, it's New York again. That man in New York who talked to you."

Linda dared delay no longer; she twisted into her handkerchief the scraps she had gathered—two had blood upon them—and she thrust the handkerchief under her blouse.

"What did you tell—New York?" Linda asked.

"That we were here, and Mr. Denslow was murdered."

"Hello," said Linda.

"O, Miss Telfair? What has happened? For God's sake tell me exactly what has happened. Your brother says you found Mr. Denslow murdered. Was Allen, his pilot, who flew him there, killed with him?"

"We haven't found the pilot," Linda said.

"Then he's dead, too, or he did it and escaped. He was with Mr. Denslow."

"We haven't looked through the rest of the house yet, Mr. Prescott," Linda told him, her imagination traveling behind other doors on this floor and upstairs to find what else?

"How far," New York now was asking her, "how far is it to the nearest town, and what town is it? I don't remember."

"Albemarle. Fifteen miles."

"What is the character of the local authorities at Albemarle?"

"You mean the sheriff?" said Linda. "Clem Clay? He'll be on his way as soon as you're through talking. The operator is surely listening in on this, you know."

"O!" said New York. "O, well, is Mr. Clay an experienced investigator?"

"He's a sheriff," said Linda noncommittally, and New York understood.

"I am coming from New York. I will fly down myself, bringing with me the best private detective in New York City. Now, so far as you can, save everything for us. See everything for us; record it and save me your memorandum. More depends upon you, Miss Telfair, than you can dream at this moment, or than I can tell you now.

"But this much I can tell you. Mr. Denslow flew down there with his airplane laden with gold."

"Gold?"

"Gold—in bars. His ship was heavy with gold. I am starting for you at once. Remember, I depend upon you."

HE hung up and Linda put down the receiver. Dan was at her elbow; he had been there all the time, hearing most of what was said from New York.

"He said 'gold'?" asked Dan. "Mr. Denslow was flying down here with a shipload of gold?"

The telephone rang and Linda answered it. An excited female voice came to her ears. "This is Nellie Kane at Albemarle, Miss Telfair. I heard almost every word you said. Shall I spread the news for you?"

"Please," said Linda, "tell the sheriff, and will you call Dr. Ames for me?"

"Dr. Ames? You're hurt or sick, Miss Telfair?"

"No, but tell him I'm staying here. I'd be glad if he'd come."

If he were home, Linda reckoned, he would arrive before the sheriff, and she would be glad of that.

"Gold; gold in bars!" Dan was repeating. "Suppose any of it's left in the ship?"

"We ought to know," said Linda. "It's the first thing we ought to know. Go down there and see."

The boy ran out into the sunlight, and swiftly she spread the scraps from her handkerchief upon the table. Rapidly she fitted them together.

Palm Beach, Thursday, March 16.

Dear Horace:

Gregory has insisted that we drive to Albemarle today so that we may see you this evening. Obviously I cannot come, and I have begged him not to take this opportunity of talking to you because he is, I know, in no mood for calm discussion with you. Any meeting between you and him can accomplish nothing so far as I am concerned. I am writing this, which he has agreed to deliver to you, so that you may remain assured that he alone and not I must be responsible for this visit. Even as yo—— [here some scraps were missing]—disposal of your fortune.

Sincerely,

Henriette Taylor.

Linda straightened, trembling. So he had been here last night! No doubt about it. Was he, therefore, also killed? Or had he done the killing? That she would not believe.

She stared down again at the scraps. Henriette Taylor was the maiden name of his mother, and she had resumed the name after the divorce from his father.

A sound set Linda jumping. A sound in the house! The creak of a board upstairs; now the creak of the stairs!

Someone was moving overhead and descending the stairs; someone was standing in the dim light of the upper landing and looking down at her.

Senselessly, automatically in her fright, she swept up in her hand the scraps she had pieced together while she watched, fascinated, the man descend.

Slowly, deliberately, with no hurry, he was coming down. A tall man, and therefore not Allen, the pilot, for he, Linda remembered, was short. Not Gregory, either, unless Gregory had broadened since she saw him.

This man had no face; a handkerchief with holes for eyes was under his hat. The holes were turned toward her. As he came down the stairs he was keeping those eyeholes upon her.

The Exciting Tale of an Orphaned English Girl, Returning from Her Holidays in Italy, Who Finds Mystery, Murder—and Love—in a Single Train Journey

JUST before the blow fell Edna felt unusually well and happy. Her holiday was over, her bill at the hotel was paid, and her suitcase lay on the station platform. For over an hour she had sat—the sun beating down on her uncovered head—feasting her eyes on the scenery.

She had just spent a glorious three weeks rambling the mountains in congenial Anglo-American society, and it seemed strangely civilized to be wearing a skirt and silk stockings again after shorts and nailed boots. The rest of the crowd had returned yesterday, but she had chosen to stay one day longer, alone.

Suddenly the sun struck her. Owing to the altitude, the air was cool and bracing so that she had not realized the fierceness of its rays. She felt a violent pain at the back of her neck, followed by a rush of sick dizziness. As the white capped mountains darkened and rocked she had a ghastly moment of panic.

"I'm going to be ill—alone—among strangers."

Then everything slipped away. . . . When she opened her eyes she was in the cool gloom of the primitive little waiting room, while a black pinafored woman held a glass of raw spirits to her lips. People stared at her curiously and spoke to her, but she could not understand a word.

Luckily, she soon felt better and was able to reward her Good Samaritans. But, after they had left her, she had another bad minute when she wondered if she had been robbed while she was unconscious. Examination of her bag, however, proved that her tickets, passport, and money were untouched.

She was now in a fever of impatience to get away, for her experience had unnerved her. It had made her realize, for the first time in her life, the horror of helplessness far away from familiar things.

With a whistle and a roar the engine steamed into the little station. The porter had difficulty in finding a place for Edna, for, although her seat was reserved, the carriage already held its quota of six. He appeared to be abjectly apologetic to a majestic lady in deep black, who plainly resented the newcomer.

The whistle shrilled and the engine began to throb slowly on its way back to England. Except the frontiers there was only one stop—Milan—before Basle, where Edna changed into the Calais express.

A family party—two large parents and a daughter of about twelve—sat on the same side of the carriage as herself. Opposite was a fair and beautiful girl in black and white who appeared to have modeled herself on a film star, a typical British spinster, and the lady who had opposed her intrusion.

Veiled and draped in heavy black, she was an overwhelming and formidable personality—essentially of the ruling class—with an arrogant beaked nose and fierce, proud eyes.

Presently the majestic lady received a visitor—a pallid man with dead eyes, a black spade beard, and glasses. As they carried on a low conversation Edna was amused to notice that the British spinster was straining her ears to listen. She also remarked that the black-clad lady looked in her direction as though in annoyance and made a low observation to her companion.

Sensing their hostility, she closed her eyes and only knew when the man had left the compartment by the absence of guttural whispers. The motion rocked her to a light sleep.

Her torpid trance was broken by an official who poked his head through the door and shouted something, to which the company in general was unresponsive. The British spinster, however, tapped Edna on the arm.

"You're English, aren't you?" she asked in a crisp, pleasant voice. "Tea is ready in the restaurant car. Coming?"

EDNA'S head was aching badly, so that she was glad to follow her guide into the corridor. As they passed the next compartment to theirs they saw through the door a figure, covered with rugs, stretched out on one seat. Both head and forehead were bandaged, while a criss-cross of plaster strips concealed the features from brow to chin in a diagonal line.

The invalid was in charge of the pallid black bearded man who had just visited their carriage and a nursing sister who was dressed like a nun. Her face was hard and repellent, with a brutal mouth, so that it was difficult to connect her with the profession of nursing.

"How ghastly to be ill on a journey!" shuddered Edna, with a memory of her recent attack.

Her companion was able to tell her all about the invalid, for she was the type that collects information.

"Yes, a motor smash higher up the valley. Her face is terribly cut, poor thing, and there's head injury, so they're rushing her to Milan for an operation. The doctor was telling the baroness about it just now."

Edna learned that her compatriot was a Miss Winifred Bird, who had been English governess to a titled family for two years and was now going home on her first holiday. To her surprise this adult lady actually possessed living parents.

"Mummy and daddy say they can talk of nothing else but my return," Miss Bird told her. "They're excited as children, and so is Ruff. He's an old English sheep dog, not pure, but an appealing dog, and so devoted to me. He understands I'm coming home, but not when, so he meets every train. Mummy says he always comes back with his tail down, the picture of depression. They're both imagining his frantic joy the night I do come. And that's tomorrow."

"Are you going back after your holiday?" Edna asked.

"Yes, but not to my post." Miss Bird looked around her and then lowered her voice. "I'm coming back to give evidence in a murder trial. I'll mention no names, but I was governess to the very highest in the place. You've no idea of his power. What he says goes, and he hasn't got to speak, for a wink is enough. But, although he rules absolutely, there's a small communist element in the town, and their leader—a young man—accused the—my employer—of corruption. I'm afraid it was true. There was an awful scene at the castle, and the—my employer—shot the young man. I saw it all."

"You've really seen a man killed?" gasped Edna. "How terrible."

"Terrible at the time, my dear, but afterwards it all turned to a thrilling adventure. Life's so interesting because things are always happening. Every one wanted to hush it up and say it was suicide. But, of course, I had to insist on being heard for the sake of justice. You've no idea how unpopular I was. The children threw stones at me in the street and the shop people refused to serve me. Even the police were quite angry with me. And I'm sure the muddle about my seat was intentional."

"What muddle?" asked Edna.

"I booked my seat second class, but, when I got to the train they said my place was already taken. But the baroness was kind and said I was to travel 'first' with her and she would make it right about my ticket. I felt awkward, as she's related to the—my employer."

EDNA gathered that the autocratic lady in black was the baroness and that she had annexed her own reservation for Miss Bird. By this time, however, she was growing tired of Miss Bird's confidences. After they had blundered back to their compartment she felt she must make a bid for silence.

"Do you mind if I don't talk?" she asked. "My head is nearly splitting. I've just had a touch of sunstroke."

As she knew Miss Bird's curiosity had to be appeased, she gave a brief account of her attack. While she did so she had the feeling that the baroness was listening to her story with concealed interest.

Miss Bird kindly supplied aspirin, which made Edna feel pleasantly drowsy.

Down, down. She drifted into sleep. Suddenly she gave a violent start and her heart began to leap as though she had just stepped into vacancy. Opening her eyes, she stared around her confusedly.

Miss Bird had disappeared.

Common sense told Edna that Miss Bird had probably gone to wash and would soon be back. She looked at her watch to time her absence. In five minutes she would surely be back, and with her warm humanity, her curiosity, and her stories about family and home.

Five minutes passed, then ten, then fifteen. Still Miss Bird did not come back. When, after twenty minutes had passed, Edna chanced to look up at her rack, she received a nasty shock.

Miss Bird's suitcase was not there.

She could restrain her uneasiness no longer. As the baroness still slept, she appealed to the other passengers. She was probably the world's worst linguist, but she made a brave effort in three of the languages of civilization.

She eked out her inquiries with pantomime, pointing to Miss Bird's empty place, while she raised her brows in exaggerated inquiry. But the passengers merely shrugged and shook their heads to show her that they did not understand.

Since no sight of intelligence gleamed on their blank faces, Edna decided to find out whether Miss Bird had changed her seat. But it seemed unlikely, in view of the fact that the train was so full, and she felt acutely worried as she worked her way down the shaking corridor—clinging to the rail, pushing past loiterers, and staring into every compartment.

Her quest reminded her of the hunt for the proverbial needle in the haystack. Although she visited every portion of the long train, including both restaurant cars—where men were smoking and drinking—she could find no trace of Miss Bird. With a leaden sense of apprehension she returned to her own compartment.

The baroness still slept. Suddenly desperate, Edna leaned forward and shook her awake. As she did so, she heard a smothered gasp from the other passengers, as though she had committed some act of sacrilege.

THE baroness opened her proud eyes in a glare of outraged majesty. But Edna was too overwrought to apologize.

"Where is the English lady?" she cried.

"What English lady?" asked the baroness, speaking without a trace of accent.

"Miss Bird. The one who sat here."

"I do not understand. That seat has not been occupied, ever."

Edna's head began to reel.

"Yes, yes," she insisted. "I talked to her. We had tea together."

"No." The baroness shook her head and spoke with slow emphasis. "You make a strange mistake. There has been no English lady here except you, yourself."

Feeling as though she was trapped in some bad dream, Edna sank weakly down in her seat.

Either they're all mad, or I'm mad, she thought. No Miss Bird? Did I dream her? No, she was as real as me, with her old parents and Ruff . . . O, heavens! it's ghastly to be so helpless.

Presently she sprang to her feet in a burst of nervous futility.

Scarcely conscious of her actions, Edna began to make a second search through the train. But, this time, she was aware that she was an object of curiosity and amusement. In every carriage was a blur of faces.

As she entered the first class restaurant car she thought she heard an Oxford accent. Unable to locate it, she made a general appeal.

"Please. Is there any one English here?"

The spectacle of a pretty girl in distress brought two men to their feet, although one of them appeared to regard chivalry merely as a duty. He was tall, thin, and of academic appearance, which, in his case, was not deceptive, since he was a university professor of modern languages.

The other was younger and rather untidy, with rough hair and audacious blue eyes.

"An English lady, Miss Bird, has disappeared on the train," Edna declared, her voice shaking as she spoke. "They say—but that's absurd. I'm frightened by it all. Something's wrong—and I can't speak their miserable language—and——"

As her voice failed, she was conscious of a tall gray man, bald as a vulture, who stared at her with piercing eyes as though she was something on a microscope slide.

"Could you pull yourself together and make a concise statement?" asked the professor.

The chill in his voice was tonic to her nerves, bracing her to compress the situation into a few words. To her overwhelming relief the professor was impressed, for he looked grave.

"This must certainly be investigated," he said. "Will you show me where your compartment is?"

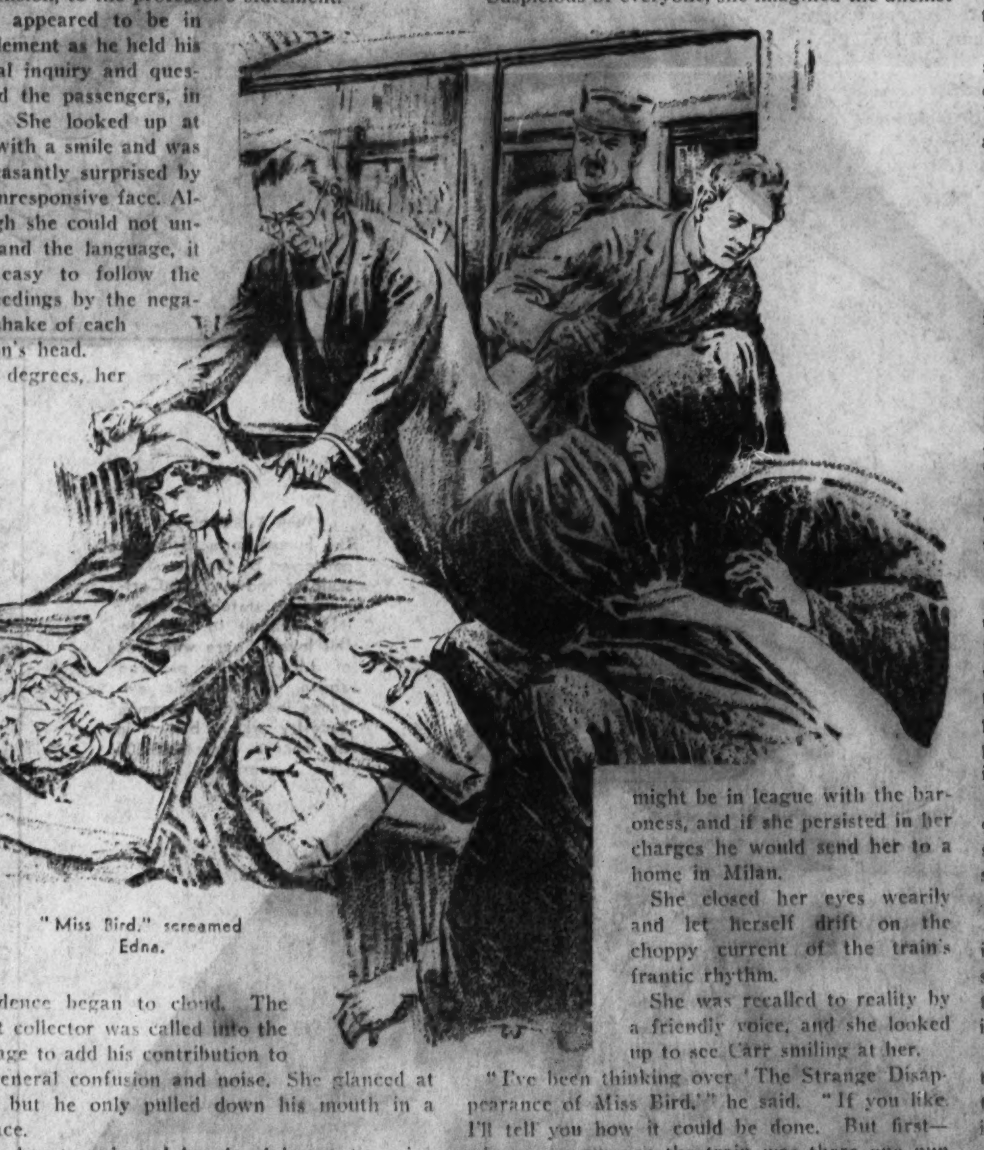
The frivolous youth joined them and, somehow, managed to infect Edna with a sense of comradeship as they fought their way through the crowded corridor.

"My name's Carr," he said. "Much too long for you to remember. Better call me 'John Michael Peter,' like every one else. I'm an engineer and speak the lingo, too. Look on me as a second string."

STRONG in the support of her compatriots, Edna felt certain of a happy issue as she entered her own compartment. The baroness was talking to the doctor, who was paying her another visit, but she listened, with gracious condescension, to the professor's statement.

He appeared to be in his element as he held his official inquiry and questioned the passengers, in turn. She looked up at him with a smile and was unpleasantly surprised by his unresponsive face. Although she could not understand the language, it was easy to follow the proceedings by the negative shake of each person's head.

By degrees, her confidence began to cloud. The ticket collector was called into the carriage to add his contribution to the general confusion and noise. She glanced at Carr, but he only pulled down his mouth in a grimace.



"Miss Bird," screamed Edna.

Her heart sank and her head began to swim. It was inconceivable that all these people should lie—yet they appeared to be denying the existence of Miss Bird.

Presently the professor spoke to her coldly.

"You appear to have made a most extraordinary mistake. No one in this carriage—including the ticket collector—knows anything about the lady you say is missing."

"Are you telling me I invented her?" asked Edna, wildly. "We had tea together."

"Then, will you describe her so that I can interview the tea waiters?"

"I'm afraid I can't tell you much," she faltered. "There's was nothing about her to catch hold of. She's middle aged, and ordinary, and rather colorless."

"Surely you know if she is tall or short, dark or fair?"

"No. But I remember she had blue eyes."

"What did she wear?" asked Carr with a flash of intuition.

"Tweed, I think. I didn't notice much because I've such a splitting headache."

"Exactly." The professor's tone was dry. "Cause and effect. The doctor tells me you've just had sunstroke."

Suddenly Edna saw her chance to convince him.

"How does the doctor know that?" she asked. "I only told that to Miss Bird. How could I tell any one else when I only speak English?"

"It appears you were taken ill on the station platform. The baroness was there and she told the doctor."

"It explains all," said the doctor, speaking English with a grating accent. "Your sunstroke has given you a delirium—a delusion. You went to sleep and you dreamed. Your Miss Bird is only your dream."

A long-drawn howl, as though a damned soul were lamenting, and a succession of rattles like gunfire told her that they were passing through a tunnel.

Suppose Miss Bird's body was, even then, being thrown out of the carriage in which it lay concealed.

EDNA felt her temperature rushing up as though she were in a furnace. Every one considered her slightly mad and found her antics a funny spectacle. Mocking eyes followed her as she stormed the restaurant car.

The professor sat in interested conversation with the vulture headed man, while Carr listened. When he saw Edna he looked up with a slight frown.

"I must tell you something," she cried. "I've discovered that there's a conspiracy against Miss Bird. We've got to help her because she's English like ourselves. Do listen."

The professor heard her story in stony silence and then he raised his brows interrogatively to the man with the piercing eyes. He nodded agreement when the other made some rapid explanation.

"Will you take some advice, offered in a friendly spirit?" asked the professor, speaking to Edna as though to a fractious child. "This gentleman is a famous Russian alienist, and he is of the opinion that you may be, temporarily, slightly deranged, as a result of your sunstroke."

"D'you mean mad?" cried Edna in horror. "Me?"

Suspicious of everyone, she imagined the alienist might be in league with the baroness, and if she persisted in her charges he would send her to a home in Milan.

She closed her eyes wearily and let herself drift on the choppy current of the train's frantic rhythm.

She was recalled to reality by a friendly voice, and she looked up to see Carr smiling at her.

"I've been thinking over 'The Strange Disappearance of Miss Bird,'" he said. "If you like I'll tell you how it could be done. But first—when you came on the train was there one nun next door to you, or two?"

"One."

"And now there are two."

"I know. But the other might have been somewhere else in the train. There's just a jam in the corridors."

"Good," declared Carr triumphantly. "No one would be likely to notice them. Now, we'll assume your little lady has got up against the High Hat—and it's true about the feudal system being still in force in these remote places. So she's got to be bumped off. And what better way than on a railroad journey?"

"Do you mean—they've thrown her on the rails in a tunnel?" asked Edna faintly.

"Lord, no. Her body would be found and awkward questions asked. What I meant was that a lot of valuable time will be wasted before it's proved she's missing. Her people will think she's lost a connection or is stopping for a few days in Paris. Even if they are influential and know the ropes, the trail will be cold by the time they get busy."

"And they're old and helpless," said Edna.

"Bad luck. In any case, when they make inquiries locally they'll find themselves up against a conspiracy of silence . . . This would be a natural matter of tradition and policy. But I believe the baroness, the doctor and the two nuns are the only people in the plot. All the other passengers are local folk who would back up the baroness as a matter of course. There's no doubt, though, there was dirty work at the crossroads over her reserved seat, so as to force her into the baroness' compartment, which is at the end of the train and next door to the doctor."

"But what's happened to her?" asked Edna faintly.

"My theory is that she's lying in the next compartment to yours, covered up and disguised with bandages and trimmings. You were an unwelcome interloper, but when you obligingly went to sleep Miss Bird was asked to render some slight service to their invalid, and I'm sure she would go like a bird."

"Yes," nodded Edna. "I'm positive she would."

"There you are, then. Directly she entered she was gripped and gagged by two of them while a third gave her an injection. When she was unconscious they bandaged her up roughly and stuck plaster all over her face to disguise it. Then the false patient, who was already dressed in uniform, would only have to put a veil over her bandages, which would look like the proper bands, and peel off her own strip to look the perfect nun."

"And—when they reach Milan?" asked Edna fearfully.

"I'm afraid the betting is she'll be taken in an ambulance to some lonely place near a river . . . But she'll know nothing of it. They'll keep her unconscious all the time."

Edna sprang to her feet.

"We must do something at once," she cried.

"Listen to me." Carr pulled her back to her seat. "All this is only my idea, because I was suspicious of the way the invalid is on view in order to show all is above board. If it was genuine illness I am sure they'd pull down the blind. . . . But, remember, it is impossible to prove it."

"But why? Why?"

"Because it may be a real patient. We can't insist on examining her bandages to see if they are wound on or in correct surgical manner, or rip off her plaster to spy her face. We might start the wound bleeding and she might pass out. We can't risk years in quod for manslaughter."

Edna fought against his restraining arm, but he continued to hold her.

"Don't start anything mad," he said. "The truth is I can't forget your sunstroke. I just showed you how things might be done. But I'm like the old lady who saw a giraffe for the first time. I don't believe it."

The passengers for the first dinner began to stream into the car. Feeling that food would choke her, Edna was driven out into the corridor. When Carr spoke to her she turned on him in a fury.

"Go away. I hate you!"

AFTER an age long struggle through two sections of the train, where the connecting passages seemed clanking iron concertinas, in which she might be caught and pressed to death, she realized that she was near to her own compartment.

"I must find her," murmured Edna confusedly.

They were getting near Milan. She could see scattered lights in the distance. In the conflicting reflections of the windows walls and roofs appeared like quivering landscape and running water. She could hear movements in the next carriage. Luggage was lowered to the floor and voices called for service. The guard passed in the corridor, just as Carr came to the door.

"We're coming into Milan," he said.

"Milan!" As though the word were an electric needle stabbing a raw nerve, Edna sprang to her feet, inflamed by a dynamic impulse. She acted with the blind delirium of fever. Ducking under the guard's arm, she pushed into the next compartment, and—before any one could guess her purpose—dug her fingers under the plaster, tearing it from the invalid's face.

The guard gave a gasp of horror which sharpened into a whistle of surprise as the adhesive strip peeled off. Instead of raw gashed flesh he saw the skin of a middle aged woman.

"Miss Bird!" screamed Edna.

There followed a panic of noise and confusion, in which Edna felt herself pushed roughly on one side. At the same moment she went to bits, utterly exhausted by her supreme effort. Staggering back to her own seat she collapsed.

Shouts and sudden flashes of light told her that they were entering a large station, and she felt the jerk of the train as it stopped. The tumult in the next compartment seemed to increase. . Then it died down. . . . Other passengers entered her carriage. She heard the whistle of the engine and the slow clank of wheels as it steamed slowly on its way to Basle.

Very soon some one spoke to her, and she looked up into the eyes of an old and intimate friend who did not know her name.

"I say, you," said Carr. "Everything's O. K., and I've had the time of my life. The guard was immense, and knew just what to do. The doctor and his little lot went like lambs. They know they'll only have to stand for a charge of attempted abduction, and though the baroness sailed out—no connection—she'll work it for them somehow. Wheels within wheels, you know."

Edna was indifferent to their fate, one way or the other.

"What happened to Miss Bird?" she asked.

"Responding to treatment, and all that. The alienist, who's a frightfully decent chap, is looking after her, and she'll soon be conscious. But she must stop at Basle and go on tomorrow. Will you break your journey to keep her company?"

"Will you be there, too? Then I will."

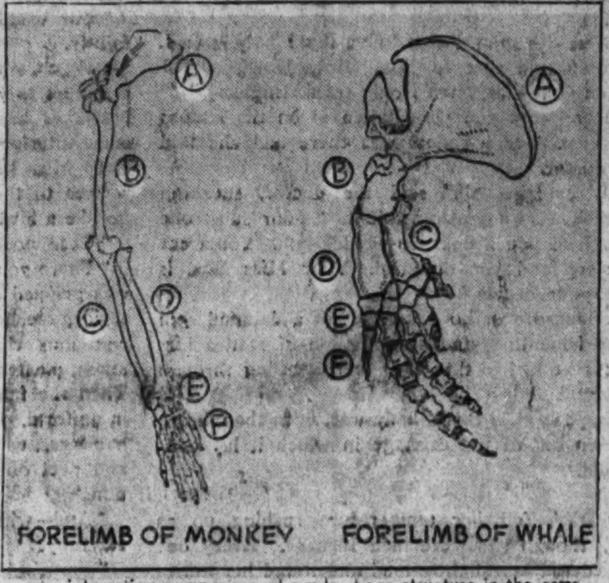
Science at the World's Fair Throws New Light on the Rise of the Race

Conventions Reviewing a Century of Progress Reawaken the Public to the Vital Importance of the Laboratory to Humanity

By Bradford Ames

WITH a hundred years of scientific and industrial achievement as its theme, A Century of Progress exposition has fascinated millions of visitors with its dramatization of the intricate and swiftly changing technique of the age in which we live. No less remarkable than the theme, however, has been its counterpoint, one of the most remarkable concentrations of scientific bodies ever witnessed in one city in one year.

What significance for the man on the street has this great convocation of science? It has passed in review all new and vital researches and findings that concern man's conquest of himself and his environment. And not that alone; by [illegible] its unities of time and place, illuminated by the same floodlights of world publicity that have bathed A Century of Progress, it has captured popular imagination and awakened the public to a keener realization that science is the veritable cornerstone of the modern age.



An interesting comparison of similar bone structure in the arms of a monkey and a whale, hinting at evolutionary relationships. The letter A is opposite the scapula, or shoulder blade; B, the humerus or upper arm; C and D, the radius and ulna of the forearm; E, the wrist; F, the palm, and then the fingers.

Man never ceases to wonder what manner of creature he is, and to attempt to piece together the story of his rise; and because that is true, he finds of obvious significance the findings of those sciences that deal directly with himself and his past. Let two instances be chosen almost at random from the fields of anthropology and physiology, then—but without attempting to weigh their relative importance in the scientific scale of the year—to exemplify the importance to man of the scientific pronouncements of 1933:

The highly evolved brain of the human being holds unconscious control of the chemistry and physics of the blood.

Recent researches have disproved the old theory that the shape of the skull is always determined by the growth of the brain in its earlier stages. Instead, the skull often determines the shape and size of the brain.

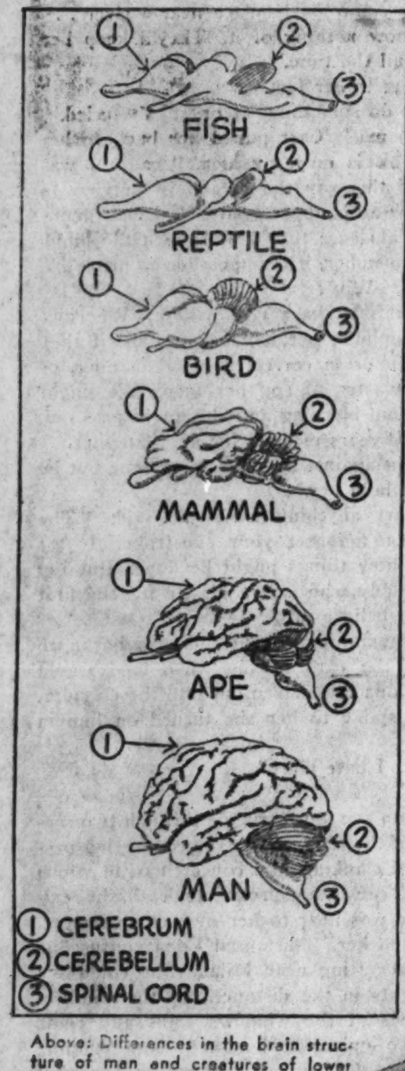
Both these statements were heard in reports before the convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Science the largest and most comprehensive of the many scientific conventions held in Chicago. The first was made by Prof James Barcroft, British physiologist; the second by Prof. C. U. A. Ariens of the Central Dutch Institute for Brain Research, Amsterdam. Both are typical of the beaconlike discoveries of science which increasingly illuminate the road of human progress from the time of man's origin, millions of years ago, to the present.

Prof Barcroft, in his study of brain functions, reports that man's superior brain makes it possible for him to live in a world of weather extremes and other varying conditions. As a result of brain control of blood chemistry and physics, the constancy of man's blood stream makes him relatively independent of heat, cold, and other changes which hamper the lives of lower animals. The lowest organisms in the evolution of life, says Prof. Barcroft, directed their efforts at arranging their lives so that outside conditions would be less hard on them. Higher in the evolutionary scale the first steps toward internal regulation were chemical. Then the control of the nervous system began to assert itself, until finally the brain became dominant in maintaining continuing uniformity of the blood stream.

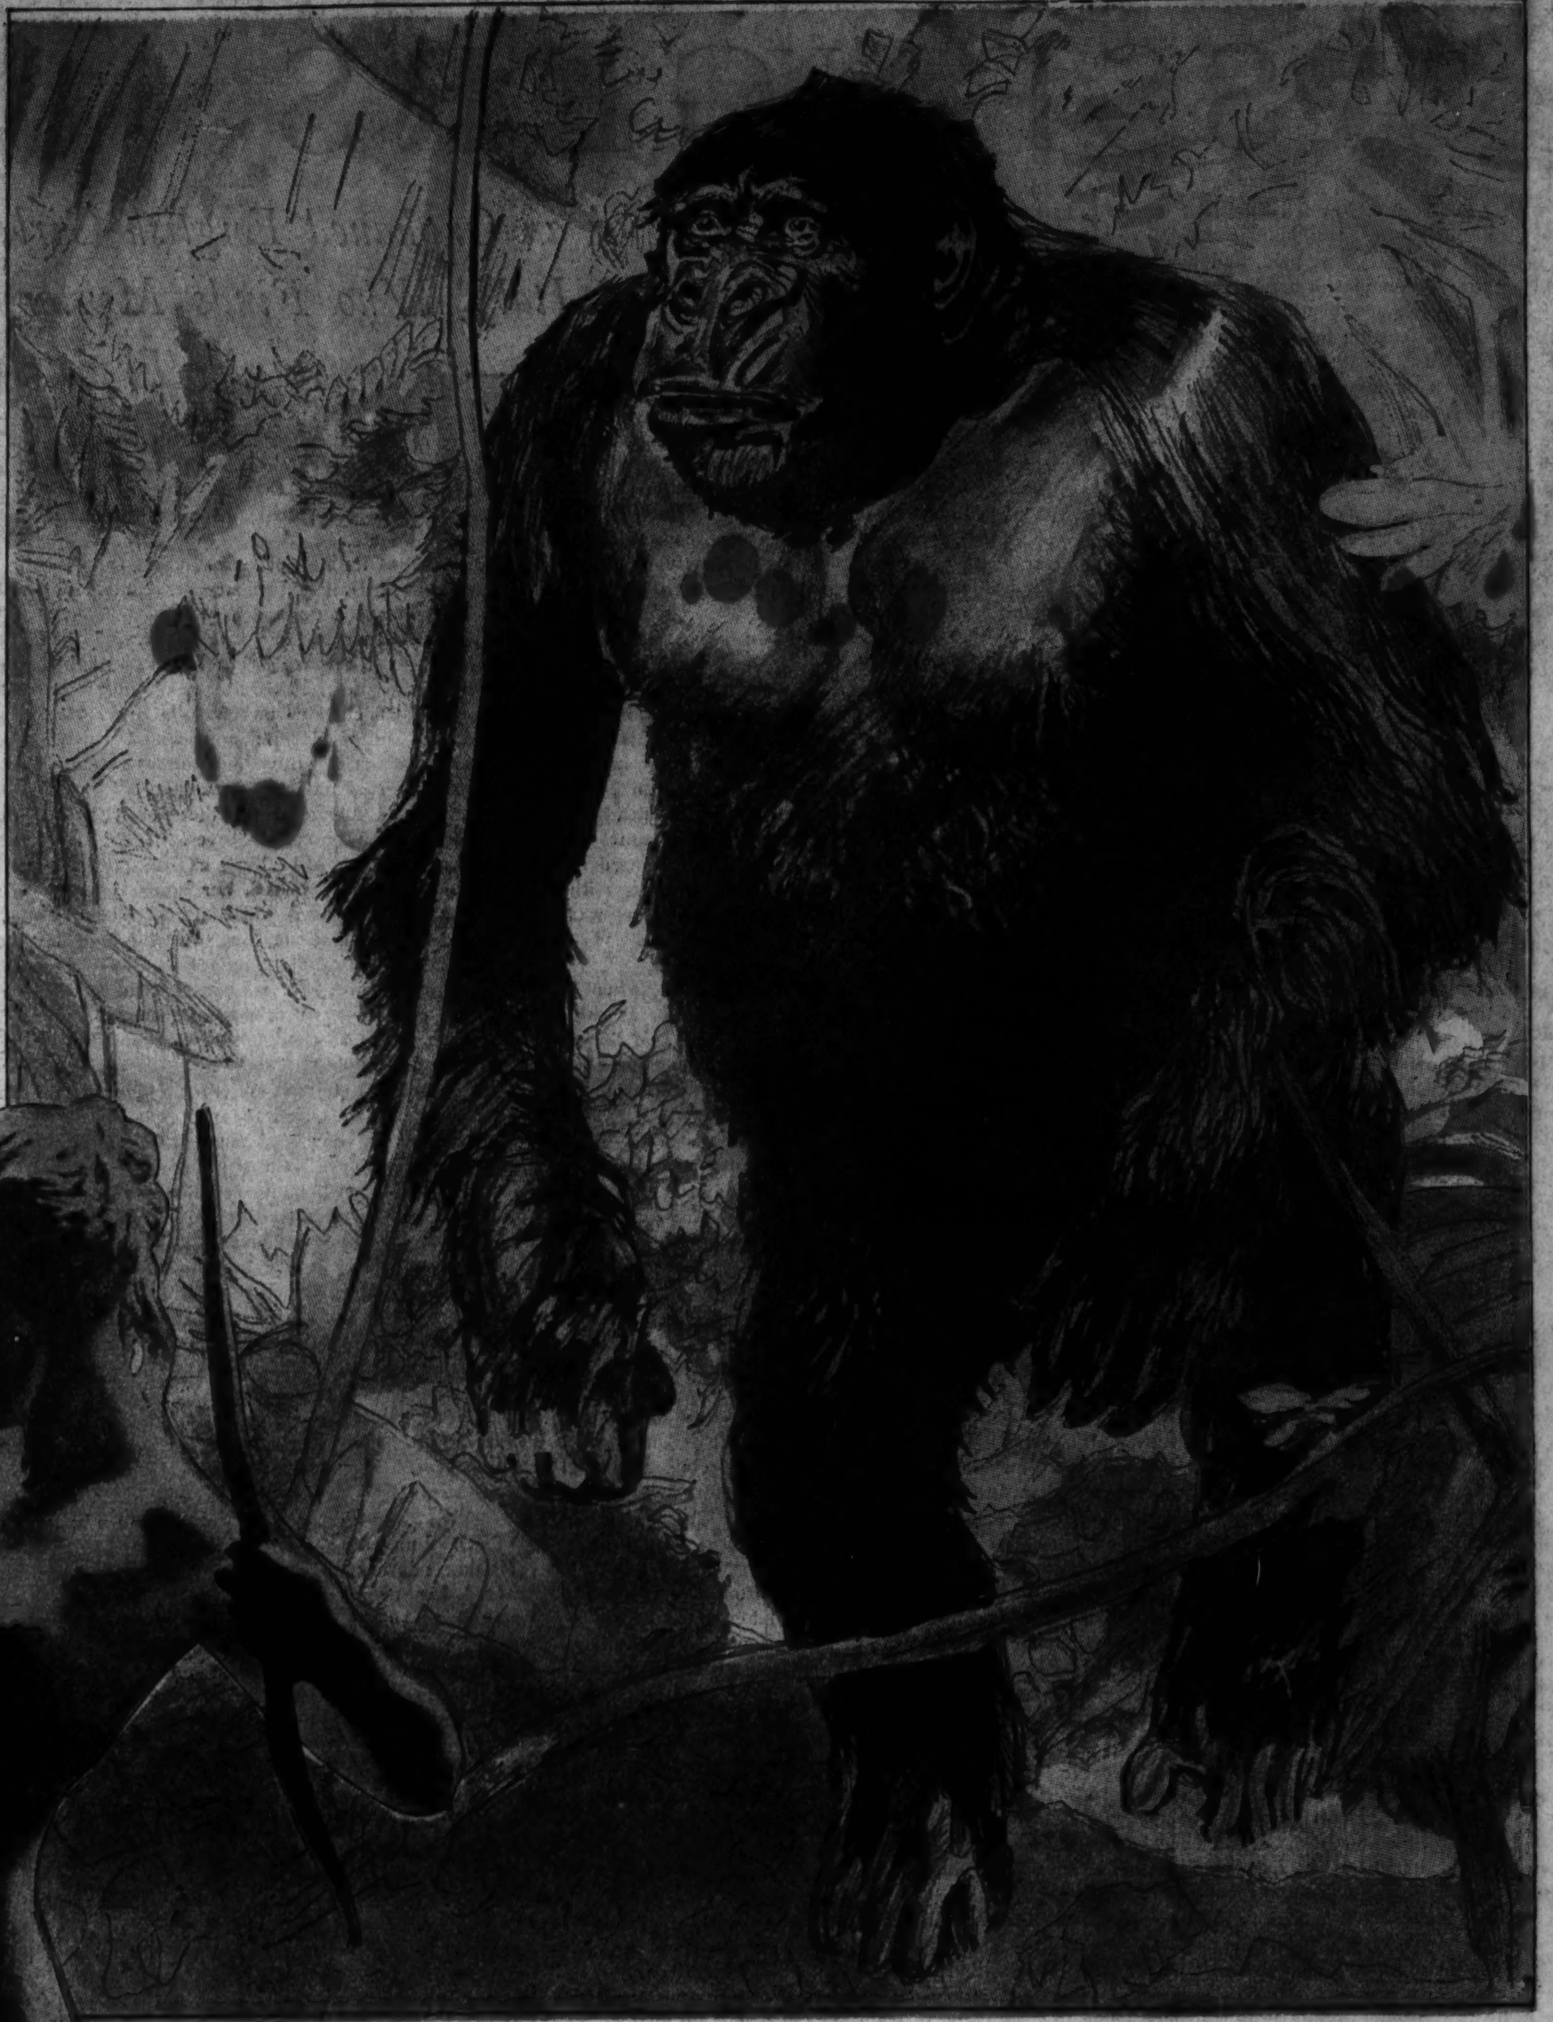
In elaboration of his report concerning skull shape, Prof. Ariens points out that in fishes the small space occupied by the brain is ample; but in birds, as is shown by one of the accompanying illustrations, the small skull compels the brain to fold and pack itself closely. Similarly, in the humans the skull types of the various races, long, medium, and broad, have been known to influence the brain arrangement. There is yet no evidence, says Prof. Ariens, that influence of the skull on brain arrangement makes any one human race superior to any other.

Contrast the brutish ancestry from which man descended and the flower of the human race, as visualized by juxtaposition in the accompanying illustrations. Historically the separating abyss is all but inconceivable. Physically the eye might place the two creatures as coming from different worlds. But, staggering as is this differentiation, the contrast in mental powers is even greater. Man is what he has become because he thinks. In the light of such considerations, researches of the Arienses and Barcrofts take on a momentous aspect.

In addition to the scientific conventions of 1933, another interesting concomitant of the Chicago exposition has been the publication of a series of scientific books, under the name of A Century of Progress, written by scientific leaders to present the message of science at the World's Fair. In one of these, "The Long Road from Savagery to Civilization," Dr. Fay-Cooper Cole, professor of anthropology at the University of Chicago, outlines the story of mankind through the ages, a story which begins, according to Dr. Cole, with the fact, accepted by science, that there are many positive indications that man and ape may have had a common ancestor.



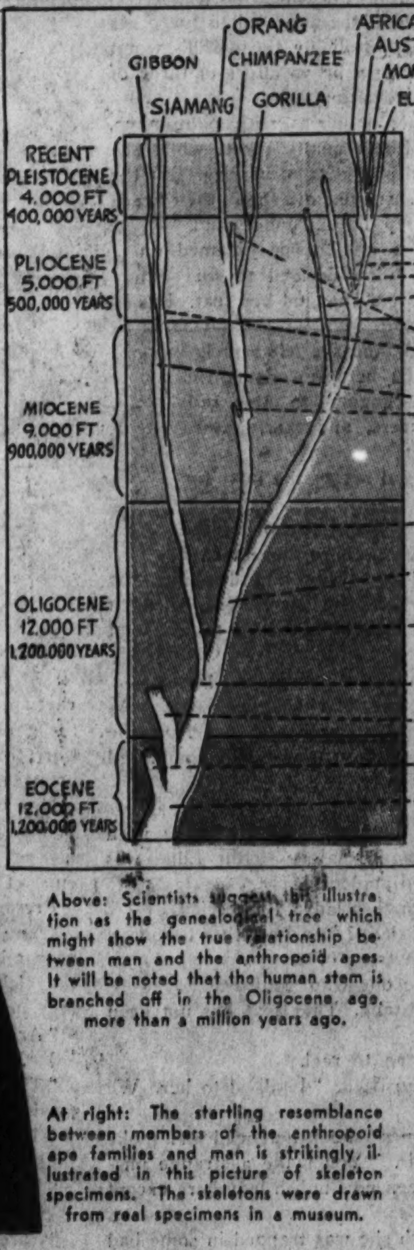
Above: Differences in the brain structure of man and creatures of lower orders.



Ferocious and ugly, this savage gorilla represents a branch in the evolutionary scale which scientists believe belongs to the same common stem from which humanity developed.

(Wide World photo.)

The human form divine as conceived by the New York sculptor, Edward McCarten, in his statue, "Diana." It is difficult to associate this lovely figure with that of the gorilla pictured above, yet scientific evidence indicates a common ancestry which began in the Eocene age, 1,200,000 years ago.



Above: Scientists suggest this illustration as the genealogical tree which might show the true relationship between man and the anthropoid apes. It will be noted that the human stem is branched off in the Oligocene age, more than a million years ago.

At right: The startling resemblance between members of the anthropoid ape families and man is strikingly illustrated in this picture of skeleton specimens. The skeletons were drawn from real specimens in a museum.
